ASOKA, BARBARIAN.
A SUGGESTION.
UNWISE NAPOLEON.

I have not been able to find an account of a man who was entirely intelligent, or of one who was entirely honest. The best example of an honest and an intelligent man was possibly Asoka, a barbarian. It is said of him that though he conquered in battle as easily as did Napoleon, he grew to have a horror of war, and would have no more of it. Asoka had victory to his credit in full measure. No one could say he was a comard, or that he was not the best of commanders. He was rich, and regal in splendor of palaces, robes, jewels, and obedience from his subjects.

So the man chose to thereafter court fame by becoming a just and intelligent ruler, and this course met with so much success that he is at this distant day, best known and respected of the notables of his time.

Any page devoted to a summary of a thousand years of history, gives brief mention of ruler much alike; so many victories, so many defeats, and through it all about the same thievery and oppression. But instead of the usual line given an ancient ruler in the necessary brief summary of history, Asoka gets a star in front of his name, and a footnote recording distinction no other king, president or chief

The history of Asoka is shadowy, and I somewhat distrust it, but it at least persists, and is a suggestion a modern ruler might have made reality.

Why should not a ruler acquire fame with honesty rather than with the roguery that has distinguished his class almost without variance? Napoleon was a rarely intelligent man. In the Russian campaign, which wrecked him, he took a chance that was surely unnecessary. He appreciated he could not successfully invade England because of the channel separating Calais and Dover, but overlooked a more serious handicap—Winter—in invading Russia.

Why was it impossible for Napoleon to be as wise as the barbarian Asoka, who, after becoming satiated with victory and power, chose to try for still greater glory, as a just and intelligent ruler? St. Helena is a godd story but an unnecessary tragedy: I regret Napoleon's history is not an inspiration to all men that honesty is the best policy. Had Napoleon adopted Asoka's plan as late as Austerlitz, he would have not only his present fame, but a great deal more, and of a better kind.

4-H Club Of Schleicher Begins Lamb Feeding Projects

According to Mr. L. E. Sumner, County Demonstration agent of Schleicher County, there will be number of boys in the county who will feed lambs until the Stock Show at Ft. Worth next March. Much interest is being shown in this project, but by the boys and by the sheep me of the county. It is planned for these lambs to be shipped next spring over the new railroad which is rapidly approaching Eldorado. It also planned to show these feeder lambs at the Schleicher County Fair, on October 10, and 11th.

By beginning the selection of lambs this early a selection of the best lambs in the county for feeding can be made before they are topped and shipped from the country. The actual feeding of the lambs will not begin until about the middle of November. The Schleicher County Fair Association is offering prizes both on single and groups of feeder lambs and much rivalry is already being shown.

The boys who have entered the feeding project are Frank Bradley Jr., Patton Enochs, Glenn Green, Thomas R. Jones, Eugene Koy, John Leudecke, Cecil Moore Jim Tom Roach, Lawson Edmiston, Clifford A. Archie, Bell Sample, Louie Nolan and probably others.

The owners of shepp who have already promised lambs to the boys to feed are John Ray, J. W. Lawhon Jr., T. R. Henderson, Doc Kerr, D. E. Delong, Hensil Mathews, Jess Koy, and others.

Schleicher County Claims Smallest School In State

Schleicher County has good claims to the smallest school in the state. The Cliff school has two pupils and one teacher. The teacher is Miss Blanche Newlin of Eldorado. It is not likely that the enrollment in the school will be greater than the present for the entire term of nine months. The district has a special school tax of 50 cents on the one-hundred dollars and has an abundance of school funds.

This is even smaller as a school than is the Mims School, in Tom Green County, which has four pupils and one teacher and which claims to be the smallest public school in the state.

Parents Entertain Teachers at Eldorado

The parents of Eldorado district entertained the teachers of the Eldorado public school in the basement of the Baptist Church on last Friday Night, September 27th. Games and contests of various kinds held the attention of all and caused much fun and laughter throughout the evening. The social was sponsored by the P. T. A.

Band Organized In Eldorado

Some twenty-five members have enrolled in a new band in Eldorado and about sixteen of these already have their instruments and have met for practice. Mr. F. Newsfields, the organizer and director of the band, has had years of experience in band work, having directed similar organizations in Lano and other places in this part of the state. Several of the members are highly enthusiastic over the prospect of a real band for Eldorado.

BRIDGE PARTY

Mrs. L. T. Barber entertained the Eldorado Bridge Club Thursday September 26. There were three tables of bridge.

High club prize was awarded Mrs. Lewis Ballew and high guest prize was awarded Mrs. Weeler.

Mr. John Rae was in Eldorado Wednesday and attended the meeting of the Lions Club while here. Mr. Rae thinks that he could use some more rain, out his way.

W. H. McClatchey was a visitor at the Eldorado Lions Wednesday. Mr. McClatchey was called on for a speech but he stated that he was carrying H. G. Parker along to do his speech making.

"Heavy" didn't speak either.

Lester Henderson was in Eldorado Wednesday with a large smile over his face over finding his Masonic ring which he lost last week end in Eldorado. While here he joined the large family of readers of The Success or.

Miss Jeanette Henderson left last Sunday September 29 for Dallas where she will re-enter Miss Hoday School and continue her school work.

New Scout Master For Eldorado Troop

Mr. McMasters, scout executive of the Concho Valley district was in Eldorado recently and confirmed the appointment of Mr. E. W. Brooks, a business man of Eldorado, as Scout master of troop Number 18. He takes the place of Mr. Don McCormick. There are about twenty-five boy scouts in Eldorado and there are a considerable number on the waiting list.

SELF CULTURE CLUB

The Self Culture Club held its regular meeting Thursday, September 26, at the home of Mrs. Geo. Williams. The subject of the program was "Music and the Drama", and several interesting papers were read. The next meeting will be at Mrs. Joab Campbell's October 17.

Talking about speech making, a real speaker was discovered at the Lions meeting. No other than our prominent County Agent Mr. L. E. Sumner. Mr. Sumner took the floor soon after the lunch hour and after several taps from the Chair Mr. L. E. decided that he had been taking quite awhile. He made a very interesting talk on the Boys 4 H Club and what they were contemplating doing.

Our band seems to be progressing nicely since the recent organization. Twenty seven members have already enrolled and Prof. Newfield, director states that the band will give a nice concert by Christmas. Practically all of the members are new and a concert at that time will certainly require some praise on the part of the instructor.

John Irving King made a business trip to San Angeo Friday September 27, and on his return home stopped over in Eldorado for the week end.

P. M. Oliver Dies Of Knife Wound Accidentally Inflicted

P. M. Oliver, 46, a resident farmer of Schleicher County for the past fifteen of twenty years, was found dead in the field near his home Tuesday afternoon. A coroners verdict was held that the Schleicher county man had died from wounds inflicted by a knife wielded by the man himself in cutting a burr knot from a horses tail. Mr. Oliver after receiving the wound tied his horses to a tree and started for the house and walked forty or fifty steps where he fell and was found by his son Bobby, who had been sent to the field with a message for his father.

Severance of an artery in his leg led to immediate blood loss which resulted fatally.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist Church Wednesday afternoon with Rev. J. L. Ratliff in charge.

The survivors include his wife the one son Bobby, two daughters Miss Tommie D. Oliver of Eldorado, and Mrs. Avis May Tummy of San Angelo, three brothers, D. and Jo Oliver of Ballinger and O. Oliver of McCamey, two sisters, Mrs. Jimmie W. Sitehead of San Saba and Mrs. Mollie McMillian of Ballinger.

The Success extends their heartfelt sympathies to the Survivors in this time of trouble.

BELCHER OF DEL RIO IS SUPPORTED BY STOCKMEN FOR CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

C. C. Belcher of Del Rio seems to be the pick to succeed Claude B. Hudspeth as Congressman of this District according to V. I. Pierce, stockman of the Ozona country. Mr. Pierce seems to believe that Mr. Belcher is the man to take the place of Mr. Hudspeth as he is interested in the ranching business and knows the real needs of the rancher and is well qualified to take the place of the former Congressman Hudspeth. He also states that the majority of the members of the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association are backing him in the race next summer.

Mr. J. C. Crosby made a business trip to Sonora Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Oran Nicks and children were in from the ranch near Fort Stockton this week visiting friends and relatives.

WHY TRADE AWAY FROM HOME?

Mr. Sam Roberts of the Robert's Clothing Store has placed the prices in the Success this week listed by Fort Worth Tailor Shops and asks you to compare these prices with the prices of the home tailors. This is another strong argument on the question "Why Trade Away From Home?" when you can get the same service for much less money. Every merchant in Eldorado can give you many reasons as Mr. Roberts has placed before you for your benefit.

We will add some of the same arguments that we have been trying to drill into the minds of the people since we have been writing for the public. It is to your greatest advantage to patronize the home in more ways than it will be possible to mention. The first one is listed above, you pay less for the quality that you get by trading at home. The Home merchant is selling his products and doing the same work at a smaller cost or the same cost that you pay elsewhere. Why, then, will you trade away from home? By trading with the home merchant you are building up your town and community. Practically every dollar spent in Eldorado is placed to some advancement of the town or community. The building of a home institution is one of the greatest assets that can come to a town. You go into the larger cities you pay for the many different overhead expenses that they have added to their expense account that the merchants in this town do not have to pay for. You may price an article here in a home business it sounds very high, but go to the other towns and price the same article, not a duplicate of it but the article itself, the same brand and all. Then compare the prices. There is no argument against patronizing the home town merchants.

TENTH INSTALMENT

What Happened Before

She sees a casting director, Arthur Tirrey, and abruptly offers herself to him in return for a job in the movies. He tells her the talk about "paying the price" is all rot. Meanwhile the attention of Mr. Bermond, head of the company, is diverted to her and he decides to give her a chance. Soon she finds herself posing with Claymore as her director, obeying his commands in a kind of a stupor.

Mem's father reads a publicity story calling her "the prettiest girl in America" and writes a letter of protest to his wife and daughter. Mem's fame begins to spread, and Claymore, the director, takes an unusual interest in her. He is infatuated with Mem but tries to be aloof and professional to hide the fact from the company.

Mem and Claymore become more and more interested in each other. Out riding one day, Claymore makes physical advances to her. While they are parking a hold-up man approaches and demands their money.

Now Go On With the Story

Claymore, brooding deeply in his earnest soul, felt that he owed Mem some atonement. He meant it nobly, but it sounded crude when he checked the car in front of her little home and took her hand and said:

"If you will let me marry you, I'll see that my wife divorces me.

These divorces of convenience marked the new-fashioned way of accomplishing old-fashioned righteousness. He wanted to make her "an honest woman."

Mem laughed nervously.

"No, thanks!" It was as uninspired as possible, but then it is not easy to make a brilliant answer to a stupid suggestion. She felt that she must improve on it a bit, but she helped it a little when she added: "Just as much obliged. Good night!"

Two days later she began work for Tom Holby's company. Holby described the part she was to play, read her the big scenes.

People make love unconsciously at times and in the truest courtships never a word is spoken. Two souls travel mystic gardens together and come to deep understandings without the exchange of a syllable thought.

Mem was so wooed by Holby.

The orders had gone through to rush the Holby picture to a conclusion. Big night-storm scenes had been scheduled for the final takes, and on the final morning the first scenes were begun promptly at nine. Kendrick promised to let the company go at three to rest for the all-night grind, but it was not until half past seven that the day's work was done.

At nine they went to the first of the sets. The Californian night was black and cold. The night in the story was one of tempest and battle. Tom Holby must run an automobile into a ditch and make a desperate war against four brutes who were instructed to put up a good fight.

Each bit of scenery through which she was to flash had been made ready the day before. Perforated rain pipes were reinforced by men who would play a fire hose or two upon the hapless actress. The gale was to be provided by an airplane propeller mounted on a truck.

Mem instructed the settings she was so briefly to adorn.

"Why do they build that fence around the wind machine?" she asked Kendrick.

"To keep people from walking into the propeller and getting chopped to mincemeat," said Kendrick.

After an hour preparation the army was ready for battle.

A gentle rain fell from the pipes. The fire hose, aimed up in the air, added its volume. The wind machine set up its mad clatter. The water and the lightning filled it with shattering fire.

Then Mem was called forth. She clutched her cloak about her and thrust into the tempest. It was like driving through a slightly rarefied cataract. She hardly reached the pillar at the edge of the porch, clutched it for a moment, caught a quick breath, and flung down the steps. And that was that. All this preparation for one minute of action!

She was taken to a warm room and wrapped in blankets while the next scene was prepared. She was supposed to have run a long distance between the last scene and this, and she must enter it wet.

At length she got her signal and went forward again, head down, into the wild storm.

During her absence a telephone pole and a tree had been brought down by the storm and photographed as they fell. It was her business now to clamber across the pole and push through the branches of the tree, and so fight her way out of the picture. The wind machine had been shifted several times. The wind man in his confusion forgot to notice that the property men had forgotten, in their confusion, to set up the fence before midnight now and everybody was numb with cold, drenched with the promiscuous rain, and a little irresponsible. Their working day was already fifteen hours old and it would last at least five more hours.

Tom Holby had been photographed in a climb up the wet sides of a ravine, and was half frozen in his soaked clothes, but he stayed to watch Mem through this scene.

She struggled with the maniac hurricane, stumbled and fell across the telephone pole, thrust aside the wires, lifted herself and breasted the wind again, drove into the wreck of the fallen tree. The branches whipped her wet flesh cruelly. The lightning just ahead of her blistered her vision like the white-hot irons driven into the eyes of Shakespeare's Prince Clarence. The wind blew her breath back into her lungs. If she had not gained a little support from one stout bough of the tree she could never have reached the margin of the picture.

Kendrick's heart was glad with triumph as he saw her pass out of the camera range. He called, "Cut!" and the camera men were jubilant as each of them shouted "O. K. for me!"

Then Kendrick heard screams of terror, wild howls of fear. He ran forward and saw the blinded little figure of Mem still pressing on straight into the blur of the airplane propeller.

His heart sickened. She would be sliced to shreds. She could not hear the yelled warnings in the noise of the machine.

The operator shut off his engine, but the propellers still swirled at a speed that made them only a whorl of light. The witnesses were paralyzed by the horror of the moment.

Tom Holby broke from a nightmare that outran the immediate beauty of the girl walking forward to a hideous fate. He ran and dived for her like a football tackler, hooked his left arm about her knees and flung her backward, thrusting his right arm and his head beneath her, so that when she struck, her shoulders were upon his breast, her drenched hair fell across his face like seaweed.

She opened her eyes in a chaos of bewilderment. Just above her the flying propeller blades were glistening in the light of the sun arc.

They were still revolving when the wind machine man, leaping from the post where he had stood expecting her fate and his own eternal remorse, ran to lift her from the ground. Others helped up Tom Holby.

He had knocked himself unconscious when his head struck a rock in the road. His cheek was ripped and gushing blood.

He came to his senses at once and forced a ghastly laugh.

Mem screamed with fear for him. She had not yet realized her own escape. She was all pity for Tom Holby, and anxiety.

"It's nothing," he said. Then he staggered with dread of what Mem would have looked like now if he had waited an instant longer or missed his aim at her knees.

He drew her from the vortex of the propeller, which was subsiding with the dying snarl of a leopard that has missed its pounce.

The next day the company gathered to see the rushes of the night stuff.

Kendrick sighed, "That came near being a portrait of you walking out of this world."

Tom Holby did not speak, but he reached out and, seizing Mem hand, wrung it with an eloquence beyond words. He seemed to be squeezing her heart with cinging hands.

She was consumed with an impatience to begin a new picture at once, and to be very busy with life and love, beauty and delight.

And yet, when Tom Holby, after they had left the lot, asked her to ride with him for a bit of air, told her he adored her and that she was adorable; when he courted her with deference and meekness and pleaded for a little kindness—her heart froze in her. She could not even accept a proffered beatitude.

She looked at him and thought and said:

"Too many people love you, Tommy. You belong to the public, and you couldn't bring your self down to really loving me." "Oh, but I could! I do!" he cried. Damn my public! I don't care for anything but you."

"But I haven't had my public yet, and I love it. Just now the only love I can feel is acted love!"

"Then let's have a rehearsal," he suggested, cynically. But she shook her head. "I want to laugh, Tommy," she cried. "Amuse me, make me laugh!"

"There's the new Charlie Chaplin comedy," he said. We might get in."

Let's try," said Mem.

Holby swung his car around. "Tommy," said Mem, "what is comedy? I'm sick of all these crying scenes and emoting all over the place. I want to be a comedienne. Do you think I could be one?"

"I don't think so," said Holby, with scientific candor. "You never made me laugh. You don't laugh much."

"No, but I'm going to! I think if I ever love anybody really, it will be a comedian. Do you know any comedians who are not married, Tommy?"

"Lots of 'em," said Holby. "A man who keeps coming to me from getting married or saying married long."

They took in a Chaplin show and on the way home she snuggled close to Holby in the car. Yet when he spoke tenderly she made fun of him, giggled, reminded him of bits of the picture that had amused her. This enraged him.

"I'm going in for comedy," she said. "It's the only thing worth while. All this tears and passion business makes me sick."

Holby fought out in his soul a decent battle of self-sacrifice before he brought himself to the height of recommending a rival. "There's Ned Ling; he's looking for a pretty leading woman. He's not Chaplin, but he's awfully funny in his own way. If you're so hell bent on a comic career get your agent to go after him."

"Ned Ling," she mused. "Yes, I've seen him. I may make a try at him a little later."

But when she reached her home there was something waiting in ambush for her—a letter from her father.

EAGLES DEFEATED BY KITTENS

The Eldorado Eagles were defeated in a hard fought game last Friday by the San Angelo Kittens. Although the Eldorado boys were as fierce and swift as Eagles, they could not score on the Kittens, who looked like elephants and fought like full grown Bobcats. The Kittens made a touchdown and passed across the goal line for a point making the score 7 to 0 at the end of the third quarter.

The ends on the Eldorado High School, McAngus and "Lefty" Smith, did some good tackling and caught some good passes. The line did some good tackling and blocking and the backfield pulled some good fakes and made some good runs. The Eagles must improve a great deal to beat Junction next Friday.

Features of the Game:
 William McAngus, good tackling.
 Lefty Smith's catching long passes.
 Luther Parker's fast running and good tackling.

GAME WITH JUNCTION HI
 Eldorado High School School is to play Junction High School at Junction next Friday. The Junction team is big and well trained but the Eagles are going to try to beat them to a frazzle. Just because they are big is no reason they can't be beat, because "the bigger they are the harder they fall."

Don't be discouraged because the team has lost the first two games. The Eagles are just sprouting their wing feathers. After another game or two and a little more practice and the Eagles will ply high, wide and handsome. Watch em' and see if they don't.

EAGLES VS KITTENS

Last Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock P. M. the Eldorado Eagles met the San Angelo Kittens on the Eldorado football field for a game of football.

The game started off like each team was not going to let the other mak a touchdown. After many fumbles and punts the first half ended without a score. During the second half the Eagles began to gain a little ever few downs but the Kittens would not allow a touchdown.

When a few of the Kittens men got tired here came frsh, huskie men to take their places. Before the game ended the Kittens plunged the line for a touchdown and threw a pass to get the extra point making the score 7 to 0 in the Kittens favor. The Eagles made the Kittens work for every yard the won. The Kittens had about thirty men t othe Eagles fifteen which was not a very well matched bunch besides the size of the big, huskie Kittens to the Eagles.

There were not as many out to the game as there should have been. "COME out all you people and support the team."

"Watch for an announcement of the next game.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS ELECTED

The Seniors were assembled in the Math room last Tuesday to elect officers and to look at look at some class, invitations and diplomas. J. C. Bullion was elected president and Elizabeth Bradley was elected Secretary and Treasurer. The class purchased class, rings, diplomas and invitations from the salesman and the whole class was very much pleased with the class rings and other things selected.

The Senior class intends to have a number of class parties and other entertainments during the year.

The seniors are going to set an example of good work for the high school this year.

Carl Kerr resigned his position as Associate Editor of the school paper and Bill Currie was appointed in his place.

The Junior Class is proud of the fact that one of its members, Albert McGinty, is captain of the High School football team

PUBLIC SPEAKING CLASS

Miss Orsborn is making some real speakers out of the pupils in her public speaking class. She has been training her pupils in salesmanship the last few days and some are getting to be very good salesmen.

THE JUNIORS

There are 18 Juniors in high school. Here are the outstanding characteristics of each:

Ethol Enochs, the school's most beautiful blonde. Margaret Williams another bonde. Fred Williams, the fastest of the High School. Lorene Shoemake, not fat but large, Eli McAngus, gives his brother William, competition for being the tallest in school, Albert McGinty, Our football captain, Ray Boyer, the most amusing character in High School, Hazel Bruton, a name that is usually found on the honor roll, Viola May, another smart student, Bill Currie, the school's stenographer, Carl Kerr, another football player; Joe Hearn Moore, possesses black eyebrows and red hair, can you guess the reason? Margaret Tisdale, the pusher of that Chrysler, Ruby Evans, rather timid, Carroll Green, possesses the nick-name of "Blondy", Joe Muller Christian, slow but usre, Hollis McCormick, always finds fault, and Cora Sauer, a new student.

The bookkeeping class is progressing nicely. The new books have arrived and work will begin proper. Mr. Curry, the teacher of the class has had great success and is expecting greater within the near future. The seven students of this class believe it will be more interesting when they get the "Cow Expenses" and the "Pig Income" separated.

FISH! FISH

Who made the remark that the "Fish" were dumb. They are already improving their vocabulary. The following statement was taken from a conversation between a couple of them yesterday.

"Now listen, Lefty, when "Prof." Holt walks perpendicularly into this study hall, mark in the middle at a forty-five degree angle and cuts those snake eyes to form an isosceles triangle you had better cock your parallel ears and give him a your undivided attention as he is sure to make a few intercepted announcements."

GREEN SIDE WINS SALES CONTEST

The Red side in the Magazine selling contest had 91 subscriptions to magazines and the Green side sold 92 subscriptions. The Green side won by a very narrow margin but the Red have to give the Greens a party just the same. From the subscriptions sold the E. H. S. Library gets $109.80. The school wishes to thank the citizens of Eldorado for the way they have helped the school in this contest.

The highest number of subscriptions sold was twenty-two and they were sold by Brownie Bullino. The next highest was 13, sold by Margaaret Sheen.
