A Second Glance

By Leon Watson

President Carter is certainly not in office to look out after the interest of American Cattlemen and Farmers. He continues to punish them by his so called inflation fighting moves.

Last summer Carter enraged American Cattlemen by increasing the imports of beef. This was after a record increase in domestic beef prices. Now he has vetoed a bill that would have revoked his authority to have more beef imported from overseas in times of shortages, as those projected for the next 12 months.

Carter says increasing beef imports is anti-inflationary. Bullfighters. Last summer cattlemen began cutting back their herds, and now they will thin them even more, a move that can only drive meat prices up. Is that anti-inflationary?

In an interview in Washington, Richard A. McDougal, president of the National Cattlemen's Association, said the veto of the Meat Import Act will lead to higher beef prices -- not lower prices -- because cattlemen will be afraid to expand production with the threat of "politically motivated" import expansion hanging over them.

"The administration's decision appears to have been based more on short-term political expediency than on long-term good," McDougal said. "The bill was actually anti-inflationary."

American Farmers, faced with record harvests and huge grain surpluses this year, had urged Carter to tighten federal controls on production of corn and other feed grains to increase prices. But he announced that the controls would remain essentially the same in 1979, requiring farmers to idle 10 percent of their land in 'set aside' to qualify for basic federal subsidies and another 10 percent in 'diversion' if they wish to qualify for additional payments.

When Carter decided against imposing tighter controls on already abundant supplies of corn and other feed grains, he projected to hold the average increase in corn prices to about one percent by next October and about 4.4 percent in the year after that. Tighter controls, by limiting production, would have increased prices.

Rumor has it that the Piggly-Wiggly Supermarket chain has been purchased by Affiliated Foods, which is owned by the Rockefeller foundation. They already have Safeway, I'm told, plus many other grocery and food outlets.

The Rockefellers have their fingers in everybody's pie. They plan to control the U.S. money system, food systems, fuels, and everything else it takes for an individual to survive. When costs for survival goes skyrocketing and the value of the dollar becomes almost worthless, then it is easy to control the lives of the people. We become slaves, our only hope being that the government will pull us out. But don't expect much help from the Carter Administration. David Rockefeller has his fingers in that, too.

This country can look for a great crash in the next few months. It will be a crash planned by big-wheels in high places. At least six "Big bank" executives have stated that the dollar has been artificially beat down in the world money markets so "certain people" could skim off quick speculative profits.

About the only people who could survive if we had a complete crash in America, is the farmer; so ways must be found to break him also. Low farm prices, high cost of production and a lot of loans should do the trick.

I don't know who they think we are, but I bet they are hoping we will lay down and take it without a fight. Try to tell the American Ag Movement to lay down and take it, and see how far you get. One of these days all of the "little-shots" in this country are going to say "We can't stand it any more". Then the power of the people is going to take the farmers' lead, and "look out big-shots."

Silverton Slips By Motley Matadors

By Gina Long

The Motley County Matadors traveled to Silverton, Friday night, November 5, to face a fierce Silverton Owl squad. Although the weather was freezing, the Matadors poured out their best efforts to play their best game of the season. The game was purely physical yet the Matadors were edged by the Owls 13 to 12.

Penalties were a major factor in the first half, with yellow flags flying after nearly every play.

Robert Parker, played a superb game, with 32 yards rushing and 122 passing yards for a total of 154. Julian Zabielski, also played a great game with 7 out of 10 passes completed for a total of 145 yards.

Turning in good offensive performances were Robert Parker, Julian Zabielski, Mark Wason, and Glen Calvert. Defensively, the whole secondary of Parker, Zabielski, Wason, and Lester Campbell played well. Mike Green, Robert Shannon, and Glen Calvert also, turned in outstanding performances.

The team wishes to thank their many fans for supporting them this season and to the Pep Club for their support and encouragement.

PTA Meeting Set For Next Monday

The Motley County PTA will meet at 7:00 p.m. Monday, November 20, in the school cafeteria. Tentative plans for the program will be an interesting panel discussion on Homework (to be presented by Mrs. Grace Timmons).

A great deal of work and planning have been put into the program with the aid of parents, teachers and students. The panel will be composed of parents, teachers and a school board trustee. Students from various grade levels were selected to make a survey of homework for one week. This survey included the time spent both in study hall and at home on the assignments. Results of this survey will be revealed along with a discussion on the pros and cons of homework. In the event it is necessary to postpone this program until a later date, the Feb. program on student absenteeism and its effect on the budget and finance structure of the school system will be presented. Refreshments will be served by Flomot PTA members.

At the previous PTA meeting members were asked to submit their suggestions to aid the program committee in planning programs and projects for the year that would meet the needs and interest of our students, school and community. Results of the suggestion box will be presented at the meeting along with discussion and plans for a PTA Open House to be held December 19th at the Motley County school.

Motley County PTA Is Still Growing

The PTA has definitely established their need and interest in the community as the membership roll continues to grow. There are now 114 parents, teachers, and interested citizens who have become members of the newly organized Motley County Parent-Teachers Association.

Upon a special request of the students, the Motley County PTA sponsored the Homecoming Dance for students. The PTA high school room representatives set up this year's homecoming dance. Funds from the previous year's dance were turned over to the PTA and profits from this year's dance were added to it and set up in a special fund designated as the M.C. Student Activity fund. The Student Homecoming Dance will become an annual project of the PTA.

The PTA took an active part in the recent community Halloween Carnival. In an attempt to provide activities for all students, a halloween costume contest was provided for grades one through six. In addition a Princess Contest was held for Elementary and Jr. High Grades in conjunction with the high school queen's contest. Proceeds from the Princess contest were donated to the M.C. High School Student Council to aid in any future projects students choose to help improve their school.

The Association's room representatives and members helped work booths and assisted with various class activities as needed. Profits from the PTA cake walk and concession stand will be used for a selected project to aid the school.

The PTA Objects are: To promote the welfare of children and youth in home, school, community and place of worship; To raise the standards of home life; To secure adequate laws for the care and protection of children and youth; To bring into closer relation the home and the school, that parents and teachers may cooperate intelligently in the education of children and youth; To develop between educators and the general public such united efforts as will secure for all children and youth the highest advantages in physical, mental, social and spiritual education. (Camella) Strickland of Abilene and Mrs. Roland (Willena) Hurt of Lubbock; three sisters, Mrs. Mollie Alexander of Fort Worth, Mrs. Lester (Myrtle) Bird of Amarillo and Mrs. Ada Eade of Lubbock; six grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. Grandsons served as pallbearers.

Theme of Program Is Thanksgiving

The program theme centered around Thanksgiving when El Progreso Club members met Thursday, Nov. 9, at the home of Mrs. Franklin Price, president, who served also as leader.

Subject of the program was "We Give Thanks," with Biblical quotation from I Timothy 2:1, "I exhort therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all men."

Mrs. J. L. Woodruff, speaking on "For the Blessings of the Year," drew on personal experiences during a tour of New England states, and displayed a scrapbook showing points of interest or the trip. She also gave an outline of the Pilgrim's first Thanksgiving in 1621, and quoted excerpts from American History Illustrated, stating that earlier Thanksgiving observances had been recorded in 1578, 1607 and 1619 by early explorers.

Although Abraham Lincoln is often credited with issuing the first proclamation calling for a national observance of Thanksgiving, in 1863, the Second Continental Congress in 1777 had in fact proclaimed a day for national thanksgiving.

"Today," Mrs. Woodruff said, "Thanksgiving is the only religious festival observed in the United States by all its people."

Mrs. R. E. Campbell Jr., speaking on "Our Debt to the American Indian," revealed many interesting facts concerning the foods which the Indians were raising and using, at the time the early settlers arrived.

"American Indians were excellent farmers, and were the first to cultivate what today comprises almost 50 percent of the world's plant foods," Mrs. Campbell quoted from "Heritage Cook Book" (Better Homes and Gardens). In addition to maize, beans and squash, she said, many other vegetables and fruits included peanuts, tapioca, pumpkins, papayas, guavas, avocados, pineapples, tomatoes, chili peppers, cacao, (for chocolate), chicle (for chewing gum) and rice, among others. In addition, they were skilled hunters and fishers.

The first Thanksgiving feast is described as "... a motley collection of forty Pilgrims in cut-cloth clothing and 89 Indians dressed in animal skins and gaily colored turkey feathers, gathered before groaning tables. Most honored of the Indians was the legendary Squanto who had met the Pilgrims one year earlier and had taught them how to make use of the corn they had found, how to find wild greens in the spring, and how to fish for eel and other seafood."

Music for the program was by Miss Pam Francis, who presented piano selections, "Indian Love Call," and "Red Wing." Mrs. Price read a Federation News Report prepared by Mrs. Frank Pohl, and Inspirational Thought was by Mrs. W. C. Pallmeyer, who read Psalm 100 from the Bible.

At the conclusion of the program, Mrs. Price served refreshments of coffee, hot spiced tea, and brownies.

Guests in addition to Miss Francis were her mother and grandmother, Mrs. Vann Francis and Mrs. John Stevens. Members present were Miss Mary Keith and Mesdames L. B. Campbell, Robert Darsey, E. A. Day, C. D. Garrison, Bill McCaghren, John Hamilton, Harold Campbell, W. N. Pipkin, W. F. Jacobs and Douglas Meador, in addition to those mentioned.

Mrs. Price adjourned the club for a Thanksgiving Recess, with a quotation by William Arthur Ward, Assistant to the President of Texas Wesleyan College in Fort Worth, "Thanksgiving should be more of an attitude than an observance; more a way of life than a day apart; more a habit than a holiday; more a spirit of gratitude than a time of feasting."

Social Security Tips

By Janis A. Sherrod
S. S. Representative

Question: My wife died several weeks ago. I know I'm supposed to file an application for social security survivors benefits, but I don't know what papers to take with me. Can you tell me what I'll need?

Answer: Some of the proofs you may need to apply for survivors benefits are your social security number and the deceased worker's number; proof of your age; proof of marriage; the children's birth certificates, if they are applying for benefits; and the deceased worker's income tax forms or returns for the year before death. Don't delay applying because you don't have all these proofs. The people at the social security office can suggest other proofs that can be used.

For further information regarding Social Security benefits please contact the Social Security office, 1401-B West 5th Street, Plainview, telephone 293-4371.

Social Security Insecurity

WASHINGTON—You don't correct one mistake by compounding it with another.

Yet Washington often seems intent on doing just that. The latest example is a Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) regulation which Secretary Califano has proposed in a curiously misplaced concern over money for the ailing Social Security system.

Its primary result, rather than help Social Security much at all, would be to deprive states and localities of a valued source of revenue, while adding to the already swollen administrative costs they incur in dealing with Washington's bureaucracy.

That Social Security should need money at all at this point is disturbing. After the threefold tax increases enacted into law last January, you wouldn't think the system would still be in financial straits.

But that seems to be the long and short of it. What HEW's Califano proposes is a change in the revenue collection schedule by which states turn over to the Federal government Social Security payroll taxes. Normally turned in quarterly, they would be collected every month if his regulation becomes law.

This change would be costly. Local governing bodies customarily invest these temporarily usable monies in short term interest bearing notes, or use the dollars to avoid short term borrowing. Either way, they provide important capital for local needs.

HEW would force Texas cities to turn over these funds monthly, presumably so that the Social Security Administration could make similar use of the money.

But wasn't the reason for the threefold tax increase last January to stave off the imminent collapse of Social Security? And as those Members of Congress who voted for the measure adamantly assured us, weren't stiff tax increases the only way out of the financing dilemma?

Well, of course, they were not. The tax increase only threw more dollars into the ailing system without bothering to correct the real reasons for its depleted reserves: funding formula inequities too long left unattended, and more social service obligations heaped on the system over years for which it never was intended nor equipped to meet.

Those of us who argued in January against tax increases of the kind enacted—merely prolonging the inevitable—view the Secretary's proposal as a strong endorsement that our arguments in January were right to begin with.

Depriving the cities of a valuable source of revenue will not solve Social Security's money problems. It would cause serious financial disruption for municipalities, however, forcing them to beg and barter elsewhere for needed capital.

Moreover, the administrative burdens—not to mention associated costs—of monthly filings would be enormous. If you have difficulty imagining the problems, think of the headaches if you as an individual were forced to file income tax returns every month.

Not a pleasant thought? Multiplied many times over, HEW's regulation would cause that kind of administrative misery for local government. That's why if those of us in the Senate who oppose HEW's proposed regulation have our way, it won't go beyond the proposal stage.

Reddy's tips on electric safety

★ When disconnecting an appliance, don't pull cord; pull plug.

★ Be sure each appliance has the type of cord suited to the job it does - heavy duty extension cords for power tools; moisture resistant cords and plugs for outdoor equipment.

★ Have frayed cords replaced promptly.

★ Water conducts electricity; never handle electric appliances or switches with wet hands or when standing on a wet surface.

★ If an appliance has a separate cord, attach cord to appliance before plugging it into an outlet; disconnect cord from outlet before disconnecting it from appliance. Store cords away from cutlery, heat and dampness.

★ Don't place cords where they'll be tripped over or be subject to wear (under a well-travelled rug, through doorways).

★ Teach children not to play with or around electric sockets or equipment.

★ Don't use an electric lawn mower or hedge clippers when barefoot, or on wet grass or hedges.

Farmer

American farmers today spend more than $40 billion per year on production expenses—machinery, fertilizers, herbicides and pesticides. The farmer is a good customer for basic industries such as petroleum, steel, rubber and chemicals.

Among the products considered worth investing in is AAtrex 4L, the atrazine herbicide that Ciba-Geigy makes with a continuous flow process.

Childhood Beginning Of Dental Care Urged

It is good to encourage your children to emulate George Washington, but not where dental health is concerned. Our first president had a long history of troubles with his teeth, and later with his dentures.

Your children's teeth should last their entire lifetime. Of course, this is true provided youngsters have been started on the way to good dental health at a young age.

Dental health habits must be learned in childhood, the American Medical Association points out. In fact, youngsters should have their first dental examination at the age of two and one-half years — when all their primary teeth have erupted.

Those first teeth are important to future dental health. One basic function of primary teeth is to preserve proper space for permanent teeth, and if they are lost too soon — through decay, for example — the development of permanent teeth is often crooked. Poorly aligned teeth can affect appearance, eating habits and speech. Frequently, misshapen dentition can only be corrected by orthodontic treatment, which may be lengthy and costly. And, if a child's appearance is seriously affected by unsightly teeth, emotional problems may result.

On the initial dental visit, the dentist will check for any signs of beginning decay and other dental problems. He will also give your child — and you — instructions for proper home care. Usually the first appointment is a "get acquainted" period and is designed to make the child receptive to treatment at regular intervals.

To start your child on a lifetime of good dental health at home, make certain he or she always brushes properly after meals and after snacks. If the child is in the habit of eating a lot of sweets, cut down on them; sweets are a major cause of decay. And, the child should be drinking fluoridated water to help prevent decay. If your community's water is not fluoridated, the dentist can suggest alternate methods for your child to receive fluoride's benefits.

Dental decay is one of childhood's most prevalent health problems. Teach your child how to care for his or her teeth at home, and, if the child is already three or older, make the first dental appointment.

OR
how WE kept our head above water IN 1812.

Freedom of the seas. That's what the War of 1812 was all about. But it would have been sink or swim for our Navy had Americans not bought $11,000,000 worth of government securities to keep our flag upon the waves. Back then, folks took stock in America by putting their money where their country was. To save the good old Navy.

Today, over 9½ million modern Americans still take stock in America by buying U.S. Savings Bonds. When you join the Payroll Savings Plan, you help yourself to safe, automatic savings. And you help your country, too.

So buy U.S. Savings Bonds. They'll keep your savings on an even keel.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

Consumer News Thanksgiving Tips

By Pamela Prather
Assistant County Extension
Agent-At-Large

Which traditional American foods will you serve this Thanksgiving?

Poultry, potatoes, sweet-potatoes, cranberries, corn and peanuts are among traditional foods in plentiful supply this November, according to the U.S. Department of Agricultural (USDA). How thankful the Pilgrims were for the abundant harvest native Americans shared with them their first winter on the new continent! They were quick to learn how the Indians cultivated these foods. At that time, each family grew enough to meet its own needs.

This November, you'll discover an abundant supply of foods produced by a handful of farmers. One farmworker now supplies enough food for 56 people, say USDA statisticians.

Food Marketing Alert, the monthly food supply outlook of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, points to record large fall crops of potatoes, sweetpotatoes, onions, and dry split peas to supply your November table. Planning to prepare fresh fruit salads? You'll find plentiful supplies of fresh apples, winter pears and cranberries for your cooking needs. "Plentiful is USDA's description of supplies that are more than enough to meet needs. New crop citrus will be on the increase, to provide adequate supplies of oranges grapefruit and tangerines at local markets. "Adequate" describes supplies that are enough to meet needs.

At the meat counter, broiler-fryers will be the most abundant item. Turkey supplies will be light, below year-earlier levels. If you're looking for red meat, supplies for both beef and pork will be adequate.

Staple foods to consider are: Eggs which continues to be plentiful with out put above normal. As milk production nears its seasonal low, supplies of both milk and dairy products will be adequate, and higher in price.

Look for smaller supplies of can peaches, pears, and fruit cocktail, but adequate supplies of applesauce. Canned and frozen grapefruit juice supplies are adequate but listed as "Light" are not enough for normal needs.

Record-high levels of production for rice, wheat, corn and dry beans are predicted. All will be plentiful.

In celebrating the festive season ahead be considerate as well as economical and prepare dishes that all family members can enjoy.

We are in hopes of beginning a Child Care Project Group and possibly one in Consumer Education. Anyone interested in being a Project Leader contact the County or District Office.

I will be in Motley County November 1, 8, 16, and 17. If there is a request for information or a need for my assistance, please contact the County Extension Agents Office.

Beneficiaries Should Be Aware of Earnings

People getting social security benefits as retired workers, as dependents of retired or disabled workers, or as survivors of a deceased worker who work while they are under 72 should be aware that their earnings could affect their right to benefits, a social security representative said recently.

People 65 or over in 1978 can earn up to $4,000 before benefits are affected. People under 65 all of 1978 can earn up to $3,240 before benefits are affected. These figures are called the "annual exempt amounts."

If earnings exceed the annual exempt amount, the general rule is that $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings above the annual exempt amount.

There is a special rule for people in the first year they have what is called a "non-work month." This is a month during which they neither earn more than 1/12 of the annual exempt amount nor perform substantial services in self-employment. (In 1978, for people 65 or over, 1/12 is $334 and for people under 65, 1/12 is $270.)

Under this special rule during this first year, a person can receive a benefit for each non-work month regardless of total earnings for the year.

In general, a person cannot use this rule if he or she had a non-work month before 1978.

Because of this, a person whose benefits end this year should be aware that earnings he or she has after benefits stop may have an effect on benefits he or she has already received. This situation involves children and their parents caring for them.

More information about the annual earnings test can be obtained at any social security office. The address and telephone number of the nearest social security office can be found in the telephone directory under "Social Security Administration."

Peach Tree Borer Can Be Controlled

Some say sneezing on Saturday means you'll see your sweetheart on Sunday.

The peach tree borer can greatly reduce the life of peach, plum, and apricot trees if left uncontrolled. Peach tree borer larvae feed on the tree trunk at or near the soil line. Their feeding will girdle the tree if not controlled.

Gum mixed with brown frass in masses around the base of the peach tree is the best indication that peach tree borers are present. If paradichlorobenzene crystals are to be used, this material should be applied during the next two weeks. Other insecticides for peach tree borer control should be applied in early June and in mid August.

To apply paradichlorobenzene crystals, remove weeds, and loosen and level the soil about one foot from the tree trunk. Place 1/2 oz. for small trees and 1 oz. for larger trees in a groove 2 inches around the trunk of the tree. Mound and compact the dirt about 6 inches high around the trunk of the tree covering the crystals. Make sure none of the crystals are pushed against the tree trunk, since the crystals can cause injury.

The Scientists Tell Me...

Integrated Pest Management Systems Give Maximum Profits and Control

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

New, improved systems of insect control in crops are being used effectively by producers to increase yields and profits, reduce environmental pollution, and save energy.

Management of crop insect pests is no longer the haphazard, relatively ineffectual effort it was 50 years ago. And if a producer is to make maximum profits, it can no longer be the mechanical "spray or dust by the calendar" that was widely used in the chemical age of the 1950's and '60's.

Today's Integrated Pest Management (IPM) systems use every natural and cultural method to suppress or regulate the buildup of harmful insect populations to levels that would necessitate the use of insecticides.

Ideally, pests would never reach a "harmful economic threshold" that would damage crops by lowering yields and/or quality.

However, most crops at present do have some pests at some time during the season that build up to harmful levels and necessitate the use of chemical controls.

In some instances, IPM systems have been developed that use less insecticides with relatively little environmental disturbance. But in those areas where populations of pests have risen to economic threshold levels, chemical insecticides will continue for some time to play a key role in the management of insect populations.

Research by entomologists and economists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station has resulted in development of the integrated pest management programs for key crops in Texas.

These IPM programs are being put into widespread use by producers, working with entomologists of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The impact of these programs, when compared to conventional methods in a number of areas, reveal a decided economic advantage to the producer using the IPM control strategy.

In the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas an IPM system used a short-season, indeterminate cotton variety (Tamcot SP-37) in combination with reduced fertilizer and irrigation use plus field scouting reports to assist in decisions to apply insecticides on an as-needed-basis.

Additional research also included a variation in the row width, using the short-season cotton variety.

This study was compared with conventional methods of irrigated cotton production in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Insecticide costs decreased by $10.14 under the IPM program. Net returns for conventional production were estimated to be $37.27, while under the IPM program net returns were estimated to be $55.77.

A similar short-season, narrow-row cotton study in Frio County, Texas in 1974 showed that by using the short-season cotton Tamcot SP-37, narrowing the row width to 26 inches, reducing nitrogen fertilizer levels and irrigation water, that pesticide levels were reduced to 6.6 applications, as compared to conventionally-grown cotton that averaged 16.9.

Further analysis showed the short-season narrow-row system returned a net profit of $252 an acre, as compared to $109 per acre for conventional cotton grown on 40-inch rows.

An economical production system was developed for the Pecos River Valley. This system, called ECONOCOT, was developed to increase profitability.

Increased prices in natural gas for well pumps, high insecticide use and overall inflated production costs have produced a gradual decline in cotton acreage in the Pecos River Valley since the early 1970s.

A research-demonstration study compared, under different management schemes, a short-season, indeterminate cotton variety (Tamcot SP-21); an indeterminate maturing cotton variety (McNair 612); and 2 long-season indeterminate varieties (Stoneville 213 and Deltapine 16).

Using reduced fertilizer and water along with timed insecticide applications based on economic threshold information, the total pest management package demonstrated quite clearly that the short-season Tamcot SP21 returned $364.38 per acre compared with net returns generated for Stoneville 213 and Deltapine 16 of $134.49 and $108.19, respectively.

"The total value of the increased net returns was calculated to be $5,594,000 for 100,000 acres of cotton included in the Texas statewide IPM program in 1976," according to Dr. Ray Frisbie, entomologist in charge of Extension's pest management program in Texas.

"The long-term trend in integrated pest management in Texas," according to Dr. Winfield Sterling, Experiment Station entomologist, "is toward placing increasing reliance on biological and cultural controls, using insecticides only where necessary."

"Research results are showing the real value of a system that emphasizes the conservation of useful predators and parasites in cotton."

"In areas where pests display high levels of resistance to insecticides, these systems secure control of pests, and may even increase yields, boost profits, conserve energy, and reduce environmental contamination," Sterling concluded.

China Buys Cotton

Trade sources have indicated the People's Republic of China bought about 150,000 bales of U.S. cotton while on a special orientation tour of the Cotton Belt during the past two weeks.

The tour, which brought representatives of the China National Textiles Import and Export Corporation (Chinatex) from Peking to this country, was initiated by Cotton Council International during a trade mission to the PRC earlier this year. Cotton Council International is the overseas arm of the National Cotton Council.

Co-sponsors of the tour were American Cotton Shippers Association, AMCOT, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Council President Lon Mann said the cooperation of cotton industry firms and allied groups was a key factor in the tour's success.

"Cooperation among cotton companies and organizations involved couldn't have been better," he said. "Our Chinese guests were obviously impressed, and the relationships established as a result of the tour will be of great benefit to our industry for years to come."

The tour opened in Memphis Oct. 15 and included stops in Dallas, Lubbock, Phoenix, Los Angeles, Bakersfield, Corcoran, and Fresno.

ASTRO-DESTINY

Isn't it about time to visit those distant relatives you haven't heard from? Write, phone, but do communicate - they want to hear.

Money dribbles away and there's little to show for it. Obstacles bar your progress. No chance to save for a rainy day.

An apology may be in order. Don't worry you'll find the right words. Remember you can't succeed unless you give it a whirl.

You need a rest. You don't know when to stop. Avoid excess of all kinds. Relaxation is a must.

It might be wise to consult a trusted friend with your romantic entanglement. Some things aren't what they seem.

Work is pleasant this week. A long lunch hour can bring a new acquaintance into your circle of friends.

Errors seem to pop up all over the place. Try as you will, nothing seems to go right. Grit your teeth, it can't last forever.

You've strived hard and long and finally all this has come to a head. Recognition is at hand!

We humans have our weaknesses. Unfortunately, this week you seem to forget it and make no allowance for a friend.

Things have come full cycle. You shine brightly and are admired by friends and foes alike.

Competition get's tough. All's fair in love and war. Your practical side will see you through.

Your handling of personnel is commended by your superiors. Piscean people are attuned to others and can anticipate reactions.
