

TEXAS AND TEXANS

By Will H. Mayes

"All Texans for all Texas"

Why Be Down-Hearted

On almost any street corner one can find a group of people talking about "hard times," and "unemployment." Some of the talk is justifiable; most of it is not. Most able-bodied men who are willing to do hard work can find it somewhere in Texas—not always the kind desired, but work of some kind. Far too many idlers are idle from choice; many of them are "left-overs" from the recent political campaigns who, finding themselves without anything political to talk about, are turning to "hard times" and "dry weather" just to make conversation, which is the hardest work some of them care to do. There is really nothing in present conditions about which to worry greatly. There have been occasional droughts in Texas and in other States too, since the beginning of time, but people have managed to survive them. Conditions in three-fourths of the State are fine. Almost everybody is busy. Street corner idlers are the chief croakers. They could find profitable employment in getting ready for fall gardens. But that requires exertion talk does not.

Evidences of Prosperity

Here are a few items gleaned from a single issue of a Texas daily paper showing that Texas is building right along. These do not include one-tenth of the enterprises under way or now being planned, but they are enough to convince any one that hard times have not hit Texas very hard. The Texas-Pacific Railroad is asking for permission to spend $13,000,000 in building 333 miles of road from Big Spring north through West Texas. The same road is spending $3,000,000 for station and terminal facilities at Fort Worth. The Fort Worth and Denver Railway will spend $4,000,000 for new line construction in the Eastern part of the Panhandle. The Santa Fe is rushing completion of its line to the Rio Grande at Presidio. The Texas Tinsmith Chemical Company has begun building a $1,000,000 plant at El Paso. The Magnolia Petroleum Company is completing a $300,000 improvement program at Corsicana. The Panhandle Power and Light Company is erecting a $350,000 power plant at Mobette. The Moody-Seagraves interests are laying gas mains to Huntsville, Elkhart, Grapeland, Crockett, Groveton and Trinity. The Texas Electric Steel Company has just completed a $200,000 factory plant at Houston. The University of Texas has $1,500,000 in building construction under way and will likely spend an additional $1,000,000 for buildings within the next year. A city hospital is being erected at Trinity and plans are under way for a sewerage system. Taylor county is to start on lateral highway construction program to cover the entire county. A seven story Medical Arts building is planned for Tyler. Theatre buildings costing from $100,000 to $150,000 each are to be built at Victoria, Palestine and Sherman. The Nueces County courthouse at Corpus Christi will be improved at a cost of $90,000. Travis county is erecting a $750,000 courthouse. Postoffice buildings in immediate prospects for Texas amount to $7,750,000, and include: Houston, $875,000; Lubbock, $350,000; Wichita Falls, $300,000; Plainview, $52,000; Coleman, $100,000. Port Arthur is constructing storm sewers to cost $117,000. Seawall improvements at that port are to cost $2,500,000. Jefferson county, Beaumont, has evolved bids on a $1,000,000 courthouse. The Galveston county telephone system is being improved at a cost of $400,000. A number of streets at Denison are being topped with asphalt. The Hughes Tool Company is completing a $150,000 plant at Midland. Grapeland is spending $45,000 on its waterworks system. Brownsville is building $150,000 filtration plant. Livingston is spending $100,000 for paving 22 blocks of streets in the downtown section. The cement industry in Texas is showing a steady gain in production and in sales. Mount Pleasant will put down fifty blocks of street paving. Perryton erected 150 new residences during the past year. Work is under way on the Eagle Pass irrigation project to irrigate 90,000 acres of land. Telephone exchanges are being rebuilt at Bastrop and San Benito to take care of increased business. The Uvalde Leader-News in August and without any special effort, received more new subscriptions than ever before in any summer month. Alice reports the biggest Saturday business in the history of the town. "Delicious" apples are being marketed in car lots at Fort Davis at $3.00 a box. Dilly has shipped out over 100 cases of feedstuff, mostly corn, for which 75 cents a bushel was received. Yoakum plans a $150,000 cannery to care for locally grown produce. Parker county has completed shipment of over 1,000 cars of watermelons. This is juts a part of the news of the present progress of Texas. Prosperity is evident everywhere if one looks about for it, but there has never been a time when pessimists could not find something to complain about. You can take your choice of the kind of talking you like to do, of course, but you will feel better if you look for something to boast instead of something to knock. Farmer Beats Low Price An Anderson county farmer made some calculations and found that some home-grown products for which he could have received but $8.80 were worth $20.00 when canned with an ordinary home canning outfit. Luncheon Club Helps The Kiwanis Club at Wellington recently went wholeheartedly into helping the County Home Demonstration Clubs in making a great success of a "Home Products Week." Merchants co-operated by allowing use of their show windows for displays. Bandera Celebrates When Bandera celebrated the 75th anniversary of the town's settlement there were nine of the original settlers present and more than 200 who have lived in the county for more than 50 years. Editor Hunter of the New Era and Pioneer Progress, a foremost Texas historian, gave a sketchy talk about early days around Bandera. Profitable Pullets A Henderson farmer, who grows chickens and markets eggs as a side line, has found that he made a net profit of $528.70 from 370 hens from January 1 to September 1. It is safe to bet he didn't make that much profit on his cotton crop. Thanking Them The Uvalde Leader-News and its employees ran a card in the paper thanking the county and city officials for giving the Leader-News the printing of county and city tax receipts which have heretofore been sent out of town. Wonder how many officials are sending out of their home towns for official printing?

Edward Ratliff and Hayne Graves left Tuesday morning for Lubbock where they will enter Texas Tech. They were accompanied by Jesse Young of Cotulla and Leslie Foley of Junction who will also enter the school. "Uncle" George Caraway of Station

A was a business visitor in the city Tuesday. Taylor Wright of Eldorado and Miss Louise Hinyard of San Angelo made a few days visit in Austin last week while there they attended the wedding of Jim Neal Hinyard.

—And There's Only One Meter for the New Home Comfort Rate—

"Another big advantage of the new Home Comfort rate is that you have only one meter in your home. Regardless of the number of electric appliances you operate, there is only one meter to be read—and all electric service is figured on the same basis; that is, the lighting rate has been lowered to where it is now possible to use electric refrigerating service or heating and cooking service through the one meter. This is important from the standpoint of economy, for it means that everything electrical in your home benefits by the low Additional Service rate.

"For instance, in the average five room house, in a month ordinary lights and small appliances should utilize most of the service billed on the initial and second rates. Then your meter will record all additional use on the low 4c rate—3c where service is also used for heating or cooking.

"There will be no bother of two meter readings or two bills. Everything will be compact, definite and easily understandable.

"I'm thinking of new advantages so rapidly that I can hardly wait from week to week for the opportunity of explaining them to you. I'll be with you again next week, and I'm sure I'll have some interesting facts."

THIRD INSTALLMENT

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Giles Chitttenham, distressed over the suicide of his younger half-brother Rodney, returns to Europe from America, where he had killed himself because a notorious woman, Julie Farrow, threw him over. Giles is introduced to Julie Farrow by his friend Lombard, in Switzerland. He resolves to make her fall in love with him, then throw her over as she threw Rodney. She tells him she has made a bet with her friend "Bim" Lennox that she can drive her car to the top of the St. Bernard Pass and back. Giles challenges her to take him with her and she accepts. They start out in the face of a gathering snowstorm. Chitttenham discovers, to his amazement that the girl beside him in the car appeals to him as no other woman has ever appealed. And something intangible convinces him that her feeling toward him is similar to his own toward her. "Do you believe in love at first sight?" he asks her, as the car toils up the mountain toward the hotel.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Chitttenham's face softened. "I think you're adorable," he answered. For a moment they looked at one another silently, then Julie said in a queer, breathless way: "I can't make you out... I've never met a man like you before. I suppose you're just amusing yourself. I suppose you don't mean a word you say—that you're just flirting." "Is that what you really suppose?" Chitttenham asked. He took her by the shoulders, turning her to him. "Is that what you really suppose?" he asked again. "No... yes... at least—" she was like a girl, confused and shy. "Oh, did you really mean it when you said—when you know what you said... about love at first sight... I mean—you're so strange, and I..." Chitttenham's pulses were throbbing in strange fashion. No woman had ever made him feel as he felt now, and it angered him. Was this the strange fascination of her which had conquered Rodney? Was this what the boy had meant when he said, "Wait till you see her! There's something different—quite different about her to any other woman—" She had told him that she had never cared for any one in all her life, that she was afraid of caring! but now something in her tremulous girlishness and faltering voice gave the lie to those words. Yesterday seemed a real way off—in another world. America and Sadie were wiped out and forgotten, even the memory of Rodney faded until it seemed only like a ghost in the background of the present unregality as Chitttenham drew Julie Farrow into his arms and kissed her unresisting lips. It was late the following day when they reached Montreux. They had to leave her car at the hotel and make the descent with an experienced driver, for the road was deep with snow. The drive down was very silent, and Julie looked utterly happy, and it was in vain that he told himself that it must be only because she had added yet another conquest to her already long list, and that it was nothing what ever to do with him personally. There was a little half smile on her lips, a sweet dreaminess in her eyes. It seemed an eternity ago since yesterday evening when he had first held her in his arms. He wished he could forget the softness of her hair against his face, and the warm pressure of her lips. No woman had ever before stirred his pulses so strangely; no woman's arms about his neck had ever made him feel that the world be well lost if only he could so hold her for ever. But she had only been playing, even as he had! No doubt she would be just as relieved as he was that the little game was finished. For Chitttenham meant it to finish as soon as they reached Montreux. He would never willingly see her again; once he was away from her he would soon forget the clasp of her arms and her kisses. She did not seem to notice his silence, and presently, glanced down at her, he saw that she had fallen asleep. Chitttenham looked at her and longed to gather her close into his arms and kiss her as he had done last night. He looked away from her and longed with a little cold feeling found his heart. Why were such women allowed to be? What right had they to wander through the world bringing trouble and tragedy to every man who crossed their path? The woman who had sent Rodney to his death... Well, he would have paid back part of the debt, if not in full. He would have paid back part of the debt if he caused her one sleepless night, or one tear! Julie slept with her cheek against his arm all the way back to Montreux. When they were close to the town Chitttenham gently roused her. She flushed, meeting his eyes. Her eyes were so happy—he wished she would not look so happy; it made him feel mean—as if he had pretended to give a child a beautiful gift, knowing that when she opened the box she would find only a stone. "I'll look much prettier when you see me again," she said. She squeezed his hand and turned away. "An revoir, till to-night then." Chitttenham went on to meet Lombard at the hotel. It was nearly dinner time when he was dressed, and Lombard tapped at the door. Lombard fidgeted about the room. "So you got snowed up!" he said. "There's something I want to tell you, Chitttenham." "Go ahead. What is it? Have you been getting into a mess while I was up on high?" "No, it's only that I made a silly mistake yesterday about Miss Farrow. Can't think how I did it." Chitttenham looked up sharply. "A mistake! What do you mean?" Lombard flushed, and his eyes grew a little anxious. "I made a damned silly mistake. Quite unintentional, of course. But the fact is... well, she's not the Julie Farrow he was so mad about. It came out last night when I was talking to Miss Lennox. They've got the same name—Julie Farrow both of them—they're cousins, you see, but this one isn't the one Rodney was so mad about—she's in London at this moment—the one here is her cousin." Chitttenham turned, his face flushed his eyes furious. "What in hell are you talking about he demanded thickly. "My dear chap I've just told you. It was a mistake—quite an innocent one on my part naturally. After all, there's no harm done, is there? What difference can it make? Miss Farrow will never know..." "Never know!" Chitttenham flung past him an out-of-the-room. He went downstairs, took his coat from the lobby and went out into the gathering dusk. Not Julie Farrow! not the woman who had driven Rodney to his death! Not Julie Farrow, the woman who had lain in his arms last night; not the woman to whom he had believed and he was paying back a bitter debt—not the cold, calculating adventuress whose kisses and sweet, whispered words he had taken with a covert sneer. "It's possible to be just as happy down on earth as it is on the heights!" She had said that to him, her hand in his, just before they parted; she said that, believing in him, trusting him, loving him! Not knowing anything of Sadie—not knowing that he was a married man! not knowing perhaps any of the tragic happenings which had led up to this, the worst tragedy of all. What would she say when she knew? how could he explain what possible excuse could he find for his actions which would not seem utterly caddish and despicable in her eyes? It was as if some one had torn down a veil that had blinded and deceived him. He remembered a hundred and one little things which should have warned him, told him of his mistake. He knew now that when last night Julie had said she loved him it was the truth also. And there was Sadie... What a sport of the gods! He felt like a man in a dream. He tried to believe that he had only to rub his eyes and he would find that the house before him was back again in South America, that he had never come to Switzerland with Lombard, never met Julie Farrow on the little lake steamer. And then one of the windows leading on to a balcony opened—the sound of voices was wafted down to him through the quiet evening, and a woman's figure was silhouetted against the light. Julie? For a moment the pounding of Chitttenham's heart almost choked him, then with a breath of relief he saw that it was not Julie, but Bim Lennox. Presently he heard her voice—quietly cynical. "I can't see any signs of your Bomco, Julie dear?" Chitttenham drew further back into the shadows as he heard Julie's laugh, and the little confident note in her voice when she answered. "He will come. I am not at all afraid." So he had told Bim as he had been sure she would. Chitttenham gritted his teeth and clenched his hands. He was to be spared nothing. He turned with an effort and went up the steps. He could hear voices from that balcony room and muffled laughter as the maid turned to him to ask his name. He braced himself and went forward. Julie Farrow was there alone. Chitttenham heard the door shut behind him, but he did not move forward. There was a mist before his eyes, blinding him, then he heard Julie laugh nervously. "I believe you are more afraid of me than I am of you" she said. She was very pale—in her white frock she looked almost like a ghost, but she was smiling happily, and when he made no movement towards her she raised herself a little on tiptoe and softly kissed him. "Isn't it the same now we are down on earth again?" she asked with a note of banter in her voice, through it shook a little with emotion. Chitttenham tried to speak, but he could not. He read a shadow of question in her eyes, that changed into vague fear. "Why... is anything the matter?" she asked uncertainly. "Is it the same now we are down on earth?" he asked hoarsely. "You haven't found that last night was just a dream—that we were two dreamers, and that now we are awake?" She laughed at that, shaking her head. "The earth is so much—so very much more real than the mountain tops were, dear," she said softly. She bent her head and lightly brushed his coat sleeve with her cheek. "I told Bim—" she said. "I was so happy, I just had to tell some one... And then as if struck by his silence she looked up swiftly to ask: "You don't mind? you're not angry?" "Angry...?" How could he answer? what could he say? He released her hands, and moved a step from her. "I've something to tell you," he said abruptly. "Tell away then," Chitttenham looked away from her. "It's about last night... last night." "Yes." "And about my brother... Rodney?" "Yes." "You told me you knew him." "Yes. I often met him when he was with my cousin Julie." Chitttenham caught a hard breath, then it was true. "You knew Lombard, too?" Do you know that at first he mistook you for your cousin—the other Julie Farrow?" "Lombard told me that you were the other Julie, that you were the woman Rodney had cared so much about." She met his gaze directly, but unsuspectingly; suddenly she smiled. "Well, what difference does that make? I'm not, and you know it now. She frowned a little in perplexity. "It's not anything to look so tragic about surely, is it?" Chitttenham's eyes wavered, for a moment he hesitated desperately, searching for yet some means of escape, then he told her. "I went up to St. Bernard with you yesterday believing you were the woman my brother had loved. I wanted to pay back some of his debt. I wanted to hurt you as I believed you had hurt him. I wanted to make a fool of you as I knew you had made of him. I thought Fate was playing into my hands when you agreed to take me with you yesterday. I thought I was being damned clever... It seemed so easy to make love to you... you seemed to make it easy for me..." "Giles," Her voice was a wounded cry.

RED CHAIN Egg Mash

PUTS IN THE EGG BASKET

WHAT OTHERS PUT ON PAPER

A fair feeding test of RED CHAIN is the best way to clear up conflicting claims about egg mash... Talk is cheap—and anyone can find nice words in the dictionary. On paper most feeds claim "more eggs at less cost"—but RED CHAIN actually does what others claim to do! Don't buy your egg mash for what it does on paper—buy it for what it puts in the egg basket... Feed RED CHAIN to your own hens and see the difference between claims and results. It is the unequalled quality of RED CHAIN Egg Mash that makes it the cheapest egg producer—regardless of price.

Painful Condition

"WHEN I was just a girl at home," writes Mrs. B.F. Riggan, of Baird, Texas, "I took Cardui for cramping and pains in my side and back, and it helped me at that time. After I was married, I found myself in a weak, run-down condition. I suffered a great deal with my back, which was so weak it hurt me to get up or when I would stand on my feet. I fell off in weight. A friend of mine, seeing how bad I felt, advised me to take Cardui, which I did. By the time I had taken two bottles, I felt stronger and better than I had in a long time."

ELDORADO HIGH SCHOOL

Individual rights under it. You may ask any of your friends a few questions about the constitution and you will be surprised at the lack of accurate information in the answers. For example, what is the minimum age of a president of the United States? Or, how many articles in the constitution? It the Declaration of Independence a part of the constitution? Comparatively few citizens understand the frame work of our government. We should obey it and reverence it, for when we violate the highest law in the land we tread on dangerous grounds—the foundation of liberty and freedom are broken and constitutional guarantees are forgotten under a government which is controlled by the upper classes only.

Our Eagles have a small but fighting team this year. A team like this needs plenty of backing from the school and from the town to put them over. We have only four letter men back this year, as the interscholastic league has ruled five of our letter men out for the football season, because they did not make their grades the last semester of last year. We are hoping that these men will get eligible for other sports in the latter part of the present school year. We want to see every one out on the sid line Saturday giving the Eagles a big hand. The letter men are Albert McGinty, Eli McAngus, Carl Ktrr, and Lefty Smith. The payers are Albert McGinty (Captain), weight 164; Eli McAngus, 145; Albert Martin, 137; Joe H. Moore, 130; Jack Ratliff, 135; Carl Kerr, 147; Hollis McCormick, 148; Lefty Smity, 134; Fred Loogan, 145; Junior Isaacs, 115; Garland Bullion, 115; Walton Lively, 137; James Williamson, 163; Oliver Hardt, 112; Vance Morgan, 100; Hollis Alexander, 95; W. The Probable Line up for the Robert Lee Game is: R. E. Lefty Smith; R. T. Carl Kerr; R. G. Albert Martin; C. Eli McAngus; L. G., Joe H Moore; L. T., Hollis McCormick; L. E. Fred Logan; Q. James Williamson; R. H. Walton Lively; L. H. Junior Isaacs; and F. Albert Williams.

FOOTBALL—UPS AND DOWNS

Every day on the high school sickbed grid iron at the west side of the high school building, Coach Williams for football squad. Those boys arrive on the scene with a pop bang and a paw all eager and restless for the practice. After a grueling fifteen minutes period of calisthenics Coach puts the boys down the field after a twirling mass of pigskin thrown by his red hot aerial attackers who seem very able to heave the oblong ball with plenty of power and steam. The gridsters go down the field t the tune of "Catch Me If You Can", grab the ball out of the air like a professional and lope on with an inexhaustible supply of wind that gang of boys have what it takes to play football.

When the Outlaw team got up enough energy to get together a team of heavyweights those kids stopped them like they had never done anything less except play football.

Those Robert Lee Jack Rabbits are boasting of a good team but the Eldorado boys are equally good and ready to meet them.

LAST YEAR'S GRADUATES OF ELDORADO

The Seniors of 1930, always a live bunch are somewhat scattered this year. Would you like to know where each is now located? Edwin Kent and William McAngus are attending the San Angelo Business College; Fannie Hardt is going to Southwestern University at Georgetown. Garnette Luedeck is to attend University of Texas at Austin. Vera Wade and Bernice Newlin are to leave soon for Sul Ross at Alpine. Elta Mae Luedeck is now Mrs. Tom Redford. Mr. Redford teaches in the Eldorado Grammar School. Alta Stevens is now Mrs. Peyton Cain. She and Mr. Cain are both attending Sul Ross State Teachers College at Alpine. Bill McGilvray is now in Alpine in the football training camp of Sul Ross State Teachers College. J. C. Kinchen is now attending John Brown College at Siloam Springs, Arkansas. Victoria Jones is attending Daniel Baker College in Brownwood. J. C. Bullion is attending the San Angelo Junior College. Elizabeth Bradley is doing stenographic work at the Court House in the County Clerk's office. Loyce Sharp and Ritty Wilson are both at home. Good luck and may the Seniors of '31 do as well!

CIVICS CLASS

Under the tutorage of our new principal, the civics class is making an interesting study out of the subject of Civics. Progress is remarkable and from all indications, every student really enjoys the study. This class is likely to visit court this week.

HOME ECONOMICS

The 24 girls in the Home Economics Class are enjoying it very much. They have been studying the first principles of the subject, which includes the factors that add to their personal appearance, such as manners, conduct, and appropriate dress. They will begin their study of the kind and uses of the different seams next week before beginning their first garment.

SHORTHAND CLASS

Maybe you think some of the High School students haven't found something to win the form of Shorthand. All words are written by sound with an easily formed character for each sound. Combinations of these characters are translated into a word. To an outsider, these queerly formed characters are a maze of nonsense that mean nothing, but to the insider they mean much.

CONSTITUTION WEEK

SEPTEMBER 14-20
This week is set aside for the study of the Constitution of the United States. So much have we heard about the study of and obedience to the constitution that many of the states, including Texas, have made a course in the constitution compulsory before graduation from high school and college. This is an important step, for every citizen should understand the fundamentals therein set forth. The Constitution is the organic frame-work of our government under which laws are enacted by representatives of the people. The Constitution is higher than the laws thus made. If the laws are violated society is injured but if the constitution or its amendments are not obeyed the very foundation of government is endangered. If the fundamental document of American government is not obeyed our is openly violated, as illustrated by the National Prohibition act, then all government is weakened and will eventually crumble. It is time to appeal to all citizens for a more loyal adherence to the constitution and to the laws under it. The average citizen should more thoroughly understand this document and his

THE EAGLES FOOTBALL PROSPECTS

Individual rights under it. You may ask any of your friends a few questions about the constitution and you will be surprised at the lack of accurate information in the answers. For example, what is the minimum age of a president of the United States? Or, how many articles in the constitution? It the Declaration of Independence a part of the constitution? Comparatively few citizens understand the frame work of our government. We should obey it and reverence it, for when we violate the highest law in the land we tread on dangerous grounds—the foundation of liberty and freedom are broken and constitutional guarantees are forgotten under a government which is controlled by the upper classes only.

METHODIST CHURCH NEWS

Rev. L. D. Hardt and family went to Georgetown the first of the week where they carried their daughter, Miss Fannie who enters the Southwestern University.

Supt. J. T. Jarvis was certainly pleased Sunday morning with the increased attendance at the Sunday School, lets make him smile again next Sunday. Mrs. Fay Pointer was elected assistant Sunday School Secretary, to assist Hop Ashmore who "sometimes" fall to come.

We would have no trouble in getting 150 at Sunday School, if all the Methodists were living just right. For instance last Sunday a member of the church came to church, our Sunday School Superintendent met him with his usual salvation and it developed that this good Methodist brother did not know his Sunday School Superintendent. Oh how nice it would be if we could meet each other weekly at Sunday School.

We regret to report that Mr. Whitehead has been absent from his class the past two Sundays on account of illness.

Our next Sunday School lesson is about Jonah. Now we may all be Jonahs to the church, but lets quit like old Jonah did, after he was released from his three days imprisonment in that big fish. Let's get right and play the game fair and make a hand as did Jonah.

Its only a few more weeks until

RECOVERING GOLD FROM OCEAN

northern Michigan mines in her hold. The value of her cargo, at the present price of copper, is above a million dollars. One or two efforts at dredging have brought up some of the copper, so the location of the wreck is precisely known. But nobody was willing to spend the $100,000 or so that it would have taken to equip a salvage expedition to go after the "Chippewa's" copper.

If the Italian engineers who have descended to the wreck of the "Egypt" succeeded in getting the $5,000,000 out of her, there doubtless will be a rush of capital to finance other such expeditions. Under the laws of treasure-trove, property found at the bottom of the sea belongs, in general, to those who find it. Sometimes an insurance company may have a claim against it, if the treasure can be identified, but there is plenty of it lying around under water to which nobody can put forth a valid title.

Off the little harbor of Tobermory, on the coast of Scotland, lies the wreck of the treasure-ship of the Spanish coins and ingots of gold have been washed ashore by storms for more than 300 years. That is a promising field for treasure-hunting.

An English company was formed some twenty years ago to recover the treasure which was being carried around the Peninsula of Jutland, which is Denmark. The ship was wrecked off the Skager-Rack, in comparatively shallow water, but with a shifting, sandy bottom, swept by strong currents and exposed to frequent storms. By means of an apparatus similar to a sand-sucker dredge something like $5,900,000 of gold was recovered from the wreck at an expenditure of less than $1,000,000.

The apparatus used by the Italians working on the "Egypt" is simple but extremely effective. The diver is fully protected against pressure, has sample windows through which to observe what there is to be seen, with a powerful reflector throwing an electric light beam through the water, and has hooks which can be operated from within by means of which a chain or cable can be made fast to anything which could be hauled up. At 400 feet, however, objects only a few feet away are practically invisible.

The "Egypt" was rammed by the French freighter "Seine" on May 20, 1922, in a thick fog. More than 100 passengers and members of the crew were drowned, while 230 were saved. The ship was on the way from London to Bombay. The exact location was, of course, known, and it required only apparatus capable of descending to the depths, to enable the treasure-hunters to reap their reward.

conference, we are to hear a good deal about finances during the next few weeks, lets not wait until some one has to quit work and hunt us up, lets bring our tithes unto his store house on the first day of each week. We are making an effort to pay our other debts why not contribute a bit to the church

The Fourth Quarterly Conference that was to have been held last Sunday night was postponed to a later date.

Rev. Sterling Fisher, our Presiding Elder, preached for us Sunday night in the absence of Rev. L. D. Hardt.

SAYS IT WAS A BIG SURPRISE

Young Business Woman In Charge of Coffee Shop Naylor Hotel San Angelo Praises Argotane

"I have gained wonderfully in health on three bottles of Trgotane and feel like my old self again," said Miss Billy Preston, in charge of the coffee shop Naylor Hotel a few days ago.

"I was in a very much run-down condition" she explained "from stomach disorders and most everything I would eat gave me trouble. My food would sour on my stomach and form gas that made me miserable for hours. My nerves were all on edge so I got little rest at night and when I went to bed I had headaches almost all the time and felt so wretched no-account I hardly had any life or energy left to do anything.

"I heard so many people telling about the good that Argotane had done them that I decided to try it. The way it took hold of my troubles was one hand surprised too and I hardly know how to begin telling of all the benefits I have derived from using it. I am sure that it made a new person out of me. The gas has stopped forming in my stomach, my complexion is clearing up I can eat anything I want without trouble. I sleep well at night and feel well all the time." Genuine Argotane may be bought at Hoover Drug Co. in Eldorado.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By John Joseph Gaines, M. D.

LAND-MARKS OF THE BODY

Of course it is stupid of anybody to speak of having "stomach trouble," unless one knows reasonably well the situation of that organ within the body. If you can, with a finger, locate the lower end of the breast-bone, you are not far from mid-way of the stomach in its long diameter from left to right. Its larger area is to the left; it narrows and drops slightly lower to its termination at the right, where it empties into the first portion of the small bowel. Near this point, beneath the "Short ribs," the gall-bladder is hidden. If you invert a coffee cup two inches to the right of the point of the breast-bone, you will cover the site of gall-stone colic, and the burning distress of hyperacid stomach, and many cases of gastric ulcer or duodenal ulcer. Pain in this locality should have immediate attention.

Gaseous distension of the stomach is likely to bulge the area to the left and just below the point of the breast-bone; I am not going into diagnosis here; I am trying to acquaint you with important localities. This gaseous distension of the stomach is most likely to interfere with the heart-movements, for, approximately two inches to the left of the point of the breast-bone, is the site of the apex-beat of the heart—easily encroached upon by the distended tosmach. You ought to know at once if it is gas making your heart "palpitate."

Roughly speaking, your colon occupies a space beginning at the right "flank;" it ascends to just above the edge of the liver, bends leftward, crosses just below the stomach to a point opposite its first bend; then descends to the left "flank;" like a horse-shoe hanging toe upward. The coils of the small intestine lie within the area described by the colon, communicating with it low in the right flank. Here is the site of the appendix; colics in this region are worth watching closely. If I may digress: a "coloc" anywhere within the abdominal space may, within twenty-four hours descend to the appendiceal region, and mark the site of an abscess. Remember that.
