Three Farmers Able to Feed 97 People, New Figures Show

AUSTIN—In Texas this summer it took just three people to produce enough raw agricultural goods for 97 other fellow citizens.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown reported recently that 284,000 people were involved in the actual growing and harvesting of food and fiber in Texas, according to an annual summer survey released by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

"This low percentage shows the efficiency of Texas farmers and ranchers, who have made this the third highest state in cash receipts in the nation. But it also indicates one reason why agricultural problems are largely ignored until there are food shortages," Brown said. "Too many people have lost touch with agriculture."

Hunters Getting Dove Citations

Panhandle and South Plains game wardens have been busy since the opening of dove season Sept. 1 with over 212 citations being issued for various game violations including over limit, shooting from the public road, no hunting license, shooting migratory birds from vehicles and taking game and non-game birds during closed season.

The all-day shooting hours this fall have put additional pressure on the P&W wardens as hunters begin hunting 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset daily. The dove season will continue through Oct. 30, 1977.

FEEDGRAINS TO BE PLENTIFUL

With this year's feed-grain crop expected to reach the level of 1976, prices to farmers will continue under pressure, says a grain marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. However, the recently announced increase in the farm loan rates for corn and sorghum should cause the prices of these grains to increase from current levels after the harvest season ends. The new national loan rate for sorghum is $3.39 per hundredweight and for corn is $2 per bushel.

National 4-H Week Set October 2-8

The 1977 National 4-H Week theme, "4-H—Freedom to Be," embodies the belief that young people across the United States have the freedom to develop into the person they want to be.

National 4-H Week is Oct. 2-8 and this year's theme will be the core behind the special events designed to promote 4-H and its organizational activities.

National 4-H Week is scheduled annually by the Cooperative Extension Service to bring public attention to the values of 4-H as an informal, youth educational program that stresses development of practical skills, leadership and citizenship, notes Dr. John T. Pelham, state 4-H and youth leader for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

4-H uses the American free enterprise system through the combined knowledge of 4-H leaders and the involved youngsters to create a better environment to live and grow in.

Cattle Prices Show Little Strength

Cattle prices could show a little strength during the last quarter of this year, will probably hold their own in the first quarter of 1978 and should demonstrate solid gains by the second quarter, believes a livestock marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Fed and non-fed cattle slaughter should be down sharply this fall, so consumption is also expected to drop and could reach its lowest level since mid-1975. This lowered production could lead to some price improvement for cattle-men, but large supplies of broilers and pork will tend to keep the price pressure on.

MEAT INDUSTRY SEMINAR

Discussions on employee management, consumerism and the latest research related to the meat industry will highlight a Meat Industry Seminar at the Aggie Inn in College Station, Oct. 7-8. Research work related to plant sanitation, air and water quality control, energy and water usage, processed meats and meat tenderness will be discussed, says a meat specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

TIGERS LOSE TO GROOM; TEXTLINE HERE

The Groom Tigers handed McLean a 40-0 defeated at Groom this Friday night; however, the score was not indicative of the quality of play by the McLean gridgers.

The first half was a thrilling defensive battle as McLean controlled the ball for most of the first quarter, but couldn't push the ball into the end-zone.

The game's first score came late in the second quarter as Groom's Ligger Britten grabbed a seven yard touchdown pass. The score at half-time stood with Groom ahead by the narrow margin of 6-0.

After a fire and brimstone speech at halftime, Groom made the third quarter a scoring frenzy of twenty-six points which included two long punt returns by Neil Wieberg in the early going.

Groom, the fourth rated class B team in the state, added a final touchdown in the fourth quarter to bring their total to forty points, none of which were gained easily.

After the game, McLean head coach Bill Coward stated "I was well pleased with our overall performance, although we had our moments of letdown. I feel we will be well prepared for Textline next week."

The Tigers will face the Textline Tornados this Friday night at Duncan Field. Game time is 7:30, so plan to attend.

Seniors Sponsoring Chili Supper

Freshmen Initiation In Full Swing

It's that time of the year again-what the seniors have been waiting for and what the freshmen have been dreading-freshmen initiation. The fun started yesterday morning when the freshmen came to school dressed like babies and were auctioned off to the upperclassmen as slaves. Today, they came dressed as if it were a cold winter day, wearing sweaters, gloves and hats. Tomorrow the boys will come dressed as girls and the girls as boys and will sing "We Love You, Seniors," at the pep rally.

Each day of initiation, the Freshmen must sing the school song, use the east door and the west stairs, eat in the cafeteria and carry their owner's and seniors' food trays. They will be subjected to dying cockroach drills, air raids and Chinese fire drills. The initiation will climax tomorrow at the pep rally when the most cooperative freshmen boy and girl are recognized by the student council, who designed this year's initiation.

Students Taking Government Tests

The Sophomores and Seniors were given the ASVAB test yesterday during the first four periods of the day. This ASVAB (Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery) test is a group of twelve tests designed to measure the students' aptitude in six separate vocational technical areas. These tests are general information, numerical operation, attention to detail, word knowledge, arithmetic reasoning, space perception, mathematics knowledge, electronics information, mechanical comprehension, general science, shop information and automotive information.

The results of the scores on these tests are combined into percentile scores for the following vocational areas: electronic/electrical, general/technical, general mechanical, motor mechanical, clerical/administrative and communications. The results will be returned to the school within thirty days. The scores will show how well the students did in comparison to a representative sample of other students in the United States who took the same tests.

Meet Mr. Wright New Math Teacher

McLean High School has a new math teacher this year, Ronnie Wright. Mr. Wright teaches classes of math fundamentals, algebra 1 and 2, a class of geometry and a large class of three senior trigonometry students.

Ponnie was born and raised in Andrews, Texas by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Wright. He attended WTSU and graduated with a Bachelor's degree in Psychology, soon after teaching science in Sunray.

He claims the outdoors as his second home; hiking, camping and canoe-ing in his spare time. He likes to hunt with a bow, trap and scuba dive and even write songs. He published a song but credits his mother for that, and also says the one he wanted published, his mother would rather not talk about.

Mr. Wright acquired a house in town in hopes to stay. He added, "I have really been impressed with the cooperation of the administration, with the faculty and above all the fantastic enthusiasm and good attitudes of the kids."

Sunday School Class Met Saturday

Lucille Cullison, reporter.

The Mary Martha Sunday School class of the First Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Gladys Smith for their monthly social and class meeting on Saturday, September 17th.

Mrs. Clara Hupp offered the opening prayer. Mrs. Loree Barker, president, was in charge of the class business. There were discussions about the new class books for the coming year.

Mrs. Levie Smith brought the inspiring devotional. Her topic was "The Invisible Price Tag", Romans 6:25.

Mrs. Clara Hupp was in charge of the fun and guessing games. She also read a history on McLean and the people of McLean which was enjoyed by everyone.

The birthday girls for the past year were revealed and new names were drawn.

The September birthday girls were Levie Smith, Lucille Cullison, and Louise Dickinson. The class sang Happy Birthday to them and they were presented their cards and birthday cakes from their secret pals.

Refreshments of the cakes, punch and coffee were served to Loree Barker, Bonnie Bidwell, Margaret Chapman, Bea Lester, Lucille Cullison, Louise Dickinson, Clara Hupp, Verna Hudgins, Essie Howard, Mildred Mantooth, Levie Smith, Jessie Watson, Evelyn Hunt, Mary Throckmorton, Ellen Robey and Gladys Smith, the hostess.

X's and O's

by Bill Coward

This week is freshmen initiation week at McLean High School. On Wednesday the "Fish" came to school dressed as babies. They wore diapers and all carried bottles around with them. Thursday was a cold day for the freshmen as they wore winter clothes, sweaters, coats, mufflers and gloves. Friday was opposite day. All the girls came dressed as men and the men came dressed as girls. Almost all the freshmen class took part and I was impressed with the attitude and the spirit of participation exhibited by these upperclassmen. I'm proud to say that I don't believe a single one "wet" their diaper on Wednesday.

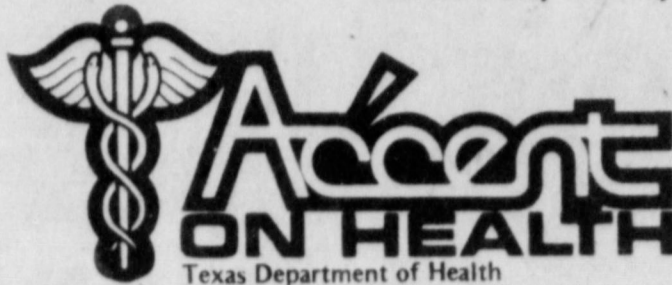

This article appeared in this month's "Interscholastic Leaguer", a monthly publication of the University Interscholastic League. It is titled "Liquor Ban at Contests". Administrators and other officials are not arbitrary with their will not permit liquor upon public school grounds. House Bill No. 531 forbids the bringing or carrying of intoxicating beverages into any stadium or field where high school athletic events are being carried on. This Bill is quoted below. For the benefit of all public school officials: Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to bring or carry into any enclosure, field, or stadium, where athletic events, sponsored or participated in by the public schools of this state, are being held, any intoxicating beverage in his possession while in or on said enclosure, field or stadium. Section 2. Provided that if any officer of this state sees any person or persons violating the terms of section 1 of this act, he shall immediately seize such intoxicating beverage and shall within a reasonable time thereafter deliver same to the County or District Attorney."

Next Friday night, before the Miami game, the Senior Class will be having a chili supper in the school cafeteria. On Tuesday evening, they will be selling advance tickets for this event. The time will be in next weeks paper and signs will be posted throughout town to remind you. I can promise you a good meal and plenty of good fellowship before the ball game. Tickets will be on sale at the door also.

After watching the film of last week's game I am encouraged at the progress our team has made. It is very easy to get down on a team after a loss such as that but I still believe that the boys are making progress each week. Groom was ranked Number 4 in the state and we played them one good ball game. The Groom coaches had nothing but praise for McLean and the tough hard-nosed game we played. That was the first game in which Groom had really been hit hard and challenged. When you have a team that is used to winning and has a lot of tradition behind them, they're hard to beat. I think the athletic program in McLean is on the upswing and we will beat Groom eventually.

I think it is important that you stay behind the team. This is going to be a good year for McLean and we need your support. The team members have good attitudes and they have not given up. We need you to be like the optimist as described by McLandburgh Wilson in his work "Optimist and Pessimist". "The optimist sees the doughnut, the pessimist, the hole." We all see doughnuts and I hope you do too. Textline will not be an easy ballgame for us. They have an excellent quarterback and a good corps of receivers. Although they are

Have you ever noticed the skull and crossbones symbol on a bottle of rubbing alcohol?

If so, maybe you read the rest of the label warning, "Danger: Poison - Flammable - Vapor Harmful. May be fatal or cause blindness if swallowed."

Have you wondered who is responsible for being sure this warning and similar ones are on products used by the public as health safety measures?

For many years now, the Texas Department of Health has been responsible for consumer protection through its Product Safety Division. Since 1939, the Department has enforced the Texas Bedding Act, which provides for the inspection and certification of sanitary bedding products.

In 1971, the Department's product safety program was expanded under the Texas Hazardous Substances Act to identify and protect the public from hazardous substances, to ensure proper labeling and in some cases to ban hazardous products.

"In a nutshell, what we attempt to do is to protect the consumer from unreasonable risks associated with household products," says Norman T. Mansell, product safety program chief in the Product Safety Division. "When we talk about hazardous substances, we are talking about products which might be flammable, toxic, corrosive, or an irritant."

Most know what flammable means, but toxic means any substance other than radioactive ones which can cause injury through breathing, eating or absorption through the body surface. Corrosive means any substance that can destroy living tissue through chemical action on contact. Irritant is any non-corrosive substance which will cause a local inflammatory reaction. The program has directed its attention particularly toward the flammability of clothing, especially children's clothing and aerosol sprays, cleaners, polishes and other normal household items.

"We regularly check factories, warehouses and such places as super markets, paint stores, hardware stores, garment manufacturers, and retail outlets where goods with hazardous substances are sold to the public," said Mansell. To make inspections for both the Hazardous Substances Act and the Texas Bedding Act, the Product Safety Division has nine field offices in San Antonio, Arlington, Lubbock, Houston and Austin.

"It's our duty to see that hazardous substances are labeled sufficiently to inform customers of the dangers involved in their use, storage or handling," said Mansell. "For example, a Texas manufacturer of liquid floor wax was marketing a product which was flammable--but the label didn't say so. We notified him, and now it carries the proper warning."

Mansell said the Department also sees to it that labels carry instructions for first aid when it is considered necessary. For example, the label on a brand name of everyday household lubricating oil reads "Danger: If swallowed. Do not induce vomiting--call a physician."

Any product used in the household which is potentially dangerous enough to endanger the health of the consumer can be banned from channels of commerce by the Department.

Any article of children's clothing, other than diapers, which doesn't meet flammability standards set by the Department can be banned. In the area of children's sleepwear, we have a test limiting the amount of burned material, or what we call char lengths, of clothing subjected to three seconds of moderate size flame. We also limit the time after the material is removed from the flame that fallen pieces may continue burning.

The Product Safety Division participates in joint state/federal contract work from time to time. In the past, the field inspectors have visited drug stores throughout the state to be sure that child-resistant packaging was being used in pharmaceuticals. This was in relation to enforcement of the Federal Poison Prevention Packaging Act. In addition, the Division follows up on consumer complaints about products concerning health-related hazards.

Under the Texas Bedding Act, anyone in the business of manufacturing, wholesaling, renovating or selling bedding or any processor of filling materials for bedding, must obtain a license from the Department.

The Act requires the Department to insure the germicidal treatment of all secondhand bedding and secondhand materials used in the manufacturing of bedding. The purpose of this is to provide sanitary bedding for the public. The Act also requires that all bedding manufacturing plants be operated in a sanitary manner, to provide sanitary working conditions.

In addition, the Bedding Act requires the labeling of all bedding, showing whether new materials or secondhand ones were used in filling--and the type and grade of cotton and other materials used in filling new bedding. This is to inform the consumer about the type and grade of material used in the product.

When I wrote last week's column, the McLean Area had escaped hail storms this year. However, as I was leaving town late Tuesday of last week, the cloud was beginning to form and little did I suspect that hail was in the offing. The hail certainly played havoc with crops in general and especially the good prospective cotton crop.

FISH FOR PONDS

In the past, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has provided fish for stocking private pond at no charge to the pond owner. Due to present economic conditions and a change in the law, the Department will no longer provide this service free of charge.

This year, the Texas Legislature passed legislation allowing the Department to charge for fish delivered to private waters. The rates are designed to reimburse the Department only for cost of providing this service. The Parks and Wildlife Commission has adopted the following charges to apply to fish delivered in 1978: Bass-$2.00 per acre, Catfish-$4.00 per acre, Sunfish-$5.00 per acre and an application charge of $2.00. Ponds 75 acres or larger that require on-site delivery will be charged 25¢ per mile round trip from the hatchery.

The Department will also discontinue the practice of delivering fish to every county seat. Such deliveries are very costly and increase the price of the fish. It will be necessary for you to pick up the fish at a central distribution site for your area; or if you prefer, you can pick them up at the hatchery. As soon as distribution sites are announced, we will be notified in the Extension office.

To apply for fish, please write: Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, TX 78744. Applications for fish at the above prices will be accepted until November 1, 1977.

FRUIT GROWERS CONFERENCE

The 1977 Texas Fruit Growers Conference will be held at the Rudder Tower on the campus of Texas A&M University on Tuesday, October 4 and Wednesday, October 5. This conference is sponsored by the Texas Peach and Plum Growers Association and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Dr. Jarvis Miller will be inaugurated as the 18th President of Texas A&M University at 10:30 a.m. on Tuesday, October 4. For this reason the Fruit Conference program will start at 1:30 p.m. on the 4th. Registration for our conference will be set for 10:00 a.m. until 12:00 noon on October 4 and then again starting at 1:00 p.m. on the 5th. The program will conclude at 4:00 p.m. on Wednesday, October 5.

Topics to be covered in the program include research results on peach insect, disease, variety, bloom delay and herbicides, apples, grapes and plums.

LIVESTOCK HEDGING FORUM

The Chicago Mercantile Exchange in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will have a forum on livestock hedging Tuesday, October 4 at the Amarillo Hilton Inn from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. All interested livestock producers are invited and encouraged to attend. A very outstanding program has been arranged and there will be no charge to those attending. If you want more information give me a call.

CONSUMER NEWS Cities Using Computer Linkup

Economical grocery-buying this week is a bargain -- in eggs and poultry, in beef and pork, and in yellow onions, research for scattered ports Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

At poultry counters, large, medium and small size eggs are available in some markets. Generally, if there is less than a seven-cent spread between a dozen of one size and the next smaller size in the same grade, the larger size is more economical.

Fryer chicken prices are slightly higher, but specials are available at some markets. Forecasters predict higher turkey prices on the way, so consumers might want to buy turkey now and freeze for holiday needs.

Scattered beef specials emphasize chuck cuts and ground beef. In pork, some markets carry specials on Boston butt roasts, quarter loins cut into chops, rib-end roasts and liver.

At fresh vegetable counters, yellow onion prices are attractive-- and scattered bargains appear in yellow and zucchini squash, eggplant, potatoes, broccoli and cabbage.

CONSUMER WATCHWORDS: New crop sweet potatoes are coming to market. These potatoes are not good keepers, so buy in the quantity that you will use in about a week.

Texas cities are taking advantage of a computer hookup at Texas A&M University to obtain financial as well as technical assistance in solving problems and improving their well-being. This service, called the Federal Assistance Program Retrieval System, is provided through the community resource development program of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Here's how it works. Any city, community or individual, for that matter, that is interested in an improvement program and wants federal assistance simply needs to contact one of the Extension CRD specialists stationed at Texas A&M. The request is then fed into the computer, which has a direct hookup with Washington, D. C., to obtain the latest information on types of grants, loans and related support.

"In addition to providing city leaders and individuals with the federal sources of assistance, we go one step further," points out Jack Jones, one of the CRD specialists. "We also give the interested party the name, address and telephone number of any state agency that can assist with the request or any regional office of the specific federal agency involved. This gives the persons concerned a direct contact source to begin immediate work on their request."

Jones explains that the FAPRS was initiated in July of 1976 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It is designed to aid cities and communities of less than 50,000 population in their search to secure federal funding for financing needed services and facilities.

"During the past 10 months 112 cities have availed themselves of Jones. 'Most frequent requests concern the financing of sewage facilities, water supply systems, recreation projects, housing for median and low-income families, and development of community centers.'"

Community leaders and others interested in using the FAPRS may contact Jones at the Development Section, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843; telephone 713/845-4445.

Hay Handling

With hay making still active in some parts of Gray County, producers might want to "put the pencil" to their hay-making operations to see how things are stacking up.

Joe VanZandt, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, cites a number of cost figures based on various methods of harvesting hay.

The break-even point for owning all necessary conventional baling equipment is 303.2 tons or 10,105 bales when the custom rate for baling and hauling is 60 cents per bale. The 202-ton harvest level is the break-even point for owning a Bale Wagon. Consequently, a combination of baler and Bale Wagon is more economical than baling and custom hauling when more than 10,043 bales are harvested annually.

Owning a mechanical stacker can be justified when harvesting exceeds 584 tons or 19,460 bales annually and the custom rate for baling and hauling is 60 cents per bale. For less than 840 tons, the combination of baler and Bale Wagon offers the cheaper means of harvest than the mechanical loose stacker. With higher harvest levels the operating costs of the baler and Bale Wagon compared to the mechanical stacker become critical. The operation cost per ton with the baler and Bale Wagon is $4.98 compared to $2.69 per ton with the mechanical stacker.

The round baler provides the small producer an opportunity to own his equipment and reduce harvesting costs if his only available option is the conventional baler and custom hauling which will average almost $11 per ton. If a producer has no hay moving costs comparable to the conventional baler requirements, he can afford to purchase a round baler when harvesting more than 763 tons annually. With moving costs similar to those with conventional baling he must bale 451 tons annually which is greater than the volume required for purchasing a conventional baler and Bale Wagon. If he has the services of a custom round baler available at $12 per a 1,200-pound roll, he must have a volume of 455.7 rolls or 273.4 tons to justify purchase.

It is difficult to calculate all the possible comparisons. A producer must look at his options in terms of custom hay harvesting services available and specific costs for various

Time To Winterize Trees In Yard

You can help your backyard fruit, nut and shade trees withstand winter cold if you will "cut their water off" in mid-to-late September, points out Joe VanZandt, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The principle involved is the hardening off process which hothouse grown plants are subjected to before transplanting. Hardening is done by gradually subjecting a plant to more harsh growing conditions so that it "toughens up" and will withstand adverse conditions better, such as cold and drought.

A backyard tree you have been pampering with plenty of water and perhaps fertilizer tends to be soft and succulent and susceptible to cold injury. As autumn approaches, days grow shorter and temperatures get lower and lower. This starts to harden the tree. To help this process, give your trees a good deep soaking as deep as the roots go (usually 4-5 feet) from the middle to the last of September, then cut off the watering (except shallow watering for lawns) until about Christmas. The root zone of a tree rooting 3 feet deep will store plenty of water to last until the first killing frost.

From mid-September until frost the tree continues to withdraw water from the soil. As it does so, the available water supply in the root zone shrinks lower and lower and becomes harder and harder for the roots to absorb. This gradually puts the tree under stress which slows down its growth and hardens its cells. All the tree needs now to trigger it into dormancy is a gentle nudge--the first killing frost. You tree is now ready for winter, machinery. Good used equipment may sometimes be available that will justify ownership at lower volumes of hay.

To assist producers in determining their hay harvesting costs and in making future decisions about their hay making operations, VanZandt suggests a copy of the publication, "Hay Harvesting Costs in Texas," available at his office.

Mrs. Roy Cullison, Sr. returned home recently from a visit in Houston with her daughter, Mrs. Gloria Vogt and grandchildren and with her granddaughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hickman and great-grandchildren. She also visited with other relatives and friends. Mrs. Cullison went to Jackson, Tenn. from Houston and visited there with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Everett and sons, Perry and Jerry.
