These licenses are similar to last years selection and each license will contain buck, antlerless deer tags, and turkey tags. All licenses are printed on waterproof, tear-resistant paper. The date of the kill on deer tags this year either may be marked out in ink or cut from the tag. ## County Agricultural Agents Texas A. & M. College Extension Service

Joe VanZandt
Corn producers are in the final stages of producing what appears to be a good corn crop. I have had a few ask about when to quit irrigating their corn.

Most of the corn in theampa area can receive its last irrigation when the yellow-white maturity line has moved about half way from the outer portion of the grain towards the inner portion of the cob.

This color change occurs as the outer portion turns yellow, hard and has matured, while the inner portion is white and still in the dough stage.

Break an ear of corn in half to see the exposed corn kernels to determine where your maturity line has developed. Most corn fields need to have soil moisture at near field capacity level for the corn to finish maturing without reducing the yield potential, when the maturity line is approximately half-way down the corn kernel.

Farmers also need to continue a close watch on banks grass (spider) bites in their corn and sorghum fields. As corn nears maturity the threat of damage from a heavy mite infestation greatly diminishes. However, sorghum is still very susceptible to mite damage. Check your fields regularly so that you know which direction your insect population is going and how fast population changes are occurring.

The presence of insects on crops does not necessarily mean they are causing economic damage. Generally harmful insects need to build-up to populations that cause noticeable damage to the crop, which generally means destroying some of the leaf surface that is needed by the crop to produce grain. Mite levels on sorghums are kind of like greenbugs in that we can afford to lose two full-grown leaves on plants before it is economical to spray.

If you have questions about crop production practices, give me a call at 669-7429.

According to a USDA release dated August 13; recent drought conditions in Eastern Europe has reduced prospects for 1976 grain production there following earlier optimism. Wheat and early rye harvest have been only moderately reduced while the coarsegrains have been hit more seriously.

Total 1976 grain production in Eastern Europe is currently estimated at 89 million metric tons, 1.5 million tons below the August 3 estimate and almost 5 million tons less than early season projections.

Fruits of all types are under a water stress when we fail to get good rains in July, August, and September unless you water them. Peaches and plums are developing fruit buds for next year's crop during this period. Blackberries are growing next year's fruiting wood. Grapes, once harvested, will be manufacturing stored food for next year's early season growth and crop potential.

The wise home gardener will water his fruit trees well in July, August, and September. Long, soaking irrigations are far superior to frequent, short sprinkler waterings. The new concept of drip irrigation is an excellent means of watering fruit trees in the garden or yard. Remember, the fruit tree's root system is usually twice the size of the limb spread.

Contrary to popular belief, research has not shown a nutritional advantage of organically fertilized vegetables over those grown with chemical fertilizers. The same plant nutrients which are supplied by chemical fertilizers are derived from organic fertilizer and these nutrients must be in an ionic form before they can be absorbed by the roots. With an equal amount furnished the plant from either type of fertilizer, the nutritional composition of the produce will be the same.

Home gardeners all across Texas are concerned about their curved and crooked okra pods. This seemingly rather difficult to explain problem is due to insect stings, usually from stink bugs. An insect pierces the young, tender pod to suck the plant juices. This injury causes the tissues on that side of the pod to stop growing as rapidly as on the uninjured side. This causes the okra pod to curve and develop abnormally. The solution to this problem; therefore, is good insect control.

Market Report

Turkey prices are inching upwards, but turkeys continue to be an excellent protein choice, reports Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist.

She added that special prices will likely be found on drumsticks, hindquarters and frozen turkey and gravy.

Mrs. Clyatt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Dairy specials are scattered, but good values can be found on milk, sour cream, margarine and milk cheddar cheese.

Fryer chickens, both whole birds and mixed parts, remain at last week's prices.

Eggs will probably continue at their current price level -- and eggs are an economical high protein food.

Although demand for pork has been slow and supplies light, prices continue to fluctuate. Specials are few, but items to consider are Boston butt roasts, mixed chops and pork liver.

Beef counters are well stocked with a variety of cuts. Now is the time to take advantage of prices available on chuck cuts to put some into the freezer.

Other good beef values are ground beef, sirloin steaks, round and rib steaks.

Fresh fruit and vegetable items in good supply at most economical prices include grapes, bananas, peaches, nectarines, oranges, plums, cantaloupe, watermelon, cabbage, carrots, eggplant, okra, dry yellow onions and squash.

CONSUMER WATCHWORD: Stretch the protein of leftover meat by making it into a casserole with egg sauce.

DOVE REGULATIONS AND FORECAST

A split dove season has been set for both north and south zones of Texas and Texas Parks and Wildlife Department personnel are reporting an average number of doves in most of the Panhandle and South Plains.

The north zone dove season is set for Sept. 1-Oct. 14 from noon to sunset, and Jan. 1-16, 1977, 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset. The north zone includes all counties north of a line from Shelby to Kinney counties and all of the Panhandle and South Plains counties are included in the north zone.

The daily bag limit of 10 birds and a possession limit of 20 birds will furnish any hunter plenty of chances to miss the fast-flying dove.

What Do You Know About Alcohol

It is a proven fact that alcoholism is a disease. The alcoholic is just as sick as a person that has any of the other known incurable diseases. So why is it that society looks down on the alcoholic and his family? Maybe it is because society has never tried to enlighten their minds on this disease as they have on cancer and other well known incurable diseases.

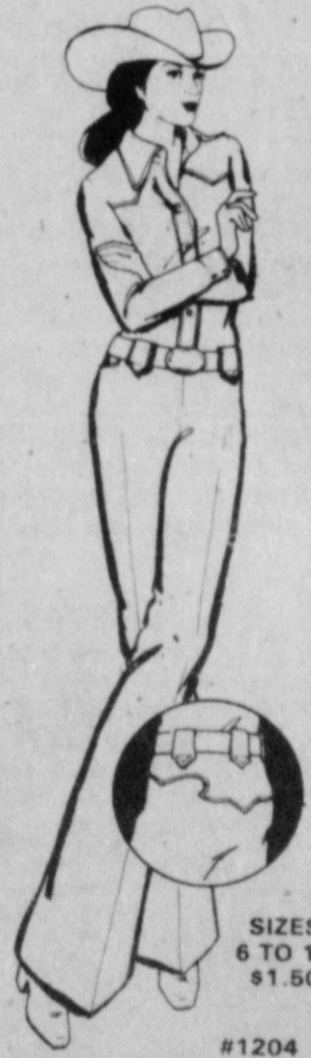

There is hope for the alcoholics, their families and friend, through A. A. and Al-Anon.

You are the only one who can say for certain whether A.A. is for you. If you can not see that you have a drinking problem, that is all right with us, too. All we suggest is that you keep an open mind on the subject, when, and if, you need help, we will be glad to share our fellowship with you.

A. A. and Al-Anon meets in McLean every Thursday night from 8 til 9 in the V.F.W. Hall at 218 Wheeler St.

The delay of any cold, wet, rainy spell during the first part of September will increase the sportsman's chances of harvesting locally grown doves before they head south for the winter.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST QUESTION

Of all the questions one could ask, none could ask of greater importance than, "What must I do to be saved?" This so because the salvation of the soul is the greatest single need of mankind. Although this question was asked nearly two thousand years ago, it's as relevant today as when it was first asked.

The word "must" in this question carries with it the idea of urgency. It speaks of the necessity and importance of obedience. The pronoun "I" suggests that salvation is an individual matter. One cannot depend upon the righteousness of anyone else! The word "do" suggests activity. It takes more than hearing and believing to be saved; salvation requires DOING the commandments of the Lord. (Matt. 7:21)

On the Day of Pentecost those believing Jews who heard Peter preach asked this important question. They were told to "repent and be baptized." (Acts 2:37-38) Saul of Tarsus asked the same question on the road to Damascus. He was told to go into the city where he would be told what he must do. (Acts 9:6) Later he was told to "arise and be baptized, and wash away thy sins." (Acts 22:16) Another asking the same question was the Philippian jailor. (Acts 16:30) He was told to "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." Then, he was taught the Word of God and baptized. (Acts 16:31-33)

Putting this all together we can easily see what God requires in order for our sins to be forgiven and our being added to His church (Acts 2:47) - faith in Christ, repentance of sins, confession of Christ as the Son of God, and baptism into Christ for the remission of sins.

Any other "way" presupposes the inability of God to save and places salvation in the hand and plan of man, and not by the power of God.

FROZEN ASSETS:

America buys Alaska.

ONLY $7 MILLION DOWN.

Ice cubes and penguins. That's what most folks thought Alaska had to offer back in 1867 when Secretary of State Seward suggested we purchase it.

But thanks to thousands of Americans who invested in U.S. securities, we had the down payment on hand. So we bought what was to become our fiftieth state.

Then came the furs. The fish. The forest products. And finally, the gold. By 1900, Alaska's natural resources had repaid many times the original purchase price.

Yep, Americans invested in their country, and it really paid off.

And it still does today. To you and your country. Just sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan at work.

Then, a little is set aside from each paycheck to buy Bonds. Automatically. And what could be easier than that?

So buy U.S. Savings Bonds. They're a warm place for your cold cash.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4 1/2% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

you and the LAW

PRESENTED BY THE STATE BAR OF TEXAS

Q: My wife and I are getting a divorce. Is she entitled to part of my retirement income?
A: Retirement income is among property eligible to be awarded to either party, or both parties, in a divorce. Whether one spouse will be awarded all, or any portion, of the other spouse's private or military-connected retirement benefits depends on several factors. These include: the terms of the retirement plan; when employment or military service began and how long it lasted in relation to the length of the marriage; and the trial judge's determination of what future financial needs of each spouse must be met in the divorce decree.

Q: I paid a security deposit when I moved into my apartment. I'm planning to move out next month when the lease expires. Can I deduct the amount of my security deposit from my last month's rent payment?
A: Your security deposit is not a part of your rent payments. If you deduct the amount of your security deposit from your final rent check, your landlord is entitled to bring suit against you for the unpaid rent. The law allows the landlord to sue for three times the amount of your security deposit and for the cost of attorneys' fees.

Q: Can a will be written for me to allow my wife and children to avoid inheritance taxes?
A: Inheritance taxes which may be imposed on your estate after you die cannot be avoided simply by a provision in your will. However, inheritance and estate taxes can be minimized by proper estate planning. For example, proceeds from a life insurance policy on your life would not be taxed if your wife paid the premiums on the policy. Because your wife would own the policy if she paid the premiums, the proceeds from the policy would not be a part of your estate and would not be subject to taxes.

Q: Our daughter has been spending time with friends we consider undesirable. She refuses to obey when we tell her to stop seeing these friends. Can the juvenile court step in and help us control this situation?
A: The juvenile court has jurisdiction over children 10 through 16 years old who commit crimes which would carry prison or jail sentences if they were adults. Other types of conduct which come within juvenile court jurisdiction include habitually committing crimes which are punishable by fine; such as truancy, running away from home, and driving while intoxicated or under the influence of drugs. Since association with undesirable and disobedient are not included in these categories, the court could not step in and help you control the situation involving your daughter.

people who choose to live in rural or sparsely populated areas desire the same quality health care as their city neighbors. The problem is that not enough physicians and health providers are willing to live in rural areas.

The problem concerns the entire health services system, both the public and private sectors. For a number of years, the medical profession in Texas, through the Texas Medical Association, has looked for ways to encourage young doctors to locate their practices in small towns where they can serve the surrounding countryside.

According to Dr. Ed Schmidt, the past president of the Texas Medical Association, practicing medicine in outlying areas offers several advantages: "short travel time between offices, no smog, no traffic problem, relative freedom from crime, a wholesome atmosphere," he says.

On the other hand, Dr. Schmidt recognizes that most young doctors are attracted to rural practice. He explains, "Some doctors feel that they may not be able to cope with the situation, since they've been trained in an academic environment with a large amount of backup from hospitals and medical centers. They don't feel comfortable" in a more isolated environment, he says.

It's also true, according to the medical association, that doctors in rural areas work harder, often for longer hours, and generally have lower earnings than their big-city counterparts. Furthermore, the doctors -- and their spouses -- often miss the social life, entertainment, and other amenities of a metropolitan environment.

Dr. Mario Ramirez, who has based his practice in remote Roma for the past quarter of a century, knows first-hand the problems of both poverty and rural areas. Until recently, he was not only the only physician in the area, but he operated his own hospital -- the only one in the South Texas county. Now there's a new hospital in Rio Grande City, but there is still a shortage of skilled medical personnel.

Dr. Ramirez believes that the best solution is to help young people from the rural areas obtain an education in medicine. Hopefully, after they receive their education, they'll return to their hometowns to practice among the people they know best. This approach has been used with some success, but it's inherently a slow process -- and the young doctors don't always want to go back home once they've spent a few years in the bright lights of the big town.

According to Dr. Schmidt, science and technology are beginning to help rural physicians provide better care, and to end the feeling of isolation. New devices such as remote telemetry, closed-circuit television, and computers can be used to give the rural practitioner access to expert consultants and other sources of vital information even if it's thousands of miles away. Also, the expanded use of paraprofessional medical personnel, such as physician's assistants and paramedics, helps to relieve the rural doctor's burdensome caseload.

Public Health in Texas has made great strides in its effort to provide better service to people in the countryside. Although there are full-time local health departments in only about 75 of the state's 254 counties, the local agencies now serve roughly 80 percent of the population.

Six years ago, the first of ten Public Health Regions was established. This fall, the last two regional offices will be open for business. According to Dr. Fratis L. Duff, Director of the Texas Department of Health Resources, the whole purpose of the regional program is to form the coordinated and integrated regional staff capable of providing comprehensive public health services throughout the region, particularly including the rural areas that don't have access to a local health department.

Dr. Duff says, "The public health regions have demonstrated that public health services can be provided to all citizens of the state in an efficient and economical manner, even in the sparsely populated rural counties with very limited fiscal resources."

The goal for both the private and the public sectors of the health care system is the same: to ensure that every citizen in Texas has access to the services he or she needs, no matter where people choose to live.

Two Rn's Added To Hospital Staff

Two new R. N.'s have been added to McLean's hospital staff. Mrs. Helena Stubbs, R. N. of Lefors, has been added part-time to the staff. She is a 1963 graduate of Northwest Texas Hospital and has worked at Highland General since graduation in operating room and recovery room most of the time.

Mrs. Linda King, R. N. is also a Northwest Texas Hospital graduate of 1969 and a former employee of Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, Magic Plains Nursing home in Borger and Aransas Hospital, Aransas Pass. She works part-time as Lefors school nurse and here at McLean part-time.

We are proud to have them on our staff.

Also on our staff we have as full time Mrs. C. Winegeart, R. N., Director of Nurses, Miss Patricia Lambert, R. N. and Mrs. Strelita Cabuca, R. N. and Mrs. Minnie Groves, R. N. of Pampa who was formerly of Worley Hospital until it closed.

these students removes their chances to be productive citizens."

To work toward reduction of school related accidents, Nevil said the Office of Traffic Safety would continue working with the Texas Education Agency, related associations, and the many schools across Texas to get teachers and students involved in traffic safety. "We are continuing the Ranger Kit Program, which allows students to participate in about ten hours of instruction on traffic safety. Additionally, we are developing other classroom packages relating to bicycle, pedestrian, and passenger safety. By working with elementary level students, we think we can develop attitudes that will remain positive during their formative years. We trust many of these behaviors will be carried with them as they begin to drive automobiles. Admittedly, our plan is long range, but we think education is the ultimate solution to the traffic safety problems of Texas," concluded Nevil.

Ken Nevil, administrator of the Office of Traffic Safety, said, "During 1975, 562 persons under the age of 18 were killed in traffic accidents. This represents an increase of nearly 5 percent over the previous year." Nevil said many motorists are acutely aware of the dangers during the first few days of school but many forget the hazards as time passes. Calling attention to the impassive attitudes by some drivers, Nevil said, "These school aged youngsters are in their prime and nearing the threshold of adulthood. But, the pathetic killing of

A Weekly Report Of Agri-Business News

Compiled From Sources Of The TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
John C. White, Commissioner

Cotton, Corn, Peanuts Show Increase... Sorghum, Wheat Decrease.

Texas agricultural producers continue to pride themselves to be highly efficient in production of food and fiber, as evidenced by the latest crop reports from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Cotton, corn, and peanuts are above production figures of last year. Declines, however, were noted in sorghum and wheat, primarily due to weather and a reduction in acres.

Cotton production for the state is now estimated at 3.4 million bales, 43 per cent above a year ago. Yield is expected to average 363 pounds per acre, which is 70 pounds per acre higher than a year ago. Acreage for harvest at 4.5 million acres is 15 per cent above 1975.

Texas farmers continue to make fantastic advances in production of corn, a commodity reserved almost exclusively for the Midwest. Although it still has a long way to go in total production, Texas is the leader in per acre yields of corn.

A whopping 110 bushel per acre yield is forecast for the state this year. A 154 million bushel crop is projected. This would be up 36 per cent from last year. Acreage is set at 1.4 million; that's up 27 per cent from a year ago.

Harvest of the crop statewide is now about 20 per cent complete. Most of the corn in the state is being produced under irrigation on the High Plains.

SORGHUM PRODUCTION FOR THE STATE is now estimated at 330 million bushels. This is down 12 per cent from 1975. Yield, however, is expected to be 55 bushels per acre which is three bushels more than last year. The crop is more than one-third harvested over the state.

Wheat production totaled 103.4 million bushels, which is 21 per cent under a year ago. Harvested acreage is estimated at 4.7 million acres, a million below last year. Despite weather problems; per acre yields this year are going to be only a bushel per acre less than 1975.

Peanut production this year is expected to be six per cent above a year ago. Per acre yields are expected to hit 1,600 pounds per acre compared with 1,525 pounds in 1975.

OTHER CROP HARVEST PROSPECTS for Texas include the following: soybean production is estimated at 9.1 million bushels, about 35,000 bushels above a year ago; rice production is set at about 24.3 million hundredweight, which is three per cent less than last year.

Oat production is down 26 per cent this year compared to a year ago; barley production is estimated to be 15 per cent less than last year; rye production is expected to be half of 1975 levels; and flax production will be down 40,000 bushels from a year ago.

A harvest report for corn, cotton, sorghum, rice, and peanuts shows that, percentage-wise, this year is about on an even keel with the three-year average.
