C. C. To Offer Academic Classes At Pampa

Clarendon College, the oldest college in the Texas Panhandle, has always maintained the attitude that its purpose for existence was to serve the people of the Texas Panhandle in education to the fullest.

In following this tradition, Clarendon College has announced the offering of academic courses to be taught in Pampa this fall. The courses will be taught at night at Pampa High School on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7-10 p.m.

Clarendon College realizes that there are many citizens in Pampa that wish to either continue or start work on a college degree. Also, realizing that many must work full-time during the day in order to support their families or themselves and cannot attend day classes, Clarendon College comes to Pampa with the evening classes with hopes that these people will now be able to receive the additional education that they desire or need.

Lloyd Waters, Public Information Officer at Clarendon College, stated that with the high cost of commuting to area colleges to attend evening classes has caused a burden on many students and has caused several to discontinue their pursuit of a college degree. Students may continue now by taking required freshman and sophomore level courses in Pampa.

All courses offered will be for three credit hours and are required courses for anyone seeking any degree and also for those seeking degrees in Police Science and Law Enforcement.

Clarendon College has also recently entered into agreement with the Pampa College of Hairdressing to offer cosmetology to area residents through Clarendon College. Clarendon College also has a School of Cosmetology located on the campus at Clarendon.

Registration for the academic courses to be taught at Pampa High School will be held from 6-7 p.m. on the first night of class. Tuesday night classes will register and start instruction on September 10. Thursday night classes will enroll and start on September 12. For additional information, contact the Office of Public Information, Clarendon College. 806-874-3571.

AC Has High Level Of Job Placement

Information released from the Student Financial Aid-Job Placement Office at Amarillo College reveals that 46 percent more job referrals are open to more AC students than the previous year.

The report, prepared by Larry Patterson, financial aid director, shows that 889 students had registered with the office between July 1, 1973 and June 30, 1974. "This is a 13.1 percent increase over the same period last year," said Patterson.

The largest number of job referrals made during the 12-month period was 511 in August, 1973, said Patterson.

The report represents students in the School of Vocational Arts, School of Biomedical Arts and Sciences, School of Technology, and College of Arts and Sciences. Also included in the report is a breakdown of registered students by their college major.

Patterson attributes the primary reason for high placement activity to industrial, commercial and population growth. He also includes low percentage of national and local unemployment, positive community enthusiasm, and up-to-date referral and communication techniques.

Mrs. Annie Reeves has returned home after a weeks visit with her son and family the Joe Reeves at Abernathy. While there she accompanied them to San Angelo where they took her granddaughter to enter college.

SMOKE AND FIRE

People say, "Where there is smoke, there is bound to be some sin." What they mean by "smoke" is unfavorable talk. What they mean by "fire" is sin--immoral deed. So, according to the old saying, "Where there is unfavorable talk, there is bound to be sin."

The saying is true--without an exception it is true! But now it is a difficulty: When arises a cloud of smoke, it is now so easy to find the fire. When there is unfavorable talk, it is often difficult to locate the sin. The sin may be in the person concerning whom the unfavorable talk is given, or the sin may be in the tongue of the talker.

When smoke arose over Judas, the fire was in Judas--in an act of treason and treachery. When smoke arose over Ananias and Sapphira, the fire had been located in their deception. When the cloud of smoke arose over the head of Satan, the fire was in Satan himself--the father of fire (sin).

When smoke arose over Joseph, the fire was not in that young man, but in a wicked woman. When smoke arose over John, the fire was not in John, but in Diotrephes who "with bad words" prattled about the beloved disciple. When the cloud of smoke arose and hovered over the head of Jesus, no fire was found in him, but in the envious hypocrite who hounded Him.

The old saying is true--absolutely true! "Where there is smoke there is bound to be some fire!" But a question of importance is, "Where is the fire?" Is the fire in the person over whom the smoke hovers, or is it in the tongue of the person who creates the smoke? Is the sin in the person accused, or is it in the person who accuses? When arises a cloud of smoke, let us not jump to a conclusion! Let us find the fire! We may be surpris-der carefully and prayerfully this biblical passage: "Behold how much wood is kindled by how small a fire! And the fire is a fire: the world of iniquity among our members is a tongue, which defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the wheel of nature, and is set on fire by hell." (James 3:5-6)

 TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Hopes for a no-new-taxes session of the legislature soared with surprise predictions of a $910.4 million general revenue surplus at end of the fiscal year next August.

Lawmakers, according to Legislative Budget Board estimates, actually will have $1.5 billion for "extras" over and above.

Maintaining programs at present levels, giving state employees a 23.8 per cent pay raise, adding $800 million to the foundation school program, allocating $393.8 million for emergency measures and allowing for possible loss of $124 million in federal revenue sharing funds.

LBB staff members reported sales tax revenue, spurred by inflation, soared 20.3 per cent during fiscal 1974. Normal growth rate is 9.6 per cent.

The energy crisis also boomed oil and gas production taxes. The oil tax income jumped 65.7 per cent, and the natural gas tax 38.8 per cent. These taxes normally are expected to increase 1.1 per cent and 7.3 per cent annually.

Indications are the legislature, without raising taxes, can expand state aid to local school districts and many other state services.

Full impact of inflation on state operations cannot be measured precisely, however.

The forecast prompted Sen. Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells, to announce he will introduce legislation to reduce the state sales tax from four per cent to three per cent.

SCHOOL AID PROVIDED—Gov. Dolph Briscoe announced a plan for advance payments of foundation school funds to districts this month to ease financial strain.

Legislative Budget Board went along with the plan which usually is paid in 10 monthly installments. This goes along with regular payment of a tenth of 1974-75 salary and transportation allocations.

State payments to schools in September thus goes up from $81 million to $154 million.

"This early payment ... will allow the school districts to proceed in an orderly manner without having to resort so heavily to short-term borrowing in anticipation of later receipt of state and local revenues," Briscoe said. "This, of course, will save the schools the interest costs they would otherwise be forced to pay and will alleviate some of

MORE MED SCHOOLS "UNNEEDED" — A preliminary report of a Texas College and University Coordinating Board advisory committee found no immediate need for additional medical and dental schools.

The tentative report concluded Texas will have "sufficient medical manpower for the decade ahead" with anticipated expansion of present schools and foreseeable trends.

Final action is scheduled October 16 by the committee. One recommendation will call for financial aid to medical students who agree to practice in rural areas.

AG OPINIONS — State employees must be paid for overtime work or given compensatory time in the same pay period, Atty. Gen. John Hill held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

- A car owned by a dealer and used for his personal purposes is subject to the sales and use tax even though it still has temporary carboard tags.

- Election petitions under the fire and police employee relations action must be signed by five per cent of qualified voters who voted in the last general election in a political subdivision, or 20,000.

- List of bidders on laboratory chemicals sold to the state must be released on demand.

- There is no statutory authority for a county official to take a leave of absence without pay to work for the state.

- A commissioners court has limited powers to regulate utility rates, building or house codes, door-to-door salesmen or home builder bonding.

- Notice of public meetings should be posted three days in advance in a place generally accessible to the public.

CONVENTION DATE SET — The federal circuit court of appeals in New Orleans upheld a district court order that the State Democratic Convention can go on September 17.

Jewish delegates filed suit to delay the convention because the date conflicts with that of Rosh Hashana, a high Jewish holy day.

The court noted the convention date is set by state law, and ruled there was no effort to discriminate against

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Curfew

Curfew laws, designed to keep youngsters off the streets at night, have been around for almost 100 years. But only recently have the courts been taking a close look at their validity. Does a city have the legal authority to put limits on anybody's freedom of movement?

The basic idea has generally been approved. One youth, arrested under a curfew law, challenged it as a form of discrimination against younger people. But the court pointed out that minors are lawfully singled out with regard to everything from marrying to driving, from attending school to buying liquor.

Upholding the law, the court said:

"Children are under recognize-disabilities in many respects. Because of their lack of mature judgment, they are subject to continuing supervision until they become of age."

Nevertheless, a curfew law may be struck down if it is too broad.
 Another case involved a curfew that banned all minors from the streets after 10 p.m., with almosno leeway for exceptional circumstances.

In a court test, the judge noted that this law could punish youngsters coming home from evening classes, from work at the library, from school games or dances,
 even from church activities.

Finding the law invalid, the court said it violated "the right of every person to enjoy and engage in lawful and innocent activity."

In one recent case, police booked the father of a 16-year-old boy for "allowing" him to be out after the curfew hour.

The court conceded that it was constitutional to punish the parent in such a situation. However, it seems the father had been told—and had honestly believed—that his son was spending the night at the home of a friend. Dismissing the charge against the father, the court said he could not have "allowed" conduct of which he was not even aware.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

A recent outbreak of ornithosis among turkeys in central Texas has stimulated a thorough investigation into the source of the disease which can affect humans.

The disease--also known as psittacosis and parrot fever--is worldwide in occurrence and is an occupational hazard of persons associated with pet shops, aviaries, pigeon lofts, poultry farms, and poultry processing and rendering plants, according to the Bureau of Veterinary Public Health of the State Health Department.

In humans it produces a pneumonia-like illness which may include fever, headache and cough. Human infection may be fatal but most often are mild in character if diagnosed and treated promptly. Those at high risk should be aware of the possibility of infection.

The visible signs of ornithosis are similar to other poultry diseases, and a positive diagnosis can be made only by laboratory tests.

Apparently healthy birds can transmit the disease.

Human infection is acquired usually by inhalation of the organism. It may be from the dust of dried droppings of infected birds in an enclosed space. Dust lingering in feathers also can be a source. The greatest incidence of infection among workers in past outbreaks occurred in the killing, picking, and eviscerating operations, where the organisms are concentrated in the air. Exposure apparently has occurred also through direct contact with infected birds. Transmission from man to man is rare, say health authorities.

The incubation time following exposure may range from four to 15 days, says the American Public Health Association's booklet, "Control of Communicable Diseases in Man". It says that diseased birds may shed the agent intermittently throughout the infection period and sometimes continuously for weeks or months.

As far as is known, ornithosis has not occurred through household use of a poultry product which has been inspected for wholesomeness.

Texas housewives and restaurant operators can take heart in this, State Health Department officials say there is little possibility of a consumer contracting ornithosis while preparing a turkey or other fowl. Cooking temperatures destroy the organism.

Every effort is being made to protect plant workers and the public from contact with infected birds. This is accomplished primarily by flock inspections and quarantine and treatment of flocks of birds in which ornithosis is found.

A task force was set up following the illness of federal employees who were inspectors in processing plants. The US Department of Agriculture initiated the task force at Texas A&M University, and it came up with recommendations which became effective July 29.

Under the guidelines, poultry flocks must be certified as free from disease before they are shipped to slaughter. Within 10 days of the proposed shipment of a flock for slaughter, a veterinarian inspector makes a visual inspection of the flock and also takes 10 selected blood samples. The blood samples are sent to the laboratory at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine for evaluation. If blood samples are negative, the flock is certified for shipment. If a blood sample proves to be positive, the flock is quarantined and put on an antibiotic-administered in feed for 21 days. At termination of the treatment period, the birds can be moved to slaughter immediately.

The task force established by the USDA and Texas A&M University continued to work in close co-operation with the Texas Animal Health Commission, the US Public Health Service, and, of course, your State Health Department. Their efforts are aimed at learning and applying the best methods for controlling ornithosis.

TURKEY pictured above will normally be found along creeks and rivers where cover and food are abundant. Fencing areas such as this will maintain sufficient cover by protecting from grazing.

Wildlife Is A Crop Of The Land!

Wildlife is a crop of the land. Therefore, land management decisions affect wildlife populations in the county, states Rodney Hyatt, Soil Conservationist.

Shelter, food and water are a must for the survival of wildlife species. This gives man an opportunity and challenge for maintaining or improving habitat for wildlife, reports Hyatt.

Light discing to encourage weed growth is extremely good for providing food for wildlife birds, Joe Franklin, local rancher, has had good success with this practice.

Several species of wildlife in Gray County are considered game animals. Regulatory hunting seasons and bag limits are established to aid in preservation of these animals.

Sportsmen can help preserve wildlife through obedience to game laws. Landowners can become more familiar with wildlife needs on his farm or ranch, and plan steps for maintenance or improvement of habitat requirements.

Since landowners are primarily responsible for abundant wildlife, lets not abuse their graciousness. Always obtain permission before hunting on privately owned property.
