Knowledge of History
Duty of Citizenship

There never was a time when the average man needed to know more about the continuity and tradition of his race than in this age, when he is beset on all sides by agitators who seek to trample under foot anything that custom has hallowed or experience taught us to be true. Bacon advocated the reading of history as making men wise, and it is to be hoped that this revival of interest in our country's story is being undertaken in the spirit that ought to underlie all our reading, not that of blind acceptance, or that of contradiction, but with an open, alert mind, so that we may weigh and consider well before lending our support to or withholding it from any proposed political reform. The reading of history is the first duty of citizenship.—Exchange.

Lost Art of Individuality

Nobody wants to be individual all alone these days. Alike as rabbits, we are. Running with the pack. One boss, and millions seek the shears. One skirt slips up to the knees and all the other skirts spring up into place as at a given signal. One woman decides not to bother with all that bleaching her summer tan, and deep ochre powder becomes the rage. Men echo each other in opinions—they've always echoed each other in clothes—women repeat one another in faces. In the type of head (no large heads any more, heads must be small no matter what Nature has done to you), in clothes, and in conduct. We're as standardized as Ford's. And It Would Always Be "Just Like Home"

"Now, my dear," said the young wife, "don't let us quarrel like so many other couples. You know all we have to do is to avoid the first quarrel and then there never can be any."

"Of course," the young husband agreed, "but you stubbornly persist in boarding at a hotel, although you know I can't endure hotel life and want a home of my own."

"We differ on that subject, to be sure; but that is a small matter. Why not compromise?"

"Certainly, if you can suggest a way."

"Nothing is easier. We will board at a hotel, and every evening when you come home I'll complain about the hotel help, just as if they were our own, and no doubt the proprietor will agree to let me discharge one or two occasionally and you can spend the morning at the intelligence offices hunting for new ones, just as if we were keeping house, you know."

Treat Potatoes Before Planting

Solution of Corrosive Sublimite or Formaldehyde Is Effective.

Experiments have shown that potatoes can be treated for disease control in the winter while they are dormant with no delay in germination in the spring, according to C. L. Graves, plant pathologist at the Kansas Agricultural College. Graves, therefore, recommends that seed potatoes be treated as soon as practical.

There have been developed in the past few years two standard treatments for the control of seed borne diseases of the potato. Both are equally efficient in disease control. They are the corrosive sublimite treatment, and the hot formaldehyde treatment.

Corrosive Sublimite Treatment.

Prepare a solution for the corrosive sublimite treatment by mixing thoroughly four ounces of corrosive sublimite in 30 gallons of water. Corrosive sublimite is deadly poison and must be kept away from children and animals. It will not injure the hands. The sublimite solution will corrode metals. Therefore, barrels, wooden tubs, or concrete vats should contain the treatment. Potatoes should not be cut before they are treated. Best results are obtained when they are left in the solution for one and one-half hours, according to the plant pathologist.

The solution should not be used for more than three batches of potatoes, unless the solution is strengthened each time. Corrosive sublimite should be added at the rate of one-half to five-eighths of an ounce to each 30 gallons of water after each treatment.

Hot Formaldehyde Treatment.

For the hot formaldehyde treatment mix two pints of full-strength formaldehyde in 30 gallons of water. Unlike the corrosive sublimite treatment, this solution does not weaken with use, and no addition of formaldehyde need be added after treatment to maintain the original strength. Formaldehyde is also a deadly poison. The solution quickly dries from the surface of the tubers and the treated seed is not poisonous.

The hot formaldehyde treatment requires from three to four minutes in a heated solution 124 to 126 degrees F. Care should be taken that the tubers do not come in contact with the sides and bottom of the treating vat, says Professor Graves.

Not Difficult to Raise Orphan Pigs at Dakota

Raising of the orphan pigs that are often present in large litters is not difficult if care is taken to attend to details, W. R. Hauser, live stock specialist of the South Dakota State college extension service, says. Time spent in raising the orphans will be well paid for in the return from extra pigs matured.

Mr. Hauser has observed that pigs two days old are much easier to handle than the younger ones. A ration of one quart whole cow's milk daily, hand fed at first, with cracked corn, tankage, salt, shorts and green alfalfa hay in self-feeders as soon as the pigs will eat, makes a very good ration.

"Best results can be secured by feeding five to six times daily for the first few weeks, then gradually cutting down to three times daily," Mr. Hauser says. "As soon as the pigs begin to eat grain fairly well, the whole milk can be gradually replaced by skim milk."

"Sunlight in the pens, sufficient exercise and abundance of fresh, clean water, and strict attention to keeping feeding utensils clean and the quarters clean, dry, well bedded and generally sanitary, are important factors in achieving success."

Agricultural Notes

The garden seed catalogue is both cause and remedy for spring fever.

The best seeds that can be bought are cheaper at any price than poor ones.

It is a waste of both labor and property to leave the farm in disorder.

Fall-freshened cows should yield annually from 10 to 15 per cent more milk than those calving in the spring.

For those who can get it handily, dried beet pulp is a good dairy feed, on the order of silage and roots—something to make up for the winter lack of pasture. It's healthful and cows relish it. Soak it before feeding.

"Cows that produce twice as much as the average cows of the United States require only 40 per cent more feed." That statement, made by the United States Department of Agriculture, and based on records of 100,000 cows, is worth thinking about.

Would you buy butter at 40 cents a pound and feed to your hogs? Crazy question! But what's the difference between doing that and using a poor separator that leaves a good deal of your butterfat in the skim milk—the butterfat that you might sell?

school welcomes every one who wishes to come.
This week begins a new six weeks term. There will be only one more six weeks term and then final report will be given. Students are endeavoring to make the last three months the best of the year.
The District Interscholastic League will meet at San Angelo April 20-21. Eldorado counts on sending some winning students to that meet. So far we have participants in declamations, debating, spelling, essay writing, and extemporaneous speaking. The students are showing interest in these contests. Last week several students, especially boys, signed up for declamations.
The Eldorado Boys are turning in their basketball suits and in turn receiving baseball suits. Eldorado heretofore has had a winning baseball team and this year the boys are determined to carry the record on. There is little or no trouble to be encountered from failure to pass in school subjects. Most of the players are good students as well as good athletes.
There is considerable interest being taken in tennis. It might be possible to organize a tennis club.
Members of the Seventh grade are joyfully looking forward to the time when they may graduate from grammar school.
Students are endeavoring to lower the number of tardies next term. A careful survey shows that the same pupils are tardy each morning and that an astonishing number of the tardy live in town.
Tuesday the High School Students received their report cards
There are prizes offered to the best essay writers, spellers, declaimers, speakers, debaters and all those participating in the In-terscholastic League contest. It has been announced that these prizes will be books. A good book is indeed worth striving for and it is an honor to be able to represent Eldorado School at the District Meet.

Last year those who went to the District Meet at San Angelo resolved to have Eldorado better represented this year. Most schools were well represented and accompanied by great numbers of patrons. In order for Eldorado to show up we must not only have good contestants but we must have Eldorado people there to back them. Nothing stirs a contestant into activity more than to look out over an audience and see people from home there "betting on him" and depending on him to win and put the "Home Town" on the map. Therefore, it is the duty of every Eldorado citizen to attend this meet and support the Eldorado contestants. This and this only will prove that Eldorado is on the map and exhibits a strong centralized school spirit.
JOKES.

Speck: "Hot water."
Ed: "Where've ya been for the last two hours?"
Prince: "Over at the soda fountain talking to a girl!"
Ed: "What did she say?"
Prince: "No".
SENIOR RINGS
Twelve Seniors are the proud possessors of beautiful class rings. The rings have arrived. The girl's rings are lighter and of yellow and white gold. The boys rings are of yellow gold and are more durable. Each member is very proud of his ring. The "E" signifies the Eldorado High School which is dear to the hearts of each member. The rings are also symbols of this year's graduating class. Each of the Seniors are proud of the class and glad to be a member of it.
There is only about three more month left for the Seniors to attend E. H. S.

Big Machinery Saves Much Manual Labor

Comparison Is Made From Records in Nebraska.

One of the best reasons why big teams and big machinery are popular is given in the annual report of the farm records that were kept last year under the direction of the Nebraska Agricultural college. Two farms in Dodge county are compared to show that one man made $5.32 profit per acre from his corn while another man, even though he got a higher yield, made only $2.21 per acre.

The first man used four-horse teams and two row implements, while the second planted and cultivated his corn with two-horse teams and one row machinery. The first man had 100 acres in corn, the second only 40. The first got 50 bushels per acre yield while the second got 60 bushels, but the first spent only six hours of his own labor and 25 hours of horse labor per acre while the second man spent 12 hours of man labor and 38 hours of horse labor, per acre.

In making this comparison, the agricultural college men, Mason Yerkes, and A. W. Medlar, who had charge of the farm records work, made it clear that the comparison of how two farmers raise corn may not be a complete comparison of their entire farms' profits, but that so far as the corn crop was concerned the man with the bigger teams is actually making about five times as much net profit in the year. He had 100 acres averaging $5.32 profit per acre, or $532. The other man worked on 40 acres and made but $2.21 per acre, a total of $88.40.

Small Flock of Sheep Found to Be Profitable

The live stock requirements of no corn belt farm are complete without at least a small flock of sheep, preferably breeding ewes. There is no other animal a farmer can own that will make use of as much feed that would otherwise go to waste, and no other man who will mow weeds as cheerfully or as thoroughly as will the sheep. A great many farmers complain that their fences are not arranged for handling sheep, but in the main this excuse is largely imaginary. Of course in order to handle a large flock it is necessary to have good sized pastures, but for the average farmer who operates from 80 to 160 acres, the keeping of from 10 to 15 ewes requires nothing more than the ordinary barn lots, door-yard and orchard fences. Rearing a mighty keen appetite for rose bushes and other shrubbery about the yard, sheep make by far the most profitable and consistent lawn mower imaginable for yards either large or small. Shrubby weeds of course may be protected by wire netting drawn about it, or by movable frames which may be shifted into position when it is desired to "mow" the lawn. The flock may be moved about the place from day to day as desired, and all lots may be cleaned up of noxious weeds that other stock will not eat. When the potato vines begin to die down the flock may be turned into the patch to clean up the careless weed and fox-tail which nearly always spring up after cultivation ceases, thus doing away with the necessity of having to mow and rake the patch before digging the spuds.

Writer's Fine Tribute to Forest Patriarch

I watched some time ago the cutting down of an oak. It was a huge tree, an old patriarch among the trees in the neighborhood, the kind and size of a tree that is regarded with a sort of attachment by friends and strangers. In the lives of those along the road it was a landmark.

It wore its rusty robes with an air of majesty. It possessed a distinguished appearance on account of age, and to look at it was to be aware of something ancient. The Indian stepped with moccasins feet the paths when it was in infancy, and its last years saw the automobile, airplane, the magic things of a modern world.

It went through much in the lease of life; it weathered everything, as an oak should do; but it had to surrender before the assault of a very small but numerous enemy—the leopard moth. It fought as a giant fights—bravely. It lost courageously and gamely, as a man loses when overwhelmed with superior numbers. It battled to the end.

It seems a ruthless act to cut down a tree. It is the taking of life itself. Such a tree enters the very lives of those who dwell in its shadows, and it is a part of their histories. And the more we know of such trees the more are we convinced they have a soul, a personality.—Edwin C. Hobson, in the Boston Globe.

Blighted Trees Should Be Treated in Winter

Blight is a bacterial disease caused by a bacterium growing in the inner bark. It girdles the twigs so that the top has to die and the leaves appear as though scorched with fire. The only remedy is to keep the tree as thrifty as possible but not growing too fast. It is customary to sow oats or barley between the trees in June so as to assist in ripening the apple wood in the fall. This checks the growth of the blight. Some varieties of apples blight more than others.

In the winter time all blighted wood should be cut off and burned and then the trees looked over for cankers. These are places along the trunk and larger limbs where the disease is working. From these places the germs come out next spring to spread to other trees. These may be cut out and sterilized with corrosive sublimate or formaldehyde.

Our pioneers subdued the wilderness, but what with motorcar horns, backfire and blowouts, it doesn't sound so very subdued today.

The value of a kiss in a lawsuit brought by a young lady was fixed by the jury at six cents. At that price, will the supply equal the demand?

Who knows the whereabouts of the old-fashioned physician who was a specialist in that he knew and practiced all branches of the profession?

The bird who first said, "Refuse him five and make an enemy; lend him five and make an ingrate," had been dabbling in international loans.

Find Canoe Belonging to Age of Bronze

A boat, tied to its landing wharf for 3,000 years, has been found buried under six feet of peat in an ancient bog in upper Suabia, according to Dr. Oscar Paret, a Stuttgart archeologist. It is a dugout canoe about fifteen feet long, hollowed out of the trunk of a giant oak. The sides, Doctor Paret says, were shaved down to a surprising thinness. Several paddles were found in it. A number of earthen vessels and bronze objects found in the turf around it date the boat as of the Bronze age, about 1000 B. C., contemporary with the siege of Troy and the reign of Solomon in Jerusalem.

The boat was found at the end of one of three long wharves which ran back to the vicinity of the remains of a number of houses. Apparently there was once a village on the edge of the bog, on solid ground separated from the open water of the lake by a wide, marshy margin, which could be crossed only by these causeways. When the village site was abandoned, the vegetation in the bog and the lake continue to grow until the lake disappeared and the piling up of the dead leaves and stems buried all the works of the ancient men who lived there and used to go fishing in their dugout canoes.

If, with those lower salaries for movie stars that are again talked of, some plainer living and higher thinking could be introduced, another case of what this country needs would be satisfactorily adjusted.

Mrs. B. K. Cheek returned from Austin last week where she was called to the bedside of a sister, Mrs. M. C. Mittle, who died Saturday morning Feb. 25, and was buried at Naruna, Texas. Rich Man's Lot Easier
The rich man today has an easy time of it compared to his brother who lived in ancient times when wealth was wholly in the form of land and houses and flocks, according to J. M. Campbell writing in the New Age Illustrated. "The rich man of a thousand years ago," he says, "was really the slave of his possessions. The more land he owned, the more houses, the more cattle, the more sheep and horses and goats, the more firmly was he tied, and the harder he had to work. But the rich man of today can turn his belongings into income-producing securities and go where he pleases. For a comparatively small sum he can rent a safe deposit box in which his stock certificates and bonds and mortgages will be safer than they would be if he kept them in his own hands."

Tough on Zeke
"Zeke," said the judge to an old offender, who had been convicted of stealing a hog, "you are fined $10."
"Judge," said Zeke, "I'm much obliged to you. I've got dat ten-spot right here in mah left-hand vest pocket."
"Is that so?" continued the judge. "Just dig down in your right-hand vest pocket and see if you can find thirty days."

Pooh!
Marie was very enthusiastic regarding the new minister, and young Willoughby was inclined to be jealous.
"Oh, he is superbly eloquent!" cried Marie. "He can move his hearers to tears."
"That's a poor accomplishment," said Willoughby, sarcastically. "I would scorn proficiency in an art in which every sneeze is my equal and every peeped onion my superior."

Flag for Army Dead
Until recently the American colors were draped about a soldier's coffin regardless of his rank, yet only an officer of the rank of major or higher was entitled to have his cortege preceded by the regimental and national flags. The regulations now prescribe that at all military funerals, without distinction of rank, the colors, when available, shall be displayed and be carried with the casket.

JESUS FEEDS THE MULTITUDE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:31-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am the bread of life; he that cometh to Me shall never hunger, and he that believeth on Me shall never thirst.
PRIMARY TOPIC—An Unusual Meal.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Hungry Crowd Fed.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Meeting Every-Day Needs.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus' Compassion for Human Need.

I. Jesus' Invitation to the Weary Disciples (vv. 31, 32).
The apostles had just returned from an evangelistic tour in Galilee with a report of what they had done and taught. Their ministry occasioned no little stir. Besides, Jesus Himself continued to preach. As a result of their combined ministry, the commotion was so great that there was no opportunity for resting or eating. In such a time of need Jesus invited His disciples to retire from the crowd and rest. In order to do this they departed privately by ship for a desert place. Periods of withdrawal from the crowd in fellowship with the Lord are necessary after evangelistic campaigns. They serve a double purpose.
1. To get the eyes of the ministers off themselves and their work.
2. To prevent despondency for their failures.

II. Jesus Teaching the Ignorant Multitude (vv. 33, 34).
1. Thronged by the people (v. 33).
The wonderful words and works of the Lord and His disciples brought the multitudes to them. To escape the throng they took their departure for a desert place (v. 32). Seeing the Lord and His disciples depart, the people from the surrounding cities anticipated their landing place, and, proceeding thither, welcomed the ship upon its arrival.
2. The Lord moved with compassion (v. 34).

Instead of becoming irritated by the intrusion of the crowd His heart was moved with pity. His personal interests were forgotten as the needs of the shepherdless sheep pressed upon His notice, therefore He began to teach them many things. Jesus is now the same compassionate Savior, touched with the feelings of our infirmities (Heb. 4:15).

III. Jesus Feeding the Hungry Multitude (vv. 35-44).

1. Conference with the disciples (vv. 35-38).
(1) The disciples request that the multitude be sent to the surrounding villages to buy bread (v. 38). According to Matthew, Christ made the proposition that the multitude be fed (Matt. 14:16). (2) Jesus commands them to feed the multitude (v. 37). (3) The disciples' perplexity (v. 37). They began to calculate as to the amount of provisions required. They asked the Lord whether they should go and buy two hundred pennyworth of bread. Their perplexity was due to the fact that they were depending upon their own resources instead of Christ. To be face to face with the humanly impossible has a threefold benefit. (a) It makes us realize our dependence upon Christ; (b) Drives us to Him for help in our need; (c) Leads us to give Him the glory for the results. Though our ability to teach, preach or to give, be meager, when coupled with the Lord's ability, it is equal to any demand.
2. Jesus' method in feeding the multitudes (vv. 39-44).

(1) The Lord's part. This was to issue instructions as to the method of procedure and to create the provision. Though they had but five loaves and two fishes He so increased them that the need of the hungry multitude was met.

(2) The disciples' part. They were to have the people sit down in companies so as to facilitate distribution. They then took that which the Master had blessed and distributed it to the people. The disciples' responsibility was not for the creation of the provision, but for its distribution to the people. (3) The people's part. Their part was not to create, nor distribute, but obediently to sit down and partake of the provision. Even after the bread had been blessed by the Lord and distributed by the disciples, they would have famished with hunger had they not partaken of the food. Unless the people receive Jesus Christ and the salvation which He has provided they shall eternally starve. The Lord has done His part. The disciples are under solemn obligation to do their part and the final responsibility rests upon the people.

Obedience

Obedience is the secret. Not slavish obedience, but sympathetic, loving, eager obedience. May the law of holiness be to me welcome as the light, sweet as the flowers, more to be desired than much fine gold!—W. L. Watkinson.

Bees Need Protection
From Cold in Winter
Bees require protection from cold in winter the same as most animals according to Iowa State college.
For helping bees get through the winter, the minimum requirements of food for a good colony is 60 pounds, and it is better to have more. Only stores of the best quality should be used. As to the bees, the ideal condition would be to have all of them emerge just prior to the last killing frost, so that their full strength will be available for winter heat production and leave sufficient energy to give the colony a good start in the spring. It is best to introduce the queen in late summer.
Two general types of winter protection are used; the indoor or cellar and the outdoor or case. If conditions are satisfactory, cellar wintering of bees is a sound practice. Where bees are to be wintered outside, a windbreak of some kind is very important. For real outdoor protection the case method is essential.

In a Bad Fix
from
INDIGESTION
"I had suffered with indigestion for 6 years," says Mr. H. C. Dove, R. F. D. 4, Chester, S. C. "I had gotten to the place where I could hardly eat a thing—everything hurt me. I had smothering spells and fell off 20 pounds. I was in a bad fix."
"I read of Black-Draught and decided to try it. I do not believe that I would have been living today had it not been for Black-Draught. I had gotten to where I only ate milk and crackers, but after taking Black-Draught I began to eat and gradually got my appetite back. I gained in weight and felt better. I have not had a bad spell of indigestion in ten months."
