McLean School Board Approves Preliminary Budget Monday

The McLean School Board of Trustees met Monday night to award bids on supplies, discuss the 1983-84 preliminary budget, and hire personnel.

A band director, a coach, and an aide were hired during the regular session in the board room of the administration building of the school. Charles Turner, 37, was approved as the band director. He is from Tulsa, is married and has two children, and has about 12 years teaching experience. He has a Master's Degree from Southwestern Oklahoma State University in Weatherford. His contract calls for state scale plus $2,000.

The board approved the hiring of Jack Routt of Dallas to replace Coach Frank Purcell, who died last week. Routt, who has had 25 years teaching experience, will teach elementary physical education, junior high and high school girls' basketball, and a class of Spanish.

Mrs. Marie Baker was hired for 4/7 of a day as a library aide.

The board accepted bids from Kelly Milk, Mead's Bread, Utility Oil of Pampa, and Orkin Pest Control. Kelly had the low bid with .1628 cents for 1/2 pint of homogenized milk. The only other bidder was Borden's, which bid .1665 for a 1/2 pint of homogenized milk.

Meads bid 57 cents for 1 1/2 lb. loaf of white bread, as opposed to 70 cents bid for the same bread from Wonder.

Utility Oil of Pampa bid 88.5 cents per gallon for regular gasoline, as opposed to $1.02 bid by Nash Wholesale.

Orkin bid $1274 for a year's service pest control. The other bidders were B.J.'s of Amarillo with $2460 bid and MacLish Termite Control with a bid of $1560.

The board approved

The American National Bank in McLean as the school's depository for 1983-1985. The other bidder was First National Bank in Pampa.

The board approved a preliminary draft of the budget for the 1983-84 school year. "We've had a hard time estimating revenues because we still don't know values for the district," superintendent Jim Rutherford told the board. The property values on which the tax rate will be based is determined now by the Gray County Appraisal office.

Initial revenues projected include $640,000 from local maintenance tax. The 1982-83 revenue from local maintenance tax was $682,000. Projected local revenues was down $42,000.

Revenue from the state of Texas is up about $38,000 due to a change in the funding formula, according to Shirley Johnson, business manager. MISD will receive $212,030 from the state for salary and operation. Total revenues are projected at $1,087,083.

Expenditures for the 1983-84 year include about $381,812 for teachers' salaries. Other large expenses include more than $50,000 for utilities.

The board set Aug. 29 at 7 p.m. for the public hearing on the proposed budget.

In other action, the board approved a price scale for the school cafeteria. For breakfast, students in grades K-12 will pay 50 cents. Adults (faculty) will pay 65 cents.

For lunch children in grades K-5 will pay 75 cents. Students in grades 6-12 will pay $1. Faculty members will pay $1.35.

The board approved the hiring of five bus drivers: Joe Billingsley, Marty McClintock, Frank Sparlin, Tom Adamson, and Margaret Milam.

The board approved a policy allowing kindergarten through third grade children to wear shorts to school from the beginning of the school year until Oct. 1. Principal Dorman Thomas said that he thought the extremely hot weather called for a change in the policy.

Board member John Holland presented a packet of materials from TANE (Texas Alcohol and Narcotics Education). Holland said the material dealt with substance abuse, and contained a curriculum guide for presenting the material.

Rutherford said that school children are presented the material on alcohol and drug abuse in health, home ec, and science classes from kindergarten through high school.

Attending the meeting were board members Tommy Cole, Joe Magee, Tony Smitherman, John Holland, Darryl Herndon, and Lloyd Hunt; principals Ron Cummings and Dorman Thomas; superintendent Jim Rutherford; business manager Shirley Johnson and Linda Haynes.

I-40 Traffic To Be Rerouted

Traffic on Interstate 40 will be rerouted beginning Monday, according to supervising engineer Jerry Raines of the Texas Highway Department.

The change will occur from the east edge of McLean to the Gray/Wheeler county line. East-bound traffic will be moved to the south frontage roads and west bound traffic will be moved to the north frontage roads.

Raines said that local people should be aware of the change, since the frontage roads had carried two-way traffic in the past. The frontage roads involved will be one-way until construction is completed.

The McLean Tigers started two-a-day workouts Monday morning, with 37 players and four coaches at the first session. Head coach Joe Riley, and returning coach Jerry Don Cook are working with two new coaches, Jack Brewster and Jack Routt.

Cubs Should Contact Coach For Physicals

All boys who are interested in playing junior high football should contact Coach Joe Riley for physical forms. Riley said that boys in the sixth, seventh, and eighth grade will be eligible for the team.

Physical forms need to be completed as soon as possible.

We have received some addresses from exes who would like to be included in our Exes Directory. If you graduated from McLean High School, or attended school here, or simply lived in the town for a time, and would like to get in contact with old friends, send us your name and address and we will include you in the directory.

I'm not sure how long we will run each name and address, but we will include it in the paper for at least a few weeks.

Some of McLean's problems seem to be perennial, like weeds that come back year after year. One of those problems is loose dogs roaming the streets.

Although McLean has a city ordinance against dogs running around the streets, the City has no official law officer, or place to keep stray dogs, so the problem grows each day.

On my morning walk Monday morning, I encountered four very large, potentially dangerous dogs, which were roaming the streets. Only one of the four had on a collar, and even that one had no vaccination tags.

I have never understood why anyone would have a large dog in town anyway, but I certainly don't understand those who do not keep their dogs fenced. A small dog running loose can be a nuisance, but a large dog running the streets can be a real danger.

I noticed on my walk that numerous trash barrels in the alleys had been overturned by the roving animals. One large Labrador-looking black dog lunged past me to chase a pickup, and I was scared to death.

What will happen next week when our little ones begin walking to school? Will we wait for a child to be mauled by one of these large dogs before we take some sort of action?

I hope the owners of these animals will accept their responsibility and keep the animals off the street. I've heard the owners of large dogs say "Old Rover here is big, but he wouldn't hurt a soul."

I think that's a rationalization that is just not true. Any dog, large or small, can become vicious and dangerous, or if he is in a pack with several other dogs.

I wish we could find an answer to this problem.

from the distaff side

Even if we can't afford a long-lasting solution (like building and maintaining a dog pound), we need to find some stop-gap answer for this potentially dangerous situation.

Thou Shalt Return

Ben Ezzell

The Canadian Record

Borrowers of books, many of them at least, are notorious among book-lovers for failing to return borrowed volumes. Book-lovers, those who buy books, read books, cherish books, and because of their own appreciation for books are loathe not to lend them, still do so with a sinking feeling that the borrowed volume may never return. All too often, the foreboding is well-founded.

There are two distinct classes of people... those who truly appreciate good books, and those who wouldn't touch one with a fork. In between there is a great middle class, made up of those people who are as casual about borrowing books as they are about reading them, and having no great depth of appreciation for the volume, apparently feel no great compulsion to return it to its owner.

Books lent to people of this middle class are apt to fall into a great informal and unorganized circulating library, passing from borrower to borrower without ever again finding a truly appreciative home. The only comfort to the book-loving owner is that his wandering volume may at least be finding readers, a realization to be greeted with a mixture of pleasure and despair.

Charles Lamb, the great English essayist, put it most aptly when he saluted "your borrowers of books... those mutilators of collections, spoilers of the symmetry and shelves, and creators of odd volumes."

Un-returned books are not only the despair of book lovers, but the bane of public libraries whose curators must be constantly on guard against the disappearance of their stock in trade. Now, however, comes news that libraries are fighting back.

At Perryton recently the Perry Memorial Library made headlines in the newspaper, and attracted appreciative attention from librarians everywhere, by taking a defaulting borrower to court; and, with the aid of the County Attorney, the case is set for trial. The charge is a misdemeanor, the value of the books and the accumulated and unpaid $30.69 in fines totalling less than $200. The Perryton Library has also brought felony charges against a woman now living out of state for theft of more than $200 worth of books borrowed from the library and un-returned.

In Hemphill County, Librarian Libby Barker reports that the Hemphill County Attorney's Office has filed misdemeanor charges against one family now living in Pampa, has recovered some of the missing books, and will file against others who ignore the Library's notices of fines and appeals for return of borrowed books.

Book-lovers should cheer the action, and the recognition that borrowing and failing to return books is as much a theft in the eyes of the law as taking any other property.

Shakespeare has Othello declaim: "Who steals my purse steals trash... But he that filches from me my good name robs me of that which not enriches him, And makes me poor indeed."

Book-lovers might paraphrase that to read "Who steals my Books steals cash"... and at today's bookstore prices, consider filing misdemeanor theft charges for the loss of the first volume and consider crying felony for the loss of many more.

Taxes in Texas

AUSTIN — Texas' long-standing reputation for keeping taxes low may be in danger of slipping away. State and local governments are growing at a rapid pace. Texas' population has grown from 11.2 million in 1970 to an estimated 15.8 million in 1983.

The burden of bigger government, both at the local and state levels, is shouldered by our state's taxpayers. People who want more and better police stations, better roads and schools, must be willing to pay for the services.

The money our state uses to pay for the many public services available in Texas comes from a few principle sources. The state's sales tax currently provides about 40% of the state's revenue. Taxes on production of oil and gas account for approximately 30% of the revenue. The taxes on fuel and motor vehicles provide approximately 14%, while alcohol and tobacco taxes account for 16%.

In comparison to other states, Texas ranks 46th in the nation in per capita taxes and approximately last in per capita taxes spent on government operations and programs. The Legislature has not increased taxes in Texas since 1971.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has stated that Texas needs more money in the bank, and that our revenues are drying up. As a solution to this problem, Governor Mark White proposed a "sin tax" increase on alcohol, cigarettes and video games during the final weeks of the Regular Session. However, the Governor's tax plan was rejected by the House of Representatives.

Recently, the Legislative Budget Board Director has reported that oil and gas revenues and sales tax collections have dropped more than originally anticipated. There is speculation that a Special Session of the legislature may be necessary to provide for increased revenue to fund the state budget for the coming biennium.

With little money in the bank it's hard to improve things like public education and state highways. A Select Committee on Public Education has recently been formed to study possible solutions with regard to improving education and teacher salaries. It is unlikely, given the current economic situation, that a solution can be found for these problems without an increase in state revenue. Texas must increase it's revenue in order to maintain the quality of education and services that the citizens of this great state have come to expect.

If you have any comments or questions about taxes in Texas or any other items, please let us know by writing Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

To Your Good Health

Over 1,000 organic chemical contaminants have been found in drinking water in the U.S. According to the EPA, some of these chemicals pose potential health risks, including liver disease and cancer.

Concern about human health risks has forced the closing of thousands of private and municipal wells contaminated with chemicals.

How was the contamination found? It was found, in many cases, when concerned citizens urged regulatory and health officials to test their water. Without testing, no one will know for sure what chemicals, if any, are in the water.

Should testing indicate the presence of contaminants, there are proven technologies, such as granular activated carbon, which will remove the chemicals and purify the water. For more information on the need for testing and carbon purification of contaminated water, write to Calgon Carbon Corporation, Dept. G, P.O. Box 1346, Pittsburgh, PA 15230.

Because most states do not have laws or regulations requiring periodic testing of drinking water for chemical contamination, consumers should check with political or health authorities to determine if their water is tested, how frequently, and

Loose Marbles Explains Clumsiness By Blaming Old Dad

I sprained my wrist the other day, and I have yet to figure out how. I wish I could report that I hurt it by executing a perfect double back flip, or by writing the great American novel, or by wrestling a bank robber to the ground. But the truth is that I probably sprained the darned thing either trying to heave my body out of bed, or by shoveling an extra-heavy forkful of mashed potatoes into my face.

It is rather embarrassing to be obviously injured, whether you're encased in plaster of Paris or swaddled in bandages. Even a flesh-colored bandage will draw the inevitable "How did it happen?" For most of us the answer is so silly that we're ashamed to admit it. I have a friend who broke her arm when she tripped over a phone cord. A couple of days earlier she had fractured two fingers when she closed a door without removing her hand first. She also had acquired a black eye when she tried to walk and chew gum at the same adventuresome steered clear from any act which might be construed as flirtation, which suited the couple just fine, since they already were a happily married couple uninterested in clandestine entanglements. The entire episode worked out great for both of them.

It worked so well in fact, that I think I'll do the same with my stupid sprained wrist. However, to save Old Dad the trouble of getting all bruised up, and since all his teeth are still his own, I'll just eliminate the middleman and explain, "I sprained it when I gave Old Dad a hard left hook. That'll teach him to criticize my fried cantaloupe."

I can hardly wait for that respect to start pouring in.

time, and ended up slamming her face into a wall. Tired of trying to explain her clumsiness, she began replying, "My husband beat me up," which kept the questions to a minimum, although it did somewhat sully her husband's reputation.

Her poor husband didn't know what to do. It would look a little put-on if he denied the whole thing, even though he was, indeed, innocent. Yet he too, hated the long explanations of his wife's more serious stumblings. So he took the only avenue left him.

First, he removed from his mouth the expensive bridge which had given him front teeth for so many years that even his closest friends were unaware that he wore false chompers. Then he played a heavy and spirited session of squash, in which he let the hard little ball hit him again and again, making interesting bruises on many parts of his body. Then he calmly went about his business, answering "What bruises, what teeth?" (or rather "Wha brutheth, wha theeth?") to anyone who inquired about his injuries.

Most of his friends figured his wife had found a way to get revenge from the horrible beating they thought she had received. They treated the couple with much more respect thereafter, not wanting to get in on any further violence. The more

In The Kitchen

by Linda Haynes

I hate to admit it, but most of my children are better cooks than I am! Do you suppose that's because they had to fend for themselves to keep from starving when they were little?

Whatever the reason, I am delighted to see my son know his way around the kitchen (he makes a mean lasagna!), and to bow to my daughters' prowess in the kitchen.

The following delicious treat is one my daughter Sally brought home from Lubbock. The dish is quick and easy to fix, and is "special" enough for a company meal.

Terriyaki Chicken

4 boned chicken breasts (use one chicken breast for each person served) garlic salt butter pepper
bottled terriyaki sauce

Skin chicken breasts. Salt and pepper each breast, and smear with butter. Place in casserole dish. Sprinkle heavily with terriyaki sauce (this is a little salty, so don't salt too heavily). Cover dish tightly, place in 350 degree oven, and bake for about two hours. Baste occasionally with sauce while it's cooking. If you want to dress up the dish a little, serve with sauteed mushrooms.

PSYCHOLOGY
Many Americans are getting rid of their tensions in an extremely positive and healthful way—they've taken up a sport. Whether you prefer tennis, swimming, golf or basketball, psychologists say, working up a sweat is really one of the best ways to relax. Then, after you've finished exercising, you can refresh yourself with a tall glass of iced tea, with a wedge of lemon to taste. It can put you in a good mood that could last throughout your day.

it to the school. Please answer all questions on the form. An application which does not contain the total household income, the names of all household members, social security numbers of all household members 21 years or older or a statement that the household member does not have one, and the signature of an adult household member cannot be processed by the school. Verification: The information on the application may be checked by the school or other officials at any time during the year. Beginning with the 1983-84 school year the McLean School will verify approved applications as mandated by federal guidelines. crease in family size, fill out an application at that time. Foster Children: If you have foster children living with you, they may be eligible for these benefits. If you wish to apply for these benefits for them, please contact the school and they will help you complete the application. Nondiscrimination: Children who receive free or reduced-price meals benefits are treated the same as children who pay for meals. In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, national origin, age, or handicap. If you believe you have been discriminated against, write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. LIBRARY NOTES

by Sam Mason

North America's Freshwater Fishing Book by Mike Rosenthal. This brand-new book by Mike Rosenthal of Williamsburg, Mass., who has lived in such diverse places as Little Rock, Ark.; Concord, N.H.; San Francisco Cal., and Honolulu Hawaii, and is an experienced journalist, environmental lecturer, and lifelong angler, will certainly be of interest to anyone who enjoys fishing, whether a novice or an experienced fisherman.

In this volume you will not only find all the information you might need to fish more effectively in your own locale, but you will be shown how to choose, use, and maintain the most common types of equipment - from fly rods and plastic worms - to hooks, weights, and lines, and you'll be given an analysis of the habits and habitats of the 22 favorite North American game species.

Throughout the book you will find historical vignettes such as Washington's troops fishing with pitchforks at Valley Forge, and the American railroads transporting species of fish from one coast to the other, as well as specific items such as how to fillet and bake pickerel, how to cast for brook trout in northern Canada, choosing the spinning rod that's right for you, and many other gems of information which will be of invaluable use to you in your fishing endeavors.

Whether you fish, from Labrador or Alaska to the Southwest or Deep South, you will enjoy gleaning much information which will assist you in planning and carrying out a successful fishing trip, which is the goal of every recreational fisherman.

"North America's Freshwater Fishing Book" is now available at Lovett Memorial Library.

FACTS & FIGURES

The highest waterfall in the world is Angel Falls in Venezuela. It has a single drop of 2,648 feet, and a total fall of 3,212 feet. The American Niagara Falls, to compare, is 167 feet.

Listed lowest in tar in a recent U.S. Government Report on cigarettes is Carlton Box. No brand listed lower than Carlton's "less than 0.5 mg tar, 0.05 mg nicotine." This was the 19th consecutive time that no brand listed lower than Carlton. The manufacturer of the brand reports even lower numbers on the package listing tar at less than 0.01 mg. and nicotine at 0.002 mg. per cigarette.

The largest underground lake is reported to be the Lost Sea, which lies 300 feet underground in the Craighead Caverns, Sweetwater, Tennessee.

WINNERS & LOSERS

The U.S. is really a winner when it comes to the Olympics. Since the inauguration of the modern Games in 1896, the United States has produced 998 gold medalists who have earned 1,278 gold medals in the games. No other country has earned as many coveted Olympic gold medals as has the U.S.

Pampa's Clarendon College Center To Host WT Course

Pampa's Clarendon College Center will host a West Texas State University graduate course in education for the fall semester.

Dr. Kenneth Waugh, professor of education, will instruct Vocational and Educational Information from 5 p.m. to 7:50 p.m. each Monday beginning Aug. 29.

The course discusses the theories of vocational choice. Information will be shared to allow teachers to exhibit competence in the selection, organization and evaluation of materials to be used to counsel students.

Registration for fall semester courses at WTSU will be from 8:40 a.m. to 7:20 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 24, at the Activities Center.

Students enrolling in off-campus courses may register during the first class meeting.

Off-campus courses in education, business and nursing also will be offered at Amarillo, Childress, Dumas, Panhandle and Perryton.
