SILVER

With the decline in the use of silver for money, all over the world, the price of the metal is lower than at any other time in history, measured by the gold standard. The silver dollar, once cherished in the West and South above all forms of currency, has almost passed out of circulation.

Senator Oddie of Nevada, the principal silver-producing state, now proposes the coinage of a silver dollar which would have no special intrinsic value but be a "token" like the half-dollar, quarter-dollar and dime, all of which are worth less as metal than their stamped value.

One good reason for restoring the silver dollar to circulation is the fact that it costs the Government about two cents a year to replace each dollar bill with a new one as the old ones wear out.

COMPETITION

Thomas A. Campbell, Montana, farmer who has been showing the Russian Government how to apply American Agricultural methods, has returned and says that Russia will be a strong competitor in the world's agricultural markets in a few years, but merely because of her size. In other respects we have little to fear from Russia or any other European nation. While they are trying to introduce American manufacturing methods, the people as a whole move too slowly to accomplish as much in a given time as we do.

That is quite natural, when you consider that everybody in America consider that everybody in America is here because he or his ancestors had more than the average of initiative, courage and enterprise common to the people of the land from which they came. The dull, unimaginative plodders were left behind. If there is anything in heredity, we have a decided edge upon all of the people of the Old World.

POPULATION

The village of Whitehall, Owen County, Indiana, a town so small that it hasn't a newspaper, comes into the news again for the first time in ten years. Whitehall is almost the exact center of population of the United States.

The United States is getting settled. In 1790 the center of population was 32 miles east of Baltimore, in 1800, it was 18 miles west of Baltimore. In the course of the next hundred years the population center moved westward at the rate of about 4.88 miles a year.

From the center of population there are just as many people to the north as there are to the south, as many to the West as to the East, as many in any direction as in the opposite direction.

CHRYSLER

A Kansas boy who had a job and $700 in the bank in Oelwein, Iowa, went to an automobile show in Chicago twenty years ago. He wanted to see what the insides of one of those new-fangled machines looked like, how it worked. He could not find out all he wanted to know, so he asked price of one of the cars. It was $5,000. "I'll buy it," he said. He telegraphed back to Oelwein, to his bank to send on his $700 to several friends to endorse his note for $4,300. It was a tribute to his character and reputation that his friends did as he asked them. He bought the Winton car, drove it back to Oelwein and took his young wife for a ride, then proceeded to take the car apart. He took it down and put it together again eight times before he was satisfied that he knew all about automobiles. Then he got himself a job in an automobile factory.

His name was—and is—Walter P. Chrysler, and the tallest building in the world stands at Forty second St. and Lexington Avenue, New York, a monument to his success in designing and building automobiles.

Chrysler knew what he wanted and had the courage to go after it, and

W. T. U. Company Offers Service to Brady

Immediately after flood waters of the Brady creek had inundated the local oil engine plant cutting off all electric service from the City of Brady, the West Texas Utilities Company offered assistance to the Mayor and City Manager of the stricken city.

In both telegrams and long distance telephone calls, officials of the West Texas Utilities Company offered to tie in its transmission lines to the city's distribution system and provide emergency service through the company's substation which is located at that point. This substation supplies power to Romette and the McCulloch County. Cotton Oil Company's plant, neither of which suffered any interruption during the flood.

Brady plant operators, working zealously, preferred to wait and see if they could not get their local plant to function in some manner. The city was without electric service for 33 hours. In the meantime the West Texas Utilities Company had two crews of engineers and men waiting at the company's substation for word from the city to go ahead with the tie-in and assistance with their water pumping plants.

The company received much praise and favorable comment from its offer of assistance, including a letter from the mayor of the city.

WRIGHT'S PARAGRAPHS

One only has to read the water measurements of the Christoval flood to know to what extent the Santa Fe grade dump backed the water up into the town. Some residents in town only liked 4 inches reaching the 1906 heights, while the highwater marks of the main river liked about 4 or 5 feet. Had the flood reached the heights of 1894, with Christovals Main Street dug down like it is, the street would have flowed like a river. The 1882 and 1894 floods were each higher than 1906. The Santa Fe should by all means have larger water gaps through their dump.

Over at Dallas a lady walked into the bank, and tried to borrow $1,000, without security. The president of the institution said he could not make the loan, she then told him it might be better for him to make the loan than to witness the consequences of her intentions, and at the same time, exhibited a small bottle with a colored liquid in it.

An officer appeared on the scene and the lady went to jail, ask the court to give her a long sentence as she was hungry and had been out of work since July.

The Eldorado sportsmen are making duck life miserable around the big lakes, suite a few ducks here now.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means of expressing our thanks and appreciation to the many friends and good citizens of Eldorado, Christoval and San Angelo, who by word or deed, or through telegram, person or flowers, expressed and showed kindness to us, in the search, finding and burial of our beloved son and brother, Earl Calhoun, in the recent tragedy of his drowning. Your kind deeds and sympathy will ever be held in sacred remembrance by us. May God in his mercy be as kind to each of you when such sorrow comes in your pathway, as you were to us.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McWhorter and Family

that is two-thirds of the secret of success.

SIMPLIFICATION

California announces that 112 state bureaus, commissions and departments have been consolidated into eleven. New York recently merged 180 different departments in 18. Maryland has reduced the number of state departments from 85 to 9.

One cause of high taxes is the multiplicity of government bureaus and the difficulty of fixing responsibility for the expenditure of public funds.

No nation has yet found out how to run a government efficiently and economically. We probably come nearer to it, as a whole, than any other great nation.

Eldorado Loses First On Home Field, 6-0

The Ozona high school football team was the first team to cross the goal line of the Eldorado Eagles on the home field last Saturday. The home team has been defending the line very successfully in the first two games played here.

It is always the breaks of the game that decides the score in a close contest and in this game it was really the breaks that won the game for Ozona. The teams were very evenly matched and played on even terms the entire game with the exception of about two minutes after the opening of the third quarter. The Eagles kicked and on a few line plays the ball was brought to midfield, where a long pass was tried and partially blocked by Letty Smith, Eldorado end but after the Ozona receiver caught the ball on the tip end of his fingers and juggling it several times was able to hold on for a completed pass on the five yard line. The score came after two plays at the line.

The rest of the game was played in a maddening way with both teams putting up their best.

The Eldorado line weakened considerably in the last half and easily let the Ozona line smear many plays that would have gone for good gains, had the line held just a few seconds. Williamson was covered throughout the game and was able to make only a few long gains around the ends. Acclivity made several nice plays over the line for substantial gains.

The Eagles will play the Rockspring team here this Saturday and will be a very good game we predict. The Rockspring team defeated the home boys last year and they are going out after revenge in the game Saturday.

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

Troop 18 met at its regular meeting place Friday night. There were four teen scouts present. There would have been others but Mr. Broo's told them that there would not be a meeting on account of the weather. Joe Hearne and Fred chose sides to play several games. We played Steal the Bacon and then Medicine Ball. Fred's side won the best two out of three in both. Then Mr. Brooks gave a general review of the scout laws. There was a Murphy Drill in which J. R. Conner won. The troop was then dismissed by the Scout Oath.

Next Sunday Rev. W. B. Gray will preach at the Methodist Church at Sonora, at the evening service a stereopticon Lecture will be given on the Holy Land.

Range Conditions Getting in Good Shape

In the last three weeks Eldorado and Schleicher County has received over ten inches of rainfall and the grass and winter weeds are coming through the old grass that has been dead for some time. A tour over the county will convince any one of the improvements in the conditions of the range and the stock. The people have a contented smile on their faces while their stock grazes leisurely over the short tender grass and weeds that are beginning to look like a wheat field.

Many of the farmers have already planted their winter grain and have received the benefits of the recent rains. Many acres of this feed is already up and only waiting for a short spell of sunshine and it can be almost seen to grow. The like of sun shine and the continual rains have done little damage to the cotton and in some places have made the sheep footsore but not enough to cause any serious trouble.

Some of the roads in the county are still so muddy that cars can be found in many places almost buried. The old lakes that always show a fime of prosperity in Schleicher are full to the brim and some of them are running over. Many ducks are coming for the hunter to pounce upon when they make their winter home here. This country is next to the gulf in numbers of ducks found. When the lakes are full they can be seen by the thousands flying around all over the country trying to dodge a stray bullet.

ELDORADO HAS FIRST TOUCH OF WINTER

A light norther with light rains gave Eldorado and Schleicher their first announcement that winter would come soon. The wind is not very strong but very cool and with the wet weather, the cold spell could possibly get bad. The blizzard was announced the first of the week to hit here about Tuesday night but was a day late. It was reported to be severe but the worse weather stopped off at Amarillo and other places on the plains. Light rains have been falling almost constantly all the week.

State to Aid Drought Banks

Funds To Be Deposited In Areas Hardest Hit, Hatcher Says

AUSTIN, Oct. 22—Promise of financial backing for hard pressed banks in the drought areas of Texas was seen today in a statement of Gregory Hatcher, state treasurer, that banks in these areas would be given precedence as state depositories, presenting adequate security for the state funds.

Hatcher recalled he had taken similar action in 1925, when conditions were comparable. He said on a trip through the drought section that year he had seen the roads clogged with livestock being driven to market. He declared that the effect, on farmer, of knowing their banks had more funds, would do much toward restoring their morale in the present trying conditions.

WITH OUR EXCHANGES

The Big Lake Wildcat reports that the Santa Fe Depot at Big Lake was prized open and robbed one day last week.

According to the San Saba News J. L. Lacker, of San Saba County has some buggy wheels, that were made in 1868 by the Rev. J. P. Lacker of Basque County, Bois d'arc timber was used in making them. Mr. Lacker should find a good market for these relics by writing Henry Ford.

The Rocksprings Record reports that The Edwards County Fair Association will have a fall Rodio and race meet, November 11, Armistice Day.

Brady, being original, took no part in any finical, nonsensible endurance contests such as tree-sitting, peanut rolling, backwardwalking, and the like—instead, she went out for new records in high water marks. In which endeavor she achieved a success like of which the world in general and Brady in particular (we hope) will never see again. Once was too many, in fact, and three times in eight days was pouring it on—if you get what we mean—Brady Standard.

We guess Brady is about the wettest town in Central Texas. We understand she is soaking wet.

Garner Levels Tariff Fire at Hyde

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—Replying to recent claims by Secretary Hyde of the benefits of the new tariff act to the farmers, Representative Garner, of Texas, the Democratic leader, issued a statement at his office today asserting "that is ridiculous in view of the fact that those farmers are selling their products at the lowest average price in a quarter of a century."

"The farmers are aware," continued Garner's statement, "that these low prices are the direct result of the loss of foreign markets due to the indefensible industrial rates of the Hawley-Smoot tariff. As a mathematician and logician Secretary Hyde is about on a par with the efficiency of the Hoover administration."

Garner also took notice of campaign speeches charging the Democrats with delaying action on the tariff measure and he replied that the assertions were "frank confessions of Republican incompetence and lack of leadership."

The Republicans have majorities of more than 100 in the house and 16 in the senate. Had President Hoover possessed even the fundamental attribute of a party leader he could have put through congress in less than two months a limited revision of the tariff in conformity with his call for the special session and in accord with his party platform."

NOTICE TO MERCHANTS

It has compelled us to call on the advertising merchants of Eldorado to co-operate with us in getting their ads in to the office. The Success is supposed to go into the office early Friday morning but due to the advertisements coming in so late we are unable to get to the office at that time. From now on we will ask you to get your ads in by Wednesday night or they will not appear in that weeks issue. It is to your own benefit that you do this. It will get the advertisements out to your customers earlier for your week end specials and will also be a great help to us in getting our paper out.

Don't forget that next week you will have to have your ad in by Wednesday evening at six o'clock or you will not get it put in that weeks issue.

METHODIST MISSIONARY LADIES TO HAVE REGULAR THANKSGIVING DINNER

The Missionary Ladies of the Methodist Church have announced that they would serve their annual Thanksgiving dinner at the Methodist Church. This dinner has been served by these ladies for several years and has greatly helped them to do work for the church and have always had a large crowd to serve dinner to.

O'HARROW-ISAACS

Monday night Mr. Robert F. Isaacs and Miss Kathryn O'Harrow motored to San Angelo, where they were united in marriage by the Rev. Guy Davis, former pastor of the Eldorado Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the charming daughter of Mr. John F. O'Harrow who ranches 18 miles northeast of Eldorado, and is well known to all here as she has spent all her life in this community.

The groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Will L. Isaacs, who like the bride has resided here and on the ranch 20 miles east of Eldorado all of his life, but at the present time is engaged in business in Eldorado. Here he and his bride will make their home.

The young people are of prominent families and The Success joins the many friends in extending congratulations and wishing for them many happy returns and a useful life in the community.

REV. L. D. HARDT OFF TO CONFERENCE

Rev. L. D. Hardt left early Monday morning for the Annual Conference of the Southern Methodist Church for the West Texas Conference, which is in session at Harlingen.

ONE CHANGE FOR THE BETTER

There are many who believe that any change in manners and customs must be a change for the worse. There are others especially among the young folks, who eagerly welcome any change regardless of its origin or its morals. Everybody realizes that social, economic and normal conditions have changed greatly all over the United States in the period dating from the beginning of the war. Doubtless some of the changes are improvements as certainly some of them seem to the thoughtful as recessions from older standards.

One change, however, seems to us definitely for the better. That is the change in the attitude to each other of city people and country people. Country folks no longer regard all city people as stuck-up snobs, nor do city people think of the folks who live in small towns as uncouth bumpkins. The reason for this is that city and country people today dress alike, have the same standards of schooling, eat the same sort of things, ride in the same kind of cars over the same good roads, see the same movies, hear the same things over the radio, read the same magazines and books, and so are beginning to act alike, for the first time rivalry between rural and urban points of view began.

We believe that is a good thing. We believe we shall never become a completely unified nation until all sectional differences and prejudices have been wiped out. And if that means modifying old standards, then let us modify them.

THIS IS A GREAT COUNTRY

The canning season in the North is over; the fruits and vegetables have been put up for the winter, the cellar windows have been banked up, the green corn is in the silo and the hay in the barn or fodder stack. Apple-picking is about finished. There is still some corn-husking to be done, and then the fall plowing to be finished, but the heavy part of the farm work is over for the year.

In the South the profitable part of the farm year is just beginning. In Florida the celery growers are setting out the plants which they started in their seedbeds during the Summer, while the tomato and pepper crops are just getting under way for Fall and Winter shipment. Strawberries will be ripe around Plant City by New Year's Day, perhaps a little earlier. And the early oranges are just getting to market.

Down in Maine the potatoes have been dug and stored in the pits against shipping time, and the farmers are overhauling their bobsleds and snowplows. In Pasadena they are getting the rose trees into shape for the midwinter Carnival. On both sides of Old Man River the colored cotton-pickers of Mississippi and Louisiana are at the height of their task. Along the upper reaches of the same stream the young folks in Minnesota and Wisconsin are thinking of sharpening their skates for the hockey season.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By John Joseph Gaines, M. D.

THE HUMAN UNIT

"A sound mind in a sound body" is the ideal condition of health. When your physician is called to see you, he views you critically, first, as a whole. Swiftly he scans the person in front of him; he notes position of body, color, expression, movements—or lack of them, utterances—or absence of them; he notes tremors, involuntary expressions in muscles, nerve and bone; his sweep is accomplished in far less time than it takes to tell it—he does it automatically, often does not himself realize the keenness and activity of his own perception in arriving at a conclusion as to what the matter is.

The human as a unit is, indeed, the first and most important consideration. I may say here quite advisedly that, over half the people who demand the service of a physician, are, first of all, "run-down" and tired mentally. In these days worry and apprehension—the eternal watching the clock—makes men sick; it greatly lessens bodily resistance to disease. Timely vacations would cure half of our patients, but, suppose the worker, the man who is working the tread mill hasn't the time or money to take the needed vacation? The mind must keep on and on, tearing down the wholly subservient body!

How futile, it seems to the physician, to prescribe medicines to relieve a condition that only rest, mental and physical, can cure! How helpless is the physician who is called to minister in conditions that he is powerless to relieve!

The purpose of this sketch, then is to urge people to take advantage of every moment of mental and physical calm that presents itself. No one is compelled to belong to a half dozen organizations that consume as many nights each week and destroy rest. Take care of the mind and the body will be a fitter home for it.

DIRIGIBLE'S SAFETY IS QUESTIONED

Disaster To The R-101 Might Have Been Averted Had Helium Gas Been Used

By Caleb Johnson

The tragedy of the British airship "R-101," which caught fire and was destroyed with the loss of 47 lives on October 5, brings to the fore the question whether the dirigible is, after all, any safer than the airplanes.

The answer of the advocates of the dirigible is that, in proportion to the number of each type of aircraft in the air, there have been fewer fatal accidents in dirigibles than in heavier than air flying crafts, and that the demonstrated ability of such airships as the Los Angeles, the Graf Zeppelin and the R-100 to cross oceans safely, even to travel around the world, battling against storms which would certainly have wrecked any airplane, weights the balance in favor of the balloon or lighter-than-air craft.

Just what caused the accident to the R-101 may never be definitely known. All that is certain is that, in a heavy storm over northern France the ship touched the top of a low hill and burst into flames, only seven of her personnel of 53 escaping with their lives, and some of those seriously burned. What caught fire was not the fuel of the airship's motors, for those were of the Diesel type, using heavy oil instead of gasoline. The flames which destroyed the craft were of blazing hydrogen, the gas with which the ship was filled to make it lighter than air.

It seems certain that if the R-101 had been filled with helium instead of hydrogen, the crash probably would have had no fatal results. The ship did not fall from a height, but was driven close to the ground by the weight of a heavy rain, and did not respond to her elevating rudder promptly enough to enable the pilot to avoid a small hill which loomed up in front. But the shock was sufficient apparently to start a leak in the hydrogen bags, escaping hydrogen came in contact with fires or a spark, and the instant intense conflagration followed.

Whether the fact that this was the first airship on which smoking was permitted had anything to do with the fire probably will never be known. On all other hydrogen-filled dirigibles, smoking or even the possession of matches is most strictly prohibited because of the fire danger. In the German navy during the war any member of the crew found to have matches or smoking material on board was summarily executed. On the R-101 a special smoking room had been fitted up for her passengers, which on this trip, the first attempt at a dirigible flight from England to India, included Lord Thomson, the British Minister of War, and one of his chief aides. This was believed to be perfectly safe, and it may have nothing to do with the accident. Observers on the ground who saw the dirigible fly over Beauvais, France, just before the crash, told of seeing flames shooting from the engine exhausts, and it may easily have been from that source that the leaking hydrogen was ignited.

Aeronautical experts are substantially unanimous in the belief that such an accident could not have occurred had the ship used helium instead of hydrogen for lifting power. That was impossible for a British ship, however, for the only known large supply of helium gas is in the United States Government, but its export to other countries is forbidden by law. The Los Angeles, our largest aircraft, is lifted by helium and the same gas will be used for the two new dirigibles being built for our navy at Akron. Helium is only a trifle heavier than hydrogen, but considerably lighter than air.

The trouble with the R-101 apparently was in her design. She was too heavy for her engines, according to engineers who watched her construction. After she was built, it was decided to lengthen her, and a new mid-section 45 feet long was inserted. This was done without increasing her engine power, which did not equal that of the Los Angeles or the Graf Zeppelin. A similar fate befell the American dirigible Shenandoah, a few years ago, after undergoing a similar operation. The Shenandoah was lengthened after being built, and she was caught in a line storm over central Ohio and destroyed with great loss of life.

Another great British dirigible, which was being built in England for the United States Navy, also crashed because of structural defects a few years ago. Indeed, the only lighter-than-air ships of large size which have shown themselves stable and reasonably immune to serious accidents are those which have been built in Germany by the Zeppelin company, or have followed the Zeppelin lines closely. Our own Los Angeles was built by Zeppelin's and was awarded to the United States as one of the trophies of war. Before the war there were many Zeppelin airships running on regular passenger service in northern Europe, and so great is the confidence of the travelling public in them that the news of the disaster to the R-101 did not deter a single one of the 24 passengers who had booked for a week-end trip on the Graf Zeppelin, from returning to Berlin on the dirigible.

The R-101 was far from being a sister ship of the R-100, which recently flew from England to Canada and back safely. She had much more luxurious accommodations for passengers, for one thing, than any previous aircraft.

The passengers could easily have imagined they were on an ocean liner instead of an airship. The upper deck office boy. We did not think that he would ever amount to very much. He did not think so himself. He had none of the vision which we read about. He just kept on keeping on.

Well, the other day I picked up a trade paper, and there was a big photograph of our ex-office boy, and the announcement that he had just been elected president of a rather important company.

As years go on, and the business of the country expands, his company will expand with it, for he will be a careful administrator. And some day his associates will give him a dinner and hail him as a great leader, and his picture will be hung in the Board Room.

Perhaps you have read Mr. Woodward's biography of General Grant. If so, you remember that he stood low in his classes at West Point, and was later discharged from the army. When the Civil War broke out he was such a failure that his letter offering his services to his country was not even answered by the War Department.

The army was full of more brilliant men. Halleck, for instance, knew all about tactics. In any crisis he could tell just what Napoleon would have done. McClellan had a touch of genius. What did Grant have?

He had a superstition. When he started out on anything he hated to turn back. It applied even to small things. If, when he left the house in the mornings, he found he had forgotten something he never retraced his steps. Always he went forward. And when he came to command armies he did the same thing. Doggedly, ploddingly, but inexorably he pushed a-

Farming Increases in Texas

Everybody knows that Texas cities have been making fine growth the last ten years, for the papers in the rival cities have been keeping the figures before their readers, but until census figures were available it was thought that farming was decreasing. The census bureau gives Texas a gain of 30,360 farms since 1925 and 69,974 since 1920, or a growth of 13.8 per cent in ten years. The number has increased from 436,033 to 496,007. The greatest increase has been in a small group of counties on the western border of the South Plains, where there was but little farming five years ago. Cochran county leads with an increase of 403 per cent in the last five years.

How Cities Have Grown

Twelve American cities in the 100,000 class have increased more than 45 per cent since 1920. Of these four are in Texas: Houston, with a growth of 75.3 per cent; Dallas, 72.6 per cent; San Antonio, 67 per cent; Fort Worth, 45.2 per cent. Texas cities in the 50,000 class have made an equally good showing. Where there has been a decrease in urban population in Texas, it has been in the small towns that have made little effort at real growth.

Texas Wealth Shown

Reports of the State Comptroller's Department indicate that the total wealth of Texas is now more than twelve and a half billion dollars. The tremendous growth and financial progress of the State is shown in an annual increase of more than three hundred million dollars for the past eight years. With the impetus of its present vast wealth which will undoubtedly be added in 1933 the enthusiasm of a suitable celebration of a century of progress showing the possibilities of future growth, the next ten years will bring the largest development the State has ever had.

Duval County Sulphur

The Texas Duval Sulphur Company, whose sulphur mines are about 20 miles west of Alice on the Texas-Mexican Railway, has received an order for 240 cars of sulphur to be shipped to different States in this country and to Mexico and Europe. It is stated that even if mining operations are conducted as fast as possible there is enough supply of sulphur in Duval county to last for 25 or 30 years.

Not Finding Times Hard

One of San Antonio's big department stores that uses large advertising space, pays good money to the local papers to tell the people that its business in July was 23 per cent better than in June, and that it increased 19 per cent in August and 20 per cent in September. This store is too busy making times good to be worrying about hard times.

Where Trade Goes

A subscriber to the Bastrop Advertiser who lives "a little nearer Bastrop than to the other towns" says that, although the Advertiser is constantly urging its readers to "read the advertisements and trade at home he also reads Lockhart and Smithville paper and finds that the Lockhart paper carries 32 "big advertisements quoting prices and inviting people to come to their stores," the Smithville paper 28 advertisements of the same kind, and the Bastrop paper only 7. Public roads lead to all these towns. Where should he be expected to trade?

Dilley Doesn't Complain

Dilley is not a big town or shipping center, but it has shipped out 135 cars of corn of 500 to 800 bushels each at an average price of 75 cents a bushel, besides many cars of hedges and maize heads. The country got pretty dry, but copious rains have fallen in time to make a second crop of the sorghum crops and to bring up a grain crop. Sensible diversification will solve farming problems for other places as it is doing at Dilley.

Home Talent Used

The memorial monument to the World War dead of Llano county, erected on the courthouse square and to be unveiled on Armistice day, was designed and executed by Frank Telch, Llano sculptor. It includes a base of native granite boulders in rustic design, on which is mounted a bronze statue of a soldier, a bronze tablet bearing the names of the county's dead. It is to the credit of the Llano Shakespeare Club that a local sculptor was honored with the designing and execution of the work, and that local granite was used.

Hard on the Lawyers

Dexter S. Gillock, vice-president of the Fort Worth Bar Association, told members of the Dallas Junior Bar Association that half of the Dallas lawyers are guilty of malpractice and should be disbarred, alleging that they bring disrespect on the profession. He called them "slysters and ambulance chasers," and said the old lawyers and big firms are as bad as the young ones. But one wonders why a Fort Worth lawyer is picking on Dallas that way.

Fixing Turkey Prices

Although it is reported that the Texas turkey crop will be 10 per cent less than in 1929, the Southwestern Produce Dealer's Association has announced that prices to be paid will be about 10 cents a pound lower than last year. The association fixed grades and prices, dressing season and shipping conditions to suit themselves. If newspaper reports are correct, leaving the growers to accept them or keep their turkeys. It looks to a casual observer like a job has been handed somebody, although the association declared that its purpose is that Texas turkey raisers (?) and produce men will be able to make a fair profit on the industry. Evidently Texas turkey growers are in need of some kind of a marketing organization of their own.

Increasing Onion Area

It is announced that Kerrville will grow Bermuda onions plants on a commercial scale this winter and that 2,000,000 plants are now growing with in four miles of the town. The growers say that soil and climate are favorable to the new industry.

Glass Factory Enlarged

The glass factory at Three Rivers has been closed down for several weeks for extensive improvements. New equipment has been added and the plant remodeled. When it is started again the operatives will work in three shifts to take care of the business. The industry at Three Rivers has been successful from its start several years ago.

Mexico Buys Heavily

The American-made goods shipped through the port at Laredo during September were valued at $2,600,000. This is but one of the many ports through which Mexico imports merchandise and the figures show that, whatever may be our opinion of Mexican prosperity, that country is buying heavily from other nations and especially from the United States.

Edinburg Creamery

Edinburg doesn't depend on citrus fruits alone, nor upon fruits and vegetables, but expects to have a creamery plant in operation by November 1, established through the co-operation of local dairymen with an experienced creamery man from Michigan.

New Ice Factory

Just as some folks are shuddering in anticipation of the coming winter, it is announced that a new ice factory is to be established at Taylor right away, that town already having one ice plant.

Texas Fair Biggest

The Texas State Fair a few years ago was second in size and attendance to that at Minneapolis, but the Dallas News says it is now the "biggest State Fair in the world," and one of the four or five institutions that is doing most for building up Dallas and Texas.

"You Can't Afford to Miss Electric Range Conveniences"

"Hundreds of progressive and enthusiastic housewives have told me about the many electric range advantages, and I feel sure that now we've adopted this new, convenient and more economical system of rates, even more of you will profit by the superiorities of electric cookery, and at the same time lower the average rate for any other additional service used."

"You see, an electric range uses about 125 kilowatt-hours a month, and under the new rate system, practically all of this current would come on the lowest rate."

In the average five-room house, normal use of electric service, without an electric range, water heater or refrigerator, will consume most of the 45 kilowatt-hours of the initial and second rates, after which all service—electric lighting, refrigeration, heating, cooking or any other use, will be figured on the 3c basis, when you use an electric range or water heater—4c when service does not include heating or cooking.

Under the new one-meter rate an electric range will be appreciated more than ever, and is no longer a luxury.

"I have some more important messages for you, so meet me here next week."

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Giles Chitttenham swears to avenge the death of his young half-brother Rodney, driven to suicide by the notorious Julie Farrow who had spurned his love. He will make Julie love him, then throw her aside as she threw Rodney. He meets her in Switzerland, goes with her to the hotel on the St. Bernard Pass, and succeeds in winning her love. To his amazement, he discovers that he has fallen over a woman who is in love with her himself! And he is married, to an American girl with whom he has nothing in common.

Then he discovers that the girl is not the same Julie Farrow who ruined Rodney, but her cousin of the same name. She sorns him when he confesses his love and his ability to marry her. They meet later in London, where she is going the same way that kills. An other man, Lawrence Schofield wants to marry her, in spite of her wild life.

Through his friend Lombard, Giles Chitttenham meets the "other Julie", the notorious woman who had ruined Rodney's life. She tells him that she is going to die; the doctors have given her up as incurable and she is leaving England. She is worried about her cousin, the girl Chitttenham loves. That Julie—his Julie—is going in fast company, among them a common little American girl named Sadie Barrow.

And Sadie Barrow is Giles Chitttenham's wife. He did not know that she was in England. That night he meets her at a party at his mother's house. They pretend to be strangers.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Oh, an old friend by now," Julie declared. "We've known one another quite a week, and love each other dearly." Bim doesn't approve. She says that Sadie is common and bad form, and a wrong influence for her. Did you ever hear such rubbish?

"I should think Miss Lennox is right," Giles answered, then stopped aghast at the admission. His own wife!—And does Miss Barrow share your views on life that you and she are such great friends?

"As a matter of fact, she doesn't," Julie answered. "She's inclined to be morbid, and nobody can accuse me of that."

"Morbidity?"

"Yes, she's got weird ideas on some subjects. For one thing, she's mad on this latest spiritualistic craze."

"Nonsense!"

"You're not very polite. Ask her yourself if you don't believe me. That's why she's in London now—to see Chrysler, the new medium."

"You're not serious?"

"Of course I am! There's a seance tomorrow, and we're all going. You'd better come along too."

Her eyes challenged him. "Or are you afraid that they may read the secrets of your inmost soul?"

"There is only one secret in my soul for any one to read," Chitttenham said. She laughed.

"How touching! The tragedy of your marriage, I suppose."

"No," said Chitttenham. "The tragedy of my love for you. For a moment Julie seemed taken aback. Her lips quivered, and she bit them sharply, then she turned and called to Schofield:

"Lawrence, come here! Mr. Chitttenham is talking to me about his soul, and I'm almost reduced to tears. Giles had forgotten Doris until suddenly she spoke:

"I saw you talking with Julie. Was it she who made you angry?"

"Good heavens, no," Giles answered. "She was talking about spiritualism."

"I am only telling you what people are saying."

"People are too charitable!" Giles said with a sneer, and he thought of the woman whom he had left crouching by the fire in that lonely room.

"I suppose if I allow myself to be identified with this menagerie much longer, they will credit me with a scandal of my own."

"I think they have done that already," Doris said lightly.

He turned and looked at her.

"Really! may I ask what it is?"

"I hardly know the facts myself, but I know it was something to do with Julie Farrow—this Julie Farrow—"

She watched him closely as she spoke. Giles managed to laugh.

"How futile! I never met her in my life till that night at the Faun where I met you."

She looked at him steadily.

"That is not what Lombard insinuates."

In spite of himself Chitttenham changed colour.

"So Lombard is the liar."

Mrs. Ardron floated into the doorway. Giles rose, glad of the interruption.

He wandered through the crowded rooms until he came across Lombard.

"I want to speak to you."

Lombard looked up.

"Well—what is it?"

"Come outside—"

The two men went into the hall.

"What on earth—?" Lombard asked again apprehensively.

Chitttenham told him.

"I understand that you've been talking about things that don't concern you."

"My dear old chap—"

"You know what I mean, Switzerland—"

"I assure you, Chitttenham—"

Giles cut in ruthlessly.

"Don't let me hear any more about it, that's all, or I shall have some thing to say to you that won't be pleasant hearing."

Chitttenham turned on his heel and walked away.

"A new sensation," said Julie. She sat up in bed, letting the letter he had been reading slip down on to the floor.

"It was a lovely morning when I came home," she said flippantly. "The first time I've ever seen the sun rise, by the way—no, not quite the first time—"

There was a little silence. "The first time was in Switzerland," she added defiantly. "On top of an exceeding high mountain, and the devil said unto me—"

Bim turned sharply.

"Julie, for Heaven's sake shut up!"

"Oh, all right," Julie giggled, and leaning over the side of the bed grabbed up the fallen letter from the floor.

"Listen to this!" she commanded. "It's from Mrs. Ardron, the mother of the one and only Giles Chitttenham! She says that she is quite willing for us to hold a seance in her house tomorrow, and bring the famous Chrysler. You'd better come along, Bim."

broken her, body and soul. Until now she had hardly realized how much she had suffered since that evening in Switzerland when Chitttenham had told her the truth.

She was morbidly afraid lest Giles should guess how he had hurt her, and to counteract that fear she sometimes deliberately sought his society, crucifying herself in order to deceive him.

And it had been all in vain, for Bim knew!

With a swift little movement Julie threw aside the bedclothes and caught up a wrap.

"Bim!" She went out of the room and to Bim's door. Julie flung it open. She entered with a little rush and, running across to her friend, dropped down on her knees beside her.

"I didn't mean it, I'm sorry. For get I said it—I'm a beast—a mean beast, but you made me angry."

"Give it up Julie," Bim urged gently. "Come away with me. We've had good times together before, and the country is Heaven now."

She turned round, her arms hanging limply at her sides, her hair ruffled. "I can't!" she said. "I've got to stay and face it out. He'll think I'm afraid—that I'm running away."

She spoke quickly and incoherently, almost as if some power outside herself was forcing the words from her.

"I'd rather die than that that he should think that I'd rather marry Lawrence Schofield."

"My dear, I don't understand in the least what happened between you."

Bim said in her cool, smooth voice. "You would never tell me when I asked you. If I only knew perhaps I could help you better—"

Julie flung her head with a violent jerk.

"He's married," she said defiantly.

Her head went down again on her out flung arms and she began to sob.

Bim sat quite still, her hand on the girl's hair till Julie was quieter, then she tried again.

"Don't be a coward, Julie. Cut it all out and come away with me."

"I should be more of a coward if I did that. He'd know I was afraid."

There was a little silence, then Bim asked:

"Julie, have you seen his wife?"

"Whose wife?"

"Mr. Chitttenham's?"

"Good Lord, no. He told me they were separated, or something, but if they are, I daresay it's his fault. He must be a brute to live with."

Bim got up slowly and walked into Julie's room.

"I suppose it's true?" she submitted hesitatingly.

"What is true?"

"That he is married?"

Julie turned round, her eyes wide, her lips parted.

"I—suppose so," she said slowly, then the colour blazed suddenly in her cheeks. "Do you mean that—you think he just said it—as an excuse—to get rid of me?"

"Well—"

Julie went on with her dressing, but her hands shook badly.

"If I really thought that—" she said.

"Perhaps I ought not to have suggested it," Bim said hurriedly. "But he makes love to you—asks you to marry him—"

"No, he never asked me to marry him," Julie interrupted ruthlessly. "He just said—oh, why need we go all over it again? she asked passionately. "I'm only trying to help you, Julie. If it is true that he is married, why did he make love to you?"

Julie laughed.

"Don't all married men make love to other women?" she asked cynically.

"I shouldn't have thought a man like Mr. Chitttenham would," Bim said. Julie made a little sound of anger.

"I suppose I shall have to tell you all the truth," she said. "It all sounds so silly—like a cheap drama. He thought I was Jewel—I never told you that, did I? He had some quixotic idea of paying me out for what he thought I had done to Rodney—they all blamed Jewel because he killed himself, you know. Well, Giles thought it would be a good idea to make me fall in love with him and then laugh at me as a punishment. Funny, isn't it?"

She submitted quiveringly. "Well, I fell in love with all right—and then after he'd found out his mistake, and that I wasn't Jewel after all, he told me the truth. But first he said that he really loved me—he said that part of it wasn't pretence at all—but the real thing—I remember I was fool enough to think it must be all right then, I was quite ready to fall into his arms again and forgive him—"

Her voice was hoarse with dreary self-scorn. "And then he tried to tell me the rest—that he was married!"

A maid tapped at the door and entered.

"Please, Miss Farrow, will you see Mr. Chitttenham?"

Outstanding features of the new Chevrolet 6-cylinder truck

To every man who buys trucks, there are certain features in the new 1½-ton Chevrolet that recommend it especially for modern hauling.

The rear axle is larger, heavier and more durable. The rear brakes are larger, and all four brakes are completely enclosed. Chevrolet's 50-horsepower valve-in-head six-cylinder engine combines modern performance with unexcelled economy. Dual wheels, along with six truck-type cord tires, are optional equipment at slight extra cost. In addition, the new heavy-duty truck clutch, the 4-speed transmission and the heavier, stronger frame are factors of outstanding importance to the modern truck user.

Come in today and arrange for a demonstration of the new Chevrolet truck!

Bilious, Dizzy, Drowsy Feeling

WHEN I WAS a child, if I did not feel well, or if I had a cold, my mother gave me Black Draught," says Mrs. Orpha Hill, of Wofford, Ky. "When I was married, it became a family medicine in my own home, as it was in my mother's."

I take it for headache and especially for constipation. When I get bilious, my skin gets yellow and I have a very bad taste in my mouth, and a drowsy feeling all during the day. My eyes burn and I get dizzy, or my head is swimming. When I take Black Draught, it seems to drive the impurities out of my system and I feel fine. I am seldom without this reliable remedy."

THE IMPORTANCE OF ENGLISH

Why should English be the subject that every student is required to study? Perhaps you have often thought that the people in command of our educational system are fanatical on the subject or if you agree your reasons for doing so are vague and indefinable. However, there are definite reasons why any student must never cease his study of English if he hopes to attain the ideal of an educated person with the ability to live the fuller life.

First of all, English must be regarded as social in content and social in method of acquirement. The chief function of language is communication. Hence the activities of the English classroom try to provide for actual communication. The pupil speaks to his classmates in the effort to acquaint them with his ideas, or he writes compositions, letters, editorials, summaries, or paraphrases to inform, convince, inspire, or entertain. He must read with the confident expectation of being himself informed, persuaded, inspired, or entertained. The purpose of the English theme is to teach the pupil to interpret and evaluate the artistic products of the past and present in terms of social needs and activities. To attain this end efficiency in the essentials of reading and spelling is necessary, and it is up on this point that most of our English teaching must dwell because so few students learn readily even the fundamental principles upon which a correct use of English depends.

In addition to the social aim and importance of English there is the training for individual enjoyment. This is particularly applicable to a wholesome as well as instructive way of spending leisure time reading. Pupils should learn to read for pleasure and inspiration the novelists, playwrights, and poets who have stood the tests of time. For students to reap the proper benefit those who guide the young reader must carefully and intelligently select the things to be read, paying particular attention to the individual needs and tastes of each pupil. This necessitates a knowledge of books as well as a knowledge of psychology. Reading of the right kind quickens the spirit and broadens the imagination, opens up the potential beauty and significance of life, and develops the habit of weighing and judging human conduct and of turning to books for entertainments, instruction, and inspiration. Could any subject have a vaster field for work? Is there anything more important to the pupil than the power to think and to express himself effectively and clearly in his intercourse with his fellowmen? If there is, that must be in the ability to judge for himself and to see the beauty and significance in the artistic products of his past and of the present.

ELDORADO IS DEFEATED IN CLOSE GAME

Saturday October 18
In the first quarter, the two teams were fighting for the upper hand and a side liner could not tell which team had it because the ball was kept away from both goal lines and there was not many exciting or sensational plays. Albert McGinty made twenty yards one time through the line. End runs gained most in this quarter and punts usually went out of bounds due to the winds.

In the second quarter, both teams seemed to be fighting their best, but both were getting unlucky breaks. Several passes on both sides were broken up and each team made several fumbles.

During the half, the Pep Squad marched out on the field and formed an "E". While there, they gave several yells which seemed to attract so much of the attention of the Ozona Pep Squad that it forgot to give any yells during the half.

In the first part of third quarter, Ozona got a lucky break when they completed a long pass and were dropped on the goal line by several of our players, who failed to do a good job of breaking up the long pass and the Ozona player went to the ground with it. With their superior weight, they bucked it over the first down, but a very cleverly worked fake failed to score the extra point. The rest of the quarter was used by Eldorado playing the defensive and Ozona the offensive.

In the fourth quarter, both teams were fighting hard for a touchdown and several players showed up very well. Brownie Bullion got a number of good tackles. Lefty Smith broke up several dangerous passes, and several others did some mighty fine playing, not to mention the rest of the regular stand bys. We had the ball on about their eleven yard line on the third down when the game ended.

Both teams did fair and square playing and the game was very evenly matched. Total receipts for the game were $90.75.

FOOT BALL STUFF

By "Side" Lyner

The teams who play this scrappy gang of pent up steam find the walk overs don't come so easy.

Seemingly Ozona had a lucky break in the game Saturday. The ball just fell in the ends arms.

Tough luck has followed the boys in Conference games but other wise they've had a successful season so far.

"Fatty" Kyle to be Ozona's yard age gainer. The game seemed to be his with a few others for interferences.

The next game with Rocksprings seems to be a harder one than the one with Ozona. You can't tell. The boys may get the break this time.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS ORGANIZED IN HIGH SCHOOL

Under the leadership of Misses Turney and Meyer the Camp Fire Organization in the Eldorado High School was completed last Friday afternoon. Nearly forty girls have shown interest in becoming members. The meeting will be held each week in the Jury room at the Court House. One group will meet on each Wednesday afternoon and the other on Thursday afternoon. A number of projects will be worked upon by the girls the first of which will be the binding of book for the High School.

ENGLISH II CLASS

The English II class has been having debates the past week. The pupils enjoyed this very much. The subjects for debate were:

1. Children should or should not be taught there is a Santa Claus.
2. Monday should or should not be a holiday instead of Saturday
3. Christmas presents should or should not be given.
4. School should or should not be in at 8:00 o'clock.

These and others were the subjects debated upon.

In the first debate (Children Should not be taught there is a Santa Claus) the Affirmative side won. We hope we will debate again. Especially because Johnnie Alexander said he wished we would debate every day. We will have a quiz Monday over the last two weeks work.

ASSEMBLY, FRIDAY OCT. 17

Last Friday a very interesting program was rendered by a number of the high school girls. Miss Bradshaw had charge of this program.

Elnora Andrews first announced a musical reading accompanied by Lucile Oglesby, Gusta V. Graves, Lucile Oglesby, and Elnora Andrews gave a popular number, "Springtime in the Rockies" on their so called instrument. The chorus was danced by Artie May Woods.

Elnora then gave a solo accompanied by Lucile Oglesby and this was followed by the national dance of Mexico, rendered by Artie May Woods, dressed in Spanish style and accompanied by Lucile Oglesby.

A number of girls then sang a few humorous songs and the program was closed by the audience singing "Jaunita".

E—H—S—

ASSEMBLY

Miss Meyer had charge of the assembly program October 23. Miss Meyer is the Spanish teacher and rendered a program completely in Spanish.

The first number was "The Three Bears". Four students were picked as characters; Golden Locks, and the three Bears. This proved very successful.

Elnora Andrews then sang two songs in Spanish. These songs were "Out Under the Texas Moon" and "Sweethearts on Parade". She was accompanied by Lucile Oglesby on the piano. Elnora, Margaret Sheen, Margaret Bradley and Pauline Kent sang a few selections.

Last on program was "Little Red Ridinghood". This was also an interesting play. This was the first program of this type that has been offered in this school this season and it shows the success of Miss Meyer's faithful work.

NEW BOOKS RECEIVED IN LIBRARY

A number of new books have already been received in the high school library and others are coming in daily. Miss Turney has charge of the Library this year and she is assisted by Hazel Bruton and Grace Ratliff. Some of the new books received already are as follows:

- Bowman—The New World; Mitchell—Hugh Wynne Free Quaker; Doyle—Adventure of Sherlock Holmes; Fox—Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come; Fox—Trail of the Lonesome Pine; Hieston—Providence of the Parsonage; Hough—Covered Wagon; Hough—Fifty four forty for fight; London—Call of the Wild; London—White Fang; Tarkington—Monsieur Beaucaire; Barton—Book Nobody Knows; Hardp—Far from the maddening crowd; Hudson—Green Mansions; Jackson—Ramona; Rice—Mrs. Wiggs of the cabbage Patch; Andrews—His soul goes marching on; Tate—Stone wall Jackson; Galsworthy—Representative Palsy; Weber—One act plays; Crowell—Silver in the Sun; Greer—Best Short Stories; Robertson—Red Heels.

ELDORADO EXES

Every week an article will appear under the title "Eldorado Exes" on some ex-student of the Eldorado High School. The fourth of these appears below.

MRS. IDA NEILL

(Miss Ida Conner
By Mary Williams)

Mrs. Ida Neill began school at Eldorado in the grades, her first teacher being a Mr. Campbell. Mr. J. B. Smita was superintendent of the school at that time. She went two years to her brother Mr. J. E. Conner, while in the grades and graduated from the Eldorado High School at the end of the 1911-1912 term. At this time, Mr. W. W. Wooster was Superintendent and Mr. Joe Jackson was principal and coach.

The class was composed of seven pupils, three of them being boys and four girls.

As a graduating gift Mr. J. E. Conner took her to Virginia, District of Columbia and New York. The next year she went to Sanderson, where her brother was Superintendent of schools and took eleventh grade work. (Eldorado had only ten grades at the time she graduated here.) Mrs. Neill was Valedictorian of The Sanderson graduating class and took the leading role in an allegorical play entitled "Every Student" which was used in lead of the usual graduating exercise. Mrs. Neill has had no experience as a teacher except a few months as governess on ranch.

The first year of the World War she went to Tyler Commercial College and took a course in typing, after which she came home and went to work in the County and District Clerk's office under Mr. W. C. Benton. She also worked for the Benton Abstract and Title Company and the Tax Collector.

She was married in 1920 to Mr. J. L. Neill, who was the County Engineer.

Mrs. Neill continued work at the Court House under Mr. J. F. Isaacs until her husband finished the Highway through Schleicher County.

She is now living in San Angelo, Texas.

THE HI - DIVIDE

day.)
One day as Columbus was walking down Fifteenth Avenue in Madrid, he saw Isabella and Ferdinand coming down in their new Ford. Ferdinand waved to Columbus and Columbus took off his cap, Belle (her real name was Isabella, but they called her Belle for short) said, "Who is that man, Ferdie?" and Ferdie said, "Don't you know who that is? It is that crazy Columbus, who is always pestering me. He thinks the world is round."

So Ferdie stopped the "Tin Lizzie" and Columbus came up.

And Ferdie said, "Belle, this is Columbus; Columbus, this is Belle"

And Columbus bowed to Belle and Belle nodded to Columbus. And Columbus said, "Ferdie, I want a boat."

And Ferdie said, "What do you want with a boat?"

"I want to discover America."

But Ferdie said he wouldn't give him a boat.

Belle said, "Don't be so mean, Ferdie: give him a boat."

But Ferdie said he wouldn't do it. So Belle told him to never mind, but come around tomorrow morning and she would give him a boat. So Columbus went around the next morning and found Belle washing up the dishes, and since it was before prohibition, she gave him a schooner, but as he wasn't an American he didn't drink it, but put it on the water and sailed.

At the end of ten days the man at the mast cried out, "Land! land! land!" three times. It is the way they have in Spain when they are telling the truth.

Then Columbus went downstairs and put on his new suit of clothes and got out his new gauplank and went on shore and saw the Indians.

And Columbus said, "How do you do, Inidans?"

And the Indians said, "Who are you?"

Columbus said, "Don't you know who I am? I'm Columbus."

And the Indians hid their faces in their hands, and said, "We are discovered."

IN THE RACK

By "Maggie" Zine

Ever since we have had magazines in the school for reference work I have been continually in trouble over them. I would get a magazine and read things other than what I was supposed to and go to class without my report. But this year I find it hard to do this for the study-hall teachers are wise to the old trick.

The magazine "Science and Invention," a monthly periodical carrying the latest scientific news and discussing the latest inventions contain several interesting departments on aviation, radio, and chemistry, as well as all-round subjects of other scientific interests, is valuable for all science classes and is twice as interesting to read.

The "Out look and Independent" is a Weekly periodical that enables a person to keep up with the national politics and the World problems. It is used in all history classes and also civics. Study-hall teachers usually know that the student has a definite assignment when they catch a "Freshie" reading the "Outlook and Independent."

FALCON FEATHERS

Eva: "Will water-dogs bite?"
Coach: "No! And they won't bark either!"

Fred: "What is puppy love?"
Lorene: "The beginning of a dog's life."

Cora: "Why do you suppose Adam was created first?"
Hollys: "Oh! perhaps to give him a chance to say something."

Jack: "I wonder if that fat old girl over there is trying to flirt with me?"
Good-man: "I can easily find out by asking her; she's my wife."

SPORT BRIEFS

The baseball season is past and almost forgotten with the exception of the ones that thought that St. Louis could defeat the Athletics. Football is getting the headlines every where now.

The Texas teams have won only one inter-sectional game played this year and that was last week and when Texas University crushed Oklahoma. S. M. U. failed to get a decision over Notre Dame, one of the strongest team in the nation but threw a scare into them that they will probably not get over this season. They were defeated 20-14. Of course we did not see the game but from all sports' stories and radio reports Notre Dame was very lucky to win over the plucky Dallas team. S. M. U. plays Indiana at Dallas next Saturday and we are predicting a win for the Texas team! They will also play the Navy at Baltimore in November and we are guessing that they will take the sailors into camp.

Getting back home and with the home team we are more than satisfied with the showing that the home team has made this year. They have proved that they have been well coached and that they are trying to put in practice what Coach Williamson has taught them. The entire team has been playing splendid football, although some of them are very tight and can not show up as much as the others but they are in there fighting every minute of the play and trying their best to win. A sporty little bunch of players that Eldorado team is this year. They have failed to get the support from the town that they deserve. The town here has always backed the high school teams before but this year the sidelines are very empty and the loud hula balloon that has always spurred the players on is lacking this year. What is the matter? The team deserves it and we feel sure that they will appreciate your presence out at the games and will try their best to give you their best efforts and are going to win several games before the season is over.

They will play Rocksprings here Saturday and will probably have a very tough tussle but we are predicting a win for them and would like to see many on the sidelines.

SAN ANGELO CONTRACTOR IS GLAD IT CAME

Argotane Beats Any Medicine He Ever Saw For Trouble Like His Says, Dickson

"I'm certainly glad Argotane came my way," said W. D. Dickson, a well known building contractor residing at 709 Spaulding St., San Angelo, Texas in an interview.

"My health has been broken for the past several months," continued Mr. Dickson. "My stomach was all upset, my food would sour and I would bloat up after eating and have awful pains in my stomach. I would get so nervous it was almost impossible for me to get a full night's rest. I was in miserable shape and got to where I had to quit work for a day or two at a time."

"I began to pick up in just a day or so after I began taking Argotane and I have been gradually improving ever since. My stomach feels stronger and I can eat and digest many things now I couldn't eat before without suffering afterwards. I'm not constipated like I was, my headaches are broken up and my appetite is enormous. My nervousness has disappeared. My general health has greatly improved and I'm getting better right along. I have suffered a long time and have tried many different kinds of medicines but Argotane beats them all. I could never get the right relief until I began taking it, therefore I have the best there is."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Eldorado at the L. M. Hoover Drug Store.
