PROFITS

The Ford Motor Company earned $31,797,861 profits in 1929. That was the first profitable year since 1926. In 1927, when the factory was shut down for six months while new machinery for the production of Model A was being installed, the company lost $42,786,727. In 1928 while the market for Model A was being built up the company lost $72,221,498.

Those are amazing figures. No less amazing is the Ford report of cash on hand on December 31, 1929, totalling $346,927,496. Most of this is money on deposit subject to check. For many years Henry Ford has carried a larger cash balance than any man in the world ever had.

Only a closed corporation like this, in which all of the stock is owned by one man, his wife and his son, can do business on such basis. In other corporations, stockholders demand distribution of assets in dividends. Mr. Ford once told me that the reason he bought out his other stockholders, Senator Couzens and the Dodge Bros. was because they wanted dividends and he wanted to use the profits to enlarge the business and reduce the cost of production. If he had not such enormous cash resources he could not have weathered the crises which the abandonment of the old Model T caused. As it was, the loss of $115,000,000 in two years was a mere incident.

CROSSINGS

Nearly half of the 30,000 annual deaths in automobile accidents in America occur where highways cross railroad tracks on the same grade. Some states have begun work on programs of eliminating every grade crossing, compelling the railroads to pay most of the cost. The Federal Government is taking an active part in this movement, in the case of roads which are built with Federal aid. Since 1917, 4,676 grade crossings have been eliminated on Federal Aid roads.

It is not always necessary to build a bridge over the railroad or a subway under it. Only 995 of these crossings were eliminated in that way; the others were abolished by the simple means of relocating the highway itself.

One of the things that is going to come about in America is a highway system in which this cause of accident and death will be absent.

BOOKS

Guests at the White House as well as future Presidents will have plenty of good reading matter for their leisure hours, if any. A committee of the American Booksellers Association has selected a library of five hundred volumes which has been presented to the United States for the White House library.

Undoubtedly many additions will be made to this nucleus, and some of the books will be less read than others, but there are many among them which will never die. In the list are such great American classics as Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn," such truly great books as Bunyard's "Pilgrim's Progress" and Kingsley's "Westward Ho" as well as many of the great histories, biographies, books of travel and of poetry, in addition to the best of the works of the writers of today.

Leaving out the moderns, whose work still has to stand the test of time, and limiting it to books more than twenty-five years old, this library contains within itself all the elements of a complete, well-rounded education. I can think of no better way to bring up young folks to a high standard of morals, honor, courage and duty than to turn them loose when children in the company of the great masters of literature.

TELEVISION

The other day I sat in a little room on Bethune Street, New York, and talked face to face with a man in another little room on Dey Street, three miles away. I could see him and he could see me, as plainly as if he were in the same room. The talk was as if we were talking across a table—no telephone instruments to speak in to or to hold to the ear.

That was the first public demonstration of two-way television. It works. The electrical engineers who explained it told me that it will work over ten thousand miles by radio as easily as over those three miles by wire.

It is still very expensive to install and maintain. It will be cheapened very soon there will be little rooms in every important center of population.

Sunday School To Have Picnic

The Sunday Schools of Eldorado are to have a joint picnic at Christoval next Tuesday, May 20. An elaborate program is being worked out for the entertainment for all that go, young and old alike. At the noon hour an old-fashioned basket lunch will be spread. At 10:30 A. M. Sharp there will be a great ball game between two picked teams of men. A man, to be eligible, must be 35 years of age or over. In the afternoon there will be another game for the intermediate boys, a team of the Baptist boys will play a team from the Methodist Sunday School. Other entertainment features will provide fun for all that attend the picnic. Let's go and have a big time.

Stevens — Cain

Wednesday night Mr. Peyton Cain and Miss Alta Stevens motored to Christoval and were married by the Rev. J. E. Ester pastor of the Methodist Church there.

Mr. Cain has been teaching school at Bailey Ranch for the past four years and is held in the highest esteem by all who know him. He is of a splendid character and noble manhood. Miss Stevens is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alf Stevens of Bailey Ranch and is a graduate of the 1930 class of the Eldorado High School. Miss Stevens is one of our most estimable young women and is loved by all who have made her acquaintance. Has made her home in the Bailey Ranch Neighborhood for the past 8 or 10 years, and has spent her high school years in the Eldorado School.

The Success joins the host of friends in extending Congratulations and best wishes to this young couple.

BRIDE-ELECT COMPLIMENTED

Miss Sidna Sturges was paid a pretty compliment on last Saturday afternoon when Mrs. H. C. Lynn and Mrs. Harry Lynn were hostesses in honor in the Lynn home on Eight Street.

Pink roses and sweet peas decked the rooms where a pink and green color scheme was favored in all party details. A short program consisting of vocal and violin numbers and readings were given by Mrs. Troy Simpson, Misses Nona Ditz and Catherine Todd. Then most practical household articles were presented the honoree accompanied by the reading of clever humorous poems climaxing in the presentation of a dainty hand-made recipe book containing the favorite recipe of each guest. Little Miss Jean Bozelle, daintily attired in green, wheeled in gifts in a tiny little green and pink decorated wheel barrow. Other gifts were hidden about the rooms and the ringing of alarm clocks at different intervals. Another feature of the afternoon's diversion was the cutting of the pretty bridal cake with much merriment created by the finding of the souvenirs.

Green and white brick cream with tiny cakes iced in pink and green were served on pink plates with love-bird adorned wedding rings as individual guest favors.

Miss Sturges has taught in the Ballinger primary school for two years and will be married soon after its close to Clarence Knight of Eldorado. —Ballinger Ledger.

New Gas Showing In Whitten Well

Phillips Interstate No. 1 on the Whitten ranch, has encountered a new gas showing at 6,305 feet. The work has been shut down until five and three-sixteenths casing can be run and cemented. All eyes of West Texas are on this test which has previously passed through two oil showings, and pay is expected soon. Progress has been slow owing to considerable caving.

Much praise must be given to Frank Bradley who played the part of "Blind Tom" in last Sunday's ball game. We were much surprised as he did not wear his spectacles and umpired a jam up good ball game, missing only a dozen or so close calls. Frank found a new rule in this game Sunday. He says that "when the ball beats the runner to first base and is held by the first baseman, that the runner is out." Well any way we can get along with his services to several games anyway.

E. E. (Pat) Murphy Speaks Tuesday Night

E. E. (Pat) Murphy, of San Angelo who is making the race for Congress from this district, spoke at the Court House in Eldorado Tuesday. Owing to the stormy weather only a few people gathered to hear him. But he held his audience for about one hour and made his position clear on all questions concerning this district. He came out boldly for tariff on wool and mohair and also on crude oil. There are questions that are of vital interest to this section of Texas. Mr. Murphy said that the producing oil wells of West Texas had been bought up by the large oil interest and that large quantities of crude oil is being shipped in from South America with out duty, and bought these at 18c per barrel.

He also spoke for several minutes in behalf of the ex-service men, who he claims has not had a square deal from the Government. Mr. Murphy Building, which will have one of the said the rail roads were paid their millions in cash, the contractors who fleeced the government were paid off in cash, but the ex-service man whose life was in the balance and many other snapped out was paid off in a note payable 40 years from date. He proposes to correct this evil if he can.

He also came out strong for the enforcement of the 18th Amendment, he said he was as dry as any could make them, he wanted the 18th Amendment to remain and said it would remain as long as the 19th Amendment was on the statute, the only way to repeal the 18th, is to first disfranchise the women he said. Mr. Murphy is a native of West Texas, has been reared in Tom Green County and when the United States entered the World War he headed a volunteer company, known as Company M, of San Angelo, in which a number of Eldorado boys volunteered and in which two other Murphy Brothers entered, therefore he has a tender feeling for the Ex-service boys. He is Commander of the Legion Post at San Angelo, his home town. The Speaker was introduced by the Rev. L. D. Harst, pastor of the first Methodist Church.

The Baptist and Methodist intermediate baseball game that is to be staged at the picnic at Christoval next Tuesday will probably be a hot contest. Both sides are talking of putting it over the other. Boys of each team you had better get in there and get your team working or you will get it put over you.

Every one should attend the picnic at Christoval next Tuesday. It was selected for this day so that some of the business men could attend. The Sunday schools are expecting you to help out.

Building Program In Eldorado To Be Increased Soon

Several New Fire Proof Buildings To Be Erected

The building program that is already under way will be increased in the next month or two when several new buildings will be started. Two new buildings are already under construction. The W. H. Parker and T. K. Jones buildings are being rapidly erected. The steel on the Parker building has already been laid and a great deal of the brick and tile is being put up. The T. K. Jones building has not progressed as rapidly as the Parker building, due to trouble in getting the steel here. The steel for this building is on the ground and progress will be seen in the next few weeks. This building will be used for a Theatre.

Practically all of the corner block next to the post office will have new buildings erected on it soon. The Contractor has already been let for a new building to be built on the Sam E. Jones lot next to the new Theatre building and W. L. McWhorter is to build soon on the lot adjoining.

With these new additions to the business section of Eldorado, it will give the little city some of the most up-to-date fire proof buildings that will be seen in any city much larger than this one over West Texas.

Ladies Ball Game Rained Out Wednesday

The baseball game scheduled at the Fair Park last Wednesday by the Women of the Self Culture Club was rained out. The game will be played next Saturday instead. This game will make the second appearance of the women's club on the ball diamond and much enjoyment was gotten out of the first game by a very large crowd that attended. The proceeds of these games will go for playground equipment for the court house lawn, that is developing into a very beautiful play ground for the children of the town and county.

The ball game Saturday will be played between the ladies of the Self Culture Club and the husbands. The men will wear the skirts. Lots of fun in store for the fans. Price 25 and 15 cents.

MRS. ROBINSON ENTERTAINS SENIORS

Mrs. Kate Robinson entertained the Seniors with a delicious refreshment of ice cream and cake at the Hoover Drug Store last Wednesday. The Seniors enjoyed the feast very much and certainly appreciate Mrs. Robinson's kindness.

Schleicher Receives Another Heavy Rain

Rainfall Averages Close to Inch and Half Over County

Schleicher County again is a muddy place to live. Rain began falling last Tuesday night about eight o'clock and fell steadily and hard for about one hour. The rain was reported from several sections of the county, ranging from one half to two inches. This rain falling only a few days after a very hard rain will add much moisture to the planting season already in the ground.

Farmers Very Busy Planting

The past week has found many Schleicher farmers putting their seed in the ground. After more than a week of waiting for the ground to dry in order that they might get into their fields that have been in tip top shape for planting for some time, the farmers are almost up with their spring planting. A much different attitude is witnessed among the farmer and ranchmen at the present times, dolefulness and a long face that spells dissatisfaction on almost every citizen in the county has changed and brought about much pleasanter meetings among friends and neighbors.

The expression of contentment is again back on the faces and a bumper crop year is being looked forward to. The ranchmen are able to smile at their friends when they meet on the streets. The ranges are beginning to look like wheat fields and in a short time fat herds of cattle and flocks of sheep will be seen lounging lazily in the shades of the few trees on the ranges.

Y. Y. Acker, of Eden, visited his mother here Sunday, she is making her home with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Rodgers.

NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS

Eldorado Wallops Sno-White In Opening Game Of Season

Haines Holds Visitors to Six Scattered Hits While Mates Make Ten

The baseball season was officially opened last Sunday at the Fair Park, when the Eldorado team took the big end of a slugging contest that was featured by many errors by the home team. The visitors could only hit Lefty Haines, a few find from the Shell Pipe Line Station, at intervals, getting only two hits in one inning. The total was six and were well scattered. These locals made many errors but when the time came for the bat to be wielded, when it counted most, the home boys were in there hitting the offerings of Stovall and Sullivan for ten hits, and several for extra bases.

A new pinch hitter was unearthed when Joe Finley, who has been a player from the bench, never donning a baseball uniform but few times but with the eye of an old leaguer went in to hit for Hodges in the seven frame with runners on second and third and lashed a hard ball to right field bringing in the two runs that put the Eldoradans back in the ball game once more.

The visitors at many times seemed to have the game on ice but were unable to silence the big berthas of the home team. Five runs were made in the second and third innings without a clean base hit. These runs put the visitors out in front by a score of five to one. The next inning brought Eldorado within reach of a ball game when a double and a home run put two markers across. Two more runs were made and the ball game started all over again but this tie did not last. A few more errors put the visitors in the lead by three scores until the seventh inning when the score was knotted again. In the first part of the eighth with two out, Alexander threw wild to third, letting in a runner which untied the score again. Eldorado went into the ninth trailing by one score but with the determination to a ball game regardless. A double to right field started the rally in the ninth and with an error in left field again put the ball game in the grasp of the home team. Two well placed ground balls in the infield brought across E. Bradshaw with the winning run that gave the game a heroic story book ending.

The Eldorado team is made up entirely of new faces to the local fans but from the support received in the Sunday's game the baseball fever is again at the highest point.

Christoval will invade the local diamond next Sunday and from the past records of the Resorters, this game promises to be a rather hot contest. The Christoval team has been playing a fair game of baseball this season and many new ball players arrive in the resort city at all times during the ball season.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Green carried their son Willie, 8 years old to San Angelo last week and he was operated on. Willie had had a wrestle with the measles which settled in and affected the ball bone just behind the ear for which he was operated. Mr. Green reports that they were moving Willie from the hospital Monday and they thought they would soon be able to bring him home.

A Challenge has been received from T. J. Bailey, Esq. at Abilene, for the Eldorado team to meet his team on half way ground and play a game of bill. We will have to ask that "Boob Sar" give us some of the pedigree of his team. We do not want to waste our time if they can not give us a little competition. Anyway we will consider the challenge and communicate with the young man soon.

Uncle Dink says that every body is now wearing a Hoover button. He was asked to show his and he turned his empty pocket out.

Now since Gov. Dan Moody has said he was in the Governor race it is up to the people to either elect a new Governor or a new set of representatives. And we must say that we like Coke Stevenson.

The U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis has set the date and towns for the Plebes Class Cruise this summer. They will leave Annapolis June 6, arrive at Chirbourg, France June 21, be there 10 days, arrive at Kiel, Germany July 5, spend 4 days there, arrive at Oslo, Norway July 11, spend 3 days there, arrive at Edinburgh, Scotland July 16, spend 12 days there, arrive back at Hampton Roads, Virginia, 14 and back to Annapolis August 29.

They will leave for home August 29 to September 26. Taylor Wright of Eldorado, son of this writer will be on this cruise. The Battle Ships Arkansas (Flag Ship) Utah and Florida, will carry the boys on the cruise. This Eldorado lad will probably see sights that will long be remembered by a country boy.

The greatest trouble we are having just now is to make what we earn pay for what we learn.

There will be a Sunday School Picnic at Christoval next Sunday, all are invited to attend and take some eats.

This week brings the closing of our school, with it comes a feeling of sadness, quite a few of our boys and girls will finish their High School work, this means to some that their future hours in Eldorado will consist of only visits to the old home town and folks, while some may ake Eldorado their abiding place, other will go into new fields leaving their school day friends to wish them peace and happiness in their journey through life. We have witnessed these eventful days for 24 years and can see the faces of any, in our imagination, who have stepped out into manhood and womanhood from our splendid school. They have entered into every vocation of life that's worthy, and only a very few has been called before the bar of justice to answer for wrong doing. Each year has brought to our citizenship a better affiliated school and each class grows larger as the school grows. A long with the feeling of sadness, comes a streak of happiness to each, who witness with pleasure the good wrought by our school closing for each student who finishes the Eldorado High School course is prepared to enter the business life, with the exception of the experience and only time can bring this about. We are happy because we have had a part in furnishing the school equipment in which they have studied and in the end have accomplished. May the lives of this graduating class be a blessing to God, a blessing to humanity and a blessing to our community.

Senator Sheppard and Connally, both of Texas, Senator voted against the confirmation of Judge John J. Parker as an associate justice of the Supreme Court, had they voted for this Southern Jurist, he would have been elected for the place. The only charges against this noble Southerner was a protest from the Association for Negroes and 9 ruling he had made on a labor question. We are ashamed of this vote.

Are We Sane or Insane?

After reading of the Shameful incident that happened last week at Sherman, Texas, we cannot help but think that we are all more or less insane. Justice was well under way and the negro would have met a just judgement in a few days, but an impatient crowd, wrought up by the horrible crime of the brute, could not await a legal trial and in their enragement caused destruction of property, bodily injury and perhas death to several white people, and a court procedure for many others, all for the lack of a small bit of judgement. This same thing could happen to another place, the people of Sherman are as good as the best of us, Let's begin to have a quiet thought, and show that we are not in a sane state of mind. Give the law a chance first and then act if necessary.

THIS CHANGEABLE COUNTRY OF OURS

No Wonder Europeans Find Life in America So Exciting

The most interesting thing about America, in the eyes of foreigners, is the speed with which we change our habits, customs and way of living. Life in America seems very exciting to Europeans, accustomed to a social structure in which every individual is fixed in his job or social position, and never moves out of it. In America the only constant thing is change. And our lives, our businesses, our whole scheme of existence, are predicated upon the probability that whatever we may be doing this year, the chance is better than even that we will have to do something else next year. Wherever we live today, we may be living a thousand miles away tomorrow. One of the principal causes of this constant shifting of bases is the speed with which new inventions are developed and put into practical and general use. They affect everybody to some degree; they robably affect the farmer more than they do any other single class.

Twenty years ago there were eight million acres of farm land in the United States growing fodder for horses, for example. Now 25,000,000 motor vehicles have displaced the horses and these machines get their fodder from the oil-wells. The blacksmith and the wheelwright have disappeared, but in their places we have a million and a half men working for wages as drivers of motor trucks, to say nothing of the garage workers and other people employed in looking after the rest of the great motor-driven fleet.

These men have been taken away from the farms. They no longer produce their own food. So there is an offset to the farmer's loss on his hay and oats. He must grow more food for people, less for horses.

Artificial silk, the product of a modern invention, has almost ruined the cotton market; women refer silk, real or manufactured from wood pulp, and invention has cheapened both kinds while incomes have increased so that tens of millions who used to have trouble buying enough cotton goods for clothing now can dress in silk, or its imitation, rayon. Now a new process for getting a sugar substitute out of cotton seed may bring cotton back as a profitable crop.

A few years ago few homes and fewer business buildings were warm enough for comfort in winter, in the northern parts of the country where population is thickest. People had to wear wool indoors and out to keep from freezing. Innumerable inventions and cheapening means of production of heating devices make such protection unnecessary indoors, while outdoors, in motion, light clothing suffices even in the coldest weather except for a heavy overcoat. The closed car put the finishing touch on the wool industry. Sheep farmers who thought they were established for life have gone out of that line into others.

When most of the people lived in the country the nation as a whole ate bulky foods. Now we are moving into cities and demand concentrated nourishment. This has immensely cut down the consumption of wheat and corn, enormously increased the demand for dairy products—milk, cheese and butter—for pork, for eggs and poultry. The industrial shift to the towns means a parallel shift on the farm. It takes two acres of land to produce dairy products equivalent in food value to one acre in wheat.

We are shifting rapidly to the cities. Census returns up to the latter part of April indicate that the farm population has fallen off even more than was anticipated, and that with hardly an exception the cities have grown hugely. Atlantic has increased its population 35 percent; in ten years Austin Texas, 48 percent; Lakeland, Florida, 130 percent; Ventura, California, 186 percent; Decatur, Georgia, 121 percent; Phoenix, Arizona, 60 percent; Lynchburg Virginia, 34 percent, and so on. In between the farm and the city, however, are the small towns which also seem to be sharing in the increased concentration of population so far as incomplete returns show.

A few years ago to own a coal mine was to have a fortune. Today it is hard to sell coal except from favorably located mines, so rapid has been the extension of natural gas pipelines to centers of population and the substitution of oil fuel for ships and railroads.

Ten years ago the radio was unknown; today half a million people are engaged in making, selling, servicing radios and broadcasting. There are perhaps as many more engaged in the various occupations incidental to flying.

TEXAS AND TEXANS

By Will H. Mayes
Austin, Texas
"All Texans for all Texas"

Brazos Valley Resources

The board in charge of the Brazos River conservation and reclamation project proposes a thorough economic survey of each county and area of the watershed of the river and its tributaries to determine the present needs of each locality for water. The development of the immense territory in the Brazos watershed is one of the most ambitious programs ever undertaken in Texas, and the board is wise in making a complete survey before beginning to formulate plans. The value of the project to Texas seems almost immeasurable, provided the cost is not too excessive to justify the returns, which hardly seems probable, but which can be definitely determined by the proposed survey.

Cotulla Irrigation Bonds

Filing of a friendly suit to validate bonds of the LaSalle County water district revives hope of early work on the project, which would bring some 50,000 acres under irrigation and develop a section that, with sufficient water, would soon have fabulous agricultural production.

Interest in irrigation is being shown in many parts of the State and huge plans are afoot from the Lower Rio Grande Valley to the northernmost part of the Pan handle, including the valleys of the Rio Grande, the Colorado, the Brazos, the Guadalupe, the Trinity and the Red Rivers and many of the tributaries.

It is hard for the mind to grasp the significance of all these undertakings in the future development of Texas.

Factories Must Follow

Although Texas seems destined to become by far the greatest agriculture county in the world, even if only half the plans now being started for irrigation develop, a country can not prosper on agriculture alone. This State can never come fully into its own until it begins converting most of the products of the soil into finished merchandise. Cotton mills, wool and mohair mills, milk products plants, canneries—factories of every kind—must be built and operated. The great power plants, in anticipation of these needs, are getting ready and will be prepared to assist in this phase of Texas development, which is surely coming in the next decade.

More Railroads Needed

The Texan who thinks that motor lines are utting the railroads in the State out of business has another guess coming. The railroads are prospering and preparing for greater prosperity. In all parts of Texas they are extending lines or seeking permits to do so. Old lines are being made ready for greater business. Millions are being spent for improvement and equipment. The Texas Panhandle will be networked with lines in the near future. Extensions are being rushed to Mexican border towns of Southwest Texas. San Angelo and San Antonio are soon to be connected by a direct route through Fredericksburg, Mason, Brady and Eden. Abilene is seeking a Southwestern outlet through Cross Plains.

Timely Rains in Texas

The Texas drought is over. Those who, a short while ago, foresaw disaster from drought, are now fearing floods. The conservatives who believe in Texas are wearing broad smiles in the prospects for crops unsurpassed. This applies to every part of Texas. In a few places where lands have been overflooded or crops destroyed by hail, replanting will have to be done, but fortunately there is time for this, and with abundant moisture large crop yields are almost assured. There is every prospect for a prosperous year all over Texas.

Valley Port Bonds

The Brownsville navigation district which has already voted a $2,000,000 bond issue, will vote on another issue of $1,500,000 May 29, to meet the requirements of the National Government's appropriation for the Point Isabel-Brownsville port development. The funds to be used in constructing wharves, docks, warehouses, elevators and towing facilities so necessary to the extensive growing and marketing of its citrus fruits and winter grown vegetables.

Upshur County Radishes

Don't get the thought that radishes are profitably grown in South Texas only. It is true that no other part of the State has been planting them by hundreds of acres, but at Gilmer, Upshur County, about 15 acres were grown and profitably sold this season, one order being received for 18,000 bunches. If the acreage had been twice as large as a buyer would have located at Gilmer, but the growers have had to seek their own markets because of the small acreage.

Stock Raising Increased

Farmers in Ellis county are fencing more lands than at any time in 10 years, which indicates that they are raising more cattle than before. Much of the land heretofore planted to cotton, corn and other field crops has been unfenced, but is now being used for pasture crops. Dairy cows require pasture, and dairying is becoming more popular in Central Texas.

Organizing Glider Clubs

San Angelo was the first Texas town to organize a "glider club" and train students in the new way of air travel, but Brady was not slow in following the example of its neighbor. A glider in the San Jacinto parade at San Antonio last month, the first to be seen there, attracted much attention. As yet, gliding is a novelty in Texas.

Moving Panhandle Grain

The railroads are determined not to be caught without enough cars to handle the big North Texas grain crop this season. Last year they were much censured for lack of cars, but the Santa Fe alone now has 15,000 cars held in storage for the new grain crop and will have 20,000 before the movement starts.

Red, Ripe Tomatoes

Tomatoes are being shipped by carloads to Eastern markets from as far north as Cuero, and the crop is ripening in the Southern part of East Texas. Despite freezes and frost that delayed planting Texas shipments will be heavy, and the gathering is furnishing labor for many laborers. Other truck crops, such as potatoes, cucumbers, cantaloupes and watermelons will show a large increase in Texas this year.

Mohair Goes East

Nearly 6,000,000 pounds of Texas mohair has gone to Boston this season or is on the way. The growers have received 35 and 45 cents a pound advances on it, and it will be stored ready for sale at such time as the market price justifies a sale. The Texas warehousemen and the co-operatives have adjusted their differences and everybody in the industry seems happy.

Good Business Stunt

A hatchery at Granger recently held an old fiddlers' contest and square dance, which was attended by some 500 people. It brought back treasured memories to many and made new friends for the owner of the business, whatever it may be likely to profit by it. In the scramble for more business the making of new friendships too often is overlooked. Business can be so conducted as to make its commercialism too outstanding.

Miss Nobody from Nowhere

BY ELIZABETH JORDAN

THIRD INSTALLMENT

A beautiful young woman finds herself on the sidewalk in a strange city. She cannot remember her name or where she came from. She has nothing in her purse to tell herself who she is. A young man who has seen her in the hotel where she is stopping notices her and takes her to the hotel in a cab. There they find that she registered, in French, as "Miss Eve Nobody of Nowhere." The clerk has been calling her "Miss Parsons." The young man tells her she is in New York. His name is Eric Hamilton, of Chicago. She is terrified at her loss of memory. He asks his friend, Dr. Carrick, a nerve specialist, to call at the hotel, Dr. Carrick talks encouragingly, but says he will send a nurse to stay with the mysterious "Miss Parsons" that night.

Now Go On With The Story

"Will you tell me exactly what the doctor said, and all he said?" she asked at last.

"Of course." He came and stood beside her. "He thinks that you have had some sort of shock, which made you decide to get away from the scene of it, whatever it was. He thinks you came to the decision very hastily, for you started with no luggage. Yet when you got here you clearly expected to stay some time, for you went out the next day and bought some things which you had delivered here at the hotel."

"When I came up here to my rooms before dinner I went through everything," he confirmed, "but there was nothing to help me, except some money. It's not much, but I hope it will see me through. Anyway, it's probably all I have in the world, for my clothes show I'm not rich. They're good but not gorgeous," she grimly paraphrased.

His heart leaped over the small jest, but before he could speak her face darkened and she went on.

"The money won't carry me very far in New York hotel if I have a long stay—with a trained nurse at night and psychiatrist coming every morning," she pointed out. "Suppose this attack lasts longer than my money does?"

"It won't." He spoke with such conviction that she brightened again. "The Garland's summer rates are still in effect, and they're very reasonable," he went on. "Carrick is too good a chap to send you a big bill."

He was talking against time, to keep her rapt at bay till the nurse came.

"Oh, what a devilish situation this is!" She turned back to the window, bringing her hands together with an effect of desperation that alarmed him.

"Come now," he urged, "keep steady! A whole lot depends on that. The more quietly you take things, the sooner you will get over it. He agrees that the thing to do is to sit tight, just as you're doing, and let inquiries come from the other end. If your family or friends don't know where you are, they'll have started an investigation by this time, but they're probably doing it very carefully."

She stood still and stared into the darkness. Suddenly she turned back to the room with a little laugh that broke through their seriousness like a gush of a fountain.

"We may discover that I have run away from a husband and six children," she said lightly, but giving him a definite effect of breathlessness and tension. "My innocent babes may be crying for me this minute."

"What a ghastly idea!" he began, and stopped abruptly. As if she had caught his thought she looked at him with sudden intensity; but he was on his guard again and his disarming smile banished any suspicion she might have had. However, the little episode seemed to harden some half-formed purpose, for she went toward the inner door with an air of resolution he recalled later.

"If you'll excuse me," she said, "I'll make some preparations for the nurse. I suppose since she is coming she must be made comfortable. No, please don't go," she added as he turned to take up his hat. "I'd rather you were here when she comes. There is some light literature on the table that may interest you."

She made a hospitable gesture toward the light literature, and disappeared through the door leading into her bedroom.

He selected a magazine, drew an easy-chair to the reading-lamp, and contentedly sat down. She was only a few feet away, on the other side of the door, and there was something satisfactory in being her sentinel. It wasn't strange that he was immensely interested in a girl in that tragic plight. For a few minutes more he casually thought about her while he turned the pages of the magazine, glancing at pictures and titles.

A title on a page of the magazine he held caught his eye and he began to read, with frequent glances at the closed door and an ear alert for sounds in the inner room. As he had already demonstrated, it was not his habit to do anything by halves. He had become attentive to the article he was reading, then interested, and finally absorbed.

"Is this Miss Parsons' room?" she inquired. "I'm Miss Adams, the nurse. Doctor Carrick sent me."

"Yes, of course. We have been expecting you."

"Doctor Carrick told me all about the case and gave me full instructions," the nurse went on. "It took some time. Otherwise I could have been here sooner. I suppose she's in her room," she suggested. "Hadm't I better go right in and report?"

Miss Adams gave the door panel a soft but decided tap, and when she received no reply she repeated it with out emphasis, calling clearly: "The nurse, Miss Parsons. May I come in?" But when there was no response to this, she turned and cast a questioning glance at the young man.

"Go in," he managed to bring out, and strengthened the order with an imperative gesture.

Plainly Miss Adams was not the type of nurse who accepted orders from every one who chose to give them. She hesitated, and rapped a third time. Still receiving no reply, she turned the knob and entered the bedroom, leaving the door ajar behind her. Hamilton remained close to the open door, but he did not look into the room beyond it. Instead he wheeled and stared hard at the opposite wall, telling himself there were a half dozen reasons why the girl in the inner room might not have heard those three decided taps.

Miss Adams reappeared, and now she was obviously disturbed.

"We mustn't assume too much," she said kindly, with an understanding glance at his agitated face. "You said she was frightened, and in such conditions patients do strange things. I've looked out of the window," she added calmly; and again he felt his scalp prick. "There's nothing wrong in the street. Of course she may be somewhere else in the hotel."

He found his voice.

"You're perfectly sure she isn't in these rooms?" he asked.

"Quite sure," Miss Adams smiled usterely. "I've looked in the closet and even under the bed."

"May I look?"

"Of course if you like."

Her manner nicely combined with its professional courtesy an intimation that he would be wasting his time, but he pushed past her even before she could move to one side.

The room had the look of having been unoccupied for days.

The words of the nurse made him swing around toward her.

"Here's the way shee left," she said. He had noticed another door with a bolt on the inside. It led from the bedroom and he had taken for granted that it was part of the adjoining suite and was locked. Now he saw that the bolt had not been shot. The nurse held the door ajar, revealing a glimpse of a side corridor past its threshold.

"Easiest thing in the world," he conceded. "She packed stole out thru that door and along that back corridor to a rear staircase, and probably got away without being seen by any one. But how about her hotel bill? Do you think she'd forget that?"

Miss Adams looked thoughtful.

"She might. They do all sorts of queer things when they're not normal."

He had been staring down unseeingly at a little writing stand, but now he caught a faint suggestion of penciling on the top envelope. Then his expression changed. It was addressed to Doctor Carrick.

"Where did you find that?" the nurse demanded. She had been standing on the threshold, looking down the hall, but turned back into the room at the sound of his voice.

"On the table, on top of this little heap of stationery. It looked like all the other envelopes, for the name is pencil. I didn't notice it till now."

He felt the envelope.

"Lord! I wish I dared to open it," he muttered.

Hamilton hurried from the room. At the hotel office desk he asked for a match and lit his cigarette with careful casualness.

"Has Miss Parsons gone?" he asked as he drew in the first mouthful of smoke.

"Yep; she checked out 'most an hour ago," the clerk told him, and added without rancor; "Women make me tired."

Hamilton rested an elbow on the desk.

"Why?"

"Oh, because they're always changing their minds. That girl said when she came that she was only staying one night. She stayed three days. That was all right—the longer the better. But tonight she had a cot put in her room for a woman friend who was a visit her, and after I'd stirred up a chambermaid and a porter and got everything fixed she changed her mind again and cleared out. She left a dollar for the chambermaid and the porter, though," he added forgivingly, and ended, on another afterthought, "Nice girl."

Hamilton npt on the hat he had already demonstrated, it was not his habit to do anything by halves. He had become attentive to the article he was

PROMPT RELIEF FROM ARGOTANE, DECLARES MATRON

Mrs. W. B. Pope, of Austin, Tells Experience With This Great Remedy

"Argotane has been a great aid to my mother in her effort to regain her health," said Mrs. W. B. Pope, of 1022 Spence Street, Austin, Texas. Mrs. Pope was telling a representative of the Argotane company how that wonderful preparation had benefited her mother, Mrs. Laura Pope, of Leander, Texas.

"My Mother suffered from a general run-down condition and a light case of stomach trouble," continued Mrs. Pope. "For the past two or three years, she has been bothered very much with gas formation on her stomach, which made her sick and weak at times. She complained of food souring on her stomach and making her feel miserable after meals. She felt tired and sluggish most of the time, and her health in general was in a poor condition.

"She had tried several kinds of medicine, but she was unable to secure much relief, so my husband and I decided to get her a bottle of Argotane and have her try it.

"She has taken one bottle so far, and has started on her second, and she says she feels so much better in every way. She does not suffer from gas bloating or pains any more. Food does not sour on her stomach, and she has much more strength and vitality.

"We all firmly convinced of the merit of Argotane, and we feel sure that others would benefit from it if they would just try it."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Eldorado at the Hoover Drug Co.

MRS. J. L. LOYD HAS BROTHER AS VISITOR

Mrs. J. L. Loyd has her brother, Dr. Stephen Harmon and son, Author, as her guest this week. This is the first time they have met in seven years. The Doctor is from Smithville, Miss. His visit will be short unless Mrs. Loyd can ever persuade him to remain a few days.

I take this method of thanking each and every school child, their parents, and the teachers also for their patronage this past term. I wish you all a very pleasant vacation, and hope to have all of you take your lunches with me next year.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Tuesday afternoon May 6th little Miss Louise Bruton entertained with a party at the Presbyterian church, honoring her ninth birthday. Quite a number of little friends attended. Numerous games and the presentation of gifts afforded amusement for the afternoon. Refreshments of sandwiches, ice tea, ice cream and cake were served.

All present reported a pleasant time. Those attending were: Eloise Whitton, Edward Reynolds, Ernestine Fingman, Ray Bruton, Christille McAngus, George Williams, June Hooker, Ernest Thornton, Jetty Grace DeLong, Martha Nixon, Maude Brown, Johnnie Fern Isaacs, Helen Stanford, Joyce McGilvray, Billy Springston, Maxine Wilton, Pauline Bruton, Jimmie Louise Page, Neva Wade, Inez Bruton, Carmen Hardt, Wilma Burrus, Johnnie Lee Word, Jack Jones, Wilma Dorothy and Junior Bruton and Louise Bruton.

Boat Racing Revived

Two thousand people lined the shores of Lake Abbott, near Seguin, recently to see the first of a series of boat races, many going early to camp by the lakeside and spend the day under the shady trees. There were several races, all four miles, and much enthusiasm was in evidence. Boat racing will always be a popular pastime. Why not more of it?

GOOD-BY

The Staff of this Newspaper wishes to say good-by to every one of you. We have tried to serve and please you with this little paper of ours and we want you to encourage and help the Staff for next year. We say: "A handshake, and then we sever, A fond farewell, and then forever."

SONORA vs ELDERADO

The Eldorado Eagles won an easy victory over the Sonora Bronchos Tuesday evening during the high wind. The wind as everyone remembers was blowing hard and a feature of the game was that the Eagles never missed a fly ball and the Bronchos never caught one. The Eagles played head up baseball while Jack Kerr pitched a good game.

The Bronchos took the lead by score one run in the last of the first inning. The second inning was played without a run for either team. The first of the third seemed very good to the Eagles. The first battery up getting on first base and Big Legs Mc parked a homer over in right field. And our friend Pete Taylor errorful ball missed it and the wind blowing favorably allowed the ball to go across the high way. Pete had quite a run for the ball and Legs was setting down resting as Pete got it to throw home. The boys that followed were on base and a hit allowed another run which left the score three to one at the close of the third. In the fourth inning the Eagles ran in four scores while the Bronchos stood in their old tracks.

In the fifth the Eagles were not so hot but held the Bronchos down to a two score due to errors made. In the sixth inning the Eagles brought in two more runs bringing the score 3 to 11. In the seventh the Eagles had men on base but hits to the Sonora infield seemed to bring the end of the seventh without runs for the Eagles. The end of the seventh the Bronchos ran in several new men as "Pinch Hitters." They might could have hit a peach but darn that baseball. The first three up went down and out.

This game brings the season to a close for the Eagles won 4 and lost 5 games. The scores being:

Rocksprings 11	Eldorado 9
Sonora, 20	Eldorado 18
Rocksprings, 12	Eldorado 11
Ozona, 14	Eldorado 12
Christoval, 0	Eldorado 15
Sonora, 8	Eldorado 14
Ozona, 8	Eldorado 7
Christoval, 0	Eldorado 10
Sonora, 3	Eldorado 11

The Eagles having played ten games with out having a single home run marked against them. Have on their opponents score cards marked four. Elzie Moore, 1 Legs Sr. 3 home.

The Eagles are expecting to enter the scholastic league to play for Championship games later. It is not definite but they are expecting this try later on.

CLASS PROPHECY

When the class of 1930 made me their chosen prophet, I was greatly surprised. I had considered myself too much given to the affairs of every day life to reach the high altitudes to which the seers of ancient Rome had raised themselves. Still, we have repeatedly been told, the voice of duty is supreme. I decided to make the best of the situation and to perform the task to the best of my ability.

I made some preparations. The oracles of the ancients were studied special attention was given to the tactics employed by the prophets of ancient Greece, by the travelers in the Siberian desert, and by the wandering gypsy of today. If I have been enabled to look into the future and tell these fair ladies and gentlemen what is before them, it is due to the inspiration and teachings of these mysterious people of the past and of the present.

A vision came to me and carried me into the year of 1950. I beheld our dear friend Ruby Wilson as instructor in Aeronautics in Smith College, a lithe an energetic figure as she flitted from one hangar to another. After a few words with Ruby, she informed me that Alta Stevens was teaching Math in Eldorado. I suddenly found myself lifted up and carried into the great city of New York, where I was suddenly dropped to the ground on Broadway, to the astonishment of a bustling crowd. When I began to find out where I really was, a hand was suddenly placed on my shoulder. I turned and who do you think I saw?

It was Garnette Luedecke, who proudly told me that she was director of the jazz orchestra in one of the leading theatres. She was kind enough to inform me that a visit to the Palace theatre would surely be worth the price, for not only would I hear her play her instrument the triangle, but I would also get a glimpse of two of our old school mates, J. C. Bullion and Bill McGilvray, the former a black-faced comedian and the other a clog dancer. Playing on the same bill with our other friends was the now famous contortionist, the landed successor of the renowned Lon Chaney of our high school days. You will probably recall without being told that Kenneth Green, the apt understudy of our football coach of '29 was the chief one of our number who should talent along such lines even in our high school. Upon inquiry as to whether any other of our old friends had made New York their domicile, I was told that if I would go up the Hudson, I should find Fannie Hardt happily married to the owner of a steam laundry.

Then the scene changed: I was in Philadelphia. On chestnut street my attention was directed to a large "sky scraper" on the outside of which was displayed the sign, "Beauty Parlor, Room 401, Fourth Floor." Being in need of some manicuring, I immediately made my way to room 401. You may imagine my astonishment when I found Edwin Kent and Wm. McAngus in charge of the establishment; however so great was the popularity of the shop and so numerous its clientele that I was told that my first chance for appointment was one week later at 3 o'clock. Do you doubt it? From the city of Brotherly Love I strolled across the Delaware to Camden. Here another surprize awaited me, Victoria Jones, whose home was in Quakertown, Pa., had been asked to make some records for the Victor talking machine Co. That Victoria should have become such a wonderful singer seemed scarcely believable to one who knew how she used to acquit herself in vocal music while at school.

Hardly had I recovered from my astonishment, when everything grew dark. I felt myself rapidly lifted up and constantly whirled around until I was dropped to the ground. When I had regained my senses, I concluded that I was on the outskirts of a large city. I wondered toward it and ah! hardly reached the residential district when I met an exceedingly stout lady on whom all remedies for reducing had been in vain. She was pushing a go-cart. Notwithstanding the fact that I looked somewhat queer and dishevelled, she immediately recognized me. It was my old class mate Loyce. She afterwards introduced me to her husband J. C. Kinchen, who conducted a meat market in the heart of the city. Both were glad to see me. They informed me that Elizabeth Bradley and a certain Percival architabald Perkins were happily married and were at the time driving through the country in a Ford that Percy's father had given them not for pleasure but to sell breakfast foods.

Surely the girls were kind to me, for though the year 1950 come to a close, my prophetic vision continued. I therefore began the New Year with an excursion to the South. In Miss. I found Elta Mae Luedecke teaching school in the Mississippi Teacher's College and Bernice was governor of the state.

Here my prophetic vision ended. I became the same old posaic girl that I had been before; so you see that even the years did not change me and that my outlook on life was no better than it was when I graduated with the class of 1930.

CLASS WILL

Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is with great pleasure that I appear before you today as attorney for the class of 1930, for the purpose of presenting for your approval The World's Greatest Legacy.

The senior class of 1930 realizing that soon it will cease to exist as a class and as it possessed many treasures beyond price that might cause conflict among those who desire to secure them, took a careful inventory and has decided to distribute them as follows, which is the last will and testament.

To our Highly Respected Faculty who have imparted to us all the wisdom of the ages we bequeath a sweet succession of peaceful nites and dream less sleeps. To our beloved Superintendent we will a stack of announcements in print. To Mr. Curry a dictaphone to remind students of unpaid typing fees. To Mr. Smart Blondies many blushes to go with the present stock. To Miss Bradshaw all twine collected in the study hall from hie lunches that have been tied up. To Miss Allen, a grading machine to correct errors in English themes. To Miss Orshorn all collections of notes and letters written in study periods that she has turned in. To Mrs. Bailey a set of red lead pencils for grading History and Spanish papers. May they watch with satisfaction every step of our journey, each victory, each success and honor that we may win, but may their eyes be turned the other way when we make failures or fall from the high standards they have set for us.

To the Juniors as a class we bequeath the dignity of a senior and ask that it may be upheld with all seriousness and gravity in spite of their leightmindedness and irresponsibility. Also our seats in the study hall, in class rooms and in chapel. May they fill them as promptly and as faithfully as we have done. If in adventently we leave small pencils, pensers, paper or note books or other scholastic equipment we give it to whom ever can get it in the scramble of the vaceperous under-classesmen. In some mysterious way these articles which we have used may impart to them some of the great wisdom we have absorbed in this institution of learning.

To members of the Junior Class we bequeath as following. To Bill Currie all toothless combs left in vacant desks, may he never have to borrow another comb. To Fred Williams, our chewing gum king, all old gum under our desks, may the Juniors respect the will in allowing him the privilege of collecting his treasure. To Margaret Williams, the note writer, all notes used by Loyce and Elzie as patterns to go by in her senior year. To Eli McAngus all twinkling eyes and puppy love affairs, may he have better luck in the future. To Albert McGinty all old compasses and rulers that are of no use, that he might play with and tear up when he pleases. To oe Muller Christian a coil of wire from the Laboratory may he endeavor to make some thing out of it that will be of use to his world, of inventions. To Joe Hearn Moore all empty acid bottles in the Lab. To Lorene Shoemaker fifty pounds of Dahlia's Fat. To Louise Raver, Loyce's habit of talking out in class. To Hazel Burton, Garnette's habit of flirting. To Albert Martin Edwin's silly acting ways may he create as much fun as did Jude. To Viola May the dignity of Fannie Hardt. We will this with pleasure and hope she endeavors to maintain this high post of honor. To Cora Sauer, Victoria's habit of giggling at every thing that happens, may it ever be her aim to fill this field awarded her. To Carl Kerr all old athletic equipment left in the bath house by the Senior boys. May the lower-classesmen allow him the privilege of collecting what he desires of this treasure and then they may have access to the balance and to the Bookkeeping papers in book room. To Hollis McCormick a pair of Bill McGilvray's old worn out shoes may they ever fit him. To Carrol Green, J. C. Kinchen's habit of being always slow to class. And to the lower-classesmen and important thing we have not considered may they who desire the honor of this privilege may obtain it in the new year scramble of 1930-31.

To the lowers in the remaining of the school we devise an imaginary world with whatever they may need to figure to each other the lastings and eabuty of their love.

Singed, sealed published and declared by the above named senior class, as for its last will and testament, in the present of us, who have hereunto subscribed our names at its request, as witnesses thereto, in the presence of the said testator, and each other. The Senior Class Witnesses: J. C.

SUCCESS

"You cannot say that any man is successful so long as he is alive," said the head of one of America's great industries not long ago. He meant that any man might make a blunder which would offset all that had gone before, no matter how successful he had been.

That was drawing it pretty fine, but how many men whom the world regards as "successful" feel that way about themselves? Find the men who feel that they have succeeded in doing all that they ever hoped or tried to do and you find the unhappliest men alive. They may have succeeded in their business enterprises, but they have not succeeded living.

Success means different things to different people, and sometimes the man whom the world pities has succeeded in leading a happier life than has the one whom the world envies. A man who overtakes his ideals is not a success in any true sense of the world. Unless our standards grow steadily higher as we approach them, we soon lose the zest of striving to attain them, and in that striving, not in to overtaking, lies happiness, and nowhere else.

It is a common misconception that the Declaration of Independence declares happiness to be of the inalienable rights of mankind. The right which the Colonists so boldly claimed was the right to pursue happiness. And the man or woman who discovers early in life that the nearest approach to happiness is through a constant endeavor to do the job in hand, as well as it can be done comes nearer to success, not only in his or her immediate occupation but in the broader sense of living a successful life.

A very large crowd was at the game Sunday and all seemed to get a great deal of enjoyment out of it.

Things To Be Remembered And Things We Wonder About

We wonder why the gang refused to take Kenneth to "Mocking-Bird-Hill" a second time?

What Dahlla Fae put in a paper sack, and gave and gave orders to "Stay-out" was?

What people thought of J. C. Bullion and J. C. Kinchen when they saw them playing golf in Elnora's and Dahalla's shoes?

We wonder if Bill Currie remembers his fifty-sixth fall?

Whether Elnora really fell as hard as it looked like she did?

We wonder what all "Blondie" said to Dixie on their "Ten Minute Walk"

TRIP TO CHRISTOVAL

Wednesday Evening, the Seniors decided to go to Christoval on a picnic. After much discussion and planning, William McAngus, J. C. Bullion Elizabeth Bradley, Edwin Kent, Dahlla Fae Johnson, J. C. Kinchen and Kenneth Green were ready to leave. Then the idea struck us that we didn't have a chaperon. As we were in William's car we gave him his choice of the chaperon. Although it may seem funny, that a Senior would pick a freshman, that is just what he did, asked Elnora Andrews to go.

When we arrived in Christoval, the first thing to do was to take Kenneth around and show him the town, where he could feel assured that no harm should come to him. To the "gangs" regret we also took him up on "Mocking-Bird-Hill"

Then we found a nice place and while we were in the midst of devoting "bolognas", we were interrupted by the whoops and yells of a gang of lower classmen. We made a mad rush with the pickles, olives, bread, meat, potatoes chips, and Soda water, for our car. We succeeded in our "getting away."

We went to another part of the river and here to our great surprise we ran upon some more of our "gang" Elta Mae Luedecke, Tommy Redford Sammie Luedecke, and Dixie Faught. To show'em our heart was right we gave them a "bologna". We noticed that Kenneth kept looking so pitiful. We knew he had something on his mind. It seemed that Dixie Faught was the victim of his admiring glances. Finally, Dahlla Fae solved the problem and told him to go on and walk around with Dixie if he wanted too. The "gang" assured him it would be permissible if he didn't walk too far and was gone only "ten-minutes". We also promised him that Fannie should never know.

We were crossing the river at a rate of about thirty-five singing, "That Old Gang of Mine" when we heard some screams, we looked back and found that Lorene Shoemaker and Bill McGilvray were crossing the river and that we had given them a bath long to be remembered.

Of course we were sorry this happened. After so much fun and laughter Dahlla Fae and Elizabeth kept complaining of being thirsty. They went into a drug store and asked for a lass of water. The man asked them if they were from Eldorado. (We wonder who else has been drinking water at drug stores in Christoval?)

About seven-thirty Misses Orsborn and Bradshaw arrived and we all went to the skating rink. Elnora and Dahlla Fae soon discovered they had on n-high-heels shoes and were

COACH SMART MAKES FAREWELL SPEECH

Mr. Smart made his farewell speech to the athletes of the Eldorado High School. He stated that he had enjoyed this year's work very much and had been well pleased with the athletes. Every Senior boy was under Mr. Smart's coaching in some kind of athletics. He will lose some good material but Mr. Smart expressed the hope and belief that the remaining boys would fill their places.

Mr. Smart stated that he would be back here next year and intended putting out winning teams. The baseball team is the unofficial champion of this district. If the E. H. S. team is officially recognized it will play in the by-district We hope to get into the by-district game.

Miss Orsborn and Miss Bradshaw Awarded Gold Pieces

The Senior class presented Miss Orsborn and Miss Bradshaw with gold pieces for the work they did in coaching the Senior play. Both teachers made speeches of thanks.

TWO DIGNIFIED SENIORS

Sunday night two of our dignified Seniors Bill and Buck were seen practicing for the coming summer rodeo. They figured that since sparks plug was a horse, a line plug must surely be also. These two daring lads were riding this unfortunate plug from nine until twelve Saturday night. Bill thinks he got the better of the bargain because he rode in front most of the time. That fine plug was located on the Naylor corner.

THIS CHANGEABLE COUNTRY

and over lines has brought hundreds of thousands of workers into new occupations in that field alone, and by enabling factories to operate close to the source of their raw materials, is converting hundreds of rural villages into industrial centers, is a familiar story. That expansion has not stopped; it may almost be said to have hardly begun. And every new step which it takes means another shift of people from place to place, of men and women from one sort of a job to another sort of job.

There will never be a complete end to unemployment until such changes as those and the changes which are still to come have ceased. That time is not in sight and there is nothing to indicate that we shall ever reach it. So long as there are new things to do, more young people will try to do them, than the new industries have permanent places for. There will always be a fringe of the less competent out of work. But unemployment does not always mean distress. With all of our fluidity of occupational relationships, we, the American people as a whole, have a larger cash reserve, in savings banks and life insurance surpluses available as loans on policies, as well as a sin commercial checking accounts, than any other people in the world.

"Things I Ate Hurt Me"

"I HAD a severe case of indigestion," says Mrs. Bell Buckheister, 7 River St., Piedmont, S. C. "So many things that I ate hurt me, I almost quit eating."

"I would burn in my chest. I had severe headache, and such a tight, smothering feeling. I would be obliged to eat a little, then it would hurt me."

"A friend said to me: 'Why don't you take Black-Draught?' 'I was just too weak then to do my work. I began taking small doses after meals, and in just a few weeks I could eat anything I wanted to, then take my small dose of Black-Draught and feel fine. I soon regained my health and strength.' WHAT MAKES A JOB GOOD?

One morning the elevator starter was breaking in a new elevator-boy. At noon the new boy was running the car alone. He had on a uniform, and was starting and stopping with the confidence of a veteran.

From apprentice to professional in a couple of hours.

What thoughts are in that young fellow's head as he receives his instructions from the gray-haired veteran?

How can he fail to look forward and see in the older man a picture of himself twenty years from now.

He is taking up a low paid job—a job with no future. Twenty years from now he will be just where he is today—only older, with a grasp on the job some what less secure. His experience will count for nothing, because it is experience that any other man can gain in a couple of days.

He may from time to time, force an increase in his pay. But the increases will not be large. Why?

Because he learned the job in two days. And in any other two days the company can find plenty of men who will learn just as fast and take the job away from him.

Recently I met in a hotel restaurant a friend of mine who has just come back from England after taking special work in surgery under some of the greatest men in the world.

He is thirty-one years old: it is fourteen years since he entered college.

For ten of those years he has been in medical schools in hospitals, and in foreign countries studying.

Fourteen long years of hard, uninterrupted study. Years made more difficult by the necessity for self-support and filled sometimes with questionings, as he has seen his college class-mates moving forward to their places as well paid physicians, and he lingering still in school.

Yet with what result?

He has acquired a specialized train in such as only a few other men in New York possess.

He will begin life with an income of several thousands; he will pay back his educational debts in a couple of years; in ten years his income will be tens of thousands.

Fourteen years of his life went into the mastery of his profession. But he need have no fear of losing what he has gained. No other man can displace him, except at the cost of fourteen years of work.

And when he said it he epitomized the philosophy of Business.

The job that the gods sell for two hour's training is worth just what it costs.

Only that job is worth much which has tied to it the price tag of constant unceasing study and work.
