Rose stated he was absent at the last meeting and he wanted to be on record that he thought this was a mistake to move all of the City accounts out of town.

Bill Jameson asked if the Council would consider putting an extension phone in Tony Gonzales' home, so he could be notified in case of emergency or when Bill was out of town. Jackson asked why none of the City employees lived in the City house. The Council said they had voted to let the employees live and own their homes now. The Council elected to place an extension phone for call-in's only in the employees home.

James Gillespie asked the Council if they would set a date for the 911 meeting the week of 22-26. Gillespie stated that Mike Pedigo of SPAG had the proposal prepared to present to the County and City Councils. The Council chose Monday 22.

Rose asked the Council if the City would pay the $250.00 to pay for the City Park to be mowed. He stated that the volunteers were going to do most of the work again this year.

Bill Jameson reported that the tearing down of the Harp Building was in the future plans. He said that the State was going to haul off the rubble for rip-rap after it is demolished.

Jackson asked why the City employees had a 5 1/2 day work week. Bill explained that they usually took the 1/2 day to oil and grease the equipment. Jackson thought they should only work 5 days a week.

Mayor Lancaster stated that the City Attorney Tom Hamilton was reading the law to see if L. J. Barkley Jr. would be able to serve on both the City Council and the School Board. There was a question of interpreting the law from the Attorney General Office.

The Council elected to go into closed session at this time.

LIBRARY NOTES

BY JIMMIE HUNTER

On Tuesday, May 8, Zack Daniel, Courtney Hays, Brittany Donaldson, Cassie and Kitty Campbell, Derrick Moore from Abilene, was has been visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Moore, and his Aunt Kimberly; Chantry Meyer, Brendy Gillespie, Charissa Conner, LaShae Rose, and Clint Cooper met at the Library to sing songs with actions such as "The Trees Are Gently Swaying," "Head, Shoulders, Knees, and Toes" led by Mrs. Lee, accompanied by Mrs. Lola Pohl. Then we saw a movie, "Feeling Good, Feeling Happy" and each child named someone they loved. Before we read, "Hairy McClary from Donaldson Dairy", and made lovely bouquets for their mothers under the direction of Mrs. Winifred Lee.

coming in and rescuing the colorful "Explore Your Library" balloons from the ceiling shortly after they had been delivered by Don Baxter to decorate for the Library visit of the children from the kindergarten, first, second and third grades of Matley County School. I had tied them loosely to the end of a bookcase, and just as I turned the last red balloon so that "Explore Your Library" could be read, all nine balloons shot directly to the ceiling and clung there until Larry plucked them off one by one. Bessie and I tied them very securely then.

We certainly did enjoy the visit of the students and hope they can all participate in the Summer Reading Program. The theme for this year is CREATURE FEATURES. The READ-TO-ME CLUB is for children 2 years old through Kindergarten and will be directed by Mrs. James Gillespie and will register on June 13, at 10:30 a.m. The children in grades 1-6 will register on Thursday, June 22, 1989. Their leader is Mrs. Hal Martin. Both leaders have some exciting plans-books, films and activities so bring your child to as many meetings as you can and help him have fun and increase his reading ability during school vacation.

Do shop our sidewalk book sale Saturday, May 20, from 9:30 - 4:00. If it is raining, just come right through the Library to the back room where we will be selling those books anyway! Hope to see you Saturday.

Capt. Albert J. Eisenhuth, who teaches flying at the West Texas Longhorn Flying Club in Plainview, brought his two guests from Munich Germany, Ilse and Erwin Zeller to visit the Library and we sent them on to the Courthouse where Lucretia Campbell was trying to arrange a visit to the Jail Museum.

We want to thank the following for recent memorial gifts to the Matley County Library, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Turner, Mrs. Howard Traweck and the James Stanley Family, Mrs. Oma Lee George, in memory of Opal Martin; Mrs. George, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson and the Dean Turners in memory of Bertie Gunn; Mr. and Mrs. James Renfro, Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Campbell, Mrs. Winifred Lee, Viola Stinson and Dude Barton in memory of Homer T. Jenkins; and Joyce Smith, Lillian Thacker, LaVoe Thacker, Freda Keahy and Ida Lee McInroe for their annual gift to the Library in memory of Virginia Hoyle on her birthday. Thank you all so very much.

We also want to thank the Matador Lions Club for their donation to finish paying for the new sidewalk in front of the Library.

I might as well include right here a special "thank you" to Larry Clifton for

READER'S COLUMN

The Way It Was

by Emmett Jenkins

In the year of 1884, a man by the name of McLaughlin traveled from St. Louis to Fort Worth. He was looking for work. Upon learning the Matador Land and Cattle Company was looking for a man to repair harnesses. He made his way to the ranch. When he arrived there was a roundup in progress. There were no fences at that time, consequently all brands intermingled. It was a concerted effort of all the ranchers, of the whole area. It is said that it involved as many as a hundred thousand head of cattle. There were chuck wagons and dozens of cowboys.

McLaughlin's only exposure to cattle, was dairy cattle. It was beyond his comprehension. The harness repair only required some three days a week. He let it be known that he could make boots. He measured and took orders for fifty or sixty pair. All cowhands needed boots. He had no money to buy leather, so he carried his problems to Henry H. Campbell, the ranch founder and manager. Mr. Campbell asked him if he could make boots. He said yes.

Campbell told him to go to the book-keeper and make out his order. The order for leather and tools came to six-hundred dollars. He was told all that was needed was his skills.

Mr. Campbell doubled the order to twelve-hundred dollars, as a special trip had to be made by wagon, to Colorado City, as that was the nearest Railroad. This information was taken from Henry H. Campbell's book, "The Early History of Motley County".

The next bootmaker, which I knew personally, was Bill Hendricks. I think his shop was located across the street, from where the Ford Garage building now stands.

Bill was a man who was overly fond of the bottle. I was a small boy when I was taken into his shop. His eyes were bleary and he was more or less weaving on his chair. His speech slurred.

He told me what a fine boy I was and gave me a spool that had been used to hold the heavy sewing thread. To my knowledge he was the first drinking man I had ever seen.

He lived in a blue house across the street from where the Larry Clifton home is now.

When he was really in his cups, he was violent. He would take after his wife, with a butcher knife. She would run toward the neighbor's screaming, "he's trying to kill me."

Another time, there was a rodeo being held at the old ball park, east of town.

As told by the late Chris Damron, according to Dood, Mr. Hendricks somehow enticed his wife to get on a bronc, tied her feet together, beneath the belly and turned her loose. The horse almost killed her before other riders could get the horse stopped to release her.

According to the cowboys, Bill was a master workman, drunk or sober.

A Mr. Blatherwick was a bootmaker that tried his trade in Matador for a while. I remember his name and what he looked like, but that is as far as my memory serves me.

Houston Schweitzer an early Matador cowboy, returned from Arizona, where he had lived for a number of years and where he was married.

He opened the Saddle and Boot Shop in 1924. He was a natural leather worker. Being most noted for the Schweitzer saddles, but he also made boots, which were unsurpassed in both quality and looks.

Joe Hall trained under him and stayed for a number of years. He was also a man of rare talent. In later years he moved to Dalhart, then to Paducah, and back to Dalhart. He made the late Buck Waybourne a pair of boots, mailed them to him, with the information that this was the last boots he would make, as he was retiring.

Fred Fulfer did his boot making in the little building west of the First State Bank, which was built for a Service Station, I don't remember where Fred got his training. He was here for a number of years. He reared his family here. He was also a fine workman.

A young Matador hand by the name of Joe Terrell, was married to Fred's oldest daughter. He trained under Fred and made a boot maker. He moved to Spur, then to Carlsbad, New Mexico.

In the thirties, Mr. Yandell had a boot shop in a wooden building, located where the Post Office now stands.

Dood Damron, our present bootmaker, trained under Mr. Schweitzer for a while, then worked with Mr. Fulfer.

He opened a business for himself in the early forties. He had orders for several pair of boots, and had ordered the leather, when he received notice to report for Military duty. He contacted the local draft board and asked for a thirty day deferment to fulfill his contracted obligations, but was refused and had to go into the service. Dood keeps the first boot he made, in the show case of his shop.

Bootmaking is one of, if not the oldest trade in Motley County. One can see how it is done, by going into Dood Damron Boot Shop and watch him work, and admire his finished product.

Until recent times, cowboys boots were confined to and associated with cowboys only.

If, one other, than a cowboy wore boots, he was called a drugstore cowboy. Cowboy boots are worn and admired almost everywhere. They are worn by Doctors, Preachers, Lawyers, Farmers, Movie Actors and others.

They are accepted with overalls, or your best Sunday suit. A well fitted, well shined cowboy boot is the acme of footwear.

That's the way it was.

Motley County Clinic To Sponsor Fresh Start Program

If you are a smoker and want to quit, then you will want to attend FreshStart. The FreshStart program is a quit-smoking course consisting of four one hour group sessions. The program has been designed by the American Cancer Society and used extensively across Texas to help smokers kick the habit.

FreshStart does not contain non-essential elements. There are no gimmicks, meaningless activities or busywork. The methods and activities have been tested and represent the most effective ingredients for success. FreshStart's success rate may be attributed to the material, the structure and support of the group experience and is equal to that of other longer and costly programs.

FreshStart is a realistic quit-smoking program that helps you deal with smoking as a chemical addiction, as a habit and as a psychological dependency. FreshStart will give you strategies for conquering smoking in your thoughts, feelings and actions. It will also give you concrete methods for handling obstacles as a new ex-smoker, such as stress management.

Gerry Jones will facilitate the FreshStart programs at Motley County Clinic. The program will be held June 1, 8, 15, 22. There is no charge for the program, but you must pre-register by May 25th. For information please call the American Cancer Society office at 794-5808 or Motley County Clinic at 347-2641. FreshStart participants will graduate on June 22.

Cummings read a letter from the City of Roaring Springs requesting some items from the former Roaring Springs School System. They asked for any trophies that were not used, roll top desk, chair, a three-way mirror. After discussion, the board elected to give them some of their trophies and keep some as they did for the Flomot School. They elected to give them the desk and chair, mirror if they would replace it with a desk, chair and mirror as these were used by the school and would have to be replaced.

The Board elected to go into closed session at this time for personal and salaries.

The top brisket will win $100 and a plaque for its cook, while second place will receive $50 and a plaque, and third place $25 and a plaque.

Following the judging at 4 p.m., the winning briskets will be auctioned, with all proceeds going to the hospital fund.

The "giant" garage sale - dubbed a "White Elephant Bazaar" by Sandra Witt of Crosbyton, one of the organizers, will be held on the north side of the Pioneer Memorial Museum on the Crosbyton square, beginning at 9 a.m. and continuing throughout the day "until...?" Mrs. Witt said.

At least 50 families - and "probably quite a few more" - will be providing items for sale, she noted. Proceeds from the sale will go to the hospital fund.

The Crosbyton Fire Department will stage a cornbread and beans supper, an activity it has sponsored for several years in connection with the "Country Caravan" appearance here.

Meat from the brisket contest will be added to the cornbread and beans menu, along with tea, coffee and condiments, for $5 per plate.

Again, all proceeds go to the hospital fund.

The South Plains College "Country Caravan" country, western and bluegrass musical show is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. on the west side of the square.

This popular musical show, sponsored in Crosbyton by the Chamber of Commerce, annually tours through a large portion of Texas and parts of New Mexico, drawing high praise wherever it appears. Cast of the show is made up of students and teachers from the school's unique C&W and folk music department.

The Crosbyton Hospital opened its doors in 1947 as a membership cooperative health care facility and has served the region east of Lubbock since that time, drawing most of its patients from Crosby,

The athletes who attended the State Track Meet in Austin had 50 or so supporters follow them all the way. While in Austin, the tracksters had the privilege to meet three movie stars. D'Wayne Wayne from "Dif'rent World", Venessa from "Cosby Show" and the Preacher from "Amen" were staying in the Marriot Hotel along with the Track team. Even some of the supporters got to meet these people.

The 1988-89 school year is slowly coming to an end. The last activities of the year are keeping the students and teachers extremely busy.

Matador 4-H Meeting

The Matador 4-H Club met May 15 at the 4-H building. Topics discussed were camps for the summer, Teen Leader Lab, and the voting in of new officers.

New officers for the Club are: President- Cathey Perryman, Vice President, Heather Turner, Secretary/Treasurer- Josh Palmer, Reporter- Jeremy Davis, Parliamentarian- Stesha Daniel, Refreshment Committee- Dustin Davis and Bert Darsey, Council Delegates- Josh Palmer and Heather Turner.

Dickens and Motley County, with many others coming from Garza, Hale, Floyd and Kent Counties.

It fell victim to financial woes growing out of federal government inequities in the handling of Medicare payments, Diagnosis Related Groups policies and the mounting problems of rural health care generally.

Its financial plight was announced at a Town Meeting in December of 1988. Citizens immediately began efforts to raise funds to keep the hospital doors open while they sought a long-term solution.

On April 25, St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock and the Crosbyton Hospital announced an agreement to affiliate, with St. Mary providing administrative direction, consultation services and strategic planning support.

The Lubbock institution also agreed to provide a grant of $100,000, with area residents matching that amount during a one-year period beginning May 1, 1989.

Legislation has been passed by the Texas House of Representatives, with Senate approval expected shortly, which would allow the establishment of a Crosby County Hospital District with taxing authority, should county voters authorize it.

"The outlook for the continued operation of our hospital is much brighter now than it has been for some time," Mrs. Rhoades commented.

"That hospital has been the difference between life and death for many, many people throughout this entire area over the years. I don't think anyone wants to see that kind of security cease to exist, whether they live in Crosbyton, Spur, Guthrie, Dickens, Roaring Springs or wherever."

Townspople Celebrate History In Honor of Texas Best-Seller

On Saturday, May 20, the Burlington Northern will take passengers from Fort Worth to Estelline (TX) for the first time in 23 years.

The cause for celebration is the popularity of a book whose title has put the town of 288 people on the map again.

THE TRAIN TO ESTELLINE, published by Ellen C. Temple in 1987, and then in paperback by Dell, has consistently been on the best seller's list in the Dallas/Ft. Worth metropol.

Author Jane Roberts Wood, who grew up in the Estelline area, tells a story based on her mother's arrival as a school teacher. She taught several years on the Matador Ranch in Motley County.

Drawing on diaries and letters, as well as the author's knowledge of local history and her imagination, the book has been widely acclaimed as part of a new trend toward redefining history.

When "Lucy" stepped off the train in 1911, Estelline was one of the largest cattle shipping centers in the U.S. Ranchers of the Southwest would drive their cattle to Estelline for shipment to the stockyards. To recreate those days, Estellinians have displayed on their town square, a likeness of the train that brought Lucy to town. Some invitees will wear vintage costumes to the celebration. Homemade refreshments will be served around two o'clock in the City Hall, formerly a Texaco station. Arts and crafts will be on display. Nikki Eddleman, former city council member of Estelline and owner of the historic Mill Iron Ranch headquarters, will act as the official hostess for the big event.

The passenger train will leave Ft. Worth at 7 a.m. on May 20, stopping to pick up members of local media along the way as well as the Mayors of Wichita Falls, Childress, Turkey, Memphis and other sites. The author will be on board.

Everyone is invited to attend this unique celebration of American Life. Copies of THE TRAIN TO ESTELLINE are available upon request. The author would be happy to comment on her work and the Texas it portrays.

Abortion: A 'Right' to do Wrong?

by Mrs. Judie Brown
Guest Columnist of American Life League

Much has been written lately on what the nation might do if Roe v. Wade/Do v. Bolton were overturned by the Supreme Court. Some have suggested that the question of abortion is best decided by the individual states, and so the Court should send the question there.

Some have suggested that we need a consensus in our nation so that abortion can resolve itself through the will of the people - abiding, if you will, by the democratic process. Again, according to this theory, each state would make its own determination regarding abortion.

I submit, however, that these writers have all missed the entire point! Let's take just one preborn child, pretend that this baby is instead a black slave, and contemplate what Stephen Douglas and Abraham Lincoln would have said about this one baby and its fate.

Douglas would have counseled moderation and suggested that this baby would live or die depending on what the particular state in which he or she lived right decide. Douglas would have undoubtedly told everyone that he was "personally opposed, but..."

Lincoln, on the other hand, in his usual eloquent manner, might well have stated the very defense of this one, single baby that he stated with regard to the fate of all slaves in America:

"Any man can say that who does not see anything wrong in slavery, but no man can logically say it who does see a wrong in it; because no man can logically say he don't care whether a wrong is voted up or down...he contends that whatever community wants slaves has a right to have them. So they have if it is not a wrong. But if it is a wrong, he cannot say people have a right to do a wrong." (1)

Indeed! Mr. Lincoln made the essential point over 100 years ago. Yet in 1989 we seem to have confusion.

Just as in the case of Dred Scott in 1857, so too in Roe and Doe, the Supreme Court denied personhood to an entire class of human beings. In law, persons are classified either as natural or artificial. A natural person in law is defined as an individual human being. Surely, then, the preborn child is a person.

Dean John Warwick Montgomery of the Simon Greenleaf School of Law, in analyzing the Roe decision, writes:

"Blackman's assertion that 'we need not resolve the difficult question of when life begins' is belied by his references to the fetus as 'potential life'....Clearly, human life is not a synonymous with potential human life: an opposition is being created between actuality and potentiality - to the detriment of the fetus's personhood. The unborn, at least during the first trimester of pregnancy, is accorded no more than potential (not actual) personhood, and his rights are being correspondingly attenuated." (2)

Thus by the Court's lack of reference in Roe to the clear genetic information with regard to a person and that person's life, the tragic consequences have become all too real.

Clearly the pro-life majority in America can no longer rely upon political processes and consensus gathering.

Thus, American Life League recommends our every resource to the passage of the Paramount Human Life Amendment, which will protect each and every human person from the moment of fertilization without regard to age, health or condition of dependence.

In the short term, American Life League challenges the Congress to act upon the powers vested in it by the fifth section of the Article Fourteen of the Constitution of the United States by immediately passing a Human Life bill that will protect all innocent human persons from the moment of fertilization.

No one has a right to do a wrong.

At May 12, about 60 percent or 1.8 million of the 3 million acres expected to produce cotton this year on the Texas High Plains is powder dry.

On the other 40 percent, where at least light irrigation is possible, planting has begun and a small acreage, mostly in Gaines County, is up and looking good. But much of the irrigated acreage has been or is being planted under conditions not generally conducive to healthy stands and normal production.

Most critical of course is the situation of dryland producers totally dependent on rain for the germination of seed. And their plight is spawning a host of questions, says Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock.

Questions, he says, revolve around target price deficiency payments, permissible alternative crops if rain comes too late for cotton, and the possibility of disaster payments. PCG has been able in a general way to answer many of the queries, according to Johnson, but he cautions, "As always the final case-by-case authority on cotton program matters rests with the ASCS (Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service)."

Other than loss idemnity from insurance, the only cotton income for producers unable to produce a crop will come from deficiency payments. So those without planting moisture want to know whether they will be eligible for those payments on acreage not planted, Johnson notes.

The answer, he says, is that deficiency payments will be made only on acreage actually planted to cotton unless the producer chooses the "50-92" option. Under that option, producers who plant at least 50 percent of permitted acreage may receive payment on 92 percent of permitted acreage. The option is open until the final certification date July 15.

ASCS defines acres actually planted as acreage planted in a workmanlike manner in anticipation of a normal harvest. "Dry planting" is covered by that definition, Johnson says, unless ASCS determines it wasn't done in a workmanlike manner for some other reason.

Also, he continues, planting after the county's established final planting date will qualify producers for deficiency payments if payments otherwise would be due. After the final planting date, if a producer fails after making every effort to get a keep a stand of cotton, he may plant and harvest another crop on base cotton acreage and still collect cotton deficiency payments. However there are conditions governing which alternative crops may be planted, Johnson states, "and that's something each producer should get from his county ASCS office."

Johnson isn't optimistic about disaster payments, but says PCG is definitely pursuing that possibility. In that regard, he notes, PCG Vice President Larry Nelson of Tullia will testify May 19 at a hearing in Amarillo. The hearing, called by the House Subcommittee on Wheat, Soybeans and Feed Grains, is to discuss pending measures that would extend last year's drought relief law to cover certain 1989 losses.

Social Security Tips For Motley County

Spring brides are as much a sign of the season as flowers blooming.

First of all, it's important to remember that, although social security is designed to provide individual protection for workers when they retire, or if they become disabled, the real benefit comes in its role as a family income protection plan. When a worker starts receiving retirement or disability benefits, or dies, benefits may be payable to a spouse and minor children, up to a family maximum.

However, a person cannot get a benefit both as a spouse on a worker's record and as a worker on her or his own work; generally, he or she receives the higher of the two. Also, if annual earnings exceed the social security annual earnings limits, the benefit may be reduced or eliminated.

Social Security family protection is especially important for children. If either parent retires, becomes disabled, or dies, a child may become eligible for benefits. This is true regardless of the earnings of the surviving parent.

Ordinarily, a widow or widower may find her or his social security benefit reduced or eliminated when she remarries. But, benefits may continue without reduction for a widow or widower who remarries at age 60 or later, or a disabled widow who remarries after 50.

A divorced spouse is entitled to the same benefits as a wife or widow if the marriage lasted 10 years or more immediately prior to the divorce of the worker. This is true even if the worker has remarried. However, the spouse may lose those rights if she or he remarries.

It should also be noted that a divorced spouse may receive retirement benefits at age 62 on a worker's record even if the worker is not actually receiving benefits. The worker must be eligible for the benefits and the spouse must have been divorced from the worker for at least 2 years.

People should also be aware of the public pension offset if they get a pension based on work in public employment not covered by social security and expect to get a social security benefit as a wife or widow of a worker covered by social security. The Social Security benefit payable may be reduced. There are a number of exceptions to this rule, and interested persons should call the social security office for more information. Ask for the factsheet, "Government Pension Offset."

The National Arbor Day Foundation Offers Tips For Caring For Storm-Damaged Trees

The quality of care that trees receive after they are damaged by a storm may determine if the trees live or die and if they are dangerous or safe, according to The National Arbor Day Foundation. With proper care, many damaged trees can again become healthy, valuable additions to your home landscape.

The first step is to assess the situation and decide what needs to be done and by whom. Immediately notify police of any wires that are down on sidewalks or the street. Stay away and keep other people away! In case of tree damage on your property, notify the phone or electric company of any problems with wires - and do not try to correct the situation yourself.

If street trees are the responsibility of the municipality, report damage to the department that handles tree care. Check to see if they will remove the downed branches of privately owned trees if brought to curbside.

For removal of downed trees or repair of damaged ones, decide if you want to do the work or hire someone to do it for you. Tree work can be dangerous and a tree care company should generally be used when:

1. A tree is large and requires high climbing or the use of a chain saw.
2. The tree is partially down (for example, leaning on a structure or entangled with another tree).
3. Wires are involved or structures are endangered.
4. Major repair of the tree is necessary, such as cabling or bolting a split fork.
5. Large limbs are split or broken, but still attached to the tree.

6. You do not have the proper tools, knowledge, or health to do tree work.

If you decide to hire a tree-care professional, select one with care. After a storm it is common for people who call themselves tree-care professionals to come out of the woodwork. Do not be a victim. Make sure you use only professionals who:

1. Are part of established businesses in the community or nearby areas and who are working for the company rather than moonlighting.
2. Have a listing in the phone book, usually under Tree Service.
3. Are fully insured for property damage, personal liability and workmen's compensation.
4. Ideally are members of a professional association of arborists.

It is wise to get more than one estimate when possible. In case of removals, have a clear understanding of who removes the limbs and debris from the property and whether or not the price includes stump removal and clean-up. Your tree may have value as firewood or chips, either to yourself or if sold to others, and should be considered in the estimate.

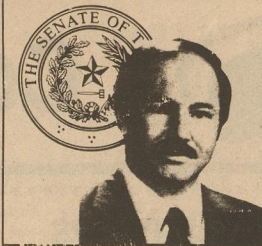

The National Arbor Day Foundation has published a bulletin which shows you how to handle the repairs that you can do yourself. Homeowners can make many of the tree repairs necessary after a storm if they have the proper knowledge.

This information is provided using easy-to-follow, step-by-step illustrations in the Foundation's bulletin called "When a Storm Strikes."

"When a Storm Strikes" will show you how to prone storm-damaged trees, how to repair torn bark, how to treat partially uprooted trees, and how to restore the form of broken conifers.

The bulletin also provides tips on the types of repairs that should be made right after a tree has been damaged by lightning, and repairs that should wait six-to-twelve months.

To obtain your free bulletin send your name and address to: "When a Storm Strikes," National Arbor Day Foundation, Nebraska City, Nebraska, 68410.

CAPITOL JOURNAL

STEVEN A. CARRIKER
State Senate

INTEREST GROUPS STALL SESSION PROGRESS

AUSTIN - Unfortunately, one of the major conversation items in the Capitol these days is not whether the governor is going to call a special session, but how many.

One of the many reasons this is regrettable is because the Legislature has had more than enough time in regular session to deal with the state's pressing needs. But time and again, the process has been slowed by posturing from powerful special interest groups, and intervention by the governor's staff.

One of the most critical areas in which the Legislature must act is the complex issue of workers compensation reform. There's simply no reason why the Legislature cannot approve a meaningful reform package by session's end on May 29.

Legislators agree on the need for safety programs to reduce the chances for worker injury, more accountability by insurance companies, and that small employers need to receive credit for good safety records.

While the special interests argue over how much they're going to "get" and how much they'll have to "give", it's unforgivable not to deal with the areas we all identify as problems in the workers compensation system.

Efforts to help rural health care are also getting bogged down in politics. There are a number of vitally needed measures we must enact to stem the tide of hospital closures. But some interest groups are clearly attempting to stall progress on the issue in order to inject unrelated issues into the mix.

A couple of weeks ago, it was widely reported that key groups were nearing an agreement on rural health when an angry member of the governor's staff interjected himself, insisting that the negotiators start over.

This kind of game playing makes a special session seem even more imminent.

But while one or more special sessions may give Governor Clements an opportunity to make his mark in his last term, such unnecessary maneuvers will also undoubtedly leave a dent in the taxpayers' wallet.

SEEDS FROM THE SOWER®

A tramp asked a pastor, "Won't you feed a hungry Christian?" "I will," came the promise, "but prove that you're a Christian."

"Just look at the patches on the knees of my pants," came the reply. "I wore them out praying." Satisfied, the preacher fed him.

But as he turned to go, the preacher asked, "What made the holes in the seat of your trousers?" "Backsliding," came the answer. "That's where I wore them out backsliding, before I wore them out praying."

Where do you have your patches? Backsliding always begins by being Bibleless, churchless and prayerless.

Backslider - come back to the Lord; then you'll be a victor, not a victim.
