Serving McLean and the Area Since 1903

VOLUME 77 McLEAN, GRAY COUNTY, TEXAS THURSDAY, MAY 22, 1980 PRICE 20¢ NUMBER 21

Some of you might be interested in a little historical facts about the McLean schools. There was no graduating class sixty years ago in McLean because the schools closed in February because of an influenza epidemic. School was postponed until fall, according to The McLean News of Feb. 6, 1920 "the school board thinking it best to dismiss for the term as enough teachers to run the school could not be had, and after the epidemic runs its course there would not be money available to maintain school long enough to be of any benefit."

As far as we can tell from The McLean News, there was no graduating class in 1910 either, but the paper contains a list of the students who were attending school here that year. They were in Miss Helm's room: Ray Bird, Neal Cooper, Ancil DeSpain, Lossie Mann, Roy Berr, Lula Rush, Gracie Stanley, Rowene Upham, Beulah Sewall, Clara Turner, Opal Reeves, Opal Weaver, Royal Hearn, Carl Bird, Jack Cooke, Eugene Erwin, Bonnie Erwin, Harvey Grigsby, Albert Heald, Cloyce Holland, Donald Beall, Willie Cooke, Oscar Biggers, Earle Oliver, Roma Crawford, Thera Phillips, Bertha Patrick and Derwood Montgomery.

And in Mrs. Vannoy's room: Eldon Erwin, Ernest Luthye, John Stockton, Boyd Reeves, Pauline Junell, Allie May Rice, Ina Hearn, Helen Harrow, Nora Staley, Floyd Staley, Willie Morton, Enoch Bentley, Willie Bentley, Johnnie Haynes, Atwell Mann, Roy Koons, Jim Junell, Harris De Spain, Howard Rogers, Janie Cousins, Robbie Ashby, Leonard Sewell, Ruby Brewster, Dollie Cash, Mable Faulkner, Helen Horton, Ruth Jordan, Zimrude Hext, Clara Mitchell, Eva Rowden, and Callie Stanley.

Dr. Joe Findley, associate professor of education and psychology at West Texas State University, is retiring next week. Hundreds of McLean students have taken classes under Findley, and are sorry to see him leave. W.T. A. G. Kesterson said that when Findley first graduated from college he lived in Memphis with A.G.'s parents, Mr. and Mrs. A.G. Kesterson, and served as pastor of the First Christian Church there.

Lovett Library Program Will Encourage Reading

The Lovett Memorial Library is among nearly 400 libraries throughout Texas participating this year in the Texas Reading Club. The program is sponsored by the Texas State Library and participating libraries. Young readers will take part in activities built around "Sports Splash," the theme selected for 1980. The nearly universal interest in sports that range from solitary activities like jogging to team sports like baseball and football gives them appeal for most young readers. And libraries have books about sports that range from books on how to play the games through biographies of famous players to novels and stories with sports themes.

Most important of all, young Texans who participate will sample the fun of recreational reading. Today's public libraries include a wide range of books and other printed materials for young readers. Summertime is vacation time, but skills honed by vacation time reading will be sharp for the year ahead. "One of the most serious problems we face today is the deterioration of reading ability among young people," said Dr. Dorman H. Winfrey, director of the Texas State Library. "We know, however, that people of all ages who develop the habit of reading for recreation become good readers. Reading is a recreational activity with both immediate and long-term benefits."

In recent years school libraries and learning resource centers have undergone major improvements. As a result many youngsters have developed sophisticated skills in using libraries. The Reading Club encourages them to use these skills and the library materials they find for recreational purposes.

Special activities that encourage regular visits to the library have been planned by James L. and Carol H. Thomas of Denton. He teaches in the North Texas State University School of Library and Information Sciences, and she recently completed a doctorate in special education at the University of Virginia. They are the parents of two sons.

Gray County Hospital Groundbreaking Set For May 27

Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy did an excellent job for the community in his testimony, hospital administrator Guy Hazlett said.

There was a Nashville architect, Dick Miller, Gray County Commissioner Ted Simmons, Highland General complete renovation or whether a new facility was needed. A team of architects from HCA made a study of the facility and then made the final determination. A new facility was decided upon as the most efficient, both in terms of cost and construction scheduling.

The HCA officials interpreted all reports concerning a hospital facility. Size recommendations, patient origin and physician availability were top priorities to HCA.

Studies done by Highland General and HCA showed that in 1977 only 51 percent of the hospital beds were in use on a day-to-day basis. In 1978 the occupancy rate had increased to 62.7 percent, and in 1979 the occupancy rate had increased to 72 percent. "The 1978 percentage rate broke a decade record," according to Hazlett.

Active physician participation has also increased, according to Highland General statistics. In 1977 there were 17 active patient-admitting doctors on the hospital staff. In 1979, there were 21 active physicians on the staff. The Highland General physician staff includes five foreign medical graduates and three osteopathic physicians.

HCA officials needed to know where the main flux of Highland General patients came from, and statistics gathered from admittance records showed that 78 percent of patients were from Gray County.

"This showed HCA officials that the community gave their hospital good support," Hazlett said.

Statistics also showed that 45 percent of Roberts County residents receive their hospital

Council Raises Summer Water Rates

The McLean City Council raised the summer water rate to $7.50 for in-city customers and $8.50 for out of town customers during their regular meeting May 13. The $7.50 rate applies for the first 20,000 gallons used each month, with 35 cents charged for each 1,000 gallons over 20,000.

In other business, the council approved repairs on the packer trash truck which will have to be taken to Oklahoma City for repairs.

June 1 through June 6 has been set for Clean-Up Week in McLean. During that week the city trash trucks will pick up small limbs and other trash stacked by the barrels in the alley. "The city trucks won't pick up rocks or other debris that is too heavy for the machines," Mayor Sam Haynes said. "But they will be glad to pick up any items left by the trash barrels."

Following approval by the council, the City will purchase a new mower for use in the city.

The council decided to meet with the school board May 15, at which time the two groups gave final approval to the combining of the two entities tax offices. City residents will receive one statement from both the city and the school for taxes next year.

Attending the meeting at the City Hall May 13 were Haynes and council members Dale Glass, Miro Pakan, George Terry, Ruth Magec, and Boyd Meador; and city secretary Stella Lee and city superintendent Bob Glenn.

Head-On Collision Claims Two Lives Friday

A grinding head-on collision, the second in less than a week on a 10-mile stretch of construction on I-40, claimed the lives of two teenagers Friday evening. Kevin T. Kiefer, 18, of Perryville, Mo. was dead at the scene of the wreck, and Jean Elizabeth Young, 18, of Clarendon Hills, Ill., a passenger in the second car, died enroute to the Amarillo Emergency Receiving room.

red. Her boyfriend, Paul Gay, the driver of the vehicle and a student at the University of Arkansas, had flown to Arizona Monday to drive her home. Gay remains in critical condition in an Amarillo hospital.

Two passengers in the Camaro, Candace Lee Drum, 16, of Friedheim, Mo., and Damon Wilson, 20, of Elk Grove, Calif., were also transported to the Amarillo Emergency Receiving Center where they are listed in serious condition. Miss Drum was thrown out of the car on impact and Wilson was thrown about halfway out of the vehicle. Gay was also thrown out of the Mustang.

Miss Drum and Kiefer were travelling in a car registered to Albert Drum and had picked up Wilson who was a hitch-hiker.

Holland received the call from the Amarillo Department of Public Safety while he was in Shamrock about 6:30 p.m., he said. He arrived on the scene about the same time as the McLean ambulance, Paramedic and fire chief Jim McDonald put in a call for help from the Clarendon ambulance service when he saw the number of victims.

Six days earlier, two 24-year-old people were killed about four miles away on I-40. The road has been narrowed to a two-way section for about 10 miles between the Clarendon turn-off and Alandred.

Officials of Gilvin-Terrill Construction Company said that the company hopes to complete the construction by November or December.

Rescue Squad Deserves Thanks

The McLean Ambulance Service deserves the thanks of not only the people of McLean, but that of countless strangers whom the group has served so well.

During the last few days, the McLean Ambulance and Rescue Squad has been called to the scene of two major wrecks on Interstate-40 which claimed the lives of four people, and seriously injured five travelers.

Of those five injured, it is almost certain that some of them would have died before reaching the hospital if McLean did not have a paramedic and several men trained as emergency medical technicians.

At the wreck last week, the McLean crew worked for almost an hour to free a young girl who was pinned in the wreckage of her car. Although the girl died later while enroute to the hospital, the McLean men heroically struggled to keep her alive as long as possible.

At the scene of these wrecks, the McLean men are absolutely invaluable. Not only do they assist with the injured, they help direct traffic, giving the highway patrolmen time to investigate the wrecks. While helping at the scene of wrecks, the ambulance crew has been nearly run over on countless occasions by careless drivers.

When that ambulance screams and the McLean crew leaves the town on another mission of mercy, they know that they will probably face a scene that would make most adults ill. They will be facing an emergency situation that calls for cool heads and fast action, and they also know that what they do may save a life.

The thousands of travelers who pass through McLean on Interstate-40 each year do not know how much safer they are because McLean has such an outstanding, well-trained group. The ones who unfortunately become victims in wrecks quickly learn that they are in competent hands. They may not be aware that the men who are working so hard and giving much time are all volunteers, men who are taking time from their jobs and families, and serving WITHOUT PAY, to help others.

Those people may not have the opportunity to thank the McLean Volunteer Fire Department and Ambulance Service. They may not even know who saved their lives, but those of us who live in McLean should know what our men do, and we should not fail to thank them every time we see them.

Our families, our friends, our neighbors, and even the tourists passing through are safer because this crew exists.

care from the Highland General Hospital.

The next priority information for the HCA included population projection estimates.

"The information we used has proved very conservative so far," Hazlett said.

The statistics showed that this area has stable population trends.

The final decision by HCA states that a facility with 128 to 137 beds would accommodate the patient flow. The out-patient department of the hospital was showing an increase and should be built with growth in mind, according to Hazlett.

The 128 to 137 bed estimate was made before the announcement concerning the closing of the Groom Hospital facility.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Thank you for your very personal comment on our "Death Alley". Please continue to keep this thing in constant focus. There should be something we can do. I talk to people who say they go to Pampa and then to Amarillo so great is their fear of that part of the road. The people involved are not entirely to blame. Think how many thousands of miles they have come over wide highways and then suddenly be thrust into such a narrow gap.

Someone said the average driver drives in a mental fog. If everyone could see what you described, I think they would stop and consider a few things. All of us are only a split second from eternity—so what of our lives? Are they such that we can go in perfect peace of mind or do we need to mend some fences? And for your falling apart: Nature takes care of you, eh?

Program shows city officials how to save energy

COLLEGE STATION — A broad scale energy conservation program aimed at helping local governments has been mounted through the Texas Engineering Extension Service.

A part of The Texas A&M University System, the TEEX project is designed to show city officials how to save energy and tax money through such steps as the timing of traffic lights for optimum traffic conditions, conducting building energy audits and other energy-saving measures.

The program provides aid and information for municipal officials through seminars, briefing sessions and technical assistance. The plan also helps train city employees to conduct energy audits.

EXPLORING AMERICA'S BACKCOUNTRY

virgin areas of the North Woods of the U.S.

The National Geographic Society has put together an excellent compilation of photographs and information regarding many areas of the U.S. where the destruction of civilization has not yet reached.

Much valuable information is offered by the always-efficient editors of National Geographic, to assist would-be explorers and adventurers, and the photographs offered in the volume are so very beautiful that they could only be described as breathtaking.

In this publication, you can almost smell the pine trees and realize the dangerous austerity of the desert areas as you meet the few hardy inhabitants of these places, certainly not familiar to many of today's rushing society.

More complete and successful trips into these areas can certainly be made after reading the contents of the book, and you will find it surprising and thrilling as you become more familiar with portions of the U.S. you probably did not know existed.

The photographs alone are enough to entice you to check out this book, but you will find "Exploring America's Backcountry" extremely interesting and educational. It is now available at Lovett memorial Library.

Lions Discuss Auction At Meeting

The McLean Lions Club met in the Lions Hall for their regular meeting Monday night at 6:30 p.m.

A report was made by chairman Darryel Herndon on the results of the Jubilee held Saturday night. Good attendance and an active concession stand made it a profitable project for the club.

A 22 inch, self-propelled rear-bag Greenbrier lawn mower has been purchased by the club for the purpose of taking donations and giving it away the final night of the McLean rodeo June 21st.

Lions Thacker Haynes, Jim Hathaway, Dorman Thomas, Ron Cummings and perhaps others will attend the annual Lions convention in Amarillo this weekend, and Lions sweetheart Sally Haynes will compete in the contest to select the queen from the district.

A gigantic garage sale and auction is being planned by the club to be held July 12. Several nice items have already been donated to be used in the event, and anyone with an item they might give to the club for this purpose would be appreciated, as it is hoped the project will greatly contribute to eliminating the debt incurred by the club in renovating their present building.

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS

TRANSFORM ATTIC INTO BATHROOM
A strong motivation for cleaning out the attic could be putting in a beautiful new bathroom. You may even be able to do it yourself.

First, consider light—a skylight or picture window could be just right to catch the warmth of the sun.

Next, try some potted plants against the wall, by the window or hanging over the tub.

Install your tub in a natural pine frame that serves as both step and storage. Frame your mirror with the same varnished pine.

For the floor, you can find ease of installation and easy care in Ximinez style sheet floor covering. Part of the Duracon Collection from Mannington, it features a never-wax JT-88 wear layer and an "Aqua-bar" barrier, guaranteed for two years to guard against such moisture problems as mildew and discoloration. The natural tile look helps bring in the outdoors and a variety of colors enables a coordinated decorating scheme.

For a free brochure, "Remodeling with the Floor in Mind," write to Mannington, P.O. Box 30, Salem, N.J. 08079.

Folklore used to stir interest in science topics

COLLEGE STATION — A Texas A&M University professor says folk music, sea chantees and frontier legends can turn students on to the nuts and bolts of science.

Folklore is a hook to snare children's imaginations and make them wonder why something happens, whether it's weather, mountain formations or life in the desert, says Dr. Delmar Janke, an associate professor of curriculum and instruction.

"You have to get their attention first. It just helps the whole teaching process if they like the topic," Janke says.

JAMES FRANKLIN HEASLEY

PIONEER STORY

(Compiled by James Cooke from notes by Vida Heasley Cooke.)

James F. Heasley and his wife Hattie O. (Guthrie) Heasley who lived in Jack Co. with their three children Vita, Vergie and Leo, decided to move to Gray Co. following friends who had preceded them.

Our father came out in the early part of 1903 and opened a blacksmith shop on the lots just west of where the library is located on Main St. He planted the pecan tree in front of the shop which is still bearing and is a landmark of the site. The tree is about 75 years old.

Mother and our children came on the Ft. Worth and Denver train to Clarendon where she hired a man to drive us back to Boydston, taking the Rock Island on a trolley to McLean, arriving here April 2, 1903.

When we arrived in Clarendon, a terrible sand storm was raging, and we traveled all the way to McLean in that storm, one of the worst. Mother said she never saw even in the years that followed our first introduction to the Panhandle of Texas!

We lived in one of the Sam Biggers half dugouts northeast of town (about where Vergie lives now) until Papa finished us a half dugout on the corner just north of the shop. Mrs. C.S. Rice said when they came to McLean our mother was the only woman living in town. Later in the year Mama's brother John Guthrie, who was a carpenter, came out and built a couple of rooms onto the dugout.

He stayed on and built a house for himself across the street from us, went back to east Texas, married and brought his wife back to make their home. They lived here many years; he was one of the first carpenters in McLean. Many of the houses now standing in town and country were built by him. The Everett house is one of the first he built, northeast of McLean.

We lived on the corner for a couple of years or so then bought the house just north of the Methodist Church.

Five more children were born after moving to McLean. Theo being the only one born in a half flugout near where Mrs. McCurley lives now.

Papa served as Justice of the Peace many years; he was better known as Judge Heasley.

He also did abstract work and served as the first Notary Public. He was the first Worshipful Master of the Masonic Lodge in McLean, 1904-19. Papa passed away in 1937 at the age of 69. Mother died in 1963 at the age of 89.

Vita married Elzie (Buck) Cooke of McLean. They were living in Vega when a son James Louis was born Buck died there October 22, 1943. Vita moved back to McLean where she died Nov. 16, 1979. James married Ina Crowell of Canyon. They have two daughters, Diane and Linda, and make their home in Beaumont, Texas.

Vergie married Perry (Peb) Everett of McLean. They made their home in McLean where Peb died March 13, 1980. Vergie still lives there. They have had four sons: (1) Perry, Jr., who married while in the service and made his home in south Texas for several years; he now lives in McLean. He has three children; Virginia, Cynthia, and Darrell. (2) James, who was killed in the service in 1944. He was never married. (3) Richard L. (Dickie), who married Effie Lou Carpenter of McLean. They live in McLean and have had two children, Jenny Lee and James (deceased). (4) Kenneth B. (Pete) married Frankie Tucker of McLean. They have had two sons, Perry and Jerry (deceased). They are now making their home in Jackson, Tennessee.

Leo married Stella Bullington of Tucumcari. They have five daughters and one son: Doris, Dorothy, Virginia, Pat, Dandy, and James. Leo and Stella now live in Amarillo.

Theo made his home in McLean until his death May 1, 1978. He always worked as a mechanic; he never married.

Vivian married Dewitt Patty of McLean. They had one son Ira and two daughters, Marie and Joyce. They all lived in California and the children still do. Vivian died on July 26 1975 and Dewitt soon after, February 8, 1977.

Vesta married Alvin Williams of Andrews. They had ten children, seven of which are still living: Ruthie (deceased), Virginia, Buddy (deceased), Mona, Max, Jackie, Shirley, Ada Francis (deceased), Richard, and Billie Sue. Alvin passed away in January, 1968. Vesta still lives in Andrews.

Reo married Audra Lee Anderson of McLean. Audra died June 22, 1968. Reo lives in Shamrock. They had one son Bill who lives in McLean. He married Sandra Graham of the same city. They have a son Ronnie and two daughters, Brenda and Vonda Kay.

COLLEGE STATION — Sooner or later, nearly all Texas homes are subject to the heartbreak of termites and the agony of their teeth.

Texas A&M University scientists say the only known method of preventing subterranean termites is a chemical soil treatment during construction.

A one-time application during construction might run up to $200, while homes already built could require as much as 18 cents a square foot to receive the treatment.

The American farm family is facing an uphill fight for survival, and a Texas A&M University historian concedes that much of the battle has been lost in the last 30 years as once proud rural values have eroded.

The pace of agriculture has shifted to an urban perspective, said Dr. David Schob. With that shift has been a mass exodus from the rural communities.

But the farm life of old isn't dead, Schob says. "The farmer is just in for an uphill fight."

Farmers once thought they were different than their city brothers. Now that the farmer is part of the American consumer scene, he often finds it easier to buy what he needs, rather than grow it.

Prior to 1914, the American farmer was largely self-sufficient, yet today 75 percent of his inputs are supplied from sources other than his farm.

Students speak to support system of free enterprise

COLLEGE STATION — Led by the only Rhodes Scholar from a Texas college or university this year, 18 Texas A&M University students are involved in an unusual experiment — speaking out in defense of the free enterprise system.

Under the sponsorship of the Texas A&M Center for Education and Research in Free Enterprise, an economic think-tank, the students have made presentations to civic and business groups throughout Texas.

In addition to their speaking engagements, members of the group are also writing a series of essays which they plan to compile into a book discussing the morality of free enterprise, inflation, the minimum wage and other economic topics.

The group is headed by William Altman, a graduate last fall from Texas A&M in electrical engineering who received a Rhodes Scholarship and will begin study in September at Oxford University in Cambridge, England.

MONEY SAVING IDEAS FOR A SUMMER VACATION

HOW TO GET MORE VACATION FOR LESS MONEY

A LOOK DOWN LIBERTY STREET—At the Yorktown Victory Center, on Virginia's historic Peninsula, visitors can stroll down "Liberty Street," a multi-media "sound and light" display that lets them experience the American Revolution first-hand.

If you're making plans for your family's vacation this summer, you're already painfully aware of what inflation is doing to your vacation budget. What you're looking for is a way to get more vacation for less money.

Probably the best way to stretch your vacation dollar is to plan ahead. Decide how much you can spend, and design an itinerary within your means. Once you have made up your schedule, stick to it. Try to curb your natural instinct toward impulse buying.

Instead of trying to take in several stopovers on one trip, you might look for a single destination that offers a large number of things to see and do within a compact area. Look for the good quality but less expensive accommodations that can usually be found on the fringes of popular resort areas.

Take the Virginia Peninsula, for example. Here's an area that is situated halfway between the resort areas of Virginia Beach and Williamsburg, no more than 45 minutes from each by interstate. This historic neck of land beside the Chesapeake Bay offers a variety of attractions, plus accommodations that are, on the average, substantially less expensive than those at the nearby resort "strips."

For more information on this idea for an economical family vacation, write the Virginia Peninsula Tourism Council, P.O. Box 7343, Hampton, Virginia 23666.

BEEF CATTLE OUTLOOK:
The following outlook was written by Dr. Ed Uvacek, Extension Economist-Livestock Marketing. You may not agree with his thoughts and price projections, but he certainly gives encouragement to the cattlemen as far as prices are concerned.

Many economic factors are affecting today's cattle market. A business recession, high prime interest rates, the illegal use of DES, a troubled world situation, a shakey consumer demand, excessive pork and broiler supplies-these are but a few. Some of these factors are really significant to the economic of the cattle business, while others merely have a psychological influence on the market. In any case, each has contributed to the sudden drop in cattle prices and created an air of uncertainty in the industry.

Probably the three most prominent among these factors are the business recession, the high interest rates and use of DES. Well, how important are these? While a recession will negatively affect total consumer purchasing, the food industry is likely to feel it the least. The real sufferers of this business decline will, therefore, be industries producing durable items like cars, boats, houses and appliances.

The high cost of money is affecting the cattle feeders attitude toward purchasing replacement cattle. Large losses, however, on current close-outs are the real culprits. The high interest rates are merely aggravating the situation.

Approximately 400,000 head of cattle in 254 lots have been found to be implanted with DES. No one really knows, however, when these cattle were implanted. Such cattle were held for a minimum of 41 days after the implants are removed and then the liver and kidneys will still be condemned. If the cattle are held for 61 days, the liver and kidneys are okay. Thus, withdrawal period is only critical for those cattle that are about ready for market. Others will be distributed throughout the next calendar quarter and should not really create much of a problem.

Pork supplies in the first calendar quarter of 1980 were up 21 percent from a year ago. At the same time, broiler production was up 6 percent. Thus, even though beef supplies were down, a lot of competitive meat was available. Forecasts for the second quarter indicate pork production will be down slightly from the January-March levels, but will still be about 9 percent above a year ago. In contrast, broiler supplies will remain slightly above the 1979 level and even exceed the first quarter totals.

The Cattle On Feed report issued in April, showed 8 percent less head on feed than a year ago. The number of cattle in the heavier weight categories was up significantly, however, either as a reaction to the DES controversy or just because of holding for better prices.

The really significant figure in the Cattle On Feed report was the 11 percent lower placement of cattle into feedlots during the first calendar quarter. That should keep beef supplies quite low during the third quarter.

Intentions to market-fed cattle during the April-June period were estimated by the USDA at 5.9 million head, down 3 percent from a year ago. The placements and weight breakdowns, point toward about 5.5 million head for the third quarter, about 9 percent less than in 1979.

Forecasts right now are all over the board. Some economists are calling for an $80 average for fed cattle by the July-September quarter, while others are estimating a $70 average.

My forecast still points toward a gradual but steady improvement in fed cattle prices during the second quarter and on into the July-September period. The actual price range is shown on the following table.

This strong a price gain will have two immediate effects. It will undoubtedly stimulate feeder cattle prices as feedlots again become bullish. May projected feeder prices are also on this table.

Unfortunately, high cattle prices will also probably push retail beef prices upward. The marketing margin for beef is already up about a third from last year and with more inflation, it's likely to widen even more. Higher cattle prices and larger marketing margins could easily force retail beef prices up over the $2.50 range this summer and set new record highs. Consumer resistance might again become a problem for the beef industry.

Please recognize that outlook statements are based on relevant data, believed to be reliable, obtained from both public and private sources. The underlying data are subject to unforeseen changes and developments that impact on supply and demand conditions. Such occurrences may substantially alter the expected market developments.

Dr. Uvacek's price forecast for choice fed steers in the April-June quarter is for prices to average in the $69 to $72 range while he forecast prices in the $74-$78 range for the July-September quarter.

His forecast for 600 to 700 pounds choice feeder steers for the April-June quarter is for prices in the $76-$80 range. In the July-September quarter, his price estimate is in the $84-$88 range.

Health hints help players enjoy tennis

COLLEGE STATION — Tennis buffs preparing to return to the court as the weather becomes warmer should follow a few simple rules of good health, warns Dr. Allen Ashby, a Texas A&M University physical education expert.

Ashby recommends stretching exercises to loosen muscles before walking onto the court. He also suggests a brief warm-up period with both players standing in the smaller service courts. Other rules include stretching again after playing, drinking water after each game and scheduling games before 10 or 11 a.m. and after 6 p.m.

NEWS OF SCIENCE

NEW USE FOR AN OLD TECHNOLOGY

If you put a stick into a bucket of water, the stick appears to be bent even though it's straight. This, in its simplest terms, is the basis of the technology of fiber optics which, over the past 20 years, has proven useful in medicine, aerospace, mining and communications.

The principle of fiber optics is based on the fact that a smooth glass or plastic cylinder can transmit light, even around corners. While the first successful use of fiber optics was in medicine—doctors used it to get an inside look at things such as blood vessels—you may be more familiar with some of its industrial applications.

Fiber optics is commonly used in decorative lamps. Through colored lights, it can create a "fireworks" effect. Soon, fiber optics may be used to facilitate data transmission in computers, and in telecommunications, where it greatly expands the capacity for transmitting information.

One of the newer applications of fiber optics is in copying systems, such as the new "VQC" Compact Copier from 3M.

About the size of a typewriter, this new copier eliminates the use of lenses, mirrors, baffles, high energy lamps, reflectors and cooling coils in most conventional copiers.

Science has created something to make business easier.

The result: an amazingly simple device that can do simply amazing things with low energy use and high quality output.

This copier has over 200 fewer parts than machines with comparable production capability. Because this new copier uses two 15-watt fluorescent bulbs instead of the 900-watt quartz halogen lamp used in typical low-volume conventional copiers, there's a significant energy savings. The copier features end-to-end stream feeding. This permits continuous production. One 415-foot roll of feed coated paper can produce up to 450 8 1/2-by-11-inch copies.

The "VQC" can rest on a swivel stand between adjacent work stations or sit on a desk.

Alanreed Club Meets May 14

The Alanreed Homemakers Club met May 14 in the home of Sophie Hutchinson. Mrs. Hutchinson served fresh home-baked bread to six members and four visitors.

Nell Keese presided at the meeting in the absence of president Ruth McLain. The roll call was answered with "advantages and disadvantages of credit cards"—in which the majority agreed that cash was best.

Elaine Houston, County Extension Agent, showed some slides on the misuse of selling tactics. She presented the club with the calendar of events and the members agreed to participate in a birthday card shower for Pauline Beard, Council Chairman.

The next meeting will be held May 28 in the home of Nell Keese. Following the May 28 meeting the club will only meet once a month until September. The next program will be on "Trends in Fabrics".

Those attending were Anita Bruce, Lena Carter, Mary Davis, Polly Harrison, Nell Keese, Shawn Bruce, Nicki Dewebber, Davie Gibson, Elaine Houston and the hostess.

Someone called to talk to my husband last week. I thought it was Bill Crisp. It turned out later, it was not Bill. When Bob returned the call, Bill says "I panicked for a minute. Did I call Bob? If I did, what in the world did I want with him?" That is what the telephone can do to your head.

Telephones are different things to different people. They used to be unimaginative and scary. A big, black phone, ringing was—FOREBODING! "Hello, your stock just fell to minus nothing." 1941—RING-A-LING—"Hello, come to the war. NO THANKS MY FOOT! You come to this war! Uncle Sam wants you."

Pretty phones arrived in the sixties, all sizes, shapes, colors and—with buttons.

1. Hold button—You could have five calls going at once (your mother plus four)

2. Call waiting—While you talked to your girlfriend, a flashing light would remind you that someone is waiting to tell you—the check bounced or "bring 6 dozen cookies by noon or else."

3. Away from Home Button—Go to Dallas. Your phone rings in Houston. You get the call right away.

Now the bad news is the sixties had not got one bit better, but it came real fast. If your stock went down and they wanted you at the war—four people besides your mother could track you down simultaneously in Houston so that you would not be left ignorant of this important news for too long a time.

In a work situation, phones are not too much of an emotional problem. A job gives you a definite identity for 8 hours. You assume the Corporate, Government of Joe's Grocery identity easily. "She has stepped away from her desk for a moment" takes care of most situations, if you are the callee.

If you are the caller—you may get lucky. She may be at her desk but your file has stepped away, is being audited, reviewed, anything but paid. Call waiting is never—Sweepstakes winnings or the president "Can you go to Vienna tonight to set them straight?" It is "Your son is acting awful at school. Come and get him!"

Phone calls at home are different. I know who I am at work but who in the world am I at home? Nobody knows anymore.

RING-A-LING—Panic. Who is it? What do they want me to do? I hope it is "Old acting terrible"—I can't cope with 8 dozen cookies by noon.

This Phone-O-Phobia-Mania lends itself well to people with grown children living away from home. Why can't they just call home—scream, holler—O MOM, I RAN THE CAR UP A STUMP, WOE IS ME, MOM! CHARLIE AND I ARE GOING TO TAHITI MOM (but you are engaged to Jerry) or I FLUNKED OUT MOM. OH BOO HOO!

We could handle that. But no—they call and in a quiet, calm, hesitant, question mark at the end of each whispered sentence, each of which ends with—"don't tell dad"—they lay it on you. "Mom the cat in our dorm had 8 kittens, one for each of us. But we've all got these funny scaly spots that itchy. We're scared we'll give it to the cats. What should we do? NOW DON'T GO AND TELL DAD. YOU KNOW HOW UPSET HE GETS OVER NOTHING.

Our phone salvation lies in the someday perfection and economic feasibility of Phone-O-Vision. Knowing my kids they would stand one of their friends at the screen—to pique my curiosity—to answer the phone. After which friend would quickly be shoved away and a smiling face would say "Mom guess what—"

PROGRAM ON STRESS:

A leader training meeting on "stress" will be conducted May 22 at 10 a.m. in the Courthouse Annex Meeting Room. The purpose of the training is to give club leaders program material to present a program at their homemaker club. The club leaders will receive program material and handouts. The training is free—anyone may attend.

HOMEMADE YEAST BREAD:

Homemade yeast breads come alive before your eyes. The action of the yeast and the rising of the dough make breads seem alive—and indeed they are alive. Thousands of minute organisms feed on the ingredients and produce fermentation to produce a light texture of the final products.

All-purpose flour is used in most home bread making. It is a combination of hard and soft wheat containing sufficient gluten to produce a light frame-work. Bread flour is also available for home use. It gives a larger loaf but requires more kneading than regular flour.

tained yeast. Yeast develops best at 80-85 degrees F. The "sponge" method of mixing may recommend higher temperatures, but excessive temperatures will kill the yeast. Too little heat slows the yeast action. Beginners may wish to use a kitchen thermometer until they can judge the correct temperature. If a drop of liquid placed on the inside of the wrist feels neither warm or cool, it is probably 80-85 degree F.

Sugar works with the yeast to form carbon dioxide gas causing the dough to rise and gives the crust a golden brown color. If sugar is increased in a recipe, also increase the amount of yeast, because large amounts of sugar act as a preservative delaying action of the yeast.

Salt flavors the bread and helps control the rate of rise. Too much salt delays action of the yeast. Salt can be omitted in breads if salt is restricted in the diet.

Fat is not essential in breads, but it does improve flavor, volume and contributes to a tender crust and an attractive sheen.

Milk, tap water and potato water are the commonly used liquids in breads. Milk adds to the nutritional value and may delay staling. Potato water may speed action of the yeast but tends to darken breads.

Active dry yeast and compressed yeast are commonly used. Compressed yeast is perishable and must be kept in the refrigerator. Sour dough starters are gaining in popularity and do require more experience to use than commercially ob-

Other ingredients can be added to improve breads. Eggs increase food value, flavor and richness of the bread. They help produce a fine, delicate texture and a golden brown crust. For an open grain and thick crust, egg whites and water are used. Fruits, nuts, spices and cheeses add flavor and variety.

Next week, watch for more information on mixing, kneading, and baking breads.

I want to say a special thank-you to the Senior Citizens Young at Heart Club for cooking me a nice birthday dinner.
And a great big thanks to the Wheeler County Quartet for coming and entertaining us at my birthday party.
And a BIG! BIG! thank-you to our nice activity director for planning the party and serving refreshments. Also thanks to the Thomas Nursing Center for making this all possible.
Sincerely,
Drucie Dwyer

Thanks so very much to the lovely ladies of the Church of Christ for the visits, cards, and sunshine basket. It made my days in the hospital so pleasant. God bless each of you.
And thanks doesn't seem enough for how nice you have been to my husband since we moved him in October. Also thanks to the Baptist and Methodist ladies for being so nice.

Program trains Tarleton nurses for rural medicine

STEPHENVILLE - Ninety percent of the graduates from a new nursing program at Tarleton State University end up in small-town hospitals - just where project coordinators want them.
The two-year associate degree program operates under the philosophy that if students from small towns are taught nursing at a small-town university, perhaps they'll decide to live and work in a small town, where they're needed most.
Two graduating classes later, Tarleton's program seems to be making some dents in the face of severe professional nurse shortages. Of the 36 nurses who have completed the program, 31 are now working in small hospitals.

Loose Marbles

by Lisa Patman

I give up on men. How they are able, with their little pea brains, to pull on their boots, let alone earn a decent living, is beyond me, because certainly they don't have the sense God gave a snail.
You may be wondering what brought about this outburst. It all began quite innocently last weekend. I was hacking my way through the dirty clothes in the utility room, trying desperately to reach the washer before the clothes inside it mildewed, when I noticed that every time I turned my back on the sorted piles of wash, they grew. Fighting the spiders and wild animals, I threw myself back into the jungle to find out why the dirty clothes pile was growing larger than the clean clothes pile. I found, much to my consternation, a dozen extremely dirty sheets. "Aha!" I thought, "the boys have finally changed their bed linens." However, upon running upstairs to look I found the same sheets that had been there since they moved from the crib. (I'm afraid boys think that a sheet hasn't really been used up until the local pig farmer asks to use it to line the sty.) Besides, there are only three beds in our house. Quick computation puts the total number of sheets to be washed at six, give or take a pig farmer.
I must admit I really set myself up for the next episode when I asked "Does anyone know why there are twelve dirty sheets in the wash?" Now I know that this is really a stupid question, that any wife and mother in her right mind would know that the answer to this is something mind-boggling to say the least. So I guess I should have been more prepared for the voice which drifted, disembodied, to my ears. "Oh" it said, "We were afraid that the dog might get cold the other night when it rained, so we made him a bed out of those sheets you have in the linen closet."
"But there are twelve dirty sheets in there!" I cried.
"Well, he's a big dog," said the voice.
Just about that time Old Dad came waltzing through and I thought I might be able to appeal to him--until I saw the look on his face, which said "What clever, thoughtful children, so kind to poor, dumb animals."
Now you tell me, fellow washer women of America, why didn't those sweet, humanitarian boys and their proud father go one step further and think about who was going to clean up after their thoughtful actions. They think the fairies will come out at night and take care of it, don't they?
So, I give up on men and their little pea brains. I think I will be better off if I devote my time to training the dog to start the washer.
