

Hometown Girl Gets Glimpse of Saudi Life

(Following are excerpts from a recent feature in The Wall Street Journal by Karen Elliott House, a member of the Journal's Washington bureau.)

Saudi Arabia's petroleum minister, Sheikh Zaki Yamani, peered intently at my right hand for a moment and then told me I was loyal, intelligent, observant, independent and outraged at injustice.

That was the good news. He also told me, "You are very frank to the point of not being diplomatic." (For the Journal's Washington diplomatic correspondent, that was troublesome news.)

The occasion was an elaborate palm-reading, after lunch and entertainment at Mr. Yamani's opulent home here (Jidda). For years, Saudi Arabia's strict moslem monarchy kept out most foreign women, but now the Saudis are courting Western reporters, even women, and I am a beneficiary of the change.

Mr. Yamani also offered to cast my horoscope. Did I know the precise hour and place of my birth? he asked. I told him I was born in Matador, Texas, a Panhandle town of 900 souls. "Not Houston or Dallas?" he asked perplexed. "I don't know this city; I must have its latitude and longitude." Since I couldn't offer that information immediately, delivery of the horoscope was postponed; Sheikh Yamani may still be looking for Matador on a map.

All I wanted from the visit were interviews with government officials and a glimpse of Saudi life. What I got was that plus much more; a VIP airport welcome, invitations to lunch and dinner with cabinet ministers, and a host of impressions about a country locked in a struggle between the 15th and 20th centuries.

Most Saudi women, of course, aren't treated so well. They aren't allowed to show their faces in public; the veil is still required. Nor can Saudi women have any social contact with men outside their own families. And "morals police" patrol the streets to ensure that women don't reveal a bare arm or ankle.

But there is another face to Saudi Arabia. In the privacy of their homes, some modern Saudis, including Mr. Yamani, allow their wives to mix unveiled at Western-style dinner parties.

The night I arrived here, I was whisked, disheveled and tired, from the airport to Mr. Yamani's home for what I supposed was to be an unscheduled interview. It turned out to be a dinner party. Sheikh Yamani, dressed in a black robe and red-checked head shawl, led me into a cavernous room dominated by the swimming pool and to a corner where guests were watching World Cup soccer on color television via satellite.

I was introduced to the mayor of Jidda and his elegantly dressed wife; to Suliman Olayan, a self-made Saudi millionaire, and his chic American wife; to an American photographer named Bob; to a Lebanese singer named George; and to Mrs. Yamani. . . the Saudi women weren't veiled.

Diamonds and Rubies

As I smoothed my casual red dress, wrinkled from the plane trip, I noticed the other women were loaded with jewelry — enormous diamond and ruby rings. One wore a gold watch with a band encircled in diamonds and a face wreathed in rubies. Next to this display my sole piece of jewelry, a ruby engagement ring, might as well have come from a gum machine. (Jewelry is especially important to women here because it is part of their marriage dowry and they may keep it if divorced — an easy-proceeding in Moslem countries.)

Even in casual conversation, the importance of being male has a way of intruding. Often I was asked if I was married. When I said I had been married for three years, the questioner inevitably asked: "You have no sons yet?" The acknowledgment that I did not always evoked expressions of sympathy; Saudi wives who fail to produce sons often find themselves replaced.

Most of the restrictions on Saudi women apply to Western women as well. Although it was 115 degrees outside, for interviews I wore long-sleeve blouses and skirts well below my knees. Before going to the marketplace in downtown Riyadh, I donned a floor-length skirt; officials from the Information Ministry warned me that the "morals police" now are cracking down on Western women. These police, elderly men officially known as "The Committee for the Encouragement of Virtue and the Elimination of Vice," often hit bare legs or spray them with green paint.

During my visit to the market, I saw no bare legs or arms, but

A Second Glance

By Leon Watson

The United States, Europe and Japan are in the process of being merged into a single unit for the purpose of then installing a New World Order in cooperation with the Soviet Union.

An elite group in internationalists now control every key agency of the United States strategy for dealing with the rest of the world. This is the most startling fact to emerge from the takeover on Jan. 20 in Washington of the Carter Administration — ironically you will recall it was Carter who campaigned on an anti-establishment platform. In reality it is now apparent he will turn out to be more in the pocket of the internationalist one-world elite than any other president before him.

But lets go back a few years and see how this got started. In 1918 the wealthy power structure making up the government set up the so-called "Council on Foreign Relation" to groom ambitious one-world political personalities for leadership in all major departments of the American government from the president down. In less than a dozen years the group had gained the power it wanted and has held it every since. Regardless of the party in power, since 1933, this group has dominated both the White House and the State Department. Most of the tragedies which have occurred to the American people since that time can be traced to the schemes of its master-planners.

Late in the fall of 1973 Carter was invited to dine in London with David Rockefeller of the Chase Manhattan Bank. Rockefeller, Giovanni Agnelli, President of Fiat in Italy, with the help of Zbigniew Brzezinski, were at that time setting up the Trilateral Commission, which has become a prestigious forum that has included in its membership leading businessmen, political leaders, and foreign-policy intellectuals of North America, Western Europe and Japan.

At the moment Brzezinski is doing his utmost to stay out of the public eye, to avoid any suspicion that he aspires to inherit Henry Kissinger's dominant role in foreign policy — the fact is he does not aspire to his role, he is already in this position. All Carter's major position papers were cleared first with Brzezinski during the election campaign and since most of the key foreign policy speeches are personally written by him for Carter, it is small wonder that he is seeking to remain in the shadows.

Sixteen high posts in the Carter Administration are held by active or former members of the Trilateral Commission. The name Trilateral stems from the fact that the 200 members of the Commission represent countries in the three-sided Western Alliance, U.S., Western Europe and Japan, all of whom are carefully selected individuals from business, academic, media groups and from workforce leadership. This represents a very, very, powerful and influential body of opinion, which has vested interest in building a multinational economic superstate, to effect the eclipse of all existing Parliaments and constitutional structures throughout the Western World. The cover for this conspiracy is put as a concern for the growing crisis within the Western Alliance. It is really a plan to shape a world order.

Rockefeller picked Carter for the presidency in 1973. His political strategy so far has been in complete harmony with the aims of the Trilateral Commission. A very revealing foreign policy speech was given by Carter on June 23, 1976 to the Foreign Policy Association, in which his very first words reflected the repeated attack by the Trilateral Commission on U.S. national sovereignty and goal of a Trilateral bloc world-government. Carter began his speech, "The time has come for us to seek a partnership between North America, Western Europe and Japan. Our three regions economic, political and security concerns make it logical that we should seek every-increasing unity . . ." In the same speech, Carter indicated that he would withdraw U.S. forces from Korea and support the plan to turn over the Panama Canal to the pro-Communist, Castro-allied dictator of Panama.

George Washington advised that America should always avoid foreign entanglement. In his day this was a new "land of the free". He would turn over in his grave if he could see the government now. Next week we will talk about how some of this conspiracy is working.

Motley County Wins At Rochester

By Willy Palmer

The Motley County Matadors traveled to Rochester Friday night in order to pick up the first win of the season. After a very physical game, the Matadors picked up the 6-0 verdict.

The Matador defense shined in the contest as they hung on for the shutout. The Matador defense, composed of Mark Wason, Lester Campbell, and Julian Zabielski in the secondary, Robert Shannon and Harvey Lee at the linebackers, and Randy Meredith, DeWayne Walker, Glen Calvert, Charlie Davis, David Walker, and Bill Palmer on the line, all played well with several people at new positions.

The offense could never really get going due in part to the fact that 3 quarterbackbacks saw action due to different injuries. Julian Zabielski caught 5 passes for 88 yards from his split end position. Robert Shannon continued to play consistently from his backfield spot. He scored the lone touchdown of the night on a 12 yard run after a blocked punt by Palmer put the Matadors in good field position.

Everyone is urged to attend the game Friday night, September 22 at Burleson Field as the Motley County Matadors face a tough Crosbyton team with the kickoff being at 8:00 o'clock.

Rites Held For Mrs. Leona James

Services were held Saturday, September 16th, for Mrs. Leona C. James, 77, at the Afton Baptist Church with Rev. Woody Jackson, a nephew from Farmersville officiating, assisted by Rev. O. L. DeWees, a retired Baptist minister. Burial was in the Afton Cemetery under direction of Seigler Funeral Home.

Mrs. James, died Friday Sept. 15, in a Lubbock Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. James was born in Comanche County and moved to Dickens County with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Clements. Mrs. James married the late John T. "Buster" Jackson on August 8, 1922. Mr. Jackson died November 1, 1972. She then married Joe C. James of Wolforth in November of 1974. Mrs. James was also predeceased in death by her son, W. H. "Dub" Jackson, who died while serving in the Air Force during World War II.

Mrs. James is survived by her husband, Joe; 4 step-daughters, Francis Dowgar of Wolforth, Geraldine Rich of Wolforth, Wanda Brooks of Lubbock, and Nadine Woods of Garland; 3 brothers, Dick Clements of Rotan, Joe Clements of Flagstaff, Ariz. and Jim Clements of Muleshoe; 4 sisters, Mrs. Mary Barker of Rotan, Mrs. Betty Jackson of Muleshoe, Mrs. J. D. Henry of Lorenzo, and Mrs. Ed Struve of Kerrville, and seven step-grandchildren.

Lions 50th Birthday

Plans are complete for the 50th anniversary celebration of Matador Lions Club, announced for Tuesday, September 26. The observance will begin with a "Super Ladies Night" banquet at 7 p.m. in the Motley County School cafeteria.

Guest entertainer will be Mrs. Hugh Burchett (Jean) of Childress, widely acclaimed as "a female Jerry Clower," who has also earned the distinction of being "The Erma Bombeck of the Panhandle with class of her own."

The Lions members will have as their guests, their wives, all former Lions who were charter members, and their wives; all past-presidents of the club and their wives; all past Queens and their husbands; and faculty members and their spouses.

Because of her popularity as an after dinner speaker, Mrs. Burchett resigned her job as secretary to the city manager of Childress to devote full time to writing and speaking. She worked for the city of Childress for 14 years. Although a story-teller all her life, she didn't begin to write until 1975. Her humorous articles have appeared in the Amarillo Globe News, Wichita Daily News and Childress Index and have been reprinted in many other papers by permission.

She has spoken to Chambers of Commerce and other civic gatherings in Hale Center, Crosbyton, Muleshoe, Hereford, Wichita Falls, Silverton, Lubbock, and Lorenzo.

She prepares her speeches as she talks, drawing on her memory for bits and pieces, a technique which worries her friends, who are afraid that some day she will stand up, freeze and faint.

The Burchetts have three grown children, two daughters and a son. She says, "I have been 40 for five years — just long enough to whet my appetite for a new and exciting career!"

Matador Lions Club Serves Community

A record of service to the community is reflected in the history of Matador Lions Club. Organized by a group of 24 businessmen, meeting September 25, 1928, the club's charter is dated September 28 of that year. The club's first official meeting however, was not held until March 21, 1929, at which time officers were elected.

The club immediately launched a series of civic improvements and community service in various projects which have continued through the 50 years of its existence.

Lion Forrest Campbell has compiled a history of the club's activities which reveals that one of the first acts of service was to provide a basket of badly needed groceries for a needy family. During the depression, the club periodically furnished food, especially at Christmastime, for families in the community.

One of the earliest projects of the club was the organization and sponsorship of the Boy Scout Troop. From this organization evolved the Father-Son Banquet under the leadership of the late Paul Eubank, who was serving as Scoutmaster. The first banquet, which became an annual affair, was in 1938. A Scout Hut was also erected by the club that year.

The Lions Club has sponsored the school's athletic program, helping finance the lighted football field and erecting the stadium seats. The first Lions sponsored basketball tournament was in 1931. In recent years, the club has sponsored volleyball tournaments, and the summer baseball program.

The Matador City Park, with playground equipment and wading pool was another major project of the club. Among others were erection of street markers over the city, initiating street paving, providing flags for merchants to display on national holidays, erecting street decorations for the Christmas holidays and sponsoring a Christmas party each year for the children of the community.

The club leads in the Community Chest drive each year and sponsors other movements such as the blood bank, X-ray health units and the sale of mops and brooms for the Lighthouse for the Blind. The club also contributes to Lions International in the support of the Eye Bank, and the Crippled Children's Camp at Kerrville; a polio drive in 1953 netted $2,800.00, and numerous

Haralson Wins Football Contest

Neal Haralson won first prize in the Tribune's second weekly football contest. He won by way of the tie-breaker over James Bearden, who placed second. Both men missed three games. However, Bearden has taken the lead in total contest points. Bearden edged past last weeks winner, Joe Freeman, who was not in the top three this week.

Bearden's accumulative total for two weeks is 13; Freeman, 12 and this weeks winner, Haralson, now has seven accumulative points.

Placing third this week, also with three wrong guesses, was Robert Phelps of Turkey. Clay Jameson, missing four this week, is third in total points toward the grand prize.

Campbell Now Riding High On 'Silver Horses'

By WILLIAM D. KERNS

Gary Campbell actively participated in athletics while growing up in the small Texas town of Matador. As he put it, "You had to play sports if you lived in Matador because we never even had enough men for backups." Rest assured there was no coercion, though. There was, after all, a certain amount of glory in being a high school quarterback — and Campbell later used a degree in physical education from West Texas State University to pave the way for coaching positions in Abernathy, Sudan and Idalou.

So imagine my skepticism upon learning this former jock is now carving a future as an entertainer. Imagine the smug look on my face when told Campbell's debut album, "Silver Horses," will hit the racks at local record outlets Monday.

It's not that I'm prejudiced against singing football players. It's just that I've yet to succeed in erasing horrid, nightmarish memories of Terry Bradshaw stepping out of the pocket and into a recording booth, not to mention the recollection of a couple of Houston Oilers butchering "Luckenbach, Texas" during a training camp party. And last but certainly not least, who has been lucky enough to forget O.J. Simpson serenading his new '80er teammates with "I Left My Heart in San Francisco."

Talk about personal fouls! But Campbell, moving from the playing field into the field of contemporary music, makes the adjustment well. He's luckier than some in that a friend is investing financially in his future, a situation somewhat reminiscent of Tom Landry calling the plays for Roger Staubach. Campbell's investor helps call the shots and formulates the game plan, leaving the former quarterback free to concentrate solely on execution. Aggressive and self-motivating, optimistic without falling prey to overconfidence, Campbell has capitalized on this opportunity to steadily progress as a musician.

His album, as a result, reveals a great amount of promise — which is more than one can say for most singers who can neither read nor write music.

Eight of the 10 songs on "Silver Horses" were composed by Campbell, but he revealed, "I don't read or write music. I either play into a tape recorder, or just keep playing the song over and over until I memorize it. Then I get someone to write it down. A girl named Cynthia over at (Don) Caldwell's studio wrote the charts for the first songs."

Already thinking in a commercial manner, he answered questions concerning his writing style with, "Usually, I start with a melody and then try to think of a good hook line. I write the chorus first because, to me, that's the most important part. It's what people remember."

He added, "Writing for me comes in stretches. I may go six or eight months without writing a song, then I may write two or three in one week. Most are songs I can relate to. They've happened to me, or to my friends. Like 'Mama Sang A Song' is personal. And 'Teddy Bear' (a sentimental love song for his daughter Jerri Ann) is also very personal."

What Campbell fails to mention is the admirable quality which lies in his sense of humor. "I Forgot Your Name" is a humorous concept, but "Matador," on the album's second side, may be an even better example:

After Sunday sermon we would load up the car
With a Budweiser cooler, a case of Lone Star
Head down the river 'till we rounded the bend
Skinny-dippin' and a drinkin' 'till they hauled us all in (chorus:)
Matador, Texas, where my heart is at
I'd like to go back, but I can't find it on the map...

Still, Campbell says, "The album is probably more country than I am." And it's necessary to backtrack a few years to see why.

In the first place, Campbell's folks tried to interest him in music at an early age. "I had to take piano lessons back in the third grade," he said. "I hated it. Really despised it. I'd play by ear just enough to fake it. I think I had the teacher fooled. D.n't know that for sure, but I'm positive I at least had my parents fooled."

His mother later gave him a ukelele and Campbell's attitude toward music began to change. "I really liked it," he said. "I went out and bought a tenor banjo and tuned it like a ukelele. Then I began to learn to play guitar by ear."

As a high school junior, he started singing part time with seven other Matador students. They called themselves The Sourdough Singers and earned a few bucks playing Rotary Club meetings and the like. But though Gary's song "Lonely Nightingale" earned a bit of radio airplay, his cousin Richard Campbell (who later won football honors at Texas Tech University) was the star of the group. Graduation saw most of the Sourdough Singers leave Matador for university life in Lubbock.

Campbell recalled, "I started off at Tech majoring in agriculture, like everyone else from Matador. But then I started getting interested in coaching." And so his career plans took a turn — transferring to West Texas State University and on to coaching at area high schools. Until April of 1975. At that point, depressed and seeking a new future, he just "took off."

He finally wound up in Houston, alone and confused. He said, "I started playing guitar more seriously. And the song I wrote when I arrived in Houston, 'Silver Horses,' was the first song I'd written in 10 years. There was a coffeehouse there called Sand Mountain. Janis Joplin and Jerry Jeff Walker had played there, so it had a lot of history. Anyway, the club had an 'open mike' night, and I got up and sang my songs.

"The manager liked me, and I got hired to keep singing."

Asked how it felt to climb up those stairs and be at the mercy of an audience of strangers, after spending years in total control on the football field, he answered, "It was all brand new to me, performing as a solo. I really didn't have much self confidence. But I decided: what the heck, it's what I want to do and I may as well try it now, because I don't know if I'll even get a chance later.

"I mean, I'm to the point now where being an entertainer is all I want to do. And it came easier than I thought it would. Sure, I had to psych myself up into doing it. But I figured as long as I was pleasing myself on stage, that's all that mattered."

But others were also pleased, so much so that they financed Campbell's trip to Don Caldwell's studio to record his debut album. The sessions were not short ones, though.

Campbell said, "The first time I went in to record, I had tonsillitis. The second time, I couldn't get it done because I had the flu." Since then, Campbell has managed to get both his tonsils and the record out — and the latter is an impressive product, thanks to pleasant lyrics, very able session men and fine arrangements by Lloyd Maines.

"Silver Horses" will get a big push in Lubbock this week, with Campbell saying, "We're going to try to get the album known in West Texas and then maybe, with the right song and the right promotion, someone (with a record label) in Los Angeles or Nashville will pick me up."

Asked how he views the future these days, he said, "I try not to. It's scary to think of how many people are out there playing guitars and singing. I don't know whether I'll make it or not. But there are people helping me out, and I'm happy doing what I'm doing now. And that's what counts."

Even so, it remains tough to label Campbell's music. His LP boasts a definite country flavor, but the fact remains he started out singing tunes by The New Christy Minstrels, The Serendipity Singers and, naturally, Peter, Paul & Mary. Now, however, he admits, "I guess I call my music country folk, or maybe country pop. The record sounds more country than I am because (engineer) Caldwell is more into that. I figured the studio would be more comfortable with it."

"But shoot, I don't mind being labeled country. I've played enough honky tonks, you know. I didn't like country music when I was a kid. But the longer you stay in West Texas, the more you can't help but listen to it. It was a popular sound, and so I started listening to it and liking it more."

He then paused before quipping, "Besides all that, country songs are a whole lot easier to play on the guitar."

A Common Complaint: Sometimes Serious

Although most people think diarrhea is a disease, it's actually a symptom of different diseases and conditions that affect the digestive tract.

Usually, it is short-lived and self-limiting, but some episodes persist constantly, or at intervals, for weeks, months or even years. More serious occurrences may be caused by bacterial, parasitic or viral infections, or by an irritable colon.

Diarrhea which lasts for several days or occurs intermittently needs immediate treatment by a physician to avoid serious physical problems due to a loss of fluids or food contents.

It is wise not to make light of a bout with diarrhea, especially if it continues. A physician can prescribe IMODIUM® Capsules, an effective new remedy you cannot get without a prescription. A fast-acting, antidiarrheal medicine, IMODIUM is made by the Ortho Pharmaceutical Corporation.

Ortho's free leaflet, "For Your Information: Diarrhea," will help you understand and perhaps avoid this condition. It is available from some physicians and pharmacists, or by writing Ortho Pharmaceutical Corporation, Public Relations, Raritan, New Jersey 08869.

Never guess what food is good for a baby... or what amount should be served. Always ask your doctor or health professionals at a clinic and follow the advice carefully.

During the first year, it's important that a baby experience and enjoy a wide range of foods, in addition to milk or formula. This is a gradual process, following a broad pattern that should eventually include daily servings of foods from each of the four Basic Food Groups. These are Milk, Meat, Vegetable-Fruit, and Bread-Cereal.

With the convenient line of Gerber baby foods, you can select menus from all these groups. The wide variety will help your baby form lifetime good eating habits.

ENERGY SAVING

Ground water is warmer throughout the winter months and cooler in the summer than surface air. This means that if you have a well on your property, or have one drilled, it may not only save you money on water bills, but also supply a significant source of heating and cooling energy. Seventy percent of the nation has ample supplies of underground water to operate residential and commercial heat pump systems. Only three gallons per minute are required for each ton of air conditioning, or 12,000 BTU of heat. The system is non-polluting and the water can be replaced underground to be used again. Considerably less electrical or fossil fuel energy is consumed with this system than with the more common air-to-air heat pump or conventional air conditioning and heating units. The ground water heat pump is not a new idea, and now the rising cost of coal and oil make its use an attractive alternative. The initial investment in a ground water heat pump system would normally pay for itself, as a result of a sharp drop in energy consumption, within two years if an existing well is available, or in four to six years if a new well must be constructed. PUBLIC NOTICE

SUMMARY OF PROPOSED
CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS
GENERAL ELECTION NOV. 7, 1978

"The Tax Relief Amendment"

(H.J.R. 1)

H.J.R. 1 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution allowing the legislature to exempt intangible personal property, requiring the legislature to exempt certain household goods and personal effects, and allowing the legislature to exempt all or part of the personal property homestead from state and local property taxation.

The amendment requires the legislature to provide for the taxation of farm and ranch land on the basis of its productive capacity instead of its market value and allows the legislature to provide for the taxation of timber land on its productive capacity.

The amendment permits local governments to extend the present exemption of not less than $3,000 of the residence homestead of persons 65 and older to include certain disabled persons.

The amendment grants an exemption from public school property taxes of $5,000 of the market value of the residence homestead. It authorizes the legislature to grant an additional exemption from public school property taxes of an amount not to exceed $10,000 of the market value of the residence homesteads of persons 65 years of age or older and certain disabled persons. If a person 65 years of age or older qualifies for the exemption, the total amount of public school taxes imposed on that person's homestead may not be increased.

The amendment prevents local governments from increasing property taxes unless the governing body provides public notice and conducts a public hearing. The amendment requires the legislature to provide by law for each property owner to receive notice of the revaluation of his property and the amount taxes will be increased.

The amendment limits appropriations from state tax revenue to an amount not to exceed Texas' estimated economic growth rate, with the legislature authorized to make exceptions for emergencies.

The amendment prohibits the statewide appraisal of real property for property tax purposes. Enforcement of uniform standards and procedures for appraisal of property for property tax purposes is required to originate in the taxing authority where the property tax is imposed.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment providing for tax relief for residential homesteads, elderly persons, disabled persons, and agricultural land; for personal property exemptions; for truth in taxation procedures, including citizen involvement; for a redefinition of the tax base; for limitations on state spending; and for property tax administration."

NUMBER ONE (S.J.R. 50)

S.J.R. 50 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to delete an archaic reference to the "Deaf and Dumb Asylum." The amendment would allow the State of Texas to purchase products and services done by handicapped individuals in nonprofit rehabilitation facilities without complying with bid requirements applicable to other state contracts. The amendment also would eliminate the formality of the approval of certain state contracts by the Governor, the Secretary of State and the Comptroller of Public Accounts.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment deleting the archaic reference to the 'Deaf and Dumb Asylum,' allowing certain products and services of handicapped individuals to be used by agencies and departments of state government, requiring the procurement of other products and services required in the operation of state government to be made under bids awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, making all such procurement processes subject to laws enacted by the legislature, and eliminating the requirement that the Governor, the Secretary of State, and the Comptroller of Public Accounts of Texas be personally involved with such transactions."

NUMBER TWO (S.J.R. 55)

S.J.R. 55 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to permit local governments to issue bonds for the reconstruction or acquisition of facilities (land, equipment and improvements) designed to develop employment opportunities. These bonds would be payable solely from the revenue from the sale or lease of these facilities. The building or acquisition of such facilities must be determined by the local government to be necessary to develop employment opportunities.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to provide that the legislature may permit political subdivisions to issue revenue bonds to develop employment opportunities for its citizens."

NUMBER THREE (S.J.R. 44)

S.J.R. 44 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution which would allow the legislature to authorize cities and towns to issue tax increment bonds to finance the redevelopment of blighted areas. The bonds are to be paid solely from revenue from municipal tax increments. Payment cannot be made from the revenue of municipal taxes, utilities, or other services.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to give the legislature the power to authorize cities and towns to issue bonds to finance the redevelopment of blighted areas and prohibiting any city or town from granting its money or lending its credit for such purposes."

NUMBER FOUR (S.J.R. 53)

S.J.R. 53 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to allow the legislature to exempt from taxation solar or wind-powered energy devices.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to exempt from taxation solar and wind-powered energy devices."

NUMBER FIVE (H.J.R. 37)

H.J.R. 37 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to grant exclusive jurisdiction to justices of the peace in civil cases where the amount in controversy does not exceed $200, except where the legislature gives exclusive jurisdiction to another court.

The amendment grants justices of the peace concurrent jurisdiction with county courts where the amount in controversy is between $200 and $500, except where the legislature gives the county court exclusive jurisdiction.

The amendment also grants justices of the peace concurrent jurisdiction with both county and district courts where the amount in controversy is between $500 and $1,000, except where the legislature gives the county or district court exclusive jurisdiction.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to extend the jurisdiction of justices of the peace in civil cases."

NUMBER SIX (S.J.R. 45)

S.J.R. 45 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to allow the legislature to expand the number of judges on any court of civil appeals. Presently courts of civil appeals are limited to a chief justice and two associate justices. The amendment also would allow the courts to sit in sections, with the concurrence of a majority of the judges sitting in the section necessary to decide a case.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment permitting the legislature to increase the number of justices on a court of civil appeals, permitting a court of civil appeals to sit in sections, and requiring a concurrence of a majority of justices to decide a case."

NUMBER SEVEN (S.J.R. 48)

S.J.R. 48 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution eliminating the State Building Commission and the State Building Fund. The authority of the State Building Commission has been transferred by law to the State Board of Control.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to repeal the constitutional authority for the State Building Commission and the State Building Fund."

NUMBER EIGHT (H.J.R. 42)

H.J.R. 42 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution allowing certain political subdivisions or districts in the state that can presently issue bonds or otherwise lend its credit to engage in fire-fighting activities and to issue bonds or otherwise lend its credit to support such activities.

The wording of the proposed amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows:

"The constitutional amendments authorizing certain districts to engage in fire-fighting activities and to issue bonds or otherwise lend their credit for fire-fighting purposes."

John Hill is attacking
State Budget waste . . .

"I've already started my search for waste in the state budget. I want to be ready to tackle overspending the minute I take office as Governor in January. My budget office already is paring down big state agency budget requests, to keep spending within available revenues. We'll have to live within our means, because I'll veto any new taxes."

. . . because he knows
our taxpayers need
relief from inflation.

SAUDI . . . FROM PAGE ONE

the morals police had plenty to do anyway. When I arrived at sundown, the market was crowded. Suddenly, like a row of dominoes falling, the aluminum doors on the stalls began to bang closed one after another. Minutes later the marketplace was all but empty as men rushed to a nearby mosque to pray, as devout Moslems do five times a day. To hasten the stragglers, the morals police swept through the streets banging their wooden rods on the pavement and yelling at those shopkeepers who appeared to put commerce ahead of Allah.

Indeed, prayer takes precedence over everything. In a hurry to dispatch a news story to New York one night, I dashed downstairs in the Riyadh Intercontinental Hotel with another typed page only to find the telex operator on his knees, forehead to the floor, praying. My earlier pages were still unsent.

Devout as they are, the Saudis are intolerant of religions other than Islam. True, Christians living in Jidda do meet in a recreation hall once a week to hear a sermon by a Baptist preacher from Tennessee and to sing hymns like "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." But these religious services are permitted only because they aren't called church; they're officially known as "welfare services."

But for a visitor, those incursions into personal liberties are offset by the pleasant hospitality and pro-Western attitude of Saudi officials. Sheik Yamani has promised he will deliver my completed horoscope in person during his next visit to Washington. It will be a complete and accurate rundown of my character and future, he has assured me.

The sheik has a high standard to meet. My palm was last read in DeLeon, Texas, 10,000 miles from here, some 15 years ago. An old woman at a country carnival did the job for 25 cents. The only prediction I remember: "You will travel a lot."

bond drives during the war years, were led by the Lions Club. Funds for the projects have been raised in various methods through the years. Hometown talent has been the keynote for such productions as "Law West of the Pecos," and other annual Lions Club shows. Sponsoring the appearance of out of town entertainers, such as magicians and circus acts has also been a means of fund raising, as well as the basketball and volleyball tournaments.

At one time the Matador Lions Club was known as the most active in District 2T-1, with a peak membership of 83 in 1952. In 1950 the club selected a Queen for the first time to represent the club at the District Convention. She was Geraldine Skaggs Allen. When Donna Williams was selected to represent the Matador Lions in 1961, she came home with the crown and title of District 2T-1 Lions Queen.

Miss Rachel Patton was selected as pianist and Lions Sweetheart in 1933 and has held this position since.

Charter officers were the late Farris Fish as president and Gail Bradley, secretary of the infant organization. When the club held its first official meeting in 1929, the permanent officers were elected (for one-year terms), and were Joe N. Murrell, president and E. M. Rice, secretary. A Charter Night Banquet was set for April 16, 1929 which was attended by 64 persons, including 25 Lions from neighboring clubs at Quitaque, Clarendon, Childress, Floydada and Silverton.

Serving currently as president of the Matador Lions Club is Franklin Price.

The records reveal that over 500 names have been on the membership roster during the past 50 years.

Return From Trip To Washington, D.C.

Mrs. R. E. Donovan and Mrs. Douglas Meador returned home Sunday night from a trip to Washington, C.D. with a delegation from the West Texas Museum Association of Lubbock. A dinner Thursday night at the Smithsonian Institution honored Congressman and Mrs. George Mahon. Tours were made on Friday to several museums of the Smithsonian.

and a conducted tour on Saturday took the group to Alexandria, VA., and visits to plantations including Woodlawn, Gunston Hall and Mount Vernon. While in Washington, the Matador women had the pleasure of visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur House (the former Karen Elliott) and also with Congressman Jack High-tower in his offices.

At today's prices, you probably have quite a stake in having a good steak so keep yours tender and juicy by not puncturing with a fork and only turning once. This seals the steak and keeps the juices intact.

MRS. STEVE GREEN

Wedding Vows Exchanged In Silverton Recently

Miss Marsha Jeanette Yancey and Steven Lane Green exchanged wedding vows in a double-ring ceremony performed by Rev. Royce Denton, pastor, at the First Baptist Church in Silverton at six o'clock on the evening of Friday, August 4.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Vardell and the late E. W. Yancey. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Art Green of Flomot.

Two large white baskets of white mums and red carnations with greenery and baby's breath flanked a seven-branch candelabra decorated with greenery and red and white bows at the church altar.

Given in marriage by Willard Vardell, the bride wore a formal gown of white crepe designed with empire waistline and skirt which swept into a chapel train. Her bodice was accented with lace and her long fitted sleeves were made of lace. Her lace-trimmed veil of illusion was attached to a bandeau of lace embroidered with pearls.

She carried a bouquet of white carnations, red roses and baby's breath.

Miss Becky Perkins served as her friend's maid of honor. She wore a floor-length dress of red and white gingham fashioned with puffed sleeves and carried a long-stemmed peppermint carnation tied with red and white gingham ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Brenda Davis, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Beverly Minyard. They also wore floor-length dresses of red and white gingham and carried long-stemmed peppermint carnations tied with red and white gingham ribbon.

Little Miss Jennifer Rice of Plainview, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She carried an arrangement of daisies in a small white basket tied with red and white ribbon. She also wore a wristlet corsage of small white carnations tied with red and white gingham ribbon and a red and white gingham dress designed similarly to those worn by the other attendants.

Brian Martin, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Scotty Roberts of Silverton, a cousin of the bride, lighted the candles.

Best man was Billy Green, brother of the bridegroom. Groomsmen were Tommy Davis, the bride's brother-in-law, and Able Asebedo. Guests were seated by Rick Minyard and David Lewis.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. LaRue Garvin, who also accompanied Mrs. Shirley Reynolds when she sang "The Twelfth of Never." Mrs. Reynolds also sang "The Lord's Prayer" as the benediction.

Fellowship hall of the church was the scene of the reception which followed the ceremony. The table was covered with a white lace cloth over white underlay. The decor was accented by the bride's bouquet, the crystal punch bowl holding red punch and the three tiered white wedding cake accented with red roses.

Refreshments were served by Misses Susan Payne, Debbie Storie and Mignone Rauch.

Miss Ronda Archer, niece of the bride, was in charge of securing the guests' names in the bride's book.

The bride is a graduate of Silverton High School, where she was a member of Future Homemakers of America, Future Business Leaders of America and Pap Squad. The bridegroom is a graduate of Motley County High School, where he was a member of Future Farmers of America and Future Homemakers of America.

REHEARSAL PARTY

A salad supper was served after the Thursday night rehearsal. It was hosted by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Art Green. Assisting were Mrs. Hal Martin and Mrs. Billy Green.

DIGNITY AND A LAMB
Maria Pilar does not have much in the way of this world's goods.

But she has a lamb and her solemn dignity.
Courtesy Maryknoll Missionaries
Maria Pilar lives in the high country of Bolivia where the average wage is less than $400 a year. Her family scrapes a bare existence from a small plot of tired earth and raises a few sheep for food, clothing and a bit of extra money.

Voluntary relief and development agencies like Catholic Relief Services recognize that the people they help in Bolivia are not just statistics. They are individuals like Maria Pilar.
The goal of Catholic Relief Services is to help people help themselves. The American agency believes that man should be the principal actor in his own development. By helping Bolivian farmers to raise better crops, to improve and preserve their flocks and herds, Catholic Relief Services is contributing a lot more than food to the nation's life. It helps preserve personal dignity.

By helping to build roads, community centers, cooperatives and pure water systems, Catholic Relief Services encourages people to do what they want to do and to do it themselves. Giving a person a chance to stand on his own two feet and the opportunity to improve his life and that of those around him is Catholic Relief Services' contribution to the dignity of man.

PSAT--NMSQT TEST

TO BE GIVEN

Dean Stotts, Principal at Motley County Schools, has announced that all juniors will be able to join over one million other students around the world in taking the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT--NMSQT) This fall. The test, co-sponsored by the College Board and National Merit Scholarship Corporation, is an important step in making college plans.

Scheduled for October 24, 1978 Motley County High School, the PSAT--NMSQT measures verbal and mathematical aptitude -- two abilities important in doing college work. The test can also lead to other opportunities for high school students. For example, students can ask to participate in the College Board's Student Search Service which helps colleges learn about students like them.

By taking the PSAT--NMSQT, they can enter the competition for scholarships administered by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation and can get a good idea of what the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) is like.

Along with their score reports, students will receive a copy of ABOUT YOUR PSAT--NMSQT SCORES, a booklet that contains valuable how-to information about: estimating SAT scores; finding out where to get and how to use detailed information about colleges and financial aid; and planning for financing a college education.

Also, students can use the College Board's College Handbook, to compare their scores with those of enrolled students at more than 2,800 colleges and universities.

Motley Student Council Plans Many Activities

By Walter Skinner

This year is planned to be the best year for the students at Motley County, with various activities to be scheduled throughout the year. The Group in charge is the Motley County Student Council.

It is the duty of the Student Council to take advice on these matters from the students and make their wishes known to the principal, Mr. Dean A. Stotts, who is the head of the Student Council.

Before the Student Council can become fully operational, they must adopt their own by-laws and constitution. Mr. Stotts has eased this task by writing to the school in Winslow, Arizona, where he was employed, and asking that a copy of their by-laws and constitution be sent to our school. When this information is received, the Student Council will use it as guide lines for adopting their own.

The Student Council is made up of Dean Stotts, Principal,

PROTECTING YOUR HEART

Today's smart shopper knows how important a freezer can be in getting the most for your food dollar. It allows you to buy meat and other items on special, helps you preserve produce from your own garden and aids in avoiding leftovers by packaging foods to fit your family's needs.

The freezer can also be a big timesaver. Instead of cooking one meal at a time, cook two and put one in your freezer. Most casseroles freeze very well if they are wrapped properly. Also, preparing less expensive casseroles (as opposed to quick, but more expensive entrees) at your leisure lets you save money in the long run.

When freezing casseroles, line the pan with aluminum foil, fill with food and wrap well. Freeze until solid, then remove from the pan. Freeze prepared food as soon as possible and store at a temperature of 0°F. or lower. Be sure to label and date all packages in your freezer to facilitate later use. Casseroles can be stored in the freezer for up to 3 months.

Our Tuna Lasagne is a unique variation of an old favorite that's perfect for freezing. Packed with nutritious foods (tuna, cheese, milk, spinach) this wholesome and delicious dish will soon be a household favorite. As an added bonus Tuna Lasagne is low in cholesterol and saturated fat since it is prepared with Fleischmann's Corn Oil Margarine, skim milk and low fat cheeses. And isn't it nice knowing you have another delicious casserole waiting for you in the freezer!

Melt 2 tablespoons corn oil margarine in saucepan. Add onion and saute until lightly browned. Measure out 1 cup shredded Mozzarella cheese and set aside. Combine remaining Mozzarella with pot cheese, spinach, tuna, and sauteed onion.

Melt remaining 4 tablespoons margarine in same saucepan. Blend in flour, salt and pepper. Gradually stir in skim milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring, until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat.

Spread a small amount of Marinara Sauce in the bottom of each of two 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pans. Place a layer of lasagne noodles over sauce. Top with 1/6 of the tuna mixture, 1/6 of the white sauce and about 1/8 of the remaining Marinara Sauce. Beginning with lasagne noodles repeat layers two more times. Top with remaining lasagne noodles and Marinara Sauce. Sprinkle reserved Mozzarella cheese over casseroles. Bake at 375°F. 25 to 30 minutes, until hot and bubbling. Makes 2 casseroles, 6 servings each.

Freezing Instructions: To freeze one casserole, line pan with foil leaving ends extended over sides. Fill pan and wrap well. Freeze until solid. Remove lasagne from pan. Return to freezer for up to 3 months.

To serve, peel off foil and place lasagne in baking pan. Thaw in refrigerator overnight. Bake covered at 375°F. 30 minutes; remove cover and bake 30 minutes longer, or until hot and bubbling.

TUNA LASAGNE

- 6 tablespoons Fleischmann's Corn Oil Margarine
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 8 ounces shredded partially skimmed Mozzarella cheese
- 1 container (12-ounce) pot cheese
- 2 packages (9-ounces each) frozen chop-

- ped spinach, cooked and drained
- 2 cans (7-ounces each) tuna, drained and flaked
- 1/4 cup unsifted flour
- 1-1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/8 teaspoon white pepper
- 3 cups skim milk
- 2 jars (15-1/2 ounces each) Marinara Sauce
- 1 pound lasagne noodles, cooked and drained

WILDCATS BEAT RANGERS

The Patton Springs Rangers suffered a defeat in the open-regular season game to the Wellman Wildcats, 38-15, September 8.

The first half belonged entirely to Wellman. In the first quarter, Wildcat half-back Ty Paris plunged two yards for a touchdown. Allan Berryhill kicked the Points After Touchdown to make the score 8-0 at the end of the quarter. The Ranger defense refused Wellman anymore points that quarter.

Wellman scored again in the second quarter when Berryhill missed the snap for a punt, gathered the ball up, and threw a 50-yard scoring pass to Paris. Patton's Don Baxter, John Pat Hughes, and Tim Paty blocked the PAT to draw the halftime score at 14-0, Wildcats.

After exchanging possession twice against Wellman, the Rangers fought for a score. Quarterback Don Baxter found end Armando Felix in the endzone good for 16 yards and a touchdown. Baxter passed to make the score 14-7, Wellman.

The Wildcats fought back when Berryhill drove one yard to paydirt. Rangers Felix, Hughes, and Jackie Conaway blocked the PAT for a score of 20-7. Wellman received a Patton punt where Berryhill ran nine yards for a touchdown. The PAT sailed wide for a 26-7 Wildcat lead. The quarter ended as Paris sailed two yards for another Wellman score. The snap was fumbled for the attempt and the quarter closed at 32-7, Wellman.

Patton's Baxter connected a ten yard scoring strike to Hughes for the Rangers final touchdown. The PAT from Baxter fell true but Wellman still led 32-15.

Wellman finished the scoring for the night when the Wildcat quarterback threw a 14 yard touchdown pass to Berryhill to make the final score 38-15.

PATTON SPRINGS ACQUIRES PRESSBOX

The Patton Springs School now has a pressbox which will house the controls of the electronic score board.

Work on the pressbox has continued since school started, August 28. All the Ag boys had a hand in this project with the continual help and guidance of Mr. Slaton. The boys worked on the pressbox during study halls and during their Ag classes.

It has been placed above and behind the Ranger bleachers and is supported by metal poles held in cement.

Don Baxter, Sr. used his winch truck to carry the pressbox to the bleachers from the Ag building and raised it to its present position.

According to Mr. Slaton, "We couldn't have done it without him."

Consumers Guide To Carpet Performance

Every home has areas where traffic is heavy or light and the floor covering you choose should match the wear it will get.

The more attention you give to the selection of carpets that have been performance tested for wearability, the more enjoyment, comfort and satisfaction you can expect to get from them in years to come. And, you can save money by selecting the carpet that's right for the job it has to do.

Performance ratings can help you choose among the hundreds of manufacturers who offer thousands of combinations of color, texture and fiber in an almost infinite range of prices and performance levels.

Here are some tips to help you evaluate your carpet performance needs:

1. Determine the traffic levels in your household. How old and active are your children? Are pets allowed inside? Do guests constantly drop in? Do you entertain frequently?

2. Consider your attitude toward cleaning. Are you a "compulsive" cleaner who is constantly tidying up or do you clean and vacuum only when necessary?

3. Pinpoint critical wear and traffic areas. These vary in every home. Here's where yours may be:

a. Entries and hallways. These are probably your heaviest traffic areas and the routes through which all soil is tracked into your home.

b. Stairs. The first step, especially, and all leading edges or "nosings," get hard wear. Most stairs are subject to heavy wear, with some spots being walked on every time.

c. Pivot points. Wear is heavy at places where traffic changes direction—most often at the foot and head of stairs, at room entrances and at turns in hallways.

d. Favorite family areas. The dining room—especially under and around the chairs and table; the living room or den—spots near a favorite chair, sofa, coffee table or TV set; the study—under and in front of your desk chair; and the areas outside bathrooms, get a great deal of use.

4. Give carpets proper care and maintenance. The basic maintenance recommended by Bigelow, a company that produces a great deal of consumer information, is simply extra care—vacuuming, spot cleaning and occasional overall cleaning.

It's often advisable to look for carpet pretreated with a good soil and stain repellent like Scotchgard, the product used on all residential carpets made by Bigelow, a division of Sperry and Hutchinson.

5. Once you know your carpet performance requirements, check them against the Mark of Performance chart above. It lets you match performance needs to performance levels of Bigelow carpet.

6. Decide on a color, pattern and texture. Generally speaking, medium to dark tones are most likely to hide soil, whereas light colors are soil sensitive. Tweeds and multi-colors hide dirt better than solids.

For additional help in making a selection, you can get a free copy of Bigelow's "Guide to Carpet Performance" booklet by writing to Department of Consumer Information, Bigelow-Sanford, P.O. Box 3059, Greenville, S.C. 29602.

Motley Junior Varsity Upset By Crosbyton

By Gwen Calvert
The Motley Junior Varsity was upset Thursday, in an action packed game, by the Crosbyton Freshmen. Motley scored only once in the game when Quarterback James Stephens ran for the touchdown. Stephens also kicked for the extra point. Although the Matadors did an outstanding job, both on offense and defense, the Chiefs were handed the breaks. The final score came out Motley - 7, Crosbyton - 20. Motley Junior High and Junior Varsity will both travel to Jayton Thursday to play the Jaybirds.

A heating system that's more than 200% efficient may seem like something out of the future. But it isn't. It's yours today, with the electric heat pump. Because when correctly installed in a properly insulated home, the heat pump produces two units of heat for each single unit of electricity it uses. It transfers heat that's always present in sun-warmed outside air into your home during the winter. And reverses the process, pumping heat outdoors during the summer.

If you have plans to buy, build, or remodel, or are looking for a new heating and cooling system for your home, call a local FACTORY CERTIFIED heat pump dealer or talk with WTU. We will arrange for a WTU heating and cooling specialist to contact you. Q. My eight-month-old girl seems pretty lively, but how can I be sure she's got the right amount of energy for her age?

A. Your doctor is the best one to reassure you on that point, but you can help ensure she's getting enough food energy by continuing to feed her formula or human milk.

Many parents switch their children to cow's milk about half way through the first year, but in many ways, cow's milk is not good for such young babies. It is lacking in some of the nutrients they need and has too much of others. These nutrients, including the proper amount of fat and easy-to-digest protein, found in human milk and in quality formula such as Enfamil, are what helps a young child have the energy she needs for good growth, learning and fun.

If you're on a picnic check to see that there is sufficient ice left in the cooler to keep leftovers safe and cool till you get home.

People Should Always Show Medicare Card

All people who are protected under Medicare hospital insurance or medical insurance, or both, should always show their Medicare cards whenever they receive care or services covered under this health insurance program, a social security spokesperson said recently.

It is very important that the card be shown and the information taken from it and recorded properly. This way, chances of error are reduced so that the claims may be paid promptly. Errors made in recording the name or Medicare number can result in payment delays. People should carry their Medicare card with them because a person can never tell when he or she will need a service covered by Medicare. Anyone who has lost or misplaced his or her Medicare card can get a replacement by contacting any social security office.

Plastic or metal Medicare cards are sold by some companies, the representative said. But these are not recognized replacements for the official card issued by social security. Detailed information about the care and services covered by Medicare can be found in the booklet, Your Medicare Handbook, which is mailed to people who have this protection.

People who have lost or misplaced their copy of the booklet can get a replacement copy at any social security office. The address and telephone number of the nearest social security office can be found in the telephone directory under "Social Security Administration."

Estimate of Earnings Should Be Checked

People getting social security checks who are under 72 all or part of 1978 and who have been working should take some time to check their records so that they do not receive any incorrect social security checks, a social security representative said recently.

People 65 or over in 1978 can earn $4,000 and still receive all checks for the year, while people under 65 can earn $3,240 and receive all payments. These figures are called the annual exempt amount.

A person whose earnings exceed the annual exempt amount has $1 in benefits withheld for each $2 of earnings above the exempt amount. This withholding is made even though there may be some months in which the person does little or no work.

The only exception, the spokesperson said, is for the first year in which a person receives a monthly check. In that first year, benefits can be paid for months in which the person does little or no work regardless of total yearly earnings. After the first year, withholding is based only on total annual earnings.

A person who estimated that he or she would earn less than the annual exempt amount in 1978 should make sure that their earnings are following the pattern they expected. If earnings are running higher than expected, the person should consider having their checks stopped temporarily to avoid possible overpayments.

On the other hand, a person who had his or her benefits stopped because of expected high earnings who now finds that he or she is earning substantially less than expected, could have benefits started.

People in either situation can have their questions answered at any social security office. The address and telephone number of the nearest social security office can be found in the telephone directory under "Social Security Administration."

mothers and babies

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS

A few days after birth, many babies' skins become yellow. This is usually the result of a normal physiological process and no cause for alarm. Many babies are born with excess red blood cells, which are eliminated at this time. The yellowness usually disappears within a few days.

Most babies can support their own heads by about three months old. That's a good time for parents to get a baby sling so Mother or Father can carry baby comfortably with both hands free. Available from Mothercare, retailing specialists for mothers-to-be, babies, and children under 5, it's adjustable and folds away neatly.

Most babies can start learning to feed themselves with a spoon by a year or 18 months. They sometimes learn faster if allowed to practice first with their fingers.

By the age of one year, many babies discover the joy of dropping things. If you find retrieving them less than fun, tie the toys to the crib or carriage by a long string.

Parents and prospective parents can get a good look at the clothes, toys and furnishings for mothers-to-be and babies in the Mothercare catalogue, available from Mothercare, P.O. Box 228, Parsippany, New Jersey 07054.

The Scientists Tell Me... Cottonseed Has Potential To Supply Billions of Pounds of Food Protein

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

In a world desperately hungry for more food protein, cottonseed is still largely ignored. About 8,880 million pounds of protein is estimated as potentially available from the annual world-wide production of cottonseed.

In the past, only ruminants such as cattle or sheep could use cottonseed as a food source; it contained a toxin, gossypol, that kept it from being used by non-ruminants like man, horses, or swine.

In recent years, procedures for denaturing this toxin, or removing it altogether, have been developed though, so far, they're still considered uneconomic.

However, the toxin can be eliminated by genetic improvement which, through breeding, removes gossypol-containing glands from tissues of the cotton plant. This gives what is commonly called "glandless cotton."

Processed glandless cottonseed gives a gossypol-free meal that has no limitations on use. Glandless seed is not as expensive to process, and the quality of meal and oil is better than that from glanded seed.

Plant breeders with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station are seeking to incorporate the glandless characteristic in varieties without loss of yields or disease and insect resistance.

Early glandless varieties seem to get lower yields and be susceptible to insects. Commercial glandless varieties have been tested by the Experiment Station at Lubbock since 1965.

Both seed and lint yields of some glandless varieties are now comparable to those of better glanded cottons, according to Dr. Levon Ray, Station cotton breeder at Lubbock.

Most of the glandless varieties have shorter and coarser fiber than conventional cotton. Fiber strength varies, but two varieties have essentially the same fiber strength as Tamcot 788, which has a relatively strong fiber.

Disease resistance of glandless cottons is varied. Some glandless varieties have been evaluated under severe verticillium-wilt conditions. Although none of the commercially available glandless varieties have as high level of resistance as some glanded varieties, several have a much higher level than many of the commonly grown varieties. And some experimental glandless lines have shown resistance as high as that of any commercial glanded variety.

Resistance to bacterial blight varies among glandless varieties; some are highly susceptible, but others are highly resistant to prevalent races of this disease.

A 3-year study on the High Plains comparing insect infestations and damage in glanded and glandless cotton has just been completed by Dr. Don Rummel, research entomologist with the Experiment Station at Lubbock.

No unusual insect problems were encountered in the glandless varieties. None of the glandless variety trials were sprayed for insect control, and no significant infestation of damaging insects was observed.

Since the Texas High Plains has been relatively free of insect problems in cotton, there is a general feeling that this area could grow glandless varieties more successfully than most other areas, at present.

Most breeders of stripple harvested varieties have glandless program. Some experimental glandless lines which have been tested only one or two years have shown outstanding performance. Glandless varieties are now available which will compete with glanded varieties on the Texas High Plains, according to Ray.

Glandless cottons grown in areas of Texas other than the High Plains are subject to damage from several diseases and a much greater damage pressure by insects, according to Dr. Luther Bird, Station cotton breeder responsible for many of the improved varieties.

Except for a few new varieties from the TAM-MAR germplasm, all varieties are susceptible to disease, Bird says. And all are susceptible to the major insects, except for the newly released TAM-MAR varieties.

Sources of resistance to the major diseases and insects are available in cotton and can be effectively added to either glandless or glanded cottons. In some cases, Bird says, improved glandless types are performing as well or better than older glanded varieties.

The Texas A&M multi-adversity resistance (TAM-MAR) program is developing new cottons in which resistance and glandless genes are fully compatible and effective. The special genetic techniques used to develop the Tamcot SP varieties are giving additional new types which are glandless and multi-adversity resistant.

When all the problems are solved and gossypol-free glandless cotton is widely grown in the cotton fields of the world, perhaps the need for human protein will be eased for a time.

The economical, protein packed egg can be made into elegant and nutritious meals-in-a-dish for lunch or dinner, such as Eggs a la Flamenca, said to have originated with Spanish gypsies. It's a savory dish of eggs, sausage and vegetables baked in a tomato sauce made zesty with Spanish olive oil. Spanish olive oil is used because it adds flavor without danger of food becoming too greasy and it's so delicate it allows other herbs and spices to blend better.

EGGS A LA FLAMENCA

- 2 tablespoons Spanish olive oil
- 1 large onion, diced
- 2 cloves of garlic, crushed
- 1/2 pound spicy sausage, cut in slices
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 2 whole pimientos, diced
- 1 can (16 oz.) tomatoes with liquid
- 1 cup cooked peas
- 8 cooked asparagus spears
- 8 eggs

Heat oil in skillet. Add onion and garlic and saute until soft but not brown; add sausage and cook until lightly browned. Add salt, parsley and pimientos; cook about 2 minutes. Add contents of can of tomatoes, cutting up with knife. Cover and simmer about 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add peas and asparagus. When sauce is hot, spoon into four individual ramekins or shallow casseroles or add all of sauce to one large shallow casserole. Break eggs into sauce. Bake at 400° just until eggs are set, about 15 minutes. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.
