McLean Receives Sales Tax Check

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Tuesday that Texans may be headed for their biggest Christmas holiday shopping spree ever if retail sales continue at their current brisk pace. Bullock said that city sales tax collections--- a prime indicator of the buying public's mood--- are up an impressive 22 percent to date over last year, the biggest increase in recent years. "This increase in retail sales reflects a growing confidence in the Texas economy which we feel will carry over into the holiday shopping period," Bullock said. "If everything continues to go as expected, Texas merchants should have one of their best holiday sales seasons yet." Bullock said that 880 Texas cities were mailed checks Tuesday totaling $19.2 million as their November share of the one percent city sales tax. This brings the total to date for the year to $307.7 million, up from $252 million for the same period last year. McLean received a check for $1,834.27 for this period.

City sales tax collections registered a 13 percent increase in 1975 were up 14.5 percent last year.

McKee said the following bridges in Gray County are included in the program: Widen to modern standards an existing narrow bridge on Farm to Market Road 2375 at the North Fork of the Red River .1 of a mile west of State Highway 273 at a total estimated cost of $322,000.

PHSA Protests Guideline For Health Planning

The governing Body of the Panhandle Health Systems Agency, a representative regional planning organization voted to protest recently published national health guidelines developed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The governing Body unanimously voted to send a letter of protest to HEW outlining objections to the application of national population/bed ratios and their arbitrary criteria to Panhandle hospitals. As pointed out during discussion, a strict enforcement of the proposed guidelines would endanger the continued functioning of all area hospitals. A national survey indicated that the strict enforcement would close 87 percent of the nation's hospitals. The guidelines which focus on short-term opportunities for cost containment and quality enhancement would require regional compliance within about 5 years, limit the maximum number of hospitals beds to 4 per 1,000 population. The Panhandle currently has a ratio of 5.9 hospital beds per 1,000 population. If adopted the national guidelines would require 33 percent reduction in the number of hospital beds available throughout the Panhandle region. General areas covered by the guidelines include a minimum 80 percent occupancy rate, a minimum of 2,000, deliveries annually in metropolitan obstetrical units and 500 deliveries annually in rural hospitals, and a minimum of 20 beds in a pediatric unit.

Public comments in the proposed guidelines should be submitted to: Office of Planning, Evaluation, and Legislation, Health Resources Administration, Center Building Room 10-22, 3700 East-West Highway, Hyattsville, Maryland 20782. Area hospital administrators voiced strong opposition to the proposed guidelines at the PHSA meeting on Nov. 10th and their concerns prompted immediate action by the Governing Body.

Hightower Report

In response to the growing interest in the call for a strike by farmers on December 14 of this year Congressman Hightower issued the following statement from his Wichita Falls office.

The "farm strike" has gained a lot of attention in this area and the rest of the nation. It is a dramatic method of pointing up a very serious problem we face in agriculture today. The American farmers now have their backs to the wall. Their cost of production has increased over 24 percent since 1970. Their income level is far below what it was in 1970 and that was not a year of high agricultural prices. Farm families are seeing their life's work going down under the burden of increasing debts that have been added on and on in order to try for that better year next year.

As the Congressman and as a friend of many, many farm families I cannot tell farmers and ranchers to strike or not to strike. That is a personal business decision and must be weighed by the dictates of their own circumstances. I would not attempt to suggest to these families what action they should individually take, any more than I would try to tell them when, what and how much they should plant. They and they alone know the pluses and minuses the action would have for the farm family's situation.

If the strike can raise commodity prices to the producer good...that is what we want.

I have fought for higher prices in the new farm bill. Each cent of target price for wheat has a budget exposure of $20 million.

One cent of corn target is worth $54 million in tax dollars and one cent of grain sorghum exposure comes in at $8 million. To hear some of the urban Congressmen and consumer advocates, that is money coming out of the mouths of poor starving people and going to millionaire farmers. Those of us privileged to represent agricultural areas know this is not true.

I felt the new bill was an improvement over the current law and that I had no choice but to vote for the legislation. Without it the deficiency payments for wheat that will go to farmers next month would not have been big enough to wad a shotgun.

An actively rising world market will do more to improve the current economic crisis than any legislation we can get through Congress.

The one positive factor in the Administration's agricultural policy is that they are trying to bring back those foreign customers turned off by dock strikes, sale embargoes and the general now you can't have it now you can't policy of the past four years

These other countries want to know they can buy from us during the lean years as well as those when everyone has a surplus. All of this will take time. We are not going to see this surplus go away over night in spite of the new export activity we have seen the past few weeks. Many of our farmers have run out of time.

The strike process will require sacrifice on the part of the people involved. If it accomplishes its objectives the entire economy will be strengthened. I hope one of the results of this action is a sounder American agriculture.

TIME TO PLANT SHADE TREES

Fall is a good time to plant shade trees because it allows time for a tree's root system to develop and become well established before top growth begins next spring says a landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. However only container-grown or balled-and-burlapped trees should be used for fall planting. Be sure to select trees that are well adapted to the area. When planting, dig a large enough pit stake the tree and then water thoroughly.

Market Report

Fruit and vegetables, along with some meats offer best economy at Texas grocery markets, according to Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt consumer marketing information specialist.

Best buys are apples, oranges, grapefruit, bananas, cranberries, avocados and pears. Usually "by the bag" is most economical for medium-size fruit.

Most economical items are potatoes, dry yellow onions, carrots, mustard collards, turnip and greens, hard-shell squash and sweet potatoes. Eggplant, cauliflower and broccoli have moderate prices.

Some markets offer fryer-chicken specials. In egg buying Grade A large-size eggs are generally most economical.

Some specials appear on chuck roasts, chuck and round steaks, ground beef liver and some of the more tender cuts, such as sirloin steak. Fat values include loin roasts, boneless ham and shoulder roasts and steaks.

Canned corn, tomatoes and tomato products are features in many stores.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Haynes of McLean announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Kathy Lynne Faines, to Carl Wayne Carter son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carter of Clarendon. Vows will be exchanged December 29 in the First United Methodist church of McLean.

Fish Habitat Is Approved

A special 25-foot, steel-hull barge was hauled to Lubbock's Yellowhouse Canyon lakes last week by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and over 1,000 old vehicle tires were banded and sunk into two of the lakes.

These artificial fish "attractors" are part of a statewide plan to help replace some of the natural cover that was eliminated during lake construction such as trees, rocks and brush which were considered undesirable in the lakes.

The vehicle tires were used in the Lubbock project due to their availability and all were furnished by the parks and recreation department of Lubbock along with several crews to help in the two-day operation.

Each fish attractor consisted of five tires banded together and placed at strategic spots in the two lakes. These areas are accessible to anglers and each attractor should concentrate fish for harvest.

For years, management of public lakes for sportfishing consisted of stocking these reservoir lakes with desirable game fish but, many times the fish were not available to the bank fisherman or were scattered over the lake.

This new management technique assists in improving fish habitat and provides an area where fish can hide from predators, rest, find food and in some cases, spawn.

Other forms of attractors have been used in various Texas lakes and should help provide better fishing for state anglers.

TX Pullworm-Fowl Typhoid Program

Pullorum-Fowl Typhoid, a serious problem of poultry in years past, now faces extinction in Texas. Strict sanitation practices and blood testing procedures have enabled poultry producers to control the disease however, it has not been completely eliminated from the state.

Although not widespread, isolated outbreaks of the disease do occur. Because Texas is not Pullorum-Fowl Typhoid free, poultry and poultry products from the state may soon face discrimination for out-of-state shipments. Any interstate or international restriction of trade aimed at our valuable poultry industry would be highly undesirable. Therefore, the Texas legislature has passed a law to eradicate Pullorum-Fowl Typhoid.

On September 1, 1977 the Texas mandatory Pullorum-Fowl Typhoid Act became effective. This program using laboratory testing procedures, will be responsible for certifying that all breeder flocks and hatcheries are free of the disease. This is the first step to insure future generations of poultry do not have problems. The program will primarily involve commercial poultry producers and exhibition poultry owners. However, under certain conditions, any poultry owner might be affected. A poultry flock that meets the state's testing requirements can be certified without cost to the owner. Voluntary registration by all breeder flocks and hatcheries is encouraged with registration forms available at County Extension offices.

Additional information about the Pullorum-Fowl Typhoid Eradication Program is available at County Extension offices or the Dept. Veterinary Microbiology, Texas A&M University, College Station Texas.

WINTERIZE COWS FOR PROFIT
 With winter approaching, stockmen can take certain steps to "winterize" their cow herd for a more efficient operation.

Efficiency is increased mainly by culling unproductive cows that would otherwise consume costly supplemental feed.

The following steps can serve a cow herd "winterizing":

1. Sell all cows found open in a pregnancy test.
2. Treat eyes for injury, blindness and tumors.
3. Check teeth for excessive wear and decay—both cause problems in eating and loss of weight.
4. Inspect ears for ticks and treat as needed.
5. Treat any cow showing signs of stress from internal parasites.
6. Remove all cows in poor condition since they probably will not conceive next year.
7. Watch for lameness and any other problem in structural soundness that might limit the cow's ability to forage.
8. Check udders and teats for injuries that may limit the milk when the calf does arrive.
9. Search last year's records for health problems that may limit a cow's future usefulness, such as retained placenta, calving difficulty or prolapsed uteri.

"Winterizing" the cow herd is just good, sound management. This saves on supplemental feed and also reduces the competition for range grasses. MULCH STRAWBERRIES

Strawberry growers in the Panhandle must apply a mulch soon if they want to protect the crowns from low temperature injury. The blossoms which will develop into berries next spring are started in the crown this fall. If crowns are exposed to temperatures of 10 degrees F. or below, the tiny buds may be killed. Since we have temperatures below 10 degrees F., a mulch of wheat straw 2 to 3 inches deep over the entire bed including the crowns and row middles is recommended. This is best done as soon as night temperatures go down to 20 degrees F. or below for several days. Next spring pull the straw away from over the plants when warm days return and new growth starts.

FARM POLICY REMOVES "BOOM," LEAVES "BUST"

Policies designed to take the boom and bust out of agriculture have only removed the boom, leaving farmers to contend with the bust says an economist in marketing and policy with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The 1977 Food and Agriculture Act could lead U.S. producers back into the same policy dilemma of the 1960's due mainly to the 30 and 35 million ton grain reserve which will tend to hold prices near loan levels. With target prices in the four-year Act based on the national average cost of production many small size family farmers may go out of business.

Volunteerism in Texas is taking on a deeper meaning to the Texas Department of Health, and the nursing homes across the state will provide a fertile field for enlargement of these activities.

I was privileged early in October to speak at a meeting of the State Volunteer Council in Lubbock and came away warmed by the experience after meeting with the dedicated volunteers from towns and cities throughout the state. The people reflect the warmth and the fundamental humanity which motivates the volunteer movement.

There's not a community in Texas which doesn't have some volunteer activity. And when you speak of volunteerism you address all these kind-hearted individuals who give of themselves for others.

The State Volunteer Council was organized in Sept. 1949 and since that time literally millions of hours have been given to brighten the lives of Texans in many diverse ways.

The four purposes of the State council set the tone for the ensuing years and are very significant today--28 years later. These purposes are: 1. To function as a force to educate the public as to the roles and goals of volunteers and the needs in the state facilities; 2. To assist in promoting public understanding and support of the goals treatment objectives and financial needs necessary to carry out the agencies' programs; 3. To relate recommendations of the facility councils to all governmental bodies dealing with volunteer services programs; and 4. To serve as a clearinghouse to exchange information and ideas among all facility councils.

Early in the organization's life, volunteers became active in the Department's tuberculosis hospitals and volunteers are a source of inspiration today to patients as well as hospital personnel.

Just recently, the Department has worked with volunteers of the Texas Pharmaceutical Association Auxiliary in developing an award-winning poison prevention program for first and second grade school children. In another program of volunteerism the auxiliary to the Texas Veterinary Medical Association goes into elementary schools with an audio-visual program entitled "A Pet Is A Special Friend".

The transfer of more nursing home authority to the Department has vastly accelerated our interest in volunteerism and the formation of volunteer advisory councils to serve nursing homes. The needs in these institutions are great.

In the Midland-Odessa area, for example, two volunteers assist the nursing home with medical reviews.

People today are looking for ways to serve their communities and to gain some inner fulfillment from their activities. They are looking to volunteerism as a way of social involvement. The movement is alive and well in Texas, and it is a near-indispensable component of institutional life.

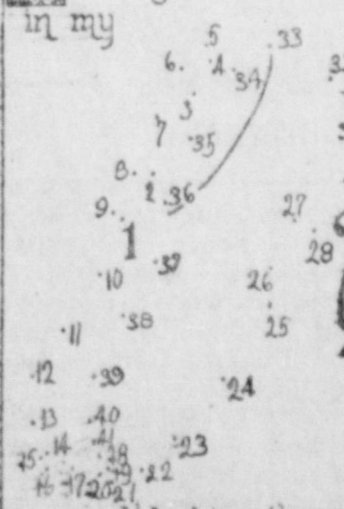

The Department of Health is looking forward to further departmental involvement in volunteer activities at the local level in an effort to bolster the services which we give to all Texans--particularly those in our institutions.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Plan on Dying

Some years ago a clerk in a bookstore, unpacking a shipment of new books, found one on the subject of "estate planning." Thinking it must be about the landscaping of large homes, he placed it in the gardening section.

He would hardly make that mistake today. Estate planning has come into its own, used by thoughtful people everywhere to preserve assets during their lifetime and to pass them on wisely—and economically—at death.

One reason for the growth of estate planning is the growth of estates. Nowadays even the ordinary citizen is likely to have an estate of substance. It may well include not only a home and a savings account but also personal life insurance, group insurance, stocks, pension plan benefits, profit-sharing options, and social security rights.

Another reason is that estate planning has become far more sophisticated. Its techniques have gone well beyond the traditional "testamentary trust" for a rich old lady and "spendthrift trust" for a rich young man.

Unfortunately, there are pitfalls aplenty for the amateur planner. For example: many people think avoiding probate is the same as avoiding taxes. But the federal estate tax is based on the entire estate, whether it passes through probate or not.

Likewise, many people think life insurance is not taxable. But life insurance proceeds are included in determining a person's gross estate for federal estate tax purposes unless he has retained none of the incidents of ownership of that policy.

True, it may be sensible in certain circumstances to avoid probate. And it may be possible in certain circumstances to avoid taxes on life insurance. But clearly this is a field in which the layman needs expert help.

Much information is available from trust departments, accountants, insurance men, and investment counselors. The ultimate adviser, however, should usually be an attorney, since he alone is fully qualified to give the personal legal guidance a program should have.

Some people shrink from the thought of estate planning. But, like it or not, some plan is going to govern the care and distribution of your possessions. The plan could be yours, if you make one. If you don't, state and federal laws—oblivious of your wishes—will do it for you.

Alanreed School News

The Alanreed 5th-8th graders went on a field trip to Palo Duro Canyon last Tuesday. The field trip was led by members of the West Texas Geological Society. The formation of the canyon was explained during the hike down the canyon.

Alanreed was in the Lela Basketball tournament last week. The boys were defeated 16-8 by Kelton and 18-8 by Lela. The girls were defeated 12-10 by Kelton in a very close game and 16-10 by Lela. High pointer for the girls against Kelton was Donna Ball with six points. High pointer for the girls against Lela were Karen Wilson and Rene Connor with four points each. High pointer for the boys against Kelton was Don Bode with six points. High pointer for the boys against Lela were Scott Seiler and Don Bode with four points each.

The 8th grade speech class presented a Thanksgiving play for the Alanreed Home Demonstration Club at 2 p.m. Wednesday prior to their meeting.

School dismissed at 2:30 p.m. today for Thanksgiving. There will not be any school on Monday. The teachers will be in Wheeler for In-Service.

CATTLE FEEDING PROGRAM IMPROVING

The cattle feeding picture is brightening somewhat due to an improved cattle market and declining grain prices. A livestock marketing specialist with Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the cow-calf producer might want to consider feeding their calves yearlings this year. However, they need to remember to carefully price the feeders at current market prices, instead of at their actual cost. Due to reduced supplies, producers are likely to be paying high prices for light-weight feeders.

In some parts of the Okla. people were occasionally married to trees.
