Tigers Begin Two-A-Day Workouts

Twenty-six Tigers reported for the first week of two-a-day workouts in preparation for football season, according to head coach Jack Dorsett. The boys have been practicing each day, with sessions in the morning and in the afternoon. Reporting for training were Billy Kincannon, Mike Reynolds, Dudley Reynolds, Rex Morris, Bill Hambricht, Bobby Sprinkles, Bill Skipper, Tim Killham, Randy Suggs, Dick

Bode, Kaven Hook, Wade Smith, Tim Smith, Spooky Smith, David Day, Terry Todd, Frank Todd, Brock Crockett, Deb Crockett, Tom Canningham, Bill Bybee, Andy Eck, Blane Jones, David Reid, James Matheny, and Theron Stubbs.

The first scrimmage is scheduled for Happy at 6 p.m. Aug. 24.

Regular season play begins Sept. 7 at Chillicothe.

Dorsett urged all Tiger fans to buy their season tickets.

Board Hires Three Teachers, Approves Budget

What this country needs is another "Liberation" group, and I propose that we start one called "Parents Lib." I'm sure most of you who have experienced the joys of parenthood, will be waiting in line to join this group.

We won't have dues (we're too broke taking care of the kids to pay more money for anything) but we have a set of demands. We can demonstrate during the week (since our kids usually have our cars on weekends).

Only parents whose children have reached the magic age of 13 can be members. The rest of you are still living in that magazine-pretty dream world where you honestly believe that children are a total joy!

These are the demands that I suggest we picket for: (whaaa we can picket is still to be determined, but we can find someone)

- PARENTS ANONYMOUS demand:
1. Equal time in front of the television set.
 2. The right to retain at least 10 percent of our earned income to be used for our own bills (Groceries, utilities, gasoline, etc.)
 3. The use of the family car at least one night a week.
 4. The right to have privacy in at least one room of the house, preferably the bathroom.
 5. The right to receive our mail unopened.
 6. The right to leave town for Three teachers were hired and one resignation was accepted at the regular meeting of the board of the McLean Independent Schools Monday night in the school business office.

The board approved the hiring of Deborah Riepma as band director, Janet Glass as junior high English teacher, and Konye Guthrie as second-grade teacher.

Mrs. Riepma received her Bachelor of Music degree from Texas Tech in Denton in May of 1979. She is a graduate of Amarillo High School.

Mrs. Glass, who taught previously in the McLean school system as second grade teacher is a graduate of West Texas State University. She is the wife of Bob Glass, science teacher at McLean high school. They have one son, Andy.

Mrs. Guthrie received her Bachelor of Science degree from Texas Tech in 1975. She has done graduate work at Tech and at Texas Wesleyan. She has taught for two years in Wichita Falls. She is a graduate of White Deer High Schools.

The resignation of Cynthia Simmons, junior high English teacher, was accepted by the board.

In other business, the board approved the preliminary draft of the budget for 1979-80 for the school. Expenditures in the budget total $615,146, an increase of 8.2 percent over last year's budget.

The largest expense in the budget is for instructional salaries at $245,314.

The budget will be reviewed at a public hearing Aug. 31 at 8:30 p.m. in the school business office for final approval.

The board awarded bids for supplies to J.R. Glass Oil Co. for gasoline, Meads Bread Company for bread, and Borden's for milk. The American National Bank in McLean was awarded the bid as depository bank for the 1979-81 biennium.

The board voted to raise the price of school lunches to 65 cents for first through fifth graders, 80 cents for sixth through twelfth graders, and $1 for adults. This is the first increase in school lunch prices in three years, according to Shirley Johnson, business manager.

Attending the meeting were board members Tony Smitherman, Darryl Herndon, June Suggs, Joe Billingsley, Joe Magee, and Lloyd Hunt; superintendent Carl Dwyer; principals Dorman Thomas and Ron Cummings; business manager Shirley Johnson; and coaches Jack Dorsett, Vester Joiner, Joe Riley, and Jerry Cook.

Enrollment Set For August 23

Enrollment for high school students will be Thursday, Aug. 23, according to Ron Cummings, principal. Seniors will enroll from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.; juniors, 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon; sophomores, 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m.; and freshmen, 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Any student who will be attending his first year in the McLean schools may register any morning from Aug. 20 through Aug. 23, Cummings said.

Grade school registration will take place on the first day of school, Aug. 27, principal Dorman Thomas said. Students who have just moved to town may register anytime Friday, Aug. 24.

Thomas said that kindergarten will begin in McLean Jan. 10.

Thomas urged parents to be sure that their children have the complete set of immunizations required by law to attend school.

According to the State Department of Health, students in kindergarten through the fifth grade should have had oral polio shot (at least one dose must have been received since the fourth birthday); DTP (at least one dose must have been received since the fourth birthday); measles vaccine; mumps (this is the first year for this requirement); and rubella.

Teachers Begin School Aug 22

School bells will ring for McLean teachers Wednesday, with in-service training beginning at 9 a.m. in the school cafeteria.

Superintendent Carl Dwyer said that the teachers will have in-service training Wednesday and Thursday and a work day Friday.

Sessions will end at 4 p.m. each day. Regular classes will begin Monday, Aug. 27.

SHERI HAYNES

Haynes Signs Pro Ball Contract

Sheri Haynes, a former McLean all-state basketball player and a recent graduate of Wayland Baptist College, Monday signed a contract to play basketball for the New Orleans Pride of the Women's Professional Basketball League.

Sheri, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Haynes of McLean, tried out for the team Aug. 1-2, as a free agent and shortly thereafter was offered the contract. She will be one of about 20 players who are to report to the team's training camp Oct. 2 in New Orleans. Included in that number are the team's choices from this year's college draft and several free agents. The team will be cut to a squad of 12 players during October, and the 1979-80 season will begin in mid-November.

The New Orleans entry into the WBL is coached by Dutch Van Broda Koffi, former coach of the NBA New Orleans Jazz and former mentor of ex-NBA star Bill Bradley at Princeton University. General manager of the team is Steve Brown of New Orleans.

The women's pro league is one year old, with the Houston Angels winning the first championship in March. Eight teams competed in the inaugural season, and the league is expanding to 14 teams for the second year. New Orleans is one of the six new teams. The

Council Approves Gas Plan, Raises Rates

The McLean city council approved preliminary plans for the reconstruction of the city gas system, and read ordinances raising rates on water, sewage, and garbage during a lengthy session Tuesday night at city hall.

L.D. Burns of Bill McMorries Associates of Amarillo, engineering firm for the city, showed the council a large map and explained exactly where the new pipes will be laid. He told the aldermen that a final set of specifications will be drawn and submitted to the Farmers Home Administration in Temple for their approval.

Burns said that he expects the city to be able to begin construction "possibly as early as Oct. 1."

Lloyd Bybee, Chester Bohlar, and Bob Glenn attended and made suggestions on possible changes in the plans.

The council read an ordinance to raise the water, sewer, and garbage rates for the city.

Angels, Mudhens Split Double-Header

Aven's Angels proved that the Methodist Mudhens are beatable Sunday night at the McLean baseball diamond as they won the first game of a softball double-header 12-4. The Methodists came back to edge the Angels 6-5 in a shorter second contest.

Both teams started fast in the opener, with the Angels tallying 4 runs to 3 for the Mudhens in the first inning. The score remained the same through the third, and the undefeated Methodists pushed across a run in the top of the fourth to tie the game. But the Angels answered with 3 scores in their half of the inning to take a 7-4 lead, and they erupted for 5 in the fifth to extend the margin to 12-4.

The Angels caught practically everything the Mudhens hit for the rest of the game and walked off the diamond with the convincing victory after 6 1/2 frames.

Wendell Ridgway hit two homers for the Angels in the first game, and most of his teammates got hits as their missiles fell over, in front of, and between the Methodist fielders.

The second game was close all the way, with the Angels scoring 2 runs to open the contest and the Mudhens replying with 3 in their first at-bat.

The Methodists added a run in the second to take a 4-2 margin, but the Angels vaulted back on top with a 3-run thru inning to lead 5-4.

The seasaw tilted once more in the fourth frame as two Mudhens sped across the plate for a 6-5 lead, and the Angels were unable to penetrate the Methodist defense in the fifth and final inning.

Second baseman Joe Walker, pastor of First United Methodist Church, was injured during the second game. While sliding into second after teammate Thatcher Haynes hit a single, Walker severely sprained his ankle and is expected to be out of action for an indefinite period. He was safe at second, and Sheri Haynes took his place as a base runner.

The Angels' Max Coleman also left the game, with an injured leg.

The Sunday night split leaves the Methodists still leading the unofficial McLean softball

OPINIONS

Views Are Written By Linda Haynes, Unless Otherwise Noted . . .

IF YOU HAVE AN OPINION ON ANY CURRENT SUBJECT WE WELCOME YOUR SIGNED LETTERS.....

WHOLE COUNTRY IS ON THE DOLE

Are you on the dole? No? You're not on welfare, you say, so you don't get anything from the government?

Think again. Have you ever attended a public school, rode the school bus, eaten at the school cafeteria? Been in the Army, attended a State University, had an FHA loan, put land in the soil bank, had electricity from the REA, taken money for fences, ponds, etc. from the Soil Conservation Service? Used a public library, driven on a state or federal highway, or drawn Social Security?

If you have done any of these things, you have been the recipient, direct or indirect, of government spending.

Not all of these things are bad. Certainly no one would question the good done by the public school system or the state and federal highway departments.

But when we yell about "government giveaways", aren't we really saying "Supply my needs for schooling, police force, highways...but when you spend money on those other folks, that's a giveaway!"

Last year's $500 billion budget meant that every man, woman and child in the United States was liable for about $2,000 in taxes. With approximately 42 percent of the people paying the taxes (the rest are on the government payroll in one way or the other), the per capita charge for each person rises to astronomical proportions.

Does the huge federal budget go to New York or some poor state? After all, Texas is famous for its independence... aren't we?

In 1976 Texas received $24.6 billion from the Federal government, with almost $4 billion of that amount in the form of grants to state and local governments. Ft. Worth, for example, received $3,563,299, 000 or $9,685 for each man, woman, and child in the city.

Where will it end? If I had that answer, I would run for President of the United States and solve the problem. One solution is for all of us to be very leary of any new spending program by the state or federal government. Don't decide whether you are in favor or opposed simply on the bases of whether it will help you.

Everytime the government spends money, it comes from just one place. YOUR POCKET. We must begin to oppose loudly any spending program, regardless of who it favors, and we must throw out the politicians who get votes by promising more giveaway programs.

other league members are Dallas, Houston, St. Louis, New Jersey, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, California, San Francisco, Minnesota, Washington, Iowa, and Milwaukee.

Among those players signed by the Pride are Nancy Dunkle of Cal-State Fullerton, an All-America post player in college, and Karen Logan, a veteran athlete who has participated in the televised women's Superstars competition.

The Pride will play its home games in the Tulane University gymnasium, which seats about 4,500 people.

Sheri is believed to be only the second McLean High School graduate to sign a professional sports contract. Tommy Duniven, who graduated from MHS in 1972 and played quarterback at Texas Tech, was a member of the National Football League's Cincinnati Bengals and the Houston Oilers until he was released by the Oilers last week.

a weekend without calling all the married children to inform them of our schedule.

7. The right to a weekend alone without grandchildren.

8. The right to smoke, over-eat or indulge in any of the other "small" vices, without constant preaching from our children (who are encouraged by the snotty little girl on television who begins her pitch "Adults who smoke but tell us not to are a pain...") Whatever happened to the privileges of being grown up?

9. The right to be first in line for the food at a family reunion (Remember when you were a kid and the adults left you and your cousins playing outside until 2:30 in the sweltering afternoon sun when they had finished eating, and you and cousins fought over the scraps at the table...)

10. The right to have company at your house in the living room at least one night a week, instead of visiting on the front porch because the kids are watching television.

This is just a sample of the types of demands we might come up with. I'm sure after the first few meetings, we can increase this list to at least a hundred "rights!"

(Special note to the six wonderful, unselfish, loving, terrific kids who call me "Mom" or "Wicked": This is all in fun... I know you are all terrific children, but I have heard other parents make these complaints.)

Football season is just around the corner... The pro teams are already having exhibition games, and the Tigers began their workouts this week. I hope everyone in McLean will rush down and buy a reserved seat for the home football games this year. I know it makes a big difference to our boys to see all the fans there to back them up. Tickets are on sale at several local businesses. Get yours today!

I was sorry to hear last week that McLean's Tommy Duniven was cut from the Houston Oilers roster. Tommy is the first McLean boy in many years to go to a pro football team, and I had thoroughly enjoyed watching his progress both at Texas Tech and with Houston. I haven't talked to his family, but I am sure Tommy will be looking for another team, and hopefully he will find one that can use his multitude of talents. Good luck, Tommy!

A famous visitor came to McLean Sunday, much to the excitement of some of the girls who work at the Cowboy Drive Inn. Barry Manilow, a teenage idol, strolled into the Cowboy Sunday afternoon and had a hamburger. Some of the girls in town felt I should take a picture of the chair he sat in or the ticket that he touched, BUT I decided to pass it up!

McLean regularly has famous people stop at a service station or one of the cafes, but for some reason no one ever thinks to call the News. Oh, well, I might have swooned if I had had a chance to interview Barry Manilow.

I sure am glad Billy Thomas and Jim Davis decided to move to McLean. Before they came, I had all the bad luck.

Thomas is the administrator of the Thomas Nursing Home. He had all kinds of problems trying to get the Home open, but finally succeeded; however last week, when everything was running smoothly for a change, a bulldozer doing some work on the grounds around the Home, ran into a gas pipe and pulled a brick wall of the home down!

But if Billy thinks he has problems, he ought to talk to Jim Davis. Jim operates the Cowboy Drive Inn, and is trying to open a new barbecue place in McLean. He had planned to open First Waterhole West Monday, but over the weekend, shelves containing salad dressing and barbecue sauce collapsed, and he had a new gourmet sauce...nice but unusable. His new icemaker also decided not to work, so Jim postponed the opening until Wednesday. Last weekend's problems were just the latest in a long series of bad luck in trying to get the new business open, but we sure hope Jim is successful in the new enterprise.

On the same day that Skylab fell to earth, its miniature model, housed in the Smithsonian's Air and Space Museum, shed a "sympathetic tear." The museum's assistant curator reported that a 14-inch rectangular piece of the Smithsonian's Skylab model had broken off and was lying at the bottom of the case. Said the curator, "I don't know if it's fate or what."

A Future FDA Ban? Cartoonist Clint McKnight got it right when he captioned a recent cartoon: "The Food and Drug Administration today banned all forms of physical activity when five rats became, quote, 'super tired' after running on their wheel for a few hours."

Eight Is Enough

The Congress set a commendable record in the first three months of 1979. It passed only eight bills—the lowest number in any comparable period in at least 40 years, according to U.S. News & World Report.

AUSTIN—The results of a Texas Monthly poll on Gov. Bill Clements and the Texas Legislature are in: they include good news, bad news and one real surprise. The good news, at least for the Governor, is that over 60 percent of the persons interviewed believe Clements was effective in influencing the Legislature and the federal government. Almost 49 percent rated Clements as "good or very good" overall.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

The bad news, at least for the lawmakers, is that only about 40 percent of the respondents rated the Legislature as "good or very good." House Speaker Bill Clayton did better than his House colleagues, receiving 50 percent approval for his leadership, while Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby was thought to be "very good" by about 46 percent.

The surprise? When asked what issues should be brought up in a special session, voters overwhelmingly preferred "energy." The much-mentioned issues such as initiative and referendum, presidential primary, and more tax reduction did not even score in the double digits, while energy was thought important by 50 percent of those questioned.

Kubiak: More Energy

Will energy be included in the Governor's promised special session in 1980? State Rep. Dan Kubiak, advocate of gasoline and other alternative energies, asked Clements to include "rapid development of alternative energy" at a press conference in June. The Rockdale legislator said he has received encouragement but no commitment from the Governor's Office on the issue.

The poll also showed: —Most Texans, 64 percent, prefer a "same day" presidential preference primary.

—Over 50 percent of the voters disapprove of the actions of the 12 state senators called the "Killer Bees" who fled the Senate to defeat a separate primary bill.

—A majority of Texans, 54 percent, feel a consumer should not be able to sue a seller for more than a defective product costs, though by some to indicate voter approval of recent amendments to the Consumer Protection Act.

—A whopping 76 percent disapprove of the recently-passed law increasing home mortgage loan rates.

—Sixty-two percent favor initiative and referendum powers for voters.

The recent 5.1 percent pay hike for teachers was thought to be too low by 54 percent of the respondents.

White Criticizes Wiretapping

Clements wish to include a broadened wiretapping bill in the special session received a rap last week from the state's top attorney.

Texas Attorney General Mark White issued a detailed and negative critique of Clements' plan to legalize wiretaps, saying it "poses serious potential for abuse of Texas citizens' civil liberties."

White said the proposal does not require actual surveillance to be conducted by a certified law enforcement officer, an oversight he fears "represents a real threat for potential abuse."

White's criticisms were made in a letter to State Rep. Lynn Nabers, chairman of the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee now studying the wiretapping bill.

The Speaker's Race

While Speaker Clayton appears to be getting no opposition en route to an unprecedented fourth term as head of the House, several representatives are already tossing their hats into the ring for the 1983 race, when Clayton says he will step down.

Last week Rep. Jerry Donaldson of Gatesville and Rep. John Bryant of Dallas, both Democrats, filed campaign reports for Clayton's seat with secretary of state's office. Donaldson is highly regarded as a member of the "speaker's team" while Bryant is equally well thought of as leader of the "loyal opposition."

COUNCIL

Continued From Page 1 dieEmergency Medical Services System was signed by the council. Fire chief Jim McDonald appeared at the meeting to answer any questions about the contract. The city will pay $160 twice a year to the Amarillo group which provides emergency communications and other services to members of the organization.

Mrs. Jacque Riley and cheerleader Ann Skipper asked the council for permission to paint house numbers on city curbs as a fund-raising project by the cheerleaders. The council gave its permission.

Mayor Haynes gave a preliminary report on McLean's civil defense plans to be used in case of a city-wide emergency.

McDonald recommended to the group that the burning of trash in the city be outlawed, since the trash truck catches fire frequently. No action was taken by the council.

Attending the meeting were Mayor Haynes, councilmember Dale Glass, Miro Palan, Ruth Magee, Boyd Meador, George Terry; city secretary Stella Lee; city superintendent, Bob Glenn; city employees, Heasley, Bybee, and Bohler; and Mrs. Riley, Miss Skipper, and Burns.

ANGELS Continued From Page 1 league with a 5-1 record, while Aven's Angels follow at 3-3. The Baptist nine is in the cellar with an 0-4 mark.

Tentative plans have the Baptists and Methodists facing each other this Sunday at 8:30 p.m., or immediately after evening church services. The Muddens will be trying to hold onto their first-place standing, while the Baptists will seek to break into the win column.

Playing for Aven's Angels Sunday were: Aven Hook, Jay Dee Fish, Jerry Don Cook, Carey Don Smith, Billy Bob Terry, Boyd Lee Thompson, W.A. Bentley, Kinith Hambright, Max Coleman, Tom Glass, Wendell Ridgway, and J.C. McAnear.

The Methodists countered with: Morse Haynes, David Haynes, Ken Parker, Joe Walker, Thacker Haynes, Sam A. Haynes, Bob Sprinkles, Sammy Don Haynes, Johnny Haynes, Mike Haynes, and Sheri Haynes.

Senator Lloyd Bentsen Watching Washington

Since the Great Depression, U.S. economic policymaking has consisted essentially of choosing between the lesser of two evils: inflation or recession.

The economists call it "demand side" economics. Whenever inflation threatens to blow prices through the roof the traditional response is policies that will put less money into circulation. The idea is that when people are rushing and jostling each other to buy a limited amount of goods, the price of those goods is forced up. With less money floating around people won't be as able or anxious to buy and this reduced demand will help hold prices down.

Examples of fiscal policies used to combat inflation are reduced government spending, increased taxes or a combination of the two.

On the other hand, when recession is throwing people out of work by shutting down factories and stores, traditional government policies call for pumping more money into the economy through such devices as increased government spending and tax cuts.

So the cycle has gone. Bust to boom. Anti-inflation policies, sure enough, help to moderate prices. They also, though, bring on recession. Anti-recession policies create jobs and help put people back to work but they also push prices upward.

It has been a vicious circle and during this decade it has gotten even more vicious.

In 1973-74 a new word was coined, "stagflation," when we suffered through a period of high prices and high unemployment, at the same time.

To a certain extent the old "demand side" economic policies were still working. The problem seemed to be that the old anti-inflation policies were bringing on recession faster than they were pushing down prices and the old anti-recession policies were pushing up prices faster than they created jobs.

When the new Congress began this year I became Chairman of the Joint Economic Committee.

The committee's Annual Report for the year was unusual in two ways. It was the first unified report—the first one signed by every member of the committee, Democratic and Republican alike—in 20 years.

The 1979 JEC Report was unusual also in that it called for an end to the old policies for dealing with our economic problems.

"Demand side" economics is fine, so long as you remember that there is another side to the economic equation: the "supply side."

If the demand for goods on the shelf is forcing prices of those goods upward you can, it is true, hold down prices by lessening demand. But you can also hold down prices by putting more goods on the shelf.

This is a side to economic policymaking that, until the JEC Report this year, had been all but overlooked for several decades.

How does it work in practical terms? Today, for example, our economy is suffering from an inflation rate that threatens to reduce the value of the dollar by more than 13 cents over the course of this year. At the same time, virtually all economists are now projecting a recession that will throw perhaps two million people out of work.

How do you cope with this? What kind of policy will end the recession now being forecast without forcing prices up? The traditional response of increased government spending is certainly not the answer.

My prescription is for a tax cut of about $20 billion. Not your run of the mill tax cut. Half of it would go to increased productivity, to boost the supply side of the economy. Such things as accelerated depreciation for new plants and equipment would not only create new jobs but, by enhancing our industrial capacity for putting more goods on the shelf, would also help hold down prices.

But, you ask, wouldn't a tax cut add to inflationary pressures by pumping more dollars into the economy? It would not. Higher personal income tax receipts—from people pushed into higher brackets by inflation—will take $12.13 billion out of the economy in 1979. Higher corporate taxes will take out another $25 billion. Higher Social Security taxes another $4.6 billion. And the OPEC oil price hike will take another $12 billion out.

So, with over $50 billion being taken out of our economy by these actions, it is logical to assume that putting $20 billion back through a tax cut won't add one whit to inflation.

This approach, and other "supply side" economic policies, can mean a real break-through for this country. It can mean an end to the time when our choices were limited to the lesser of two evils.

How do you cope with this? What kind of policy will end the recession now being forecast without forcing prices up? The traditional response of increased government spending is certainly not the answer.

My prescription is for a tax cut of about $20 billion. Not your run of the mill tax cut. Half of it would go to increased productivity, to boost the supply side of the economy. Such things as accelerated depreciation for new plants and equipment would not only create new jobs but, by enhancing our industrial capacity for putting more goods on the shelf, would also help hold down prices.

But, you ask, wouldn't a tax cut add to inflationary pressures by pumping more dollars into the economy? It would not. Higher personal income tax receipts—from people pushed into higher brackets by inflation—will take $12.13 billion out of the economy in 1979. Higher corporate taxes will take out another $25 billion. Higher Social Security taxes another $4.6 billion. And the OPEC oil price hike will take another $12 billion out.

So, with over $50 billion being taken out of our economy by these actions, it is logical to assume that putting $20 billion back through a tax cut won't add one whit to inflation.

This approach, and other "supply side" economic policies, can mean a real break-through for this country. It can mean an end to the time when our choices were limited to the lesser of two evils.

Francis Family Has Reunion Aug. 4 In Amarillo

On Aug. 4 and 5, the descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ernest Francis, pioneer residents of McLean, had their first reunion in Amarillo. The Francis Family Reunion group met at the Union Hall of National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC) on Saturday morning.

Among the events of the day was awarding prizes in four different categories:

Traveling the most miles to attend: Robert Harold Petty, Washington, D.C.; the eldest descendant or spouse present: Mrs. Ralph H. (Vesper) Francis of Ellington, Missouri; the youngest present: Elizabeth Jordan Clark of Plainview; the best heirloom display: Mrs. Zora Petty (H.M.) Billingsley of Amarillo.

The group enjoyed a catered Bar-B-Que by Sutphens Saturday evening. Sunday was the family's own church service in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H.M. Billingsley. The music was led by Herman L. Petty of Abilene. Mrs. Herman Petty played the organ -- an heirloom brought to Texas in 1909 from Missouri and to Amarillo in 1976 to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Billingsley. Mrs. Billingsley is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Francis. The preaching was by Rev. Wilson E. James, III, of Garland, Rev.

James is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. W.E. James, Sr. of Alanreed, Pampa, and Lefors.

The Sunday services were followed by a chicken dinner in the home of the Billingsley's.

Those attending Francis Family Reunion I were:

Mr. Francis L. Petty of Midland; Mrs. Nora Loveland of Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Petty, Douglas W. Petty, and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Miller of Abilene; Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Petty and daughter, Penny of Moberly, Missouri; Robert Harold Petty of Washington, D.C.; Mr. and Mrs. H.M. Billingsley and Mrs. H. H. Billingsley of Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. Vernon L. Kennedy and children, Tina, Rodney, and Ronald of Canyon; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Tubbs and Mr. and Mrs. Miles Ledgerwood of Dumas; Dr. and Mrs. Ernest N.

James, Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Clark and children, Reagan and Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Francis and children, Tabor and Leanna, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Francis and son, Clay of Plainview; Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Francis of Kress; Mr. and Mrs. James Wood; Mr. and Mrs. David Wood; Mrs. Jerilyn (James) Garrison and daughter, Kendall Kay, and Mrs. Valerie (James) SoRelle and son, J.J. of Lubbock;

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Tubbs and daughter, Jessica of Galveston; Rev. and Mrs. Wilson E. James, III of Garland; Mrs. Ralph H. (Vesper) Francis; and Mr. and Mrs. Roy H. Francis and children, Bobby and Clady of Ellington, Missouri; Mrs. Shirley Weaver of San Antonio. Plans are to have FRANCIS Family Reunion II, in 2 or 3 years, which probably will be in Plainview.

Singer Visits Local Drive In

A visitor to McLean Sunday night was Barry Manilow, the internationally acclaimed pop singer and songwriter. Manilow and some friends were traveling in a van on a combination vacation-concert tour and stopped to eat at the Cowboy Drive-In.

Some McLean people who claim it actually was Manilow sitting in the back of the Cowboy are Kim Sanders, Gail Glass, Sheri Haynes, Jamie Glass, and Rita Davis. At least two of them obtained the superstar's autograph. Manilow said he began his trip in Philadelphia and that he had just finished a concert date in Tulsa.

In addition to several chart-topping hits, Manilow is known for writing commercial jingles, including tunes for McDonald's Kentucky Fried Chicken, and Dr. Pepper.

UMYF Group Sees Films, Plays Volleyball

About 20 young people attended a get-together Aug. 9 at First United Methodist Church, where they played volleyball, sang, and viewed films.

'The Secret of Loving,' a film scheduled to be shown at the affair, did not arrive in time, but Martha Parker 'saved the day' by showing two films from the Lovett Memorial Library. The youth consumed popcorn, cookies, and soft drinks as the watched Our Gang and the story of Jesse Owens.

Barbara Trew led the group in singing hymns preceding the movies. Lisa Patman and Monta Jean Smitherman provided the refreshments.

A team captained by Morse Haynes edged Curtis Simpson's volleyball squad 15-13, 15-13, 15-13 on the church parking lot to begin the evening.

Young people from several churches were present, with the largest non-Methodist contingent hailing from McLean's First Baptist Church. The event was sponsored by the United Methodist Youth Fellowship.

Summer Program Ends Tuesday

Youngsters participating in the Lovett Memorial Library Summer Reading Club will receive certificates at a party at the library Tuesday from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Mrs. Martha Parker, librarian, said that she will show movies and serve refreshments to the youngsters in addition to presenting the certificates.

All members of the summer reading program are invited to attend.

ROBERT CRUTCHER AND PHYLLIS MARSH

Marsh, Crutcher To Exchange Vows

Phyllis Joan Marsh and Robert Crutcher will exchange wedding vows in an outdoor ceremony at the home of her mother 820 N. Main Aug. 17 at 7 p.m.

Miss Marsh is the daughter of Mrs. Sue Marsh of McLean. The prospective groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Crutcher of McLean.

Miss Marsh will be a senior at McLean High School. Crutcher attended school at Lefors.

WTR Meets At Haynes Home

Members of the Walk, Trot, and Run Club met Friday at the John M. Haynes home, where they exercised and ate sandwiches.

A planned run and walk up the North Fork of the Red River was canceled due to threatening weather, and the members got in their activity on a quarter-mile course around the Haynes house.

Members who were present averaged 7.7 miles per person per week during the past two weeks, down from 8.0 miles at the previous count. John C. Haynes again accumulated the most mileage, with 61 for the two-week period.

The WTR Club plans to meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the McLean city park. Anyone interested in running or walking regularly is invited, said a club member.

Two-Car Wreck Does No Damage

A collision on Interstate 40 at the Cedar Street intersection Aug. 7 caused minor damage to both cars.

Roger Ernest McCracken, driving a 1977 Pontiac, ran into a 1974 Buick driven by Pearl Reynolds Means of Shamrock. Apparently Mrs. Means stopped at the stop sign on Cedar street and then pulled onto the interstate in the path of the McCracken car.

There were no injuries in the accident, and damage to both cars was negligible.

Tri-State Fair Parade Set For Sept. 17

Marching bands, floats, military units and horses will be a part of the big parade that will open the 1979 Amarillo Tri State on Monday, September 17. The parade will begin at 11th and Polk Streets in Downtown Amarillo at 10:00 a.m., according to John Kuhn, Parade Chairman. The theme of this year's parade is "Energy - Past, Present and Future".

Cash awards of $100 each plus trophies will be presented to the three float entries that carry our parade theme of past, present and future. Trophies will also be awarded in nine other categories to best overall entry, military, equestrian, band, ROTC, civic and non-profit, youth, agriculture (adult) and agriculture (youth). Awards will be presented at the fairgrounds on the outdoor stage at 7:00 p.m., Monday, September 17. Entries must be submitted to the fair office no later than September 1, 1979.

Hope Mission Established

Every town has a transient problem, and McLean is no exception. The Rev. Nancy Galbreath began a new program recently to try to help the situation.

The Trail Inn Motel has been renamed the Hope Mission, according to Mrs. Galbreath. 'This will be a place where the poor who come to McLean can be helped,' she said.

According to Mrs. Galbreath, she had a daughter named Hope who died during a measles epidemic 49 years ago. 'I went out during the epidemic to help, and caught measles and brought them home to her,' Mrs. Galbreath said. 'I have wanted to open a mission in her memory for many years.'

Mrs. Galbreath is asking anyone in McLean who would like to help with her work to make donations. 'The gas shortage has slowed down the traffic on the highway, so I don't have as many overnight renters to help pay the expenses,' she said.

Anyone who is interested in the project can contact Mrs. Galbreath at 779-2546 or write Box 325 in McLean.

SORGHUM INSECTS:

Greenbugs continue to increase in area sorghum to the point of causing economic damage. In most fields 'Mummies', (parasitized greenbugs with a brown, swollen appearance) comprise less than 5 percent of the greenbug infestation. This level is not high enough to prevent insecticide application. When a field has approximately 20 percent mummies, 60 percent of the green bugs have actually been parasitized. They just haven't taken on the brown swollen appearance. An insecticide application for greenbug control would not be recommended for a sorghum field with 20 percent mummies, for the greenbug population will crash in a few days.

CORN INSECTS:

Southwestern cornborer egg lay is underway in all corn growing areas of the Texas Panhandle.

Tru armyworms have been observed in corn in the Dallam County area. Most of these worms were found in fields that have grass problems or in fields that had received hail damage with the subsequent weeds and grass coming in under the corn.

The armyworms for the most part are still in the grass, for very little damage was observed on the corn. Producers need to check for this pest in the grassy areas of their fields. The armyworm will not be very active during the day so look for the pest in the grass, under trash on the ground, or under the leaf sheaths of the corn. This pest needs to be watched carefully for once they begin feeding on corn, they can quickly do considerable damage.

SOIL TESTING FEES TO INCREASE:

Every recipe I have ever concocted has been the result of desperation. It's usually 11:30, I don't have time to go to the grocery store, and eight people are coming for lunch. Sometimes the dishes have been successful, and sometimes they have just been plain awful.

My older kids' favorite desperation dish was one they called Depression Stew. That dish really doesn't have a set number of ingredients. I usually fixed it a few days before payday, when my credit at the grocery store was stretched as far as it would go.

To prepare Depression Stew, you take any leftover gravy and meat, put in a pan with water. Add salt and pepper, and any spices you have on hand, such as a bay leaf, paprika, oregano. Add a handful of noodles, and empty the refrigerator of all those little dishes of leftover vegetables: corn, green beans, okra, squash, English peas, etc.

Add tomatoes, either fresh or canned, and let cook for several hours. It's not wonderful, but it can be pretty tasty when the cupboard is bare.

I came up with another concoction Saturday. We have enough squash around our house to feed Gray County, and since my family was almost in revolt over all my standard squash dishes, I tried a new mixture, and this one was delicious.

DESPERATION CASSEROLE

Slice three medium-sized squash. Boil until soft but not mushy. Add a handful of minute rice, one-half can of tomatoes with jalapeno peppers. Top with 1/2 cup grated sharp cheese. Cook in the oven for about thirty minutes.

One of our readers brought us this unique recipe. She said she hadn't tried it yet, but thought someone in McLean might like to experiment with it.

ELEPHANT STEW

1 elephant - medium size
2 rabbits - optional
Cut elephant into bite-sized pieces. Add water to make brown gravy. Cook over Kerosene fire about four weeks.

This recipe will serve about 3,800 people. If more are expected, the two rabbits may be added. However, most people don't like hare in their stew! (If you need any help with this recipe, call Dixie Jo Crockett.)

Free Blue Grass Concert Set For Canadian

An evening of family fun and entertainment is being planned by the Fine Arts Committee of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce for Saturday, August 18.

Featured will be an outdoor concert on the lawn of the Hemphill County Courthouse by the Tri-State Bluegrass Express, a musical group from Amarillo. A feature story in a recent issue of Account West magazine described the group's music as "a tasty mix of rural music and sophisticated craftsmanship that transplants the bluegrass idiom into a whole new turf without uprooting its hillbilly basis."

Also featured will be refreshment booths serving a variety of foods such as hot dogs, chulupas, snow cones, popcorn, sweets and soft drinks.

No charge will be made for the concert, although a free-will offering will be taken. Profits from the food booths will go toward the sponsoring organizations and to the Fine Arts Committee for future events of this type.

Area families are invited to the evening of fun. Food booths will open at 6 o'clock, the entertainment will start about 7:30.

LOOSE MARBLES

BY LISA PATMAN

Camping out has been around, I guess, since Adam and Eve set up the first tent and unrolled the first sleeping bags in the Garden of Eden. I have the feeling that Adam probably said something like 'Gee this is really living,' to which Eve responded with a sigh and a grand rolling of her eyes. No wonder she gave in to the temptations of that old rascal snake. She was 'gaga' from all the rigors of living in the glorious out-of-doors.

My theory is that the colonization of Ameri: a was due in part to disillusioned wives who urged their husbands to 'Go West Young Man' simply because they were so tired of outdoor living. What they were looking for was a nice motel with running water and indoor plumbing, with a McDonald's who, at the home place, bathe three times a day, cringe at the sight of dirt, and yell at a kid who comes in with a dirty face. Yet in the outdoors they will forego baths, literally becoming one with nature.

You can find men and women who have worked most of their lives for wall-to-wall carpeting, central heat, and two full baths. Yet they will cheerfully walk half a mile to the nearest smelly outdoor toilet.

They will spray, trap swat, and squash any bug that crosses their paths at home, but will gladly take their chances with flies, mosquitos, and biting insects, so long as they are in their tents or around their plates at the picnic table.

And there is another thing. Campers are the kind of people who will eat sandy pork and beans out of a can, yet at home will send back a steak because it isn't done to perfection.

There are those campers who claim that they are seeking pure, clean, non-polluted air. Well, I've been around those fellows and if the aroma from all those unwashed bodies doesn't get you, the smoke from the campfire will.

I know I should be made of harder stuff. Perhaps I watched too many cowboy flicks for I am always certain that a snake will be curled up in my sleeping bag, or a bear will decide that I'm sweeter than honey. And as for roughing it, my idea of the great sacrifice is not being able to get a separate motel room for the children - that is truly living among the savages.

Jewel Ruth Smith Lingo Warner was born July 4, 1902 at Whitewright, Texas in Fannin County. She was the oldest of nine children. At the age of 13 her mother allowed her to travel with a vaudeville troupe managed by Jewel's aunt and uncle. They trained her and for four years she played the jealous lover in the skit, Jealous Lover. She recalls that as one of the happiest times of her life. Jewel is an unusual person who loves life, loves to laugh and you can't be around her for five minutes without hearing up and laughing with her.

She was married to Boyd Lingo in 1920 and they had two children, Byron and Willadean. The Lingos moved to Alanreed in 1932. For 16 years she ran 'Jewel's Cafe' and Boyd had an adjoining service station. She has always been known as a hard worker and says she has many jobs through the years and 'just loved them all.'

Mr. Lingo died in 1941 and a few months later, daughter Willadean was killed in an automobile accident at the age of 17, the weekend before she was to be married.

Jewel kept on working at that time for Jek Standish until he could get some help. 'I had promised I would and I always made my word good.' After that she did some practical nursing around Groom for several years helping mothers with new babies. Speaking of her earlier years Jewel says, 'I have had a wonderful life and I haven't hardly commenced yet.'

She married Eben Warner in the late 40's and had an interesting 16 years traveling as he was an oil well wildcatter. They lived in many places including Wyoming, Nebraska, the Dakotas and Colorado. They always kept their home at Alanreed.

Mr. Warner died in 1960 and in 1965 Jewel's son Byron died suddenly and the same year, his young son and daughter died in unrelated incidents.

Jewel stays busy with her house, garden, canning and baking. Many friends and the young people of Alanreed stop by to visit with her. In 1978 she was in the hospital for the first time in her life. Since 1976 she has read the New Testament 13 times and the Old Testament five times. She is active in community improvement.

When asked if she has future plans Jewel said, 'I'll just keep a doin' ever day as it comes along. I won't sit in a rockin' chair and rock.' She was well described by a nephew in Amarillo who said, 'I like Aunt Jewel, she's real cool.'

Special Angels
by Jeanette Fish

Why am I crippled, Mama? My feet aren't very straight, I can't run with these crutches. The other boys won't wait.

Sometimes when I'm walking, I stumble and I fall. They all laugh and I do too. But it's not funny at all.

I'm always a good boy, Mama, I hardly ever cry. Does God ever see, boys like me? Tell me Mama, why?

What would you tell that little boy? What can a mother say? Sit right here beside me son. (I brush a tear away.)

Why, you're a special angel. Though God loves all the rest, The little ones with crooked feet, He just loves them the best.

Everytime that you fall down And jump up quick and proud, God looks down sees you, Why, he laughs right out loud.

There's one of my special angels, I saw him as he fell, He jumped right up and didn't cry, My he's doing well.

People are always grumbling, They worry and fuss and cry, Then when they see your struggle, We really are lucky, they sigh.

That's why he made you as you are, To keep others happy and bright, To light up heaven with your smiles And make the whole world right.

Every night when you're asleep, I think that one above, And kiss the little crooked feet, He gave me, you, to love.

The French philosopher Jean Jacques Rousseau gave better advice and followed it less than perhaps any other great man.

Peb Everett was the barber in McLean for 65 years. He was born in a dugout south of McLean at Richardson Creek which joined the Sitters' place on the east. The family sold out and moved away in three covered wagons when he was five years old. In Roswell his uncle and cousins taught him to cut hair. They returned to McLean in 1912. Peb recalls that he had to stand on a wooden box platform to reach the customers' heads. He and Guy Beasley figured out one time how many heads of hair Peb cut in those 65 years at 75 a week. More than 243,000 haircuts.

J.C. Gilbreath went to Berger in 1941 to trade cars. He had a 1928 Ford. The dealer wanted $50 extra on the deal to take J.C.'s old car in the trade.

Dick Henley was 81 years old this week. He goes into Puckett's store the first thing every day to visit. On his birthday he went in, danced a little jig and kicked his heels up. Sadie Smith said she would feel good if she could do that on her 50th birthday.

Polly Harrison was in Pampa Thursday to get the her car fixed after someone bashed it in while she was visiting in Lubbock.

Robert Bruce made a trip to Pampa Thursday.

The Sonny Bryant's trailer home was vandalized last week and received quite a bit of damage.

Polly Harrison entertained some friends in her home Wednesday with a luncheon. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Davis and grandson Ross, and Lena Carter.

Visiting the Elmer Daniels this week are daughter Christy and family of Michigan, and daughter Linda and Kim from Dalhart.

Mrs. Robert Bruce, Nicki Dewebber, and Polly Harrison were in Pampa Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Fish and Dan were in Pampa Saturday to visit Mrs. Ganell Fort.

Visiting the P.M. Gipson's over the weekend were daughter Almada and family of Los Alamos, N.M.

The Bill Crisp have their grandchildren visiting this week.

The W.H. Davises visited in Amarillo this week and returned grandson Ross to his home there.

The Elmer Daniels celebrated the arrival of daughter Christy and family from Michigan by a Saturday trip to Pampa for barbecue.

A few months ago I wrote a nostalgia-laden column about my two grown children and their serene upbringing in the City of Lefors. It ended with me waving the flag and the two of them making the second giant step for mankind.

Several people gently chided me with, "You big dummy. You didn't even mention that you have a third child," and "WHAT'S WRONG? YOU ASHAMED OF DAN OR SOMETHIN'?" There were a couple of reasons. I had always had a dream of finally getting those two kids raised. Almost got it done too. They were 16 and 17. The next summer would see the realization of my big plans.

There would be tri-weekly trips for hairdos and manicures, shopping all the way. Never again would I find a half order of french fries in the stocking drawer. I could go to my purse blindfolded, in a gunny sack and find the car keys. Holiday with the family would see me happily in a corner, whispering about the ill-mannered children belonging to my brothers and sister.

Along came Dan, which meant I had to keep my mouth shut for another 20 years as to how rotten anybody's kids were. He was born as family memory was dimming about a hot summer afternoon when my first two had gone out and chopped the neighbor's tree down.

Not just any old tree, but a six month old, 40 dollar, imported from Italy, sickly sapling which Neighbor had spaded, doctored, prayed over and led me to believe that lint from towels on my clothesline might require two Italian deliverers to turn back the boat, returning to perform life-saving measures.

The evidence was indisputable. Tree was down. Neighbor was sobbing. Two little scout axes were covered with fresh bark. I was innocent. Ten year old towels have no lint. There were Spankers and Non-Spankers which I used according to mood, time of day and whether or not the monthly bank statement was to arrive before supper.

People say the authors of these books don't have children. I disagree. Writing a book requires that you go into a quiet room and close the door for two to five years. I think they have lots of children. They write long books. The title of each chapter is POSITIVE REINFORCEMENT. "I am proud of you, som. You managed to cut that tree down with one clean blow."

Unknown to these authors are busy children in basements putting out a pamphlet, "HOW TO DRIVE YOUR MOTHER CRAZY SO SHE WILL GET LOCKED UP FOREVER THEN YOU CAN STAY OUT AS LATE AS YOU WANT AND NEVER MAKE YOUR BED AGAIN AS LONG AS YOU LIVE." This publication is handed out free on school playgrounds.

There is no such thing as a direct verbal interchange with today's child. "May I wash the socks which you have been wearing since May 28th?" is answered with "Ricky wore it the same socks for two semesters." If your question is so silly as to be undervaluing of an answer you get the Rhetoric Butler I think Scarlett loves Ashley look.

"Mom I accidentally kissed the cat." is a confession designed, to early on, nip in the bud, any wild-eyed shouting tirades concerning fifty trips to the doctor for allergy shots.

I used to get hostile at the all-knowing--I know something you don't smile of preachers--saying "Be careful what you pray for."

I prayed for patience. The Lord sent me Dan. Will I discover the meaning of life while raising this child? Will Ricky change his socks this year?

PICKLED OKRA -- A TEXAS FAVORITE:

Pickle the extra okra from your home garden or roadside vegetable stand that you do not freeze or use fresh. Pickled okra is a favorite for many Texas families and adds zest to meals. Select tender pods which are uniform in size. Wash thoroughly to prepare for pickling. Here's how to pickle okra:

- DILLED OKRA
3 pounds uncut and washed young okra pods
Celery leaves
6 small hot red peppers
Cloves of garlic
Large heads of dill and stems, or 1/2 teaspoon dill seed per pint
1 quart water
1 pint white vinegar
1/2 cup salt

Pack okra into hot pint jars with a few celery leaves, pod of pepper, clove of garlic and head of dill or dill seed in each jar. Make brine of water, vinegar and salt. Heat to boiling. Pour over okra. Process in boiling water bath by placing in a large kettle of boiling water to which a little cold water -- about one cup -- has been added to lower the temperature only slightly.

The kettle should have a rack to hold the jars off the bottom and be deep enough for the water to come over the jars one to two inches with a remaining head space of one to two inches. It should also have a tight-fitting lid. Process the okra for 20 minutes. Start to count processing time as soon as hot jars are placed in actively boiling water. Remove jars and place on a rack to cool out of a draft. The next day after processing, remove rings. Wash and dry jars and store in cool place. NOTE: The okra will be shriveled immediately after removal from the water bath, but after several days will absorb the liquid and become plump once again.

PSYCHOLOGY

Experts on human behavior tell us that motorists and motorcycleists who curb their first impulse to show annoyance or aggression on the road are more likely to find it progressively easier to share the road.

Operating their respective vehicles in accordance with the law, and with courtesy and common sense, can also reduce the almost 175,000 motorcycle accidents a year, says the Motorcycle Safety Foundation. The majority of those accidents are collisions with other vehicles, and 70 percent of multi-vehicle collisions are caused by the driver of the car or truck involved.

Out Of The Past... McLean Prisoner Of War Camp

(Editor's Note: This is the second of two parts of a story about the McLean prisoner of war camp which was in operation during World War II.)

By Lisa Patman

The Germans were not the only inhabitants of the internment camp to leave their mark on McLean during World War II. For many months the citizens of McLean had been sending men and women into the service. Now, after little more than a year of war, the city was about to see first-hand something of how soldiers live both in and off the post.

The military personnel of the camp brought new life to McLean and gave local residents a look at a different side of America.

In a surprisingly short time the area that had once been corn and cotton fields had been transformed into a small community with full facilities to carry out its primary mission. The word community fits the post, since it contained almost all those features which make up a small city.

The camp had its own finance department, post office, theatre, exchange, barber shop, laundry, and a central heating plant. The dental and medical requirements of the men were met by the medical department and its skilled doctors, nurses and technicians who had a fully equipped hospital in which to work. The camp was supplied, fed, and clothed by the Quartermaster Corps; its utilities were maintained by the Corps of Engineers; its security was taken care of by the Military Police.

On the roster at the camp were men who, in civilian life had been a butcher, baker, bookmaker, boilermaker, district attorney, barber, pharmacist, accountant, zoo inspector, taxi-driver, farmer, advertising slogan writer, lawyer, and fellow whose sole job was punching holes in buttons.

When the American soldiers arrived in McLean, early in 1943, the citizens of McLean were at the station en masse to give them a welcome. Many of the soldiers had misgivings about coming to McLean; they had heard that Texas was a place of rattlesnakes, horn-toads, coyotes, sandstorms, and wastelands.

In a very short time the soldiers had made a complete tour of the town. There was a corner drug store, a duck pin bowling alley, tailor and dry cleaning shops, a billiard parlor, barber shops, a movie house, half a dozen cafes, a five and dime store, city hall, and the Army and Navy stores. Two blocks in any direction and you were out of the business district.

This was quite different from what most of the boys were used to. They came from large cities with tall buildings, milling crowds, restaurants, theatres, roaring buses and taxicabs, shrill policemen's whistles, and mammoth electric signs.

They were thousands of miles away from home, but they found something here that made them a little less homesick—a town full of real, human friendly people.

One of the first events which heralded the beginning of a close relationship between the townspeople and the camp personnel was a welcoming dance hosted by the McLean Businessmen's League. Over 300 attended the dance which was highlighted by the "melodic rhythm of Marie Hetrick and her Queens of Swing" and the "jumping jive of Hetrick's Hop Cats." The League supplied dance partners for the men by inviting girls from McLean, Shamrock, Lefors, and Pampa.

The military, in turn, invited the public to visit the camp on July 4, 1943, for an inspection of the camp before the prisoners arrived. Over 2000 people attended, from McLean, Shamrock, Lefors, Kellerville, Wellington, Pampa, Amarillo, and Dallas.

The soldiers had begun winning the hearts of the people of McLean and they continued throughout their assignment at the camp. Almost every week some kind of activity which involved both civilians and military personnel was scheduled. Softball games between McLean men and an internment camp team were happy events for all.

Upon their arrival at the camp some of the men formed a theatre group consisting of musicians and theatrical talent. With this they planned musical revues and several full-length dramatic shows to which McLeanites were invited.

The McLean USO served Thanksgiving dinner to the soldiers at the camp, and formal dances and parties were scheduled regularly. One formal dance was co-sponsored by the USO and the Red Cross. All service men and women, as well as all those who had been honorably discharged from the service, were invited. Entertainment was furnished by a Pampa orchestra.

A "juke box hop" was another form of entertainment common at the camp.

Officers of the camp were often on the program as guest speakers for civic organizations. One report, recorded in The McLean News, Aug. 24, 1944, said "Both officers were lavish in their praise of the good treatment afforded the army in McLean, but Col. Baird gave some interesting information on the treatment of prisoners of war."

In the Oct. 21, 1943 edition of the News, C.O. Greene announced that a "quiz team from the prisoner of war camp has challenged the Lions for next Monday night's program. Mr. Greene appointed five Lions to compose the club team."

The camp had its influence on the younger people in Mc-

Lean also. In the May 3, 1945 edition of the News "Major Parker, commanding officer of the McLean prisoner of war camp, calls attention to kids wearing the letters 'PW' on their clothes as a prank. This is strictly against army regulations and anyone having these letters on their clothes may be shot if they fail to halt when ordered to do so."

"This practice also hampers the apprehension of escaped prisoners."

Some of the soldiers stationed at the camp were able to send for their wives. Most of these rented houses or rooms from local citizens. Among them were Jack Burns and his wife Barbara. She worked as secretary to the CO of the camp hospital. They rented a bedroom at "Mrs. Davis' on Gray Street."

In a recent letter to the News Mrs. Burns recalls their time in McLean—"While living in McLean, inasmuch as few of the non-officer couples had cars, our main entertainment was visiting the various couples who had apartments or permission to have visitors. We had a library of games to play (this was pre-TV) and homemade pies and cakes were whipped up for impromptu get togethers. There was the local USO, the local movie theatre, an occasional trip into camp for an evening movie, and on Sundays we could ride the bus either to Amarillo or Shamrock. Until Dec. '44 the only transportation to and from camp was by car and then one bus was put into operation so that we could attend Mass at camp and attend the evening movies."

Mrs. Burns goes on to recall "Transportation in camp was something else.... World War I ambulances, horse-drawn vehicles of all types as there were no paved streets, no sidewalks..

The Saga of the Buffalo by Cy Martin

Perhaps the best effort at recording the glory days and the demise of the Buffalo is this rare volume by Cy Martin.

The abominable treatment of the gigantic buffalo herds by white men is expertly chronicled in this excellently illustrated work.

Accounts of the horrendous slaughter of entire herds by such well-known westerners as 'Buffalo Bill' Cody simply for the tongues (a rare delicacy in those days) or hides, is factually and sickeningly recorded by the author.

Space in this book is also given to such exponents of conservation as Theodore Roosevelt and Charles Goodnight, who with others are probably responsible for saving the buffalo from extinction. 'The Saga of the Buffalo' is worth the time of the reader simply for the wonderful illustrations, but a thoughtful perusing of this edition will be greatly enjoyed, especially by all serious students of American History and the old west. 'The Saga of the Buffalo' is now available at Lovett Memorial Library.

Boys Ranch Rodeo Begins Sept. 2

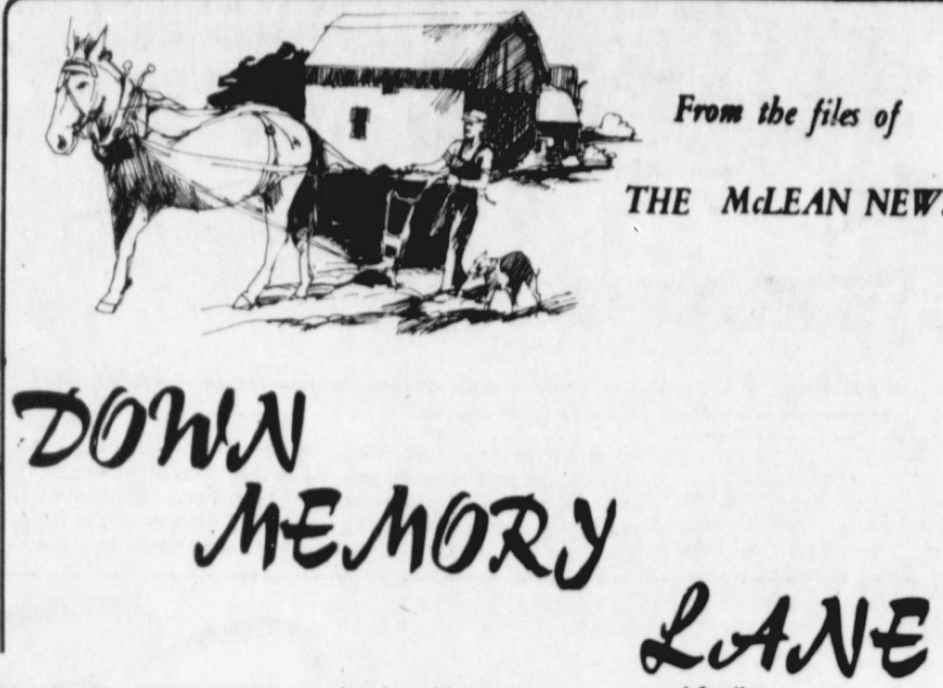

At Cal Farley's Boys Ranch, nearly 390 pint-sized cowboys are getting ready for their thirty-fifth annual Boys Ranch Rodeo, a traditional Labor Day weekend event.

In anticipation of record-setting crowds for the two performances on September 2 and 3, the Ranch rodeo arena has enlarged general admission sections that will accommodate an extra 1,500 people. Most sections of the arena have been covered to provide for the comfort of the rodeo guests. Another added attraction will be Texas-sized barbecue beef plates that will be prepared and sold by the boys for only $2.00. About 150 boys will be contestants in the rodeo. They will compete in bareback bronc riding, and also be trying for the best time on Brahma bulls, steers, calves and stick horses. It is the only rodeo of its kind in the nation, as the only contestants are boys riding professional rodeo stock under R.C.A. rules. The rodeo is also a reunion for the approximately 3,000 boys who have lived at the Ranch since 1939.

Reserve box seat tickets for $3.50 are on sale at the Boys Ranch office at 600 West 11th Street in Amarillo. The tickets can also be ordered by calling 806/372-2341.

Tuesday evening a party of young people enjoyed a moonlight picnic at the old picnic grounds on the creek near the Rowe ranch headquarters about five miles south of the city. After the crowd had gathered under the trees at this pretty spot an improvised swing was constructed in which the young people sported for an hour or so until the moon had risen, when a delicious lunch was served - this, contrary to the usual procedure, being furnished and served by the young men. After lunch oranges and watermelon was served and another hour spent in pleasant conversation. This affair was given to speed the departure of Missie Mattie McMillan and Edna Merritt who left the following day for a visit in East Texas. Those in attendance were Misses Bryant, Mattie and Lizzie McMillan, Edna Merritt, Ethel McCurdy, Pearl Crabtree and Mrs. Stokes. Messrs. Ollie Statham, William Henry, Bart Hilton, Ira Chambers and Walter Caldwell. They were charpered by Mr. and Mrs. A.G. Richardson.

Will J. Hodges and D.N. Massay went up to Erick, Okla., Tuesday afternoon to be present at a lecture given in that city by Eugene V. Debs, the famous socialist speaker.

One of the most interested spectators at the ball game Tuesday afternoon was Jno Chisolm. Though Mr. Chisolm is sixty-one years old this is the first game of ball he ever witnessed. During the game he was heard to remark 'I'd like it better if they didn't throw the ball so hard when the boys were trying to hit it.'

The Methodist meeting which was in progress during the last week closed Sunday night. There were thirty conversions and sixteen additions to the church. On the whole, the meeting was very successful and a general spiritual awakening was had.

PRISONER
...and as a result we gals wore pantsuits long before they were in vogue...and wore old shoes in order to save our shoe stamps. We could save on grocery money by shopping for groceries at camp...but trying to get the groceries home was quite an ordeal...unless one had their own set of wheels.

"Mrs. Davis permitted us to put up a Christmas tree in her living room and we decorated it with the many Christmas cards we received...and we were invited to Christmas dinner with her and her family. At least we had 'family' around; made us much happier...

"I often recall paying 50 cents for a T-bone steak dinner at a local restaurant...walking up and down the roads talking with neighbors who thought we 'talked funny' with our Chicago accent."

While life around the camp was often entertaining, there were also tragedies connected with it. Certainly the deaths of prisoners were frightening. Another tragic note occurred when J.W. Wade, who had recently begun work at the camp, had been checking the camp transformers when the accident happened.
The Nov. 16, 1944 issue of the McLean News related another tragic episode. "Pfc. Malcomb Hassell of the McLean POW camp drank an ounce of carbolic acid in Shamrock last Sunday week. He was prevented from drinking a second bottle by a hotel employee knocking it out of his hand. He died at a hospital 10 minutes later."

Pfc. Cassell was an overseas veteran of this war. He had lost a brother in the war and his parents later died, and it is thought that despondency over the deaths caused his act.
"He had been stationed at the local camp about three months."
Several McLean residents tried to give the boys a taste of western life. Roger "Tight-Eye" Powers was not only an avid baseball fan, helping organize games between McLean men and camp soldiers, but he also took a personal interest in the soldiers. On at least one occasion he invited a soldier to a round-up. Here are some excerpts from the soldier's account of the event. "Naturally I had seen round-ups in the movies and it looked pretty simple. All you had to do was sit on a horse and twirl a rope, and when your favorite bovine hoves into view, snag him neatly by the right hind leg. A cinch!"
"We started out at about what the Army would call the crack of dawn. This is the first time I beat reville before the bugler finished blowing."
"A branding iron, I found out, was the Army equivalent of insignia; instead of sewing it on, we were to burn it on the cow. Ghastly!"
"I decided that my forte was roping and bull-dogging so I hopped on a delicate looking nag with mild brown eyes that I later found out was called 'Killer.'

"Killer and I started in a northwesterly direction. I twirled the rope, a little sloppily, and took off in the direction of the calf. The rope missed-Killer stopped still-I kept going in a northwesterly direction."
"Killer and I tried for another calf. This time I was lucky enough to snag the calf by the nether horn. He left for home immediately and I dragged on with him, leaving Killer standing like a bronze statue. I had forgotten to tie the rope to the saddle horn. I was willing to die for the honor of the United States Army, but I could see that this was the wrong way to do it."
"The next round-up I attend will be from a spectators' pew in Madison Square Garden."

Probably one of the most lasting effects the camp had on the town concerned romance. Almost every week an article in the News announced the marriage of a local girl to a boy from camp. Many former McLean girls are now wives living in far-off parts of the country, delighted that the military came to McLean.
The camp closed July 6,

1945. When the American soldiers stationed at the camp were transferred elsewhere, they left a little corner of their hearts here in McLean.

Perhaps this is best expressed in a soldier's own words. "You can travel the other forty-seven states from the Atlantic to the Pacific and you wouldn't come across a friendlier bunch of people than right here in Texas. It doesn't matter where you hail from. As long as you're here, you're one of them. They accept you for what you are right at the beginning. Just the opposite from up north. There nobody accepted you at your face value. You had to prove your worth. Here you're one of them until you prove otherwise."
"We want you people in McLean to know that we boys at Camp McLean appreciate the glad hand you extended us. We feel that we've found another home here at McLean."

Free Lunch
The Midweek Sun, a San Francisco area newspaper, reports that there are such things as free lunches. A local hospital has begun a program in which cafeteria workers will be given one free meal a day. The program will cost nearly half a million dollars.
