Complaints from Ranch Hands Expands Hobby into Business

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article was taken from THE TEXAS SPUR and was written by Ann Worley-Shrimpton, Special Assignments Reporter.

In a day of highbred horses, longshank bits, and funny looking stirrups; who'd know better than an old timer that new-fangled ideas don't always work?

Miller Marshall and Gene Martin go back a long way - to ranching and rodeo days in Matador (where Gene was raised) and Roaring Springs (Miller's cowboy home).

What do two, 'sort-of-retired' working cowboys do? They keep on working! Not from a saddle, of course - instead a two and a half foot stool will do.

For some time Miller and Gene would listen to complaints from ranch hands concerning mass produced spurs, bits, and stirrups. They pondered this awhile before coming up with the perfect solution. They'd make cowboys happy again simply by adopting the theory, "If the new don't fit the bill - go back to the old."

Putting their skills to work for them they devised the Oxbow Stirrup. Miller grinds, shapes and polishes while Gene cuts out, mounts, and cuts letters. They use only the finest materials: German Silver, Brass, Copper, OK gold, and what Gene refers to as "plain Jane" - polished steel. "We take pride in our work and keep the prices where the working cowboy can afford them," Gene said.

In the beginning it was just a hobby, they said. Now their goal is a full-fledged business and they are looking for a building in Spur that will fit their needs. For some time they have worked from a garage shop behind Miller's house. When they get in a tight spot, Miller's nephew, Mike Marshall, helps out. "We didn't know for sure how well it would go over," Gene said, though a Top Hand at a recent Cutting in Spur walked away with a pair of stirrups they'd made.

In fact it went over so well for the pair that their stirrups were on display at the Cowboy Symposium Celebration at Texas Tech this year. There a gentleman by the name of John Paul Snyder saw the stirrups and was immediately impressed with the simplicity of style and obvious excellent workmanship. Snyder's interest inadvertently created a backlog in orders. Word spread that Gene and Miller could re-create stirrups so close to the originals, that no body, but an old timer, could tell the difference.

They knew for sure they'd become a success when they got a personal invitation from Bobby Newton, Editor/Publisher of Rope Burns, Gene Autry, Oklahoma to attend, and display their work at The Working Cowboy Ranch Rodeo World Finals in October in Fort Worth.

Four sets of stirrups will be given to Top Hands after the finals. Gene will also be one of the judges. This will be a great opportunity for Gene and Miller to show their craftsmanship to over 30 competing ranch hands. The stirrups can easily be identified by the running WC (Working Cowboy) and the emblem of the State of Gene Martin, left and Miller Marshall, right, prepare to put the finish on an oxbow stirrup the two have developed for working cowboys. Their hobby has expanded into what they hope will be a flourishing business. They also make custom made spurs and bits.

Texas stamped 'Fort Worth' and the date. Ranch Rodeo, an organized event, started in Wichita Falls in 1980. Texas Ranch Roundup brought Teams from major Texas Ranches - Waggoner, Pitchfork, and 6666, to name a few. The excitement of Team events spawned others in small towns. These events have become so successful a tradition, a Ranch Rodeo World Series was scheduled in Gene Autry, Oklahoma in 1987 with 30 ranches participating.

Performers in these events are cowboys who make their living working on ranches. Ranch Rodeo - not just a sport - but a skill of the working cowboy.

World Finals Rodeo, scheduled for October 6 through 8, 1989, will be held at the Windy Ryon Arena in Fort Worth, Texas. Five major events make up a complete ranch rodeo: Branding, milking, steer mugging, pasture roping, and penning. Only pasture fresh stock will be used.

Gene and Miller are excited about their trip to the Fort Worth Stockyards Rodeo and Trade Show. Though they won't be in a saddle, they are indeed contributing their part in keeping the cowboy there. "In my day, ten seconds was a good time for tie down roping," Gene reminisced. Today it's six and eight-faster horses, one might conclude.

PTO Hosts 'Meet the Teacher' Night as First Meeting

Motley County PTO met on Tuesday, September 26, in the school cafeteria for a "Meet the Teachers" salad supper and business session.

Linda Burge called the meeting to order. Minutes of the last meeting were read by Beverly Darsey. Bunny Speed gave the treasurer's report.

Officers for the new year include President, Linda Burge; Vice-President, Kellie Martin; Secretary, Beverly Darsey; Treasurer, Bunny Speed; Reporter, Eva Barkley; Parliamentarian, Jim Cooper; and School Representative and Elementary Principal, Oran Hamilton.

Committee chairmen are Telephone, Kathy Gillespie; Membership, Brenda Cruse; Hospitality, Terree Donaldson. Room mothers are as follows: Kindergarten, Deirdra Clifton and Jeannie Moore; First, Teresa Whitaker and Judy Renfro; Second, Kelly Jackson, Melva Johnson and Rhonda Moore; Third, Kathy Gillespie and Brenda Cruse; Fourth, Lou Anne Jameson and Eva Barkley; Fifth, Linda Jameson and Beverly Darsey;

Sixth, Naomi Lawrence and Shane Jones. PTO projects for the 1989-90 school year are as follows: a Book Fair, the Father and Son Banquet, and the Campbell Soup Label project. Kelly Jackson was appointed to head up the soup label project.

PTO voted to give the button-making machine to the Annual Staff. In other action taken, the organization decided to purchase the end-of-year musical program for the school.

After the business meeting, Superintendent Ronald Cummings introduced all the teachers. High School Principal Don Ewing gave the invocation, and a delicious salad supper was enjoyed by all in attendance.

A tentative schedule of PTO events is as follows: December 4, 1989, 7 p.m. - Christmas Program (grades K-8 to sing); February 5, 1990, 7 p.m. - Opening of book Fair (lasts next 2 days during school); April 17, 1990, 7 p.m. - Father - Son Banquet; April 30, 1990, 7 p.m. - Ice Cream Social and Officer Installation.

Satanic Cults Active In Plainview Area

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was taken from the PLAINVIEW DAILY HERALD and was written by Phillip L. Hamilton, Herald Staff Writer.

Devil worship is prevalent in Plainview, according to a Lubbock police detective specializing in Satanic cults.

However, local law enforcement officers say they haven't found any evidence of crimes linked to Satanic rituals.

"You have a major ring right here," said Det. Floyd Price of the Lubbock Police Department. "There are lots of Satanists here in Plainview."

But Plainview Police Chief Roy Osborne said his department has not turned up any evidence of a ring of devil worshippers.

"We have looked into the Satanic problem in Plainview and have found no evidence," Osborne said. "We know there are some young people who are experimenting with it, but haven't seen any real cases of devil worship. That's just not the case from what we have seen."

Price, who was at Wayland Baptist University to talk to child development classes September 28, was also a featured speaker at an occult awareness workshop in Plainview October 3.

The seminar included issues such as self-esteem development, teen suicide, peer pressure, chemical abuse and parental apathy.

Price dealt specifically with devil worship during his presentation.

"What we want to do is teach parents how to communicate with their children and how to educate their children because it is mommy and daddy that see change first," Price said.

Most of the evidence discussed came directly from individuals who have been involved in Satanic cults in the South Plains, including some from Plainview.

"We've talked to people who have been involved," he said. "We have talked to those who cut themselves and drink their own blood - to those who do the vilest things. All of this comes from our investigations. Kids are coming out of

Plaque Dedication And Reception To Salute People, Contributions

SPUR -- A proud salute to 76 years of research in Dickens County which brought valuable changes to agriculture around the world, and to the scientists, technicians, ranchers and farmers who made it happen, will be held in Spur October 6.

It will include dedication of a Texas historical marker at the site of the former Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) research center for the Rolling Plains, a mile west of town on White River Lake Road (FM 836), and a reception at First United Methodist church, 528 North Burlington. The dedication will be at 5 p.m. with the reception immediately after.

The facility here was one of seven TAES substations authorized by the Texas Legislature in 1909 to work on regional problems in agriculture. Subsequently, on Oct. 15, S.M. Swenson and Sons Land and Cattle Co. gave the state 200 acres of land and $2,500 cash to put one of the research centers at or near the company's proposed site for the City of Spur. Designated as "Substation No. 7," the facility opened that December.

As the marker being placed by the Texas Historical Commission will remind future generations, the scientific research conducted there "ultimately affected agricultural programs far beyond regional boundaries."

At the marker dedication, Eric Swenson, president of Spur Security Bank, will serve as master of ceremonies. The invocation will be given by the Rev. Dr. John A. Rakestraw, retired Army Chaplain. Dickens County Judge Woodie McArthur will introduce special guests.

Alvis Bilberry, station farm foreman for 40 years, will reflect upon activities at the facility. The marker will be dedicated by James L. Arnold, research station superintendent from 1970-1986. R.C. "Speck" Green, chairman of the Dickens County Historical Committee, will accept the marker.

The role of the station with today's youth will be reviewed by Curt Parsons, superintendent of the Spur Independent School District. Closing remarks will be made by Dr. Tim Shaunty, associate deputy chancellor for agriculture at Texas A&M University, of which TAES is a part.

The town and the station grew side by side. When the facility closed Feb. 1, 1986, it included 1,422 acres of cultivated land and native grassland.

"The dedication of the marker and the reception Oct. 6 are a tribute to the Spur Station and to the men and women who made it an outstanding agricultural research unit for more than three-quarters of a century," said Shaunty.

"We must also include among these the station's many friends from the region's ranches, farms and businesses who consistently contributed their support in money, time and influence to help achieve such meaningful advances as were made here," he said.

One of the early advances was in moisture conservation for an area with only 20 inches annual rainfall. Much of that comes in "gully-washers", with rapid runoff. To conquer that, R.E. Dickson, station superintendent from 1914-1950, developed a system of closed terraces.

Called the "Syrup Pan", the system

Seigler Funeral Home Has New Managers

Pat Seigler recently stated in an interview with the Tribune that he is now offering the same friendly and caring service the people of Motley County deserve at Seigler Funeral Home.

Jeff Smith is now the new employee and a resident in Matador. Jeff is an apprentice funeral director assisting Pat Seigler and Gary Welling in Matador and Paducah. Jeff will receive his funeral directors license in February, 1990.

Jeff is looking forward to serving the people of Motley County and wants to serve them in the tradition they deserve.

He is a 1977 graduate of Childress High School and graduated from Dallas

Institute of Funeral Service in January 1989. He has been employed in Jacksboro, before moving to Matador. Jeff is the son of Jerry D. Smith of childress and the late Colleen Smith.

He is married to the former Belinda Simpson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph 'Gid' Simpson of Matador. Belinda is a 1979 graduate of Motley County High School and is office manager for the Texas Department of Highways in Paducah.

Gary Welling, formerly of Matador is a 1977 graduate of Motley County High School and is now the funeral director at Seigler Funeral Home in Paducah.

M.C. Matadors Tame The Mustangs

by Memori Assiter

The Motley County Matadors dominated the field Friday night when they defeated the Claude Mustangs 47-14 in Claude. The Matadors offense racked up a total of 368 yards while the defense, which has been improving week by week, held the Mustangs to 210 yards. Ewing, Linson, Washington and Jarrett Jameson had an outstanding defensive game.

The Matadors first touchdown came in the middle of the second quarter when David Alexander threw a 20 yard pass to Matt Washington. Clay Ewings extra point attempt failed. Walter Linson was next to score for the Matadors when he set off on a 17 yard run. Linson also ran the two extra points into the end zone. Clay Ewing completed the scoring in the second quarter, with no time left on the clock, when he caught a 41 yard pass thrown from Alexander. The extra point was good.

Early in the 3rd quarter, Chris Campbell broke away on a fabulous 85 yard kick-off return for another touchdown.

In the fourth quarter, Ewing intercepted a Claude pass and ran the ball for a 63 yard touchdown. Campbell ran for the two extra points and made them for the Matadors. Next, Alexander threw a 52 yard pass to Ewing for another touchdown. The extra point failed. Linson completed the scoring for the Matadors as he ran 44 yards into the end zone for the last touchdown. Clay Ewing added the extra point.

The Matador victory boosted their record to 3 wins and one loss for the season.

The Mats will play Knox City, here this Friday at 7:30 p.m. for their first district ballgame. Everyone come out and support the Matadors!

El Progreso Club Hosts Sr. Girls At Tea

Sept. 21, 1989, El Progreso Club met at the Matador Ranch with Mrs. Dale (JoeEtt) Bumgardner hostess, assisted by Mrs. Joe (Loys) Campbell, club president. The large porch area was decorated with "South of the Border" serapes, large straw hats and other memorabilia. The refreshment table situated on the east end of the area featured the southwest colors in tablecloth, cups and napkins. Members of the El Progreso furnished the wide variety of tasty dips, chips, salads, and numerous tidbits all served with a delicious coffee-ice cream punch.

The porch area overlooks the large neatly kept lawn with squirrels scampering around the trees as members carried on their business session before the Senior girls and their mothers arrived at 4:00 p.m. Leader for the meeting was Mrs. L.B. (Lucretia) Campbell who read the caption at the heading of our program as printed in the yearbook, "Bumble Bees Can't Fly. Scientifically, the bee can't fly. But no one told the poor dumb bee - he goes on flying!" by Hazel Moseley. Mrs. Campbell asked Mrs. Don (Carolyn) Ewing to introduce the musical program after members gave roll call of their favorite places with several musical program after members gave roll call of their favorite places with several naming HOME as the place they most like to be. Mrs. Ewing introduced a local group, Billy Donaldson and Jesse Turner who played guitars, Gerald Pipkin, the electronic keyboard and Mrs. Clois (Kathy) Shorter who, along with Mrs. Ewing, sang two of the favorite south of the border songs, "South of the Border" and "My Adobe Hacienda."

Mrs. Campbell then introduced Mrs. J.E. (Marge) Edwards, retired teacher of the Motley County School System, one who is admired and respected for her love of the children and school room. Mrs. Edwards' topic or the program she presented was "My Favorite Place" and after hearing the members response to roll call places, decided hers was unique - it is the college classroom or the High School classroom teaching math. Mrs. Edwards was attired in a black long dress with beautifully decorated bolero jacket from Olivia Campbell Barton's drum and bugle corps days, carrying out the theme for the afternoon. To preface the program, Mrs. Edwards spoke Spanish greeting to the ladies and girls and also the gentlemen and thanking them for the lovely music.

Mrs. Edwards recounted the article in the May issue of Texas Monthly stating the several people who were interviewed about their favorite places. One gave Lubbock as her favorite place, because she said a person could do what they chose and be accepted. One case in point this young lady mentioned was a song that our own Robin Darsey, then a Tech student, had written entitled "Her Teeth Were Stained, But Her Heart Was Pure."

She then told the story of a young woman who had various favorites while growing up. One was the hills behind the family dugout where she gathered green gourds and used them for toys. In early childhoods, she recalled the experience of discovering the differences between the "haves" and the "have nots".

She and her family lived in two rooms in back of a magnificent ranch house and peeking through those windows of the large house she anticipated having, one day, something as elegant. To get away from brothers and sisters what better place than the platform of a towering windmill? But, oh, the grandest place of all was college where she became a choir member and learned the existence of new forms of music and even was given the chance to sing with a symphony orchestra. Then, another favorite place was the luxury of indoor plumbing, soaking in a tub of bubbles. After college her profession enabled her to travel and find other "favorite places". Then a new home and family loomed upon the horizon with new experiences and favorites such as the first metropolitan zoo, the Grand Canyon, the Redwood Forests of California, a quiet church yard where three generations of ancestors lay, the Continental Divide in Colorado, looking east and west at the snow-covered Rockies in their pristine beauty. Finally the "empty nest syndrome" enters the picture and her partner of fifty years embark on their first Caribbean Cruise and discover new types of favorite places. She still has husband, children and grandchildren and hopes to explore other favorite places with them. She named the myriad favorite places such as eating at Dutches, the Gypsum Mine, the trips to the South Plains Fair, the museum where Peter Hurd was painting the murals, the quietness in the classroom as we followed the adventures of "Little Britches", and on and on. "Now you know the rest of the story." Adios.

Those senior girls attending with their mothers, were Paige Williams, Cindy Shorter, Memori Assiter, Prissy Roys, Brandi Barton, Shandra Brown and Bradley, Kathy Mangram, Yolanda Campbell, Margie Guerrero and class sponsor, Mrs. Billy (Pam) Wilson. Members attending other than those mentioned were Mrs. Harold (Grace) Campbell, Mrs. Bob (Nell) Clem, Mrs. Robert (Winifred) Darsey, Mrs. E.D. (Rhea) Lawrence, Mrs. Ben (Lila) Meador, Mrs. Gene (Mary) Louder, Mrs. John (Josephine) Hamilton, Mrs. E.A. (Dorothy) Day, Mrs. Frank (Lola) Pohl, Miss Rachel Patton, Mrs. W.D. (Vina) Lipscomb, Mrs. Ted (Bailey) Elliott, Mrs. W.N. (Opal) Pipkin, Mrs. Furman (Beverly) Vinson and Mrs. Debbie Martin who assisted Mrs. Bumgardner.

Gifts of earrings shaped like chili peppers were presented to the girls by club president Loys Campbell as a token from the club. They were made by Cathy Weeks and her mom, Nell Clem.

Mrs. L.B. Campbell concluded the days outstanding program by reading, "A Man's Hometown" by Ballentine.

Loretta Thompson Attends IGCA Convention

Loretta Thompson of Rockwall, daughter of Mrs. Ruby Thompson of Matador, recently returned from participating in the 24th Annual Convention of the International Guild of Candle Artisans (IGCA) in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Pre-convention tours were taken which included Old Colorado City, Van Briggle Pottery, Santa's Workshop at Pikes Peak, Garden of the Gods and the United States Air Force Academy.

The Convention was attended by 79 Candlemakers from 13 states and Canada. Participants competed for awards in 19 categories. A total of 91 candles were entered in the candle competition. Loretta entered a basket of scented, dipped pinecones in the category of non-candle and received a first place award with a perfect score of 100.

Members enjoyed a Western Chuckwagon style dinner at the famous Flying W Ranch with entertainment following the installation of the 1989-90 officers, closing a successful 1989 IGCA Convention.

Loretta's dipped pine cones and Potpourri wax may be purchased at The Windmill in Matador.

Senior Citizens Report

by Iris Blevins

The bus went to Lubbock Monday with several people riding. As usual, Doctor's appointments highlighted the day.

Tuesday was our regular fourth Tuesday luncheon, and we had lots of good food and twenty people came to eat.

We were very glad to have Erma Bradshaw, who was Artie's houseguest and her friend, Mrs. Oma Lee George, both of Bovina, to join us at the Senior Citizens luncheon. They are planning on coming back soon, and we invite all of our senior friends to join us anytime we come together. Seven people stayed and played 84 in the afternoon.

Thursday the bus went to Lubbock to the Fair with eleven people riding. It was a beautiful day and everyone enjoyed seeing all of the new exhibits, they were just out of this world, with beauty. I also met several new people.

Mr. and Mrs. Clint Hicks were there and I enjoyed a good visit with them. It was Clint's birthday. Friday evening was our game and fellowship day. Bill opened the doors of the building at 2:00 p.m. and nine of us played. We had one table of 88 and one table of 42. Everyone enjoyed the get-together very much. Sorry you had to work, Norabelle, and couldn't be with us.

Well, it's time for all the new officers of our Senior Citizens to take over and begin a new year. I want to introduce our new reporter, Mrs. Daisy Smith. I know that everyone will enjoy her reporting.

I thank everyone for your comments on my reporting.

Because of budget cuts, the Library Board adopted a policy of charging a $1.00 postal fee for the return of items ordered an Interlibrary Loan effective this week.

We are grateful that we had not found it necessary to charge this fee until now. We hope this will not cause a hardship on any of our patrons who use Interlibrary Loan on a regular basis, or discourage anyone from trying to use it. This is the privilege of requesting books on loan from Lubbock. If they do not have the book there, they send the request to order libraries that have agreed to loan their books by mail. Last week we received books from El Paso, Fort Worth, Dallas, and Abilene. If a book is not available from a state library, we have gotten them from Kansas, Tennessee, Florida, and New Jersey. We still hope to see that you get as much service as possible for your tax dollar.

We are pleased at the number of long-lost books that were returned in the fine-free month of September. A few people told us they were still looking for one lost book. Don't give up. You may find it yet!

It seems I'm always complaining that the interesting visitors come in on my day off, but our first out-of-town guest to come in after our last report was Hal Hines of Dallas. Hal and Elsie Hines were very good friends of my mother and dad visited often in our home so I was delighted to see their son, Hal, and briefly hear about his family, and his Uncle Clay and Aunt Jimmie, and Uncle Coe and Aunt Ruby, and his Aunt Lydia Hines, who still lives in Carlsbad with her son John. Lydia is Mrs. E.J. Hines and her daughter Patty, lives in Utah, and her daughter, Vanda Coburn lives in Lubbock. Lydia and E.J. were the last of the Henry Hines family to leave Flomot, and if you remember when that was, you must be as old as I am. Other visitors were Paul Price of Austin, Morris and Andrea Price of Lubbock, Kris Finley of Andrews, Kay Bailey of Eastland, and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Foster of Whitesboro.

Next Tuesday is time for Library School again, so bring your friends and come along at 10:00 a.m. for films, stories, songs, and handwork.

Motley County Arts & Crafts Club Meets to Create Shirt Clips

The home of Mrs. Winifred Lee was the scene of the October meeting for the Motley County Arts and Crafts Club, when they met on Monday of this week, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Tori Gustafson introduced the group in the art of making T-Shirt clips. Those in attendance created ones made from leather, conchos and beads and from colored plastic cooking crystals.

During the business portion of the meeting, conducted by the new president, Mrs. Gustafson. New yearbooks were given out and a thorough discussion on the up-coming bazaar was held. It will be on November 4 from 9:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. in the Woodruff building, across from the Pizza Box in downtown Matador.

Items created by club members including bakery items will be for sale that day. Also discussed was the November 6 meeting on basket decorating.

Enjoyable refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Gustafson to the following members: Mesdames Joy Archer, Winifred Darsey, Bonnie Edmondson, Tori Gustafson, Lorene Lancaster, Rhea Lawrence, Winifred Lee, Mary Louder, Leola McKelvey, Verdie Neighbors, Opal Pipkin, Una Simpson, and Bertha Stearns.

The next meeting will be on November 6 in the Senior Citizens building, beginning at 10:00 a.m. A covered dish luncheon will be held during the noon hour with Mrs. Pipkin in charge of arrangements.

Lions Club Report

The Matador Lions Club met October 3, with Lion and Mrs. Walter Jones serving a delicious meal to 19 Lions and 4 guests.

Boss Lion Billy Donaldson reported on the Directors meeting and the Lions elected to have the Light Blue sale this year.

District Governor for District 2-T2 Wayne Ward will be at the October 17 meeting.

Program Chairman Gearld Pipkin introduced Marisue Potts for her presentation of the Great American Race that she and her husband participated in this summer. Mrs. Potts showed slides and narrated about the Antique cars and events during the race, from Norfolk, Va. to Disneyland, Ca.

GFWC Eternas Study Club Meets In Library

The first meeting of the 1989-90 club year for the GFWC Eternas Study Club was held at 7:00 p.m., September 21, 1989 at the Motley County Library. The members in attendance went to the Motley County clinic for their program on AIDS. When they returned to the Library, they were served refreshments provided by hostess Wilda Dixon and co-hostess Bobbie Brown. Following refreshments, the business meeting was called to order by President Judy Cooper.

The officers for the year were introduced as follows: President, Judy Cooper; First Vice President, Stacy Reid; Second Vice President, D'Anna Russell; Secretary, Kelli Jackson; Treasurer, Terree Donaldson; Parliamentarian, Bobbie Brown and Reporter, Wilda Dixon. Members attending were: Terree

Donaldson, new members LaVelle Vinson and Debbie Conner, D'Anna Russell, Kendra Luckett, Stacy Reid, Debbie Denison, Sonja Bowman, Kelli Jackson, Wilda Dixon and Judy Cooper.

Memori's Memoirs

by Memori Assiter

A busy and important week is almost behind us at MCHS. Six weeks tests were held Tuesday, Wednesday, and today. Everyone has been studying and keeping up with their activities. Monday, October 2 started off the ADA (Average Daily Attendance) accounting period, this will last through Friday, October 27th. This is the time that the schools funding from the state is set, so everyone needs to be there. Coke parties at the end of each will be given to the classes with the highest percentage of attendance. At the end of the four week accounting period, those students who have attained perfect attendance will have their names entered for a drawing for a JAM BOX!

The football boys have been working extra hard in preparing for their first district game against Knox City, here at 7:30 p.m. Good luck and BEAT THE GREYHOUNDS!

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

by Memori Assiter

The Senior Class of 1990 has elected their class officers for their final year at MCHS. Jarrett Jameson, son of Franklin and Susan Jameson was named President. Rusty Willmon, son of Dean and Billie Willmon, is serving as Vice-President. Yulanda Campbell, daughter of Renomia Campbell, is keeping up with the minutes and checkbook as Secretary/Treasurer.

Brand Cruse, son of Donnie and Judy Cruse is the Reporter. Cindy Shorter, daughter of Clois and Kathy Shorter and Cary Franks, son of Coy and Connie Franks will represent their class as Student Council meetings. Their main goal is to make this year the best one yet.

Texas High School Seniors Eligible for Scholarships

Top Texas high school seniors are eligible for Texas Excellence Awards for Scholarship and Leadership ranging from $1,000 to $16,000. The Awards are sponsored by The Ex-Students' Association of The University of Texas at Austin.

Applicants must be in the top five percent of their class and demonstrate leadership ability in the classroom and/or extracurricular activities. Applications for the Texas Excellence Awards will be available from high school counselors by mid-September with a November 1 application deadline.

More than 1,700 high school seniors made application last year, and during the eight year history of the Texas Excellence Awards, more than 12,000 Texas students have applied for the annual scholarships. Ninety-four students have received Awards since 1982. For additional information, contact The Ex-Students' Association, P.O. Box 7278, Austin, TX 78713, or call (512) 471-3822.

Landfill Regulations

Open burning - Some small communities are still having problems finding an alternative for open burning of solid waste by August 31, 1989. We had hoped that EPA would have provided some exceptions in the Subtitle D rules but their publication has been delayed. We are still trying to get an interim exception for a limited number of cases when certain strict criteria are met. EPA also advises that Air Curtain Destructors (trench burners) are still considered open burning and will not be authorized except for the burning of diseased trees and wood wastes from disaster cleanup operations.

Type IV sites and Subtitle D-EPA advises that brush and construction/demolition waste sites that also receive rubbish from commercial and residential activities will be considered the same as Type I landfills and must comply with all of the requirements. It appears that there may be two alternatives - stop accepting rubbish or obtain a permit amendment to convert the Type IV to a Type I site prior to the effective date.

More next week.

PLANNING FOR COLLEGE

The January deadline for most college applications may seem far away, but it's not too soon for high school seniors and even juniors to begin thinking about the kind of college they'd like to attend. With so many institutions to choose from, finding the best one can seem a formidable task. But experts advise that students who do their "homework" before they apply can find the process to be less confusing and even enjoyable.

No matter what kind of school students want to attend, they will make better decision if they think first about what they want to get out of college, according to Theodore O'Neill, director of admissions at the University of Chicago. O'Neill suggests that students applying to college should first of all "determine what's important to you about going to college," the answer to that question, he says, "will determine the kinds of questions you ask of guidance counselors and college representatives."

The best school for a student, O'Neill cautions, isn't necessarily the most prestigious one. Students and their families place too much importance on a college's prestige, according to O'Neill.

"People tend to look at images rather than at what a place really is," O'Neill says. "High School students and their parents should be wary of lists that rank schools. You shouldn't go by what the media says is the best and the second-best and the third-best college. It's a complete delusion that 'number five' is better than 'number six.' You might be better off at a college that's not on the list of 'Ten Best' but in itself is perfect for you - perfect for what you need and perfect for who you are."

Generally, O'Neill says, it also turns out to be a mistake to pick a school based on a specialized field, especially a technical field, because the number of students who stay with their first choice of a technical field, because the number of students who stay with their choice of a technical field is quite small.

I'm not saying that everyone should go to a liberal arts college, but I would at least want to go to a place that's good in a variety of things. If not, you take a chance on the rest of your education if you change your mind."

Another mistake that students sometimes make is to choose a school because it is familiar, or because friends from high school attend it, or because they feel it's a place where they won't have to work too hard. O'Neill understands that high school seniors who have studied hard might feel they need a break, they may also think their grades will be higher at a less challenging school, increasing their chances of getting into a medical, law or business school.

But students who look at college as an interlude between the pressures of high school and the hard work of graduate school or a first job sell themselves short, he says. "Once they've recovered from the rigors of high school, the thoughtful students will be disappointed by less than a serious education and the others may have a good time but never know what they've missed. They'll never know that it's great to be eighteen years old and to be really challenged in an intellectual way."

Another way students sell themselves short is to overemphasize the importance of SAT and achievement scores to admissions officers. "Students believe too much in the power of scores," O'Neill says. Students and their parents often misinterpret a school's published median scores as its minimum requirement and become disheartened. Instead, he says, "they should think primarily about the courses they're taking, the courses they're registering for and the way they're performing in their courses. That tends to be the most important consideration for us most of the time. Scores very rarely are the determining factor. They usually corroborate the other information we get, and if the scores are way out of line with that information we try to understand why."

After a student has compiled a list of schools he or she is sincerely interested in attending, it's a good idea to arrange to visit each campus to observe classes, talk with current students and meet with a member of the admissions staff. If it's not possible for the student to go to the campus, many schools will arrange for the student to be interviewed by one of its graduates who live nearby. Some schools also have videotapes of their campuses which are available to applicants or their high schools.

When the student arrives on campus for a visit, O'Neill says the most important questions to ask are those based on a student's own particular interests.

Applicants frequently ask about class size, but the usual answers about student-faculty ratio aren't very revealing. Instead, he suggests, "visiting classes tells you more about class size and the interaction between students and faculty members than anything we can say. If a campus visit isn't possible, the student might want to ask about the size of any required classes and who teaches them."

O'Neill says students should also recognize that they're not looking for just a school but also a community where they will live, and so should think about whether a school's environment suits them.

CLIFTON'S RETURN FROM VACATION

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Clifton returned recently from a vacation trip that took them three thousand five hundred miles through nine states and on to Manitoba, Canada. They attended the 7th Annual Reunion of the 121st Hospital Group, stationed in Braintree, England, for three years during World War II. The reunion held in Duluth, Minnesota, lasted three days. After the close of the reunion they drove to Kansasville, Wisconsin, to spend two nights with Mr. and Mrs. Art Stratton. Mr. Stratton was Mr. Clifton's 1st Sergeant. While visiting the Strattons, they met four of their five daughters whom they had known only through letters the past forty-two years.

The group also attended the Homecoming at Patton Springs.

All the Young grandchildren were present, except Manuel Young, who is in the Marshall Islands.

Mrs. J.T. Swim and Miss Lula Swim boarded the Hockley County Senior Citizen bus in Dickens Tuesday morning of this week to accompany a group on a sight-seeing tour through the New England states and Canada. They will enjoy the autumn foliage at its best. They will spend three nights in New York State and will do a great deal of sight-seeing in and around Boston. The trip lasts two weeks. Mesdames Mary Irwin and Billy Clifton attended a Moore Family Reunion in Spur Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Sanders of Midland were Sunday visitors with Mrs. Ossie Lee Brown.

Mrs. Max (Jane) Thacker of Dallas and son, Todd, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Goodwin and son of El Paso and Mrs. Martha Moore of Odessa were houseguests of Mrs. Lillian Thacker while attending Homecoming at Patton Springs the past weekend.

Recent visitors with Mrs. Gary Caffey were her aunt, Mrs. Gladys Parker of Azle and her cousins, Mrs. Barbara Smith of Newark. Mrs. Parker has been a frequent visitor with her sister, Mrs. Clara Youngblood in the past.

Bobby Jack Murphy of Monument, N.M., visited Thursday with Odessa Mullins and other friends and with his sister, Judy Cartwright in Matador.

Jr. Wilson of Amarillo spent the weekend with his brother Jake. They attended the Patton Springs Homecoming.

When Miss Lula Swim was in Lubbock recently, she visited Mesdames Hattie Marshall and Lola Dawson at West Texas Lutheran Care Center and the J.D. Mitchells at Bender-Terrace.

Mrs. Gary Caffey visited with her husband, a patient in Allen's Recovery Center in Plainview Sunday afternoon where he is making satisfactory progress.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Dillard were weekend visitors with their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Reiger and sons, Joel and Jerod of Grand Prairie.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollie McNutt and son Ben of Spade were visitors with their mother and grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Dye, Sunday. Chester Dye and son Cody of Croyston joined the group Sunday afternoon.

TO REPORT NEWS.....

Adapting a hackneyed phrase from political oratory of the past, Donald Johnson says cotton people can "point with pride" to the consumption record compiled by their fiber in 1988.

Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, made the observation after reviewing figures from the 1989 issue of "Cotton Counts Its Customers," an annual market research report published by the National Cotton Council.

The report shows cotton continuing in 1988 to hold a healthy share of U.S. produced apparel and home furnishings, the two largest market categories, accounting for 83 percent of all fiber usage. The remaining 17.2 percent of fibers goes into industrial uses.

Cotton held the 53 percent share of the clothing market achieved in 1987, confirming that the 4 percent increase from 49 percent in 1986 was no fluke. Apparel continued to be cotton's strongest end-use sector, accounting for almost five million bales and over 60 percent of the year's total domestic cotton consumption.

Consumer preference for 100 percent cotton and cotton-rich blends was also evidenced by an increased use of cotton in knits such as sport shirts, sweat shirts, underwear, non-sheer hosiery and sweaters. Knit items used almost 2.3 million bales, 47 percent of the cotton that went into apparel. Comparable numbers for 1987 were 2.2 million bales and only 44 percent of the total.

Woven fabrics however continue to dominate cotton in apparel constructions, consuming over 2.5 million bales or 53 percent of total clothing use. Denim and will cotton constructions proved the most popular end-uses.

Home furnishings, cotton's second strongest market sector, also consumed 2.5 million bales, about 32 percent of the total for 1988. That equals the 2.5 million consumed in home furnishings in 1987 and is a significant gain from the 2.3 million used in 1986.

A more detailed breakdown reveals that cotton's top five end-uses accounted for almost four million bales, about half the eight million consumed in all end-uses. Men's and boys' shirts, with 1.033 million bales used, topped the list.

They were joined in the top five by men's and boy's trousers and shorts, 976,000 bales; towels and washcloths, 895,000; drapery, upholstery and slip-cover fabrics, 541,000, and women's slacks and jeans with 522,000 bales consumed.

The number one factor contributing to the increases in cotton consumption in 1988 and in the steady trend of gains in cotton's market share since the 1960's, Johnson believes, is producer support for the research and market development work of Cotton Incorporated.

"Producers themselves have made the difference," he states, "and it's something they have every right to be proud of."

Social Security Tips For Motley County

A person who applies for disability benefits under either the Social Security supplemental security income program may be considered for services offered by the State vocational rehabilitation agency. These services may include counseling and guidance, medical and surgical treatment, physical therapy, training in the use of prostheses, and job training and placement.

Applications for disability payments are sent by social security to the appropriate agency in the State in which the applicant lives. It is this agency that determines whether the individual is disabled or blind within the meaning of the law.

This agency also decides whether to refer the individual to a State vocational rehabilitation agency. The vocational rehabilitation agency then evaluate the individual to determine whether vocational rehabilitation services would assist the applicant in obtaining employment. The fact that a person accepts vocational rehabilitation services does not affect his or her eligibility for disability payments; however, refusing these services can result in suspension of benefit payments unless there is good cause for the refusal.

Although disability checks usually stop shortly after a person's condition improves to the point that he or she can once more work, an exception applies to beneficiaries who were disabled at the time they started an approved vocational rehabilitation plan, but who unexpectedly recover before the program is completed. In such cases, payment may continue if it is believed that the vocational rehabilitation services will result in a return to work.

"Have you listened to the lyrics of some of this music? It is very destructive and suicidal," the detective said.

In addition to detailing the signs of Satanic worship and how to keep students from getting involved, Price discussed how to deal with a child who already may be involved in occult activities.

"Kids who are involved in devil worship are programmed for violence," he said. "It's a mind thing - a mental thing and mommy and daddy can't do it. You can't just tell Johnny not to hang around with Billy anymore. He needs professional help just like someone who is on drugs."

"Parents have to admit that their child is self-destructive," he said. "Don't cover it up."

Price said many of the kids that are involved in Satanic rituals are high achievers who don't feel they are meeting the standards their parents have set for them.

"The problems are beginning in the home and dominoing into society," he said. "We are trying to target parents and show the importance of communication between the parents and the child. We want to get them to care and spend time with their child."

Osborne did not discredit Price nor the planned seminar. He described Price as "a good officer" but said he didn't know where the Lubbock detective is getting his information about local cases.

"I'm sure we have some people that are into that here, but if it is a big problem we certainly haven't heard about it."

this and they are telling us."

Price said one of those investigations involved Plainview students who participated in a suicide pact.

"The suicides you had here last year were linked to Satanists," Price said. "You had a group of young people here in '87-'88 who had a very destructive attitude. I don't want to come out and call them Satanists, but they had a very destructive attitude."

"There were something like 12 that made a pact that they would kill themselves before the end of the school year. Fortunately we got to them. These were students that felt like suicide was the only way out."

Osborne said he was unaware of any suicide pact being linked to several attempted teen suicides last year.

"We haven't found any evidence linking any suicides in the city to Satanic worship," he said.

Price showed slides which detailed some of the activities of devil worshippers. He also discussed many of the signs that should alert parents, teachers and others that Satanic rituals might be occurring. The signs include things like wearing Satanic jewelry and clothing with destructive messages, not conforming to normal community standards and having hostility toward authority figures, he said.

Price also said he will be discussing the influences of Satanic worship in some caused the water to wind its way back and forth across some 120 acres and virtually eliminated runoff. This land thus stored and used more than 40 inches of accumulated water, resulting in crop yields several times greater than adjacent unterraced land, and earning Dickson national renown as "the man who taught water to walk."

Feeding experiments with beef cattle were started in 1919 to better use home-grown feeds. Tests there showed that grain sorghum had about 95 percent the value of corn in rations for steers. Other tests showed that trench silos preserved more feed nutrients than did banded feed.

A problem of night blindness and loss of appetite among cattle fed popular rations which included cottonseed meal and hulls was solved at the Spur station in 1935. Tests there showed the problems resulted from vitamin A deficiency, which was corrected by providing alfalfa hay or some other source of the vitamin.

The Spur station pioneered in the development of chemical, mechanical and biological methods of brush control. Charles E. Fisher, superintendent at Spur from 1950-1957 and at the Lubbock station from 1957-1967, began the work at Spur in 1936 to control mesquite. The program expanded to include all noxious weeds and plants statewide, and continues today across Texas.

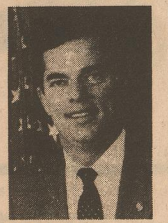

Studies of soil and water conservation, begun in 1927 by Dickson and A.B. Conner, director of TAES from 1926-1944, led to contouring and terracing of hundreds of thousands of acres across Texas and the Great Plains. It also was instrumental in establishing the need for the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The first draft of the enabling legislation that ultimately created the SCS was written in the substitution office at Spur. Dickson, Conner, and Hugh H. Bennett, who later became the first chief of SCS, wrote the first draft in late 1934. A revised version was sent by Conner to U.S. Rep. James P. Buchanan to introduce to Congress.

Other research at Spur over the years included winter maintenance of cows and variety testing of cotton, small grains and grain and forage sorghums. The results are still influencing farmers and ranchers today.

Seven men served as superintendent of the Spur station during its 76 years. They were: F. Hensel, 1909-January 1910; J.K. Fitzgerald, February-April, 1910; I.S. York, April 1910-May 1914; Dickson, May 1914-June 1950; Fisher, 1950-1957; Paul T. Marion, 1957-1973, and James L. Arnold, 1973-1986.

DRUG-WAR FUNDING STILL NOT PERFECT

WASHINGTON — In the Texas Senate and now in Congress, I have worked hard to make education, treatment and rehabilitation a cornerstone of our War on Drugs. The case for improving these services is overwhelming.

I'm fond of pointing out that 95 percent of all American addicts voluntarily seeking treatment are turned away the first time because the treatment services simply aren't available. To me, that's proof enough that we're not doing enough about treatment and rehabilitation.

But, just in case it isn't, try this statistic on for size. The National Institute on Drug Abuse estimates 6.5 million people in this country use cocaine or heroin regularly and are in desperate need of treatment. Of that number, an estimated two million will seek treatment this year. They will be competing for 250,000 available treatment slots nationwide.

President Bush recognizes the need to enhance treatment, education and rehabilitation programs, and for that he should be commended. His position is a refreshing change from the last seven years, when the administration sought a decrease in money for treatment. But, why not more; why stop at a modest increase? Why not go for something really significant?

The answer, obviously, is that he feels our current budget constraints prevent us from doing more. I disagree. There might be a way to increase treatment funding without increasing our deficit. Just transfer money within the drug budget from ineffective programs to programs — like treatment and rehabilitation — that have a better chance of succeeding.

One of our colleagues, Rep. Fortney (Pete) Stark, researched the less effective aspects of our drug war and found these shocking examples of tax dollars spent ineffectively.

- In 1988, the U.S. Navy and Coast Guard sailed for a combined 2,347 ship days at a cost of more than $40 million searching for drug smugglers. Their efforts resulted in the seizure of only 17 ships and the arrest of just 80 drug smugglers.

- During the last two years, the Air Force assisted in War on Drugs by spending more than $8 million to fly radar-equipped AWACs planes for more than 9,000 total hours. They caught less than 25 smugglers in that time.

- In the past two years, the U.S. Customs Service has spent $25 million to manufacture and fly radar balloons off the Mexican border, and caught exactly two marijuana smugglers.

It should be noted that the same Customs Service issued a report in 1987 that concluded treatment programs are more cost effective than most border interdiction programs.

Now, we're not asking the president to eliminate funding for interdiction and law enforcement efforts. Many interdiction programs work well, and heaven knows drug smugglers, pushers and users need to know they face stiff penalties for their crimes. We are asking him to take money from interdiction and enforcement programs that aren't working and put it in treatment, education and rehabilitation.

We also recognize a funding increase in the above-mentioned areas must be coordinated. A 30-day stay in a program is useless if the recovering addict is released into the same environment that caused his or her addiction in the first place. Today, 5,000 Americans will try cocaine for the first time. Society as a whole must undergo an attitude adjustment through sound education programs.

If we don't have such a well-rounded, coordinated effort, we will lose the War on Drugs. Demand is the key to the drug business. As long as Americans want drugs and will pay any price for them, someone will find a way to supply the drugs. Kill demand and you kill the drug business.

If you have additional questions about the War on Drugs, or other issues, please write us at 1223 Longworth House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Rev. Miller Robinson Honored by Baptist Church in Snyder

Rev. Miller Robinson, who served as pastor of Matador's First Baptist church, 1961-1964, was honored recently by the church in Snyder which he has pastored since going there 25 years ago. He resigned his ministry here to accept the pastorate of Colonial Hill Baptist Church in September of 1964.

Colonial Hill Baptist Church has had only two pastors since it was founded in 1954, and on Sunday, August 27, the church with its 1,100 member congregation and friends in the community gathered to honor Rev. Miller and his wife, Sandra Robinson, with a reception during the afternoon.

Quoting from a feature, "Scurry County Folks" by Shirley A. Gorman in the Snyder Daily News of the same date: Robinson has been very busy these past 25 years not only with pastoring his flock at Colonial Hill but also with mission service, community service and continuing education.

"He explained that these continuing education projects were in essence seminars for pastors and their wives. In 1985 they attended the America Summer Institute in St. Andrews, Scotland. This summer they were in Uppsala, Sweden, for another America Summer Institute. They also visited in Russia.

"Mission work for Robinson has involved preaching in churches in Seoul, Korea, and Tokyo, Japan. In 1983, he was a guest lecturer and chapel speaker for the Baptist Seminary of East Africa, Arusha, Tanzania.

"Since moving to Snyder, Robinson has served as a member of the chamber of commerce and industrial development committee.

Robinson also has a long history of denominational service including: Moderator of Coryell Association, Caprock Association and Mitchell-Scurry Association; Member of the Executive Board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, 1981-84; Member of the State Missions Commission of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, 1981-1984; Trustee of the Mexican Baptist Bible Institute in San Antonio; Trustee of the Baptist Memorial Center in San Angelo; and serving currently as a member of the Administrative Committee of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

"Robinson said that his biggest asset throughout his ministry has been his wife, Sandra, whom he credits with being 'the best person and the best minister's wife he has ever seen.' They are both natives of Gatesville and her parents are still living in Coryell County. Robinson graduated from Baylor University in 1955. At that time, he said he had planned to attend law school and become a lawyer like his father.

"But, instead of law school, he entered Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, graduating in 1958." He and Sandra have two sons, John and Kinney.

Friends from Matador who attended the anniversary celebration were Mr. and Mrs. E.A. Day and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Turner.

Letter To The Editor

Mayor Eugene Watson and
The City Council of Roaring Springs

Dear Friends,

How can we describe our gratitude to all of you for the Memorial Dedication in honor of our beloved son and brother, Frank N. Mitchell? The Resolution, read by Mary Green Webb, in Eugene's absence, truly filled our hearts, although there are memorials to Frank in Pusan Harbor, Korea, Honolulu, the United Nations, the Pentagon and in Arlington Cemetery in Washington, D.C. for his bravery as a hero, we know that his being honored by his hometown classmates and friends would have pleased him most.

We know that your devotion to his parents, Judson D. and Isabel Mitchell has also been expressed in this gesture and we deeply appreciate it.

Know that our roots in Roaring Springs are very deep and a part of all of us will be there, forever, thanks to your dedication of the "Frank N. Mitchell Memorial Park".

Most Gratefully,
Judson D. Mitchell,
Marian A. Mitchell Jones

is the Griffins baby daughter, she had not been back to Matador since 1951. Aunt Ruth had visited with Mother and Daddy in Matador in the early 80's, but I had not seen any of them since before then, so they did not know my married name.

I just think it is beautiful that because we live in small hometowns, we are known by almost everyone, and it is easier to locate our old friends and loved ones.

Boy, I am certainly getting more sentimental in my old age, but so nice to have such beautiful memories of such wonderful people.

So, if you would like to use the article we would appreciate it.

Sincerely,

Elwanda McCaghren Surprised With Visit From Long, Lost Cousin

Saturday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Anderson and Mrs. C.N. Griffin of Bullhead City, Arizona, drove into Petersburg to find Mrs. Anderson's cousin. She did not know the cousin's married name. After stopping at the grocery store, she learned, after waiting in line and inquiring from Belinda Isabell, that she had been standing behind her cousin's husband, Marlin McCaghren. He answered Mrs. Anderson by stating that he was the husband of the cousin, Elwanda McCaghren, in question.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Griffin and Mr. and Mrs. Dewayne Martin, of Plainview, enjoyed the afternoon and evening visit. Sunday they visited in Ralls with Mrs. Bob Martin in the Ralls Nursing Home (Mrs. Martin is the sister-in-law and aunt). The group also visited in Lubbock with still another cousin, Mrs. Rosa Venerable.

Sunday evening the relatives departed after having had supper with the Martins in Plainview. Lots of laughter and tears of both joy and sadness were demonstrated by the group as stories were shared of loved ones which had not been seen or heard from in some 30 years.

Mrs. McCaghren says the surprise visit was one which she will never forget.

COULD SOMEONE YOU KNOW SUFFER FROM MAJOR DEPRESSION?

Major Depression is the most common mental illness in the United States. It's not the short-lived "blues" that each of us experiences at one time or another. Nor is it the grief that is the natural result of events such as the loss of a loved one.

Major depression is something different. It can drain your energy, lower your self esteem, and sap your will to even get out of bed in the morning, according to Methodist Hospital's Psychiatric Clinical Specialist Becky Snook, R.M., M.S.N. Those who have fallen victim to its tenacious grip describe it as a mind-numbing feeling of hopeless despair.

Depressive disorders occur most often between the ages of 25 and 44, although major depression has been documented in children as young as age 5. For depression to first appear after age 60 is less common. Most studies indicate that serious depression strikes women twice as frequently as men.

Early Warning Signs And Diagnosis

The Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders, third edition, revised, (DSM-III-R), published by the American Psychiatric Association, is the system most widely used by the mental health professionals to diagnose and classify mental and emotional disorders.

According to DSM-III-R, five of the following nine symptoms must be present most of the day, nearly everyday for a two-week period.

- 1) Depressed mood or irritable mood in children or adolescents;
- 2) Loss of interest or pleasure in usual activities;
- 3) Significant weight loss or gain when not dieting;
- 4) Disturbances in sleep patterns, whether insomnia (difficulty falling asleep or early morning awakening) or hypersomnia (excessive sleepiness);
- 5) Agitation or a generalized slowing of intentional bodily activity, known as psychomotor retardation;
- 6) Fatigue or loss of energy;
- 7) Feeling of worthlessness, or excessive or inappropriate guilt;
- 8) Impaired thinking or concentration;
- 9) Recurrent thought of death or suicide, or a suicide attempt.

The most important thing you can do for a depressed person is to help him or her get appropriate professional help, Snook said. Dealing with a depressed person can be exhausting, but even in its most serious forms, depression usually responds well to modern treatment methods, and symptoms can be relieved quickly - sometimes within weeks.

NATIONAL 4-H WEEK OBSERVED

The week of October 1-7 has been designated as National 4-H Week.

With 4-H in the spotlight this week, I'd like to tell you about the program and invite all eligible youth to join.

The Motley County 4-H members are among 388,000 in Texas and 4.5 million across the nation. This makes 4-H the largest out of school youth organization in the world.

As we observe national 4-H week, we recognize that the program is truly a people development program. The program assists youth in developing skills that will be useful in the real world.

4-H concepts help boys and girls discover their strengths and weaknesses, and exposes them to activities in a variety of career fields. It also helps them build positive self-concepts for directing their lives while learning and having fun as well. The mission of 4-H is to help youth acquire knowledge, develop skills, and form attitudes that will help them to become self-directing, productive and contributing members of society.

This past year Motley County 4-H members learned new skills and made many new friends across the Rolling Plains and the State while participating in the district 3, 4-H Roundup, Teen Leader Lab, Texas 4-H Congress in San Antonio, Texas 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M, the Southwest Homemade Ice Cream Contest in Sulphur Springs and camp activities at the Texas 4-H Center in Brownwood.

Volunteer leaders assisting in the 4-H program also learn new skills while they share their knowledge with young people. Through a valuable network of volunteer leaders, state landgrant universities, state and county governments and the U.S. Department of Agriculture, 4-H continues to stimulate youth to develop life skills and explore career options.

Youth who are in third grade to 19 years of age are eligible regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

To join 4-H just come by the County Extension office in the courthouse and fill out an enrollment form.

Buffalo Grass Chapter Meets In Floydada

Buffalo Grass Chapter NSDAR met Sept. 26 at Lighthouse Electric in Floydada. Mrs. Vera Jo Bybee, Regent, called the meeting to order at 6:30. A salad supper was served to fifteen members. After the meal, Mrs. Bybee asked Carolyn Marble to read the President General's message.

The publicity for Constitution Week consisted of newspaper reports and pictures in the following papers, Lorenzo Examiner, Crosbyton Chronicle, Crosby County News, Floyd County Hesperian and the Motley County Tribune. Also, the Floydada Radio Station had several spot announcements during the week. Displays were also set up in libraries at Crosbyton, Ralls, and Matador. Members responsible for this publicity were: Mesdames Dorothy Hodges, Gene Reed, Eugenia Bethard and Mrs. Bybee.

Mrs. Eugenia Bethard gave the report on National Defense.

Mrs. Vera Jo Bybee read a paper titled "How Lawyers Have Influenced the Establishment of the Constitution."

Mrs. Loretta Denning reported that a box of used clothing, new sewing supplies, sewing materials, bed linens, and toilet articles had been sent to the Bacone College and Indian school at Muskogee Oklahoma. These items were valued at $85.00.

Hostesses were: Mrs. Eugenia Bethard and Mrs. Grace Zabielski. Other present were: Mary Lou Bollman, Vera Jo Bybee, Betty County, Loretta Denning, Dorothy Hodges, Emily Johnston, Janis Julian, Carolyn Marble, Nancy Marble, Ona Ruth Neff, Ozena Norris, Gene Reed and June Sherman.

Next meeting will be October 24.

A Sunday School teacher asked his class of boys, "Why do people call me a Christian?" "I know," cried his next door neighbor. "It's because they don't know you like I do."

Do those who know you call you a Christian?

It's one thing to say that you're a Christian, but it's another thing to show it. It's one thing to profess it, but it's another thing to practice it.

In Christianity, as in every other profession, practicing is the great thing. Lawyers practice law, doctors practice medicine, so Christians must practice Christianity.

The Living Bible says, "Anyone who says he is a Christian should live as Christ did." Do you live as Christ did?
