GOOD BEHAVIOR. STRANGE HABITS SHAKESPEARE

Old Silius, the Roman who wrote his memoirs so candidly, said: "In early youth I was ordered to behave, and this command was enforced in manhood, I was resentful until I discovered there was reason in command and that I could, in consideration measure, obey to my profit. As common soldier and officer I early discovered that the best behaved armies were most efficient most frequently victorious. This was the rule, likewise, in households, neighborhoods, commonwealths, senates, individuals. So thereafter I did not resent the command, as many do; my observation has been that ill-behaved are usually so because of rebellion; they do not understand that good behavior is for their interest as well as for the interest of the commonwealth—I as sincerely believe in good behavior as I believe in any other human policy that has turned out to be better than a bad one.

The delays, quibbles, expense, and corruption in our courts is disgraceful, compared with the courts of other countries; yet the people have taken no steps to reform the courts and the lawyers. On the other hand, our railroads are better in every way than the railroads abroad. Our service is better, and charges lower, our privately owned railroads are better than the government managed railroads elsewhere. Yet our attempts to reform the railroads amount to persecution; we are even willing to damage our selves that we may cripple the railroads—Of course we are the greatest and noblest people ever known, but I am coming to believe that even we have a lot of strange habits that need doctoring.

It Shakespeare's writings could be simplified, probably it would be found originated more wit, more original and agreeable forms of expression, than any other hundred men of ancient or modern times. This man deserves his literary reputation; many others do not. But his writing is cast in such an ancient and difficult form that comparatively few are able to read him. With all his greatness, Shakespeare has been of little use to me; reading him gives me a head ache—We all say Shakespeare's collected works is a Great Book. It is useful to only a few. A really great book should appeal to practically every body. No such book has been written.

Cooking School In Eldorado Draws Good Attendance

The cooking school conducted here November 5-7 by the West Texas Utilities Company at the Hardware store of V. H. Humphrey closed on Thursday afternoon with the largest attendance of the school. Miss Floyd Smith conducted the school, demonstrating the many uses of the electric range and preparing many dishes. One of the features of the demonstration on Wednesday was the roasting of chevon for the luncheon of the Lions' Club. About sixty ladies attended the demonstration on the last afternoon of the school.

Barbecue At Second Spudding In For Oil Test In Schleicher

The spudding in of the second test for oil in Schleicher County was celebrated today on the Bert Page ranch with a barbecue of chevon and calf served to a bout 150 guests. Mr Bert Page, of Eldorado, on whose ranch the test is being made was host. Many Eldorado people attended the barbecue and saw the work begun on what they hope will be a producer. The oil activities in the county are now attracting much attention.

Judge George T Wilson, of Abilene, and associates are in charge of the drilling of the test of the Bert Page ranch. This location is about nine miles south east of Eldorado and is 1,290 feet from the north line 470 feet from the west line of section 40, block L, G. H, and S A Ry Co., survey.

With the completion of a deal this week whereby the ranch of Hugh Richardson was leased to Martin and Casey another block was made for drilling a test on the Joe Tisdale Ranch a few miles north east of Eldorado. The Richardson section was in the middle of a drilling block which was leased some time ago but this one section has been holding up the test for some time. It is reported now that the third test will be begun at an early date.

Health Nurse For Schleicher County

Arrangements have been completed whereby the Parent-Teacher Association of Eldorado is to bring a state health nurse to Schleicher County in January of 1930. According to Mrs. E W Brooks, corresponding secretary of the P T A, the county board of trustees, the board of trustees of the Eldorado Independent district, and the Lions Club of Eldorado have all approved of the plans as required by the state health department before a nurse is sent out to a county. Mrs Brooks is in receipt of a letter from the state health department advising her that one of the three itinerant nurses will be in Eldorado in January and will spend from four to six weeks in the County. The primary work will be the examination of the school children in every school in the county but work will also be carried on with various groups and communities in health work. Considerable work is also to be given to the general health conditions of the county.

Rock Springs Defeats Eldorado In Football By 13 — 6

Rock Springs gave Eldorado the second beating of the season in a return game here on November 11th. The Eldorado team was out weighed but played the best game of the season before on of the largest crowds seen at a football here in this season. The first score of the game and only score for Eldorado came during the first few minutes of play when Cates passed 25 yards to A Smith who carried the ball over the goal line for a touchdown. Rock Springs scored during the second and fourth quarters.

Two Fellows In Bad Shape

Dear Mr. Editor:

Two friends of mine slipped off to Christoval to go fishing some few days ago by the name of C B Reagan and Henry Wilson. They claimed they were on their home run; they had misfortune with their tin 'Lizzie' and one said, 'Let's sell old Lizzie'; the other one said, 'Aright'; so here is the description they put on their car.

AUTO FOR SALE

One touring car with piston rings, two rear wheels and one front spring, has no fenders, seat or plank. Burns lost of gas and hard to crank. Carburetor busted half way thru, engine missing, hits on two, has shock absorbers and everything three years old, four in the spring. Differential dry can hear it squeak. Radiator busted sure does leak. Ten spokes missing front all bent tires blown out, ain't worth a cent; Got lots of speed, runs like the duce. Burns either gas or tobacco juice, top all torn, and leaks like a sieve. If you want this car what will you give. Lights all busted, a car is good for the flu. Has room for eight, with one on your lap. Beats paying seven cents and holding a strap. Horn won't toot, nothing but tin. Its a darn good car for the shape its in.

Ginning Season About Completed In Schleicher

A total of 1784 standard 500 pound bales of cotton have been ginned by the Eldorado gin this season. The gin at Bailey Ranch, about ten miles west of Eldorado, has ginned a total of about 1100 bales this season. Thus the total ginned in the county is almost 3,000 bales which is much less than the 1928 crop when there were almost 5,000 bales ginned in the county. Both gins in the county are now ginning only two days each week and comparatively little cotton is coming in. Most of the itinerant Mexican cotton pickers have moved on while there are scores of others passing through Eldorado daily on their way back to Del Rio after the cotton picking season is over.

According to Mr. Cobb, gin man at Eldorado, many of the farmers in Schleicher County held their cotton but during the last week a number of these have decided to sell in spite of the low prices. He bought thirty bales from one farmer who had been holding for some time and had refused higher prices previously.

Eldorado Girls Defeat Rock Springs In Basket Ball

The girls' Basket ball team of the Eldorado High School defeated the Rocksprings team here November 11th by a score of 16 to 12. The Eldorado team scored in the first minute of play and kept the lead throughout the game. The home team was much more expert at goal throwing than were the visitors and made eleven field goals to their opponents six but many of these counted only one point. Alta Stevens, captain of the Eldorado team was highest scorer with seven field goals while B Garret of Rock Springs was next with four field goals.

The players were as follows: Eldorado: Stevens, Rape, Bradley, Oglesby, Wilson and Ballew. Substitutes: Jones, Johnson and Kent.

Rocksprings: C Garrett, B. Garrett, Smart, Myers, Winnings and Leonard. Substitutes: Gary, and Barrows.

Eldorado Lions Club Active

The Eldorado Lions Club was organized in May of 1928 and has consistently maintained an active membership of about fifty from the very first. There being no organized Chamber of Commerce in Eldorado this club has met a much felt need and has taken over more duties than does the average social and civic club. The regular luncheons are on Wednesdays twice each month and are well attended as well as marked with activity and interest on the part of the members. These meetings serve both as social and business meetings and worthwhile civic projects are continually before the club. Among the constructive work accomplished by the club since its organization are the installation of street lights in Eldorado, sponsoring of the Boy Scout organization and many other projects which are for the civic progress of the community. The membership of the club is composed of business and professional men and ranchmen. Mr. Joab Campbell is chairman and Mr L T Barber is secretary of the club.

At the regular luncheon on Wednesday, November 6th, some of the subjects discussed were the changing of the highway in front of the school building, radio interference in Eldorado, and a dinner for the club in the near future to which the ladies are to be invited.

Eldorado Ranch Leased for 5 Years

Tom R Henderson, of Eldorado has recently leased two sections of land from Frank Douglas. The ranch is located about one and one-half mile from Eldorado and has about 400 acres in cultivation. The price paid for the lease is to be $1,800 per year for a term of five years. The land in cultivation on the land is to be sowed and used for pasturage. Mr. Henderson is to use this land for hold over pens and for feeding as it is conveniently located near the site of the railroad stockpens in Eldorado.

THIRD INSTALLMENT

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE
At a party in Palm Beach given by Mr. Cooper Cary, Leeson, an attorney, meets Lucy Harkness known as Devil-May-Care because of her adventurous, eventful life. In a game in which partners for the evening are chosen, Lucy is won by Tim Stevens, who has a great reputation as a successful heart-breaker. Leeson is a bit jealous. Tim Stevens tells Lucy they are going aboard his boat, the Minerva, and she accedes in order not to be "a quitter." Asked if she is sorry that he won her company, Lucy says she is not and that he won her company. Lucy says she is not and that she has evidently arranged it, Tim thereupon tells her to stop looking regretfully after Leeson. Aboard Stevens' boat the Minerva, Stevens tells Lucy of his love. When she replies with contempt for him, he grows violently angry and she becomes afraid of him. He says he will never let her go from the Minerva until she accepts him. To escape him, she leaps into the water from her cabin window, swimming a short distance under water.

Now Go On With The Story

She laughed contemptuously. "Which women, you mean. But of course you mean that. It's the only game you know. But to have never played it with my kind of woman, because my kind won't play with you."

"You're one that's going to, he said naively.

"I think so," she snook her head again. "This is Mrs. Cary's game we're playing. The other game—I don't enter."

"You didn't know you entered it," he contradicted, "but you have. You're here, aboard the Minerva when I'm damned good and ready to let you leave; not before. Now, do you play my game?"

Her eyes were dreamy; her sweet mouth drooped pensively. "If Fate intended, yes. But Fate has been so very kind to me thus far, that I cannot believe it intends me any such trick as playing such a game with you. Tim, I've come out with you. Let us go back."

"Not," he told her, "until you've learned a little more of fate."

"Abduction went out with hoopskirts," she said.

"It's come in again," he remarked grimly.

She remembered Modane, the Minerva's skipper. A rat-faced man, of inexact ancestry, a touch of the Levantine in his hooked nose. The men were ordinary sailors, and the domestic staff, so to speak, were Japs. No help from the latter would be forthcoming; it was not for them to interfere in the actions of the barbarians who employed them. The white sailors were crude, stupid men; and Modane was his master's man.

Wariness owned her; this situation, absurdly impossible though it might seem later when she narrated it, was definitely dangerous now. The extent of its danger depended entirely on the degree of madness which possessed Stevens.

"And it all leads to— what?" she asked.

"You'd keep your word. It leads to your promise to marry me. When I have that, I'll pay you ashore."

"And as the months, or years, pass blithely by?" she asked.

"I won't wait that long," he said. "Maybe, after a while, you'll ask me to marry you."

"Isn't this a trifle too melodramatic, Tim? The ruined maiden pleads with her despoiler—"

"The trouble with you, Lucy, he interrupted, "is that, with all your experience, you don't know men. Or you'd know that I mean what I say."

"But why want a girl who has only contempt for you?" she asked.

Don't ask me! Why does the tide come in? You believe in Fate; you've said so often enough, anyway. Well, you're my Fate, Lucy. God! I haven't mentioned love to you, but if I had words to tell you— The very sight of you drives me crazy: the toness of your voice, the way you sometimes blink your eyes, as though you were a million miles away—Lucy, I've run around after you like a pet pup, for a year, and now—"

"Now the mongrel bites, eh?" she interjected.

"He's only barking now," he told her, "but he will bite."

She snook her head.

"No I don't think so. He'll be afraid of the whip."

"Get this into your pretty head, cried. "Where you're concerned I just teetotally don't give a damn! I always thought that the men who went down over one particular woman were weak-kneed self-interests. But I've changed my mind. You—you—oh, I can't make it clear, but you—obscure the sun for me, Lucy, inere's a cloud always before me, and if I turn my head to look the other way, the cloud is still there. It's you, you all the time, everywhere. If some one speaks to me it's your voice I hear. A girl dances in the theater and it's Lucy Harkness that I'm watching. The sun sets over Lake Worth and it's Lucy Harkness's face I see."

"A magazine, a newspaper supplement prints pictures of women and they're all photographs of you. Your name is in the headlines; it's on the signs along the roads. I tell you, Lucy, this is real, this is honest-to-god, I've never told you, never asked you to marry me, but—you've known 'Yes, I've known, of course," she admitted.

He snatched at her admission. "And you came here to-night— Lucy, why did you come? Was it because—"

"It was because, solely, you won the race. No other reason I've never shirked an issue, nev-meant me to come here to-night. But I've told you this a dozen times."

"And don't you think that Fate also means us to care for each other?"

"I've answered that before, Tim, but I'll answer it again, I'd rather be dead and condemned to eternal hell than let you kiss me. Now, is the answer clear?"

Later, sheer, stark panic overwhelmed her. She was trapped, caught, at what mercy this beast this madman, chose to extend to her.

And even as she recognized this fact a knock sounded upon the door.

Stevens' voice came through the panels. It held a quality of excitement that she had never noted in his tones before. It was almost as though he had been drinking heavily and was fighting hard not to show the effect of the liquor. Yet there had not been time, since she left him, for him to become intoxicated.

"Lucy, I want to talk to you" he said.

The maddest panic swept over her, obliterating sanity. The door was flimsy, would give way despite the bolt, at the least onslaught. Tim Stevens had dared plan an abduction and carry it through, he might not go to further lengths, but how could she tell? If she opened the door—if she failed to open the door and he crashed through it— She had rather die than plead with Tim Stevens. She had never begged of any one in all her life; she would not begin now. Yet she could not fight; a screaming scratching woman lost all dignity confessed her weakness by her very defense.

Panic passed; although her act was mad to the point of suicide, her actions were cool, deliberate. This was Devil-May-Care, who made her decisions on instant impulse, but who carried them through as calmly as though they had been thought over for months.

She opened the port-hole— really a window—of her cabin, and dove cleanly into the Gulf Stream.

She was conscious of no shock as she went below the gleaming waters. It was one of those nights when semitropical climates are really tropical, and the difference between the temperature of air and water was very slight. She didn't bother to swim beneath the surface for any appreciable distance.

The Minerva was making, she guessed, an easy seven knots, unless some one on deck had seen her or heard the slight splash of her dive she would not be observed, for though the Gulf Stream gleamed, it was the pale radiance of stars that was reflected; the moon, being new cast no beam upon the sea. It would be several moments before Stevens would give the alarm. before the course of the Minerva could be altered, its searchlight made to play upon the waters. Only accident could hardly be avoided by a thirty-foot swim beneath the water. Time enough to exhaust herself thus when discovery was imminent.

Her feet sagged until they hung straight down; the tired arms relaxed; that black hair, shiny in the first rays of the sun dipped below the water. And then her toes touched hard sand. She kicked violently, and her head came above the surface. There, straight before her, green and lovely in the morning, was land. She had been tired, too hopeless to see it; swimming on her side, she'd not looked ahead for, oh, hours, it seemed. And here it was, white sand, fragrant jungle— She mustered all her waning strenght. It was only a few yards, it couldn't be more than that, to where the shelving beach would rise to meet the jungle, and let her walk.

A path! That meant people. If she could only reach a house, get inside— If she even had a blanket, to keep off the sun, the flies, the ants. There was a house. A shack, but it looked like the Cosden house to Lucy Harkness. A veritable palace of un-painted boards. She staggered toward it. Even a make-shift veranda, with a roof above it, chairs, a table and there must be a bed inside. A bed!

She leaned for a moment against a coconut palm. A nut fell, crashing. Upon the veranda a land crab, startled by the sound, looked up saw a great white figure that stretched toward the sky. He scuttled across the cracked boards as the great white figure advanced, stumbled across the veranda, and into the lute.

How could the crab know that it was the most harmless human in the world, just now; merely a half-drowned, semiconscious girl, naked as no one had ever seen since she was a baby, as nothing had ever seen her save the sun, the sea, the jungle, and the crab?

Lucy Harkness stirred, and instant ache rushed through her body. But it was the delicious ache that follows complete exhaustion and subsequent rest.

"Oo!" said Lucy Harkness, "I could eat," she said slowly, judiciously "at least six eggs, four lamb chops, a dozen slices of hot buttered toast—"

"And six pepsin tablets," said a hoarse voice.

"Always a purchase price," he sighed. "Some women are bought with jewels, some with rank, and you, it seems, with cocee."

Unaware that she did so, she nodded. This was a man who could instantly catch your mood and march along with you.

"I'm not sure that a suit of pajamas is sufficient clothing to justify my presence at your breakfast table," she said.

"You had less on when I found you," he said dryly.

—Perhaps they have been separated for years, yet upon their meeting they talk of "other days," recalling the happenings of long ago amid the lingering aroma of burned tobacco.

—How things have changed since their last meeting. When youngsters conveniences were few, but with the passing years life sees many changes.

—Not many years ago Electric Lights were a luxury, but today electricity can be well afforded by all. The amount spent each year by the average man for tobacco will pay his "light bill" four times over!

—The average family spends about $28.89 annually for electric service. ELECTRICITY is the greatest necessity of all. . . . It is cheaper than one can imagine. . . . Use More of it!

C. B. Hudspeth Endorses Judge Belcher For Congress

Below you will find a letter to the former Editor of The Success endorsing Judge Belcher of Del Rio for Congress of this district, to succeed Mr Huhspeth who will retire at the close of his present term of office. The letter is self explanatory and Mr Hudspeth many friends here will in the main part endorse Judge Belcher.

Dear Mr Wright:

It has been my great honor and pleasure to represent the 16 District of Texas in Congress since 1919, having previously served my people in the Legislature for 16 years. It is only on account of failing health that I have decided to retire at the end of my present term.

Judge C. C. Belcher, of Del Rio has made announcement of his candidacy to succeed me, and I have endorsed him. Judge Belcher is a native Texan. He is a successful rancher and lawyer. He has served his home county as County Judge, is a live stock raiser and manager of one of the largest wool and mohair companies of the State.

Judge Belcher is eminently fitted by education, experience and temperamnt to rpresent our District in Congress. He has all the qualities requisite for success in the work and adds to these attainments perfect physical health. It may be that you know him personally and if so, I need not further assure you of his honesty and fairness. He is thoroughly conversant with the needs of the entire District, which as you know, are many and varied. He has worked closely with me in many matters of deep and vital interest to the District ever since I came to Congress.

Doubtless you have already decided to support him. I earnestly hope so. You have been generous enough to commend my service during the years that I have held the office, and Judge Belcher, if elected, will serve you ably and fearlessly. I should be grateful if you would write him at Del Rio, Teyas, letting him know the sentiment of your locality and giving him the benefit of your advice and suggestions.

Very truly your friend,

C. B Hudspeth.

Entered as Second Class matter July 9th, 1906, at post office at Eldorado, Texas, under Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The Eldorado Eagles were defeated by the Rock Springs team last Monday on the local gridiron. The home boys displayed more power and the old fighting spirit in this game than in any other game and lost only by bad breaks of the game that gave the visitors both scores. The boys' journey to San Angelo to play the Kittens there Saturday. This should be a very good game as the two teams met in the early part of the season and the home team was defeated 7-0. If the boys show the determination Saturday that they did Monday we predict a win or a tie for the Eagles.

Texas vs T C U this week end has caused many fans and guessers to be very careful of opinions. Texas has gone through the season without being scored on thus far. T C U has gone to date without a defeat or being tied, while Texas has been tied on two consecutive Saturdays by S M U and Baylor. The Ft Worth team will play at Austin and we are giving the Longhorns the benefit of the doubt regardless of the strength T C U carries with her.

Baylor will try to uphold her conference standing by invading the S M U gridiron Saturday. Baylor has a clean record in the conference this year with one tie with Texas and S M U the same standing. These two games at Dallas and Austin will be the major clashes of the Southwest and the winners of these two contests will in all probability be the outstanding contestants for conference championship. We are almost afraid to guess the outcome of this game at Dallas but it will not cost anything to guess so long as that is all you do so we are guessing the S M U team to have the big end of the score Saturday, although the Baylor Bears are to be feared by any team and it would not surprise us to hear of another scoreless tie.

Saturday at San Angelo the fans will get to witness two interesting games. One game between the San Angelo Kittens and the other with the San Angelo Bobcats and Breckenridge High School. Both these games promise to be tough struggles and the home town had better go up and help the Eagles claw the Kittens up and then pull for the Bobcats in the second game as both teams will probably need all the support that the fans can give them.

E W Brooks, E C Hill and L M Hoover visited J A Whitten last Sunday afternoon, taking him some flowers and the good wishes of the Eldorado Lions Club. Lion Whitten has been a very active member of the club here and has been missed by his associate members greatly since his failure in health has caused his absence from the meetings.

Mrs. Joe Jackson left Wednesday in response to a death message which she received Tuesday morning from one of her friends in Bertram. She was accompanied to Bertram by her daughter Mary Helen.

Mr. Lewis Ballew made a business trip to San Angelo Thursday.

TOOLS HUNG IN WHITTEN WELL

After drilling in cement which was placed at the bottom of the Phillips Petroleum Company's oil well on the Whitten ranch, the bit became battered and so far the drillers have not been able to get it to come up into the six inch casing. The well is now at a depth of about 5500 feet but the caving has halted rapid progress to deepen the test. It is resumed that the bit will be gotten out soon.

TEMPERATURE FALLS BELOW FREEZING THURSDAY

Thursday morning brought the first showing of ice in Eldorado. The thermometer registered 28 degrees and quite a bit of ice was found. Eldorado and vicinity has felt considerable cold weather the last two weeks with very little moderation but this week brought the first fall of the thermometer to freezing.

Report has been received from J. A. Whitten who has been in San Angelo for the past three weeks that he was improving in health and was able to sit up but was still very weak.

Radio Interference in ELDORADO

To Radio listeners this has been a trouble for some time. There has been lots of work done on this both by the West Texas Utilities Company and the San Angelo Telephone Company. Their work is completed and the noises you have, if any, will continue unless quited by owners of radio sets. We, with the West Texas Utilities Company have made a complete survey of the entire city of Eldorado and in most places where radio sets are located this trouble can be eliminated to where radio reception is practically free of noise.

To take care of this interference for our customers we have put in a complete line of equipment necessary for each radio installation. If you are having trouble call us and we will be glad to give you all the information we can on your particular set. Equipment will be installed at any time you desire and the quietest reception given you that can possibly be had in your own particular case.
