I have been driving on the highways more than usual lately and have found myself reading bill boards and other advertisements to relieve the monotony of the trips. And I have begun to realize that the American advertiser is losing his sense of humor.

We are inundated with tall, dark, handsome men, and gorgeous women who seem to possess at least 140 perfect teeth.

Now, while these ads are certainly pleasing to the eye, they are not particularly interesting. I miss the old Burma Shave signs. Sure, their rhymes were corny, but they did raise a chuckle or a smile from otherwise bored travelers.

I have seen one sign, however, that has raised my hopes concerning future billboard authors. Its message was very simple: "Keep off, baby trees planted."

Now that sign says a lot. It not only communicates, but it also evokes the sympathy of the reader. And it certainly made me smile just to think of all those little baby trees standing around.

There is a notice in the paper about staying off the sidewalks during the remodeling of the bank building, but in case you haven't seen it yet, please stay away from the construction areas. The construction crew is concentrating on the bank front and there will be flying debris in the area. So be careful--we like all our readers to be in good condition.

I have another joke for you, this one told to me by my jolly giant friend from Amarillo:

It was time for the annual Insects vs. Animals football game. Just before the coin toss, the insects coach, "Red" Ant told his team, "I think we can beat them on sheer speed alone, and of course our skill and maneuvering are unsurpassed. The only thing we have to watch out for is the rhinoceros. Whatever you do, don't let him get the ball."

Well, as luck would have it, the animals won the toss and elected to receive. Not only that, but the rhinoceros caught the ball and proceeded to make a touchdown, stomping insects right and left as he lumbered his way to the goal line.

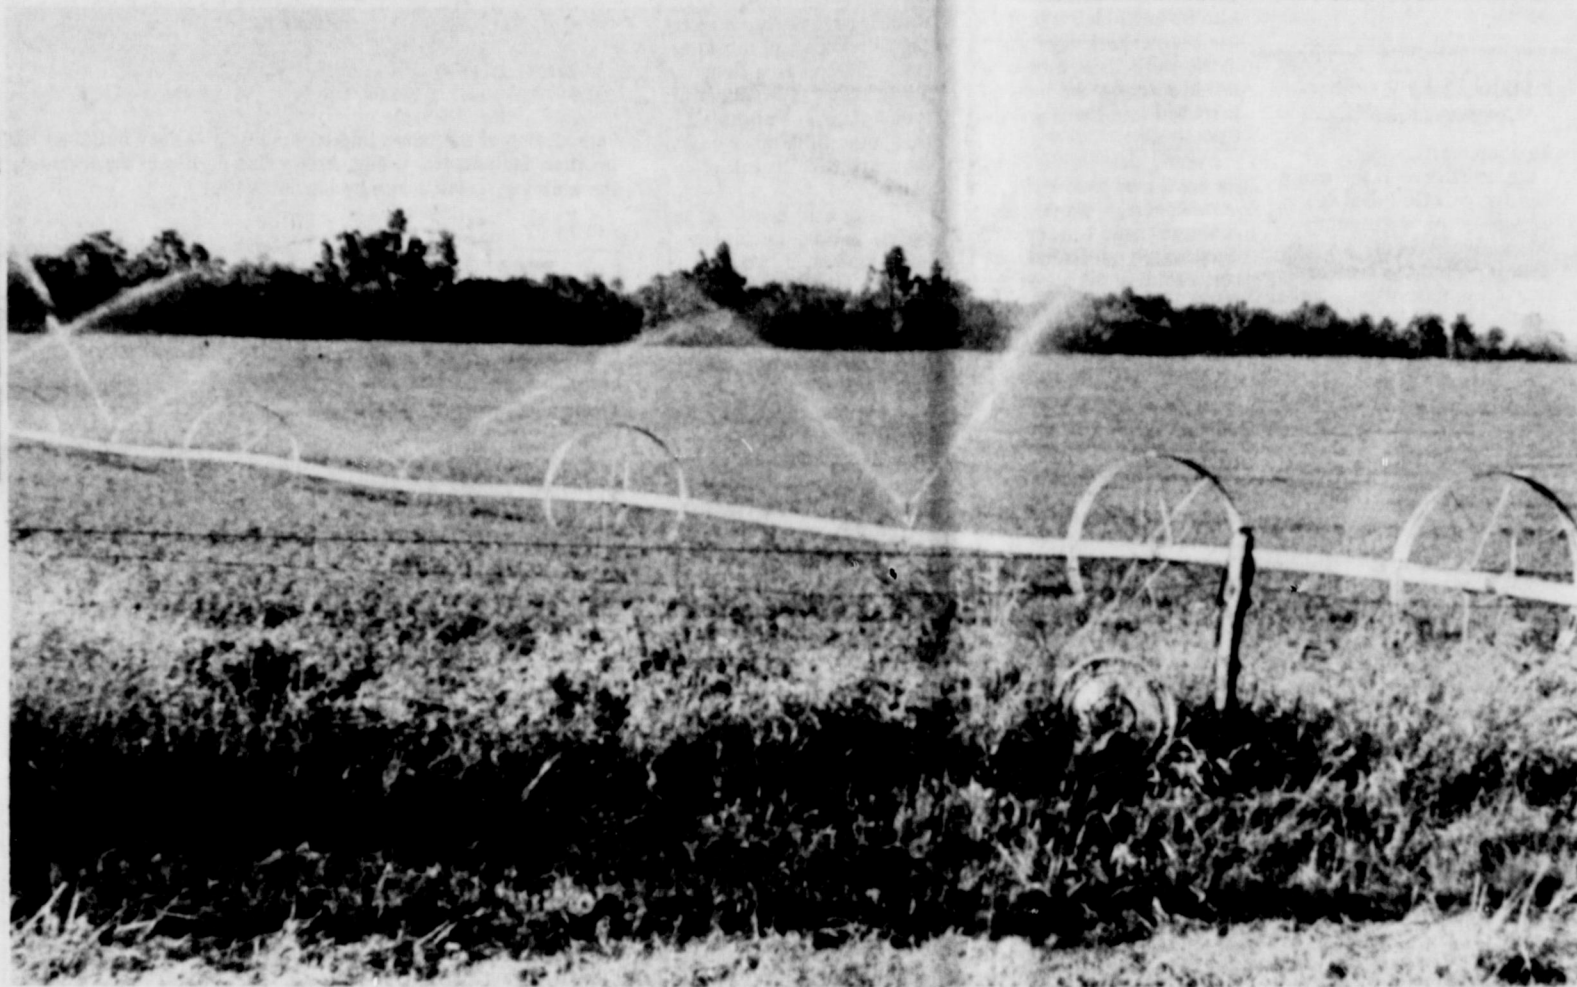

By the end of the half the score was Animals 96, Insects, 0.

The game resumed after a half-time show featuring scantily-clad ostriches doing a feather dance. The insects were still taking a beating.

Kelly Moore Wins Tops In Horsemanship

KELLY MOORE

Kelly Moore of the McLean 4-H won first place in the District 1 4-H Home Show in Amarillo last week.

Miss Moore competed against 87 youngsters in the western pleasure class on her two-year-old quarter horse mare, Frosty Serena, for the first place win. She is one of twenty 4-Hers from District 1 who won the right to compete at the state 4-H show July 20-22 in San Antonio.

Kelly is completing her eighth year in 4-H. This is the second time she has qualified for the state finals. Last year she rode a 19-year-old gelding, and placed third in barrel racing and tenth in barrel racing at the state show. She competed in the southern regionals following her state competition.

Other McLean youngsters participating in the show in Amarillo were Billie Billingsley, who placed eighth in pole bending and ninth in barrel racing; Greg Gabel, Lance Gabel, and Rita Jefferson.

Water Heater Causes Fire At Haynes Home

A faulty vent on a hot water tank was the apparent cause of a fire in the John M. Haynes homes Friday afternoon.

Before the flame could be extinguished, a hole was burned into an upstairs attic area, causing extensive smoke to fill the house. Haynes pulled a garden hose into the house to extinguish the blaze before major damage was done.

The McLean and LeFors fire departments responded to the fire call.

Onions Prove Too Strong For Truck

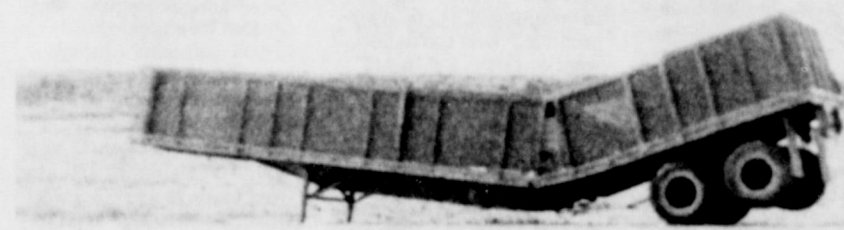

A trucker coming from Bakersfield, California got a real jolt Sunday afternoon around 4 p.m. His truck, which was loaded with onions, came apart in the middle as it traveled over a rough stretch of Interstate 40.

The truck had been welded near the midway point of the trailer. The welding job apparently was not able to hold the heavy load of onions on the rough spot in the road.

The accident occurred in the eastbound lane of I-40 between Alanreed and McLean. The truck driver sustained no injuries in the accident.

McLean Men Participate In Tournament

Shamrock Country Club's annual partnership golf tournament, held July 1 and 2, attracted a field of 112 players.

In the Championship Flight, Gary Beddingfield of Panhandle and Dave Moore of Clarendon won with a score of 132. Terry Dan Hugg and Jim Adams, both of McLean, shot a 150 for that event. The team of David Haynes and Sammy Don Haynes also scored 150.

First flight winners were Dink Miller and Doug Fowler of Memphis, who posted a score of 141. McLean resident Alvin Danner and E. J. Win-dom, Jr. placed third with 148. Johnnie Haynes and Morse Haynes came up with a 160 for their final tally. Buck Lee and Casper Smith of McLean shot 153 in the Second Flight, but were unable to win any trophies. First place was won by Charles Sanders and Nathan Champagne of Shamrock.

The Third Flight was won by Robert Hicks and Rodney Bailey of Wellington with a 36-hole total of 155. Bailey is a former McLean resident.

4Hers Are Successful At Dress Revue

Several McLean girls competed in the 4-H Dress Revue held July 6 at Pampa. Twenty-five 4-H club members competed in the annual event. Winners will represent Gray County at the District 4-H Dress Revue July 25 in Amarillo. Teresa Woods, daughter of

Dr. and Mrs. David Woods, was selected as alternate in the Intermediate Division. Donna McAnear, daughter of J.C. McAnear was voted the Best Rookie Award. Those from McLean winning first place ribbons were Robin Skinner, Donna McAnear, and Teresa Woods. Winning a second-place rating was Candi Carpenter.

Mrs. Fern Woods was an assistant to the Chairman of the County Dress Revue.

The Gray County Home Demonstration Council hosted a tea following the style show. The tea was under the direction of Mrs. Karen Gee.

Cystic Fibrosis Head Named

Mrs. H.F. Fabian has accepted the chairmanship of the annual fall campaign on behalf of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. She will be recruiting volunteers within the community to plan a "Kiss Your Baby-Death of Life Campaign" to take place this fall. The purpose of this fall campaign will be to provide the community with information about Cystic Fibrosis and to raise funds to support research, education and care programs for children afflicted with cystic fibrosis, and other lung-damaging diseases like severe asthma, chronic bronchitis, and

Water Use Nears Record

Water consumption in the city of McLean is near record high, according to a report by city superintendent Bob Glenn at the city council meeting Tuesday night. At this time there is no shortage of water, he reported. Council members Boyd Meador, George Terry, Dale Glass, Ruth Magee, and Miro Pagan met with Sam Haynes, mayor, conducting the business session. The council opened bids on the 1965 GMC city pickup, and accepted the bid of Cecil Back. The group discussed a new type of plastic pipe to be used in the event that the city gas

Former McLean Resident Is Only Female Mail Carrier In Dumas

PAT HENLEY

(Editor's Note: This is an article reprinted from the Moore County News.)

When Pat Henley moved to Dumas two years ago, she had no idea she would be braving the elements of weather to walk a mail route.

But she is doing just that, and is the only woman in Dumas carrying mail at this time.

Mrs. Henley, officially a sub-clerk carrier with the U.S. Postal Service, began working at the Dumas office in February, and three days later found herself outside, delivering mail on foot.

With almost ten years postal work behind her - most of those in McLean - Mrs. Henley guesses she has always carried that same title, and with it, the possibility of carrying mail.

"But I've never lived where they needed a carrier," she laughs, adding that in McLean, she distributed mail to boxes inside the post office building.

She clerked in McLean eight years, until she, her husband and their two children moved here in 1976.

At that time, Jerry Henley went to work for Diamond-Shamrock, and she started work in the Sunray office, waiting for a position to open up in Dumas.

That happened in February, and when she stepped out to deliver mail that first day, she found the weather here was quite different than what she was accustomed to.

"I had never seen snow like was on the ground!" she says, and adds that it stayed on the ground for weeks. People on her route worried about her and asked if she was okay.

But the cold might be better than the scorching heat of the last couple of weeks, Mrs. Henley says.

"The first hot day, I thought I was going to have a sunstroke, she laughs.

"Now I'm getting used to it, but you just can't dress for the heat like you can for the cold," she adds.

And she always goes out well-coated with sunscreen, wearing long sleeves to protect her fair skin.

To keep cool, she walks through - not around - lawn sprinkler, and asks people if she can drink from their garden hoses to quench her thirst.

The mail carrier walks about six hours - that's roughly 44 blocks or about five miles - a day when she is making a route, but only does so when Postmaster Robert Kelley needs her.

"That's always two days a week and sometimes up to five," she says.

The rest of the time, the red-haired civil servant works inside, distributing mail.

Since she isn't classified as a "regular" mail carrier, she isn't required to wear the standard navy blue uniform.

But everyone still knows she is the postman, she says, and the reactions of children are amusing, when they express surprise at her being a lady letter carrier.

Dumas has a good leash law, according to Mrs. Henley, who adds that she really appreciates the dog-catcher.

"It makes you feel really good to do all the walking, but I'm scared of dogs," she explains. Thanks to the city ordinances restricting stray animals, there aren't many running around, she says, and she's even getting to the point of not being very frightened.

"I just start talking to them - I never run away - and they don't bother me," she says.

News from your County Agricultural Agent

By JOE VAN ZANDT Texas A&M University Extension Service

Have you had a lot of ringworm on cattle this year? It seems that some cattlemen have noticed more ringworms lately. This is a fungus and iodine, lime sulfur and other prepared medicants have been used with varying degrees of success. Another product that has given good control of ringworm in some instances has been Thiabendazole (TBZ). This is commonly used to worm cattle and it is also a fungicide. Control has been experienced where cattle were given a therapeutic dose and/or the paste form is rubbed into the ringworm.

Grasshoppers. It seems that we may be in for continued trouble with grasshoppers. Farmers and gardeners need to keep a close watch out for grasshoppers invading the edges of fields and gardens. As the weather continues hot and dry, grasshoppers can be expected to move towards greener, more succulent type cover.

We only had a few calls about grasshoppers in rangeland. The government spray program that has been organized in and around Childress County is only on rangeland and they want to have a flock of around 10,000 acres or more. Also, the material they are using will not do a satisfactory job where much cover is on the ground such as sagebrush and stinkweed.

Insecticides recommended for grasshopper control include: malathion, sevin, and diazinon. Also tozinone is recommended, but it has more use restrictions than the other three insecticides. As with any chemical read and follow label directions. Strip spraying along fence rows and field margins should control grasshoppers in their early infestation stage. If you have a severe grasshopper problem that you need further information on please call the County Extension Office.

ANYONE FOR BITTER CUCUMBERS? This time of the year house gardeners often find that their cucumbers as well as eggplants have a bitter taste. The reason for this is difficult to explain. Generally, any condition that place the plant in stress can lead to bitter fruit. Such conditions are low moisture, high temperature combination of these factors that may cause bitter fruit. When plants are growing vigorously in the spring, bitter fruit seldom occurs. As the summer weather approaches, bringing higher temperatures and less rainfall, conditions become less favorable for plant growth. Consequently, plants begin to stress and bitter fruit often results. What can be done?

Maintaining favorable growing conditions is the best answer. This means watering regularly, mulching to reduce soil moisture loss, and applying light applications of fertilizer around plants. Despite all this, the midsummer heat may still take its toll of plants.

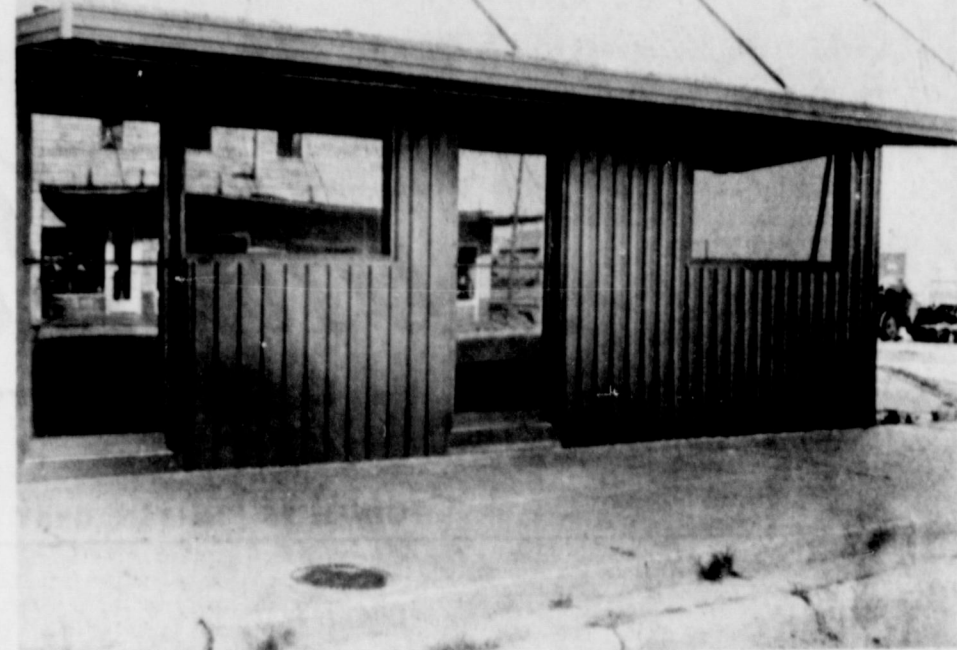

If bitter fruit continues to occur, peeling cucumbers and eggplants a little deeper may help since bitterness is generally associated with the skin of the fruit. Another suggestion that may be worth a try is to peel the cucumber from the blossom end toward the stem end. Since cucumbers are always more bitter on the stem end, this practice might prevent spreading the bitterness throughout the entire fruit. This bit of advice come from a Texas gardener with more than 50 years of gardening experience.

Uphold Children's Rights

Children are the most under-represented and under-privileged group in our society. An executive of the Children's Defense Fund told a recent symposium on "The Family: Setting Priorities."

Adult Americans must fight for the rights of all children, not just our own. Ellen Hofmann told family health care professionals at the meeting, sponsored by the Institute for Pediatric Service of the Johnson & Johnson Baby Products Company.

We must stop thinking that children are outside the political process, identify child benefit goals and funnel our energies into a powerful political striking force for the welfare of the world's children. Ms. Hofmann stated. Their salvation is also society's, she concluded.

THE CRACKER FACTORY by Joyce Rebeta-Burditt by LISA PATMAN McLean News Staff

This autobiographical novel is on the order of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest", dealing with the subject of mental wards. In this case, though, the reader deals with alcoholism as well as mental disorder.

The book reveals the author's experiences in a private mental institution, and her insights are hilarious. Rebeta-Burditt not only deals with her life inside "The Cracker Factory", but also with her relationships with family and friends.

Dramatically funny, the novel follows Cassie Barrett through analysis, and on to her discovery of Alcoholics Anonymous. And it shows her gradual recovery until her re-entry into the "real" world.

"The Cracker Factory" presents warm, human emotions that give us insight into the mind of the individual who needs psychiatric help. Written in both a serious yet humorous manner, the book is not only convincing, it draws the reader into the intricacies of the life of Cassie Barrett, who says of herself, "I'm Cassie Barrett and I have a problem, it's called life." "The Cracker Factory" is available at Lovett Memorial Library.

Film Should Be Mailed With Care

Camera buffs are urged to properly prepare film being sent through the mail for processing to help preserve these precious summer photographic memories. Each year, according to Postmaster Frank N. Simpson, thousands of film packages end up in dead letter offices throughout the country because of careless wrapping and addressing, often resulting in a missing pictorial record of vacation trips. The following tips will help ensure safer handling of film while in the mail stream. Place film cartridges in sturdy envelopes. When possible use the envelopes usually supplied by film processing companies. Make sure that the processor's mailing address as well as a return address are written legibly on the outside envelope. Use Zip Codes. As an extra precaution, type your name and address to the film roll or cartridge before inserting it in the envelope. Your name and address should be written also on the back of any photographs being sent in for re-touching, copying or other purposes. Postmaster Simpson said.

Sign Costs Owner $1,000

An illegal roadside sign has cost its owner $1,000 fine and drawn court orders to get the sign down by August 1. The penalty in the Smith County case is the stiffest since the Texas Highway Beautification Act went into effect in June 1972. Other cases have been prosecuted but fines have been on the lower side of the $25 to $200 range of possible fines. The beautification act prohibits outdoor advertising signs altogether along state-maintained roadways in some areas. In any event, no such signs may be erected unless the owner has a license and, also, a permit authorizing each sign. To get a license the sign owner files an application and bond form and $25 fee with the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation right of way division in Austin. A $2,500 bond is required in each county to a maximum of $10,000 for the entire state. After receiving the license, the owner must get a permit for each sign from the department district office where the sign is to be erected. In the Smith County case, the owner did not have a license nor did the sign have a permit. Neither would have done the owner any good, however, since the sign was in an area where roadside advertising signs are prohibited. The department filed separate complaints against the owner, who had not responded to letters or phone calls. Under the law, each day an illegal sign remains is a separate complaint. After justice of the Peace H.M. Shelton issued a warrant for the arrest of the owner, the owner appeared, he entered guilty pleas to five of the complaints. Judge Shelton assessed the maximum fine -- $200 -- on each of the five complaints plus $17.50 in court costs and ordered the owner to have the sign removed by August 1. The department administers the highway beautification law which covers both advertising signs and junkyards. The state laws were enacted six years ago to bring Texas into compliance with federal highway beautification programs.

Quarterly Reports Due End of July

Employers must report on Form 941 Social Security and withheld Federal income taxes for the second quarter of 1978 by Monday, July 31. If the quarterly liability (reduced by any deposit during the quarter) is $200 or more, the unpaid balance must be deposited. Persons who have deposited the entire quarterly tax liability in a Federal Reserve bank or approved commercial bank have until August 10 to file Form 941, "Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return Return," the Internal Revenue Service said. Employers should use the pre-addressed Forms 941 mailed to them by the IRS or obtain copies of the form from the nearest IRS office. IRS Publication 15, "Circular E - Employer's Tax Guide," provides more information and is available free from local IRS offices.

Making Family Life More Fun

SERVING UP SOME NEW ACTIVITIES

Enthusiasm is probably the one thing that's more contagious than the flu and a whole lot more fun for the family.

Shared interests and activities usually bring family members closer together and help minimize the "generation gap." Learning to play tennis together may banish forever the what-shall-we-do-together-now dilemma and dish up a whole new stew of dinner-table conversation.

Tennis is one activity that you can take up as a family project. It's the fastest-growing sport in the country, partially because it's a game that people can start playing at any age and keep on enjoying throughout their lives.

Almost every member of the family can play. The little ones can usually get involved, if only as ball retrievers. And grandparents are finding that, at their own pace, tennis is a game for them, too.

The United States Tennis Association has been supporting the growth of tennis as a means of recreation and physical fitness for almost 100 years. The Association provides programs and resources for all players, social, professional,

TAKE YOUR FAMILY TO COURT: Tennis court, that is. old, young. They help get instructional programs started in schools, parks and neighborhoods, and their Education and Research Center provides a complete information service on instruction and community tennis programs and facilities.

Increasingly, psychologists feel that involvement in play is as important as involvement in work to adult mental health. By providing respite from everyday concerns and good body awareness, participation in active games, such as tennis, tends to contribute to the "re-creation" of "emotional energy."

For a free list of publications on all aspects of tennis, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to USTA, E & R Center, 729 Alexander Rd., Princeton, N.J. 08540.

The city of McLean has been busy lately cleaning up vacant lots and tearing down old buildings. In the above picture, the old swimming pool on Kingsley Street is being filled in. (Staff Photo by Lisa Patman)
