SCHOOL TO OPEN MONDAY.

The El Dorado School will open Monday for a nine months term with two additional units over last year, and prospects for two other half units. The State in grading the El Dorado School Papers have made error and have agreed to correct same if it could be shown the error, this can be easily done, at any rate we are opening under a better conditions than last term with a brighter prospect for additional units again this year.

It has been whispered around that the school would not likely run nine months on account of the low State apportionment, but we have always had a nine months term and will have again this year, for we cannot afford to have a shorter term, so get away from the idea of a shorter term than the full nine months.

Come to the opening Monday as it is always an enjoyable occasion.

The Fair Committees have all been appointed, but they can not hold the fair by themselves, it will take the co-operation of all the Schleicher county people to make it a complete success. The Success knows it is the desire of all our people to have a good fair, but what we want to impress most of all is for every fellow to have something to exhibit, that is what it takes to make a good fair, have something to show and help entertain.

Mrs. P. W. Sewell was in from the ranch Tuesday shopping and visiting.

The new McCormick gin was put into operation last week when it ginned four bales of cotton, the new gin works fine and will do excellent work.

The McDonald gin has been rebuilt this year and we presume is ready also.

MOODY HAS SECOND SWEEPING VICTORY, LEAD OVER FERGUSON ABOVE 222,000

Dan Moody again won over the Fergusons with a lead which will exceed 222,000 votes, the radio reports Sunday night gave his lead to exceed this number with 650,000 votes counted. For the second time within thirty days he has won a decided victory.

Pollard leads Aildred by about 10,000 votes.

Hatcher is elected over Ball by a decided majority. The vote in Schleicher county was short about 200 votes over the July primary, but Moody held his own while the Ferguson lost in proportion to the votes cast. Moody received 351 votes while Ferguson received 123. In the local weighers race in predict one at El Dorado, J. T. Green was elected over John H. Rodgers, the vote was Green, 204 and Rodgers 132.

The Rudd box was the banner Moody box of the county, it gave Moody 21 votes and Ferguson 1. Mayer was the banner Ferguson box of the county giving Ferguson 8 and Moody 2, while the Kafer box was more evenly divided, Ma getting 10 and Dan 14.

The election passed off quietly and about like everybody expected, although the Ferguson supporters held true to his cause until the count was made and some expressed themselves as proud of the fact that they had the opportunity of supporting the Governor.

Some of the work the Farmall does

Under average soil conditions the Farmall will plow from 7 to 10 acres a day. Twenty acres a day can be bedded up with two middle breakers and a Farmall. When equipped with mower attachment will cut 20 to 25 acres a day. The Farmall and tractor binder can cut 30 to 35 acres of grain a day. The Farmall does unusually satisfactory work on the belt because the speed of its powerful engine is controlled by a throttle governor. Come in and let us demonstrate this tractor to you.

A Grand Canyon Marvel

Where the Grand Canyon is Grandest

World's Premier Scenic Region Suddenly Produces a New Development of the Greatest Economic Interest to the Entire Nation.

U. S. Senator Cameron

Just Room for the Derrick

By JUDSON C. WELLIVER

THE Grand Canyon of the Colorado River, widely regarded as the world's most imposing natural wonder, has suddenly taken on a new and startling interest.

A few years ago, when it was as inaccessible as the North Pole, John Wesley Powell won fame by making the first trip through it. A little later another adventurer conceived opening a trail from the canyon's rim down to the river, a mile below. It seemed grotesque, but the impossible was accomplished, and its accomplishment has made the canyon's innermost wonders accessible to thousands of tourists each year. They come from all quarters of the world every season in greater numbers to traverse the Bright Angel Trail. That trail is truly a monument to the daring and devotion of its builder. He worked at it for ten years, almost without help or financial backing, at one period spending almost half a year alone in the vast gorge. But today Ralph Cameron, builder of the Bright Angel Trail, occupying a seat in the United States Senate voted to him by the people of Arizona, has his reward.

Greatest Artificial Lake

But the conquest of the canyon had hardly been realized when the engineers discovered a new use for it. At Boulder Canyon, Arizona, the greatest dam in the world, a third of a mile high, should impound a lake which, spreading over a great area in Arizona and Utah, would be, next to Lake Michigan, the largest fresh water body entirely within the United States. Harnessed to mighty turbines, the water, falling hundreds of feet, would produce a power greater than Niagara, and irrigate an area several times that of the Nile Basin, which served for uncounted centuries as granary of the ancient world.

The Boulder Canyon dam has not yet been built, but the people of the Southwest are as confident of its construction as that the Colorado will continue to flow between its giant walls.

Now comes a new chapter in the romance of the Colorado. The intrepid "wildcatters" of the oil industry, scouting for new sources of petroleum, have brought in an oil well right in the canyon! Drilling from a narrow shelf at the gorge's bottom, they have overcome unbelievable obstacles. Perpendicular walls of rock grimly forbade construction of road or trail to transport machinery and supplies. From the river a succession of rock walls rise in gargantuan terraces to a height of 3,000 feet.

The "Great American Desert"

The little Mormon town of Moab, eighteen miles up-stream, is the nearest supply base. But Moab is not a railroad town; a drive of forty miles is still required to reach the Denver & Rio Grande railroad. Salt Lake City is 250 miles away, to the northwest.

Standing at the foot of the derrick which marks the site of the new oil well, one's back is fairly against an 800 foot cliff, which is matched by another immediately across the river. Looking up, one imagines that if he could climb one of these walls he would be "outside." But, trying this, he finds himself on a plateau or terrace, with another cliff a little way ahead. To climb this, in turn, would only bring him face to face with still another cliff, and so on till he had mounted full 3,000 feet from the river.

Not only must this succession of cliffs be mounted, but to traverse the rock terraces, gashed and torn, is only less difficult. And finally, the ascent to the outer rim accomplished, one confronts a waste of ridged, seamed and boulder-strewn desert, endless save for distant mountain peaks. Manifestly, the oil "wildcatters" could not make roads, so they built a flat-bottomed boat and floated down from Moab. It was a daring performance, for the stream twists constantly, unseen rocks and shifting bars add to its difficulties, and the canyon's perpendicular walls threaten instant wreck.

But it was done. Materials were brought, a derrick reared, machinery placed, a camp built and drilling begun. Now, with oil flowing from a depth of 2,035 feet, the Crane Creek well is suddenly the wonder of the whole intermountain country.

A Maze of Difficulties

Just about a year from the beginning of drilling the well began to flow, with every indication that when the drill goes somewhat deeper into the producing sand it will be an important producer. For the present, drilling has been suspended, awaiting provision for taking the oil away. It is doubtful if in all the history of the 600,000 wells that have been drilled in this country, largely in regions difficult of access, any one has ever presented such a category of obstacles as this canyon well in Utah. How the oil will be transported to a refinery is still sheer guess work, but a way will be found, for the ingenuity and resources of the oil engineers have never failed.

The "bringing in" of this well illustrates the difficulty of petroleum development. Convinced that the geological structure was particularly favorable, the projectors determined to gamble $75,000 on drilling. Before they got oil they had spent more than twice that.

For years wells have been drilled in various parts of the state—fully 200 in all—at a cost of probably $5,000,000, and this canyon well is the first real producer! It is only by dint of such persistence in coping with natural obstacles and financial hazards that the country's supply of oil is maintained. The first oil well in Western Pennsylvania became a producer at the depth of 69½ feet. Now days wells a mile deep are not uncommon, and they have gone down as a mile and a half.

Every Well is a Gamble

A large proportion of wells produce nothing whatever and represent total loss. It was recently estimated that in the last twelve and a half years $1,200,000,000 was sunk in wells which were failures. Despite every effort of science, engineering and long experience, and notwithstanding the stupendous depths now reached, 25 per cent of wells last year were dry.

The "wildcatter" is the Columbus of oil. He is to petroleum, to gasoline, to the fuel supply of the country's 20,000,000 automobiles, what the old time gold prospector was to building the empire of the far west. He is essentially a gambler; good loser or good winner. The lure of enormous winnings keeps him tirelessly searching, and sometimes he finds his reward. But in the aggregate, offsetting all winnings against the total cost of this engrossing gamble, it is not improbable that all the oil that has been taken from the soil of this country from the beginning cost more than its producers got for it.

A World in the Big Game

But their huge gamble is the basis on which the whole industry rests. The ice-bound Arctic and the fever festering tropic jungles alike attract the hardy "wildcatter." To them the world owes its newest and best in transport by land, sea and air. They help light its homes and streets, provide an astonishing share of its power, furnish an endless list of necessities which are by-products of petroleum. The "wildcatter" is well nigh the Atlas of this modern mechanized world.

STAR

Running-in-oil

You will find in the new running-in-oil STAR the many features you have always wanted in a windmill—one oiling a year—your choice of Timken Tapered Roller Bearings or "NO-OIL-EM" Bearings—two gears, two pinions and two pitmans—direct center lift to pump rod—crosshead, guides and pitmans bearings flooded with oil—a scientifically designed wheel with angle steel arms and braces and ball-bearing turn table.

The fans of this new Star are curved to give great efficiency in an 8 to 10 mile an hour wind. Plunger pump in crank case floods crosshead, guides and pitman bearings with oil, and tight cover keeps out dirt, rain or snow.

One filling of crank case with oil each year will save many trips up the tower. May be fitted on any tower.

The new STAR is the last word in Windmill construction. Come in and let us show you this mill. You will want to know about it whether you are needing a new mill right now, and we want you to know what a really fine windmill we have in this new Star.

 YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Communion With God.

1. The Divine Command to Possess the Land (vv. 1-6).
 1. The abiding purpose (v. 1).
 They were to go up and possess the land despite the fact that the calf worship had broken the bond between them and their God. God spoke of them as the people whom Moses brought up out of Egypt, not as His own people. They had not shown any true penitence for their awful sin, therefore God could not claim them as His own.

2. Divine aid promised (v. 2).
 Though their sins made it impossible for God to go with them, He still agrees to help them by sending an angel before them to drive out their enemies.

3. The threatened withdrawal of the divine presence (vv. 3, 5).
 God said, "I will not go up in the midst of thee, for thou art a stiff-necked people, lest I consume thee in the way." The presence of God in the midst of a sinning and impenitent people would mean death unto them.
 The mercy of God is often strikingly shown by God's withdrawal from His people.

4. The effect upon the people (vv. 4, 6).
 (1) "When the people heard these evil tidings they mourned."
 They had not understood the seriousness of God's threatened withdrawal. They knew that no angel could make up for the great loss of the personal presence of God. They called it "evil tidings." Surely no tidings are so evil as those which tell of the withdrawal of the divine presence.

(2) They stripped themselves of their ornaments, showing that the articles which indicated gladness and joy could not be consistently worn when God had departed. We must be stripped of all that pertains to self and carnal pleasures if we be clothed with the divine blessing.

11. The Tent of Meeting (vv. 7-11).
 1. It was pitched outside of the camp (v. 7).
 As a token of the severed fellowship, the symbol of God's dwelling place, the tent of meeting was placed without the camp. While this showed the excommunication of His people, it showed also God holding out an opportunity to such individuals as sought the Lord to continue in fellowship with Him.

2. Moses in communion with God (vv. 8-10).
 Because Moses had not transgressed God's law, he still had fellowship with God. The visible sign to the people that God honored Moses was the descent of the "cloudy pillar" as Moses entered the tent of meeting.

3. Moses the friend of God (v. 11).
 This is one of the most beautiful expressions of personal fellowship to be found in all the Bible, if not in all literature. Friendship implies mutual confidence and sympathy, a disposition to share each other's secrets.

4. Joshua at home in the tabernacle (v. 11).
 Joshua was not involved in the rebellion of the people. Because of his fidelity he was privileged to abide in the tent in the divine fellowship.

111. Moses' Prayer (vv. 12-23).
 Moses' mind was somewhat perplexed, therefore he came to the Lord for the solution of his problem. God had said that He would send an angel to carry out His covenant obligation concerning the people in the possession of the land. Moses desired fuller knowledge of this angel so that he might act intelligently with reference to the matter. He asked for three things:

1. Fuller knowledge (vv. 12-14).
 In order to lead the people he needed to know more fully his God.
 God graciously responded to this request by assuring him that His presence would go with him and that He would give him rest.

2. "If thy presence go not with me, carry us not hence" (vv. 15-17).
 Moses was convinced that no substitute could take God's place even though that one be an angel. He argued that it would be better to perish in the wilderness than to attempt to go into Canaan without God.

3. "Show me thy glory" (vv. 18-23).

Manifestly Present
 Never in all the world's history has God been more manifestly present in it than when Jesus died upon the cross. We can all see that now. God was there, if He was ever anywhere in the world of men.

The True Prayer
 The true prayer in time of great trial, care, or sorrow, is, not that we shall be delivered from the experiences, but that we may pass through them unharmed.

Nervous hot flashes

"SOME time ago when in a very nervous, run-down condition," says Mrs. Martha F. Marlow, of Broken Bow, Okla., "I tried numerous remedies to try at least to keep going, but I could not. I was weak and tired—just no good at all. My back ached and I had hot flashes until I was so very nervous I smothered."

"I couldn't sleep and I was never hungry, and I kept getting weaker. I couldn't stand on my feet. This was an unusual condition for me as I had been pretty strong all along. I knew that I would have to do something, and that pretty soon."

"Some friend suggested that I take Cardui, and it certainly was a good suggestion, for after taking one bottle I could tell I was stronger and better. I didn't quit. I kept it up all through the change and did fine. I felt like a different person after I began taking Cardui."

Cardui has helped thousands of suffering women.
