RAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

Decay is a slow and tragic condition to watch a town decay is to see the once bright marquee become dark and rot away from their joints, weeds growing in sidewalk cracks and empty buildings, railroad decays with empty benches, box cars and cabooses, emptiness on side tracks. Weeds grow up and die even with the signal boxes, and the silence, the noise, the railroad dies, the dragon whose fires have cooled, a giant whose hands are tied.

Living a lost friendship is to attempt to start a fire with wood that is soaking wet.

Delinquency is a matter of conduct standards. Criticism should be given in a given period, and be changed as society made changes in its constant transition.

More people are interested in the favor of their enemies than their own.

Few criminals are willing to wait justice if there is a bare chance they may obtain mercy.

Butter churned from cream in a hot pottery container and spread on biscuits is a delicacy modern stores do not offer. It is one of the wonderful foods we have had for convenience.

If you can remember when women were fascinatored over their heels, chances are that you have voted and started voting Republican.

Telling the truth is not always popular, and living the truth is difficult to explain in a world that is attempting to set new standards.

Courage is seldom a product of good judgement, but rather a by-product of decency.

Willson Lauds Today's Youth

"We have pessimists and we have optimists, what we need are some new realists, who will go below the surface as our young people are trying to do," declared Jimmy Willson of Floydada in an address to Legion and Legion Auxiliary members at their monthly covered dish supper Monday night.

"Our young people are searching for answers that they have not been able to find and answers that we have not been able to give them," Willson continued.

Willson, a World War II veteran, answered Commander Furman Vinson's request for an address on "The Good of Today's Youth" by citing examples of young people who had gone beyond that that was required of them.

"For every 18 year-old who steals a car there are thousands of others out mowing the grass, studying or working," he pointed out. He then related the story of David Crop, a medic in Viet Nam, and other young people who "did not burn their draft cards, but gave their best."

Willson characterized this generation as one searching and finding. "Young people are finding answers today because they are looking for them and our generation took the same things for granted," he stated.

In closing the veteran emphasized that "the challenges of yesterday remain the challenges of today. However, a look at the majority of our young people indicates that the coming generation will solve its problems."

Herbert Smallwood Assigned Overseas

Accompanied by their children they left Sunday for a visit with Mrs. Smallwood's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Liston of Beloit, Wisconsin. En route they stopped over in Plainview to visit his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Smallwood, and in Liberal, Kansas with another brother, Clyde Smallwood and family.

Recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Patton and Miss Mary Keith were Mrs. G. C. Keith of Whiteface and her daughters and families, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Knox Jr., Danny, Joy and Judy of Lubbock, and Mr. and Mrs. Brad Rowland, Keith, Lynn, Richard and Mary Frances of Anson.

Letters compiled by the boards of the two districts were mailed to property-owners early this week. Petitions were circulated in both districts which required only 20 names each, but many more signed, and only token opposition to the plan was encountered.

Two public meetings are scheduled tonight, one in the Roaring Springs gymnasium, and one in the Matador school auditorium, at which time the plan will be more fully explained and discussed. The meetings are set for 8:30 p.m. If the plan is approved, the name of the district will be Motley Consolidated Independent School District.

The district would embrace a total of 812 square miles with a total school valuation of $7,674,740.

Below is the letter dated June 2, to school patrons, explaining the advantages of the school district consolidation:

- Historically, it has been proven advantageous to create one strong, well-equipped school system for an area rather than to maintain several small units with considerable inefficiency due to the need for duplication of operations within the several districts; such as transportation, plant maintenance and custodial services; building insurance; food services; administrative, business and staff personnel.
- Technical and special service personnel, not available to the smaller schools due to low enrollment, are made possible through consolidation.
- Teachers with specialized training prefer to work in the larger systems where their special field of preparation may be more fully utilized. Staff development and in-service programs are more readily adaptable to the larger units.
- Consolidation allows for a more comprehensive educational program of studies to meet the needs of the individual student. The curriculum of the small school must, by necessity, be largely limited to the college bound student; whereas the larger unit provides the additional opportunity for vocational, commercial and technical training necessary for the terminal student.
- The larger systems provide opportunity for greater social and leadership development through participation in more numerous clubs, organizations and other extra-curricular activities.
- The larger units eliminate the need for grade combinations at the elementary level or make it possible to have two sections for larger classes.
- Larger student sections at the high school level tend to stimulate educational competition.
- The consolidation of school districts provides a broader tax structure for the support of a single system.
- Incentive aid is payable over a period of ten years to a consolidated district if they make up the majority of the students in the county.
- Provide greater variety in course offerings for high school students.
- Protect both districts against being absorbed by adjoining districts.
- Resist future centralization pressure to be brought on by the state.
- Insure local control of our schools.
- School Board would be made up of members from present school board in Matador and Roaring Springs.
- Continue to attract capable personnel.
- Afford opportunities for a complete school program.
- Spend school dollars wisely.
- Insure equal educational opportunities for all children.
- Insure each community an opportunity to maintain its original identity.
- Present facilities in Matador and Roaring Springs would be improved.
- Increased savings in operational cost after approximately two years.
- Both districts will be paying higher taxes next year without consolidation.
- Through incentive aid the schools would receive approximately (Continued on back page)

IN THE ROUGH by hazel

AND THE RAINS CAME

Our course has been flooded and we have had real water hazards. The tank is full and at the height of the flood the water took in the windmill and the No. 1 green. The water was also on No. 3 green and all across to No. 4 tee box and on up to the bunker — some water along the shelter belt on No. 5 — and the green on this hole was about half washed away. We had no play day last week, but this week we will turn in 2 scores for our Running Tournament.

GUEST DAY AT PADUCAH

There were 4 players at Paducah Thursday, from Vernon, Childress, Floydada, Matador and Paducah. We had coffee and doughnuts early at the club house and enjoyed visiting. SIDE LIGHTS

It's always so much fun to go to Paducah and see so many of our friends. After 9 hole play was finished, Mildred H. took some of us to her home to "freshen up". We enjoyed her lovely home and back yard... I popped across the street to say hello to my good friends, W. O. and Altha Jones... their African Violets rival a florist's display. A MOST beautiful sight! Mildred Carr also took a group of the gals to her home.

A CARD at the Club impressed me

"It's nice to be important, But It's MORE important to be NICE"

ENJOYED visiting with Wilmer Wilson (Elizabeth's husband) and appreciated the nice things he said about this column... seeing the pictures of their grandchildren, made on a recent visit home... SUCH a delightful experience to be in the beautiful home of the Jones gals... everything was arranged for the luncheon and those who did not play golf had really been busy (however, Mildred H. played golf and had baked the beans the night and morning before.) We enjoyed viewing and admiring Sybil's paintings... and Myrtle's comments about them... A German Schnauzer dog, "Judge" was greeting the guests and being petted. Each place at the table was marked with favors... miniature loving cups with tees and green markers (the markers compliments of General Telephone). The Jones sisters were attending a wedding (their niece) in Lubbock that evening... and that was the night of the STORM in Lubbock...

Improvement Plans Presented by USDA
Alfred A. Harrison, Chairman of the Floyd County Technical Action Panel announced recently that the United States Department of Agriculture had instructed its rural development specialists to "end the migration of rural people to large cities by helping small communities revitalize themselves."
The primary objectives of the move are to provide assistance to multi-county planning and development groups; to extend services and benefits of all Federal agencies into rural areas; and to help rural communities make economic development plans and secure services needed to carry out the plans.
Working on the project will be all the Technical Action Panels, recently established in each state as ordered by the Secretary of Agriculture. Membership in the panels consists of the heads of all Department of Agriculture agencies that hold state offices. The heads of all other government agencies that provide support in the development of rural areas are invited to become members.
The State Director of the Farmers Home Administration serves as chairman, the Soil Conservation Service State Conservationist is co-chairman, and the State Executive Director of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service is alternate chairman.

The panel has established a program to enable local lenders to (1) get help they need in finding out what is impeding the development of their local economy, (2) obtain assistance in preparing economic development plans, and (3) tap all government and private services that can be used to turn dreams into reality.
Also working on the coordination of the program is the Consumer and Marketing Service, Farmer Cooperative Service, Forest Service and the Rural Electrification Administration. Support efforts of the Agricultural Research Service, the Cooperative State Research Service, the Economic Research Service the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, and the Statistical Reporting Service are also listed.

the label as approved by the US Department of Agriculture, and these directions should be followed exactly.
To avoid chemical wind drift onto susceptible broadleaf plants, make applications only when wind velocity is below 10 m.p.h. All herbicide users should have some type of wind gauge so they can know when conditions become dangerous. Use chemicals only on crops for which they are recommended, use only the quantity called for on the label, and apply the chemicals only at time recommended on the label.
Amine salt or low volatile formulations are the safest, as they do not vaporize and drift as much as the high volatile formulations. Texas A&M University specialists report that the greatest problems with herbicides are occurring where inexperienced operators are making applications. Herbicides are designed to do a job, and this they will do if the label so states, providing the instructions on the label are followed.
In case we ever get any moisture, the following findings might give you money.
Excessive and improper tillage operation may cause more income loss than is realized. There are four basic reasons for cultural or tillage operation: 1. To improve soil physical conditions and promote water infiltration and aeration; 2. to destroy or control undesirable vegetation; 3. to incorporate crop residues and other organic materials into the soil; and 4. to prepare a seedbed.
Excessive tillage hastens decomposition and reduction of soil organic matter. One tillage operation, plowing, may cause the formation of a plow sole-compacted soil usually formed just beneath the normal tillage depth. To minimize this problem, vary the tillage depth from year to year. It is often desirable to alternate deep chiseling, subsoiling and or deep plowing on alternate years.
Wheel-type tractors operated on wet soil, especially when heavy equipment is being pulled or a slipping tractor tire can seal the

COUNTY AGENT PALLMEYER SAYS:
Several farmers have been asking about the possibility of soybean production in Motley County, the best recommendation I can give is from L-411 "Soybeans", an Extension Service Publication that is available in my office.
"Although profitable yields have been obtained under dryland conditions on bottomland soils in the Red River Valley and the eastern part of the Coast Prairie, yields over a period of years have been so inconsistent the crop has not been grown widely. Elsewhere in the State, where supplemental irrigation is not provided, yields are too low or inconsistent for profitable production."
Summing it up, unless you have irrigation, soybeans in Motley County are a great risk. Even though Jerrel Nimmo at Northfield had fair yields of soybeans in 1966, how many years can we count on 12 to 15 inches of rain in August and September? If you want to try them, why not try only a limited acreage.
Herbicides can be useful tools for controlling weeds if they are properly applied. Improper application can cause crop damage and lawsuits from neighbors.
To get satisfactory results from herbicides, follow the directions on soil and prevent downward movement of water and air. Tracks should be chiseled out during the tillage operation to prevent his problem.

According to information I have just received from Dr. I. M. Atkins, Agronomist, Texas A&M University, the smallest oat and barley crop will be harvested in many years.
Growers should save any field that will furnish some seed, even though it would normally be unprofitable to harvest.
I know that the acreage of these crops in Motley County is very limited, but from the above, it appears that these crops might demand a good price for seed as seedmen do not know where seed of adapted varieties will be available.

Here's why MALATHION LV Concentrate is the No. 1 ultra low volume boll weevil insecticide!

- PROVEN EFFECTIVENESS. Used on millions of treatment acres of cotton over the last 3 years, Malathion has given better than 95% weevil control at the U.S.D.A. registered rates of 8 to 16 ounces per acre.
- LOW HAZARD. Malathion has the lowest oral and dermal toxicity of any cotton insecticide. (Clinical Handbook of Economic Poisons U.S. Public Health Service).
- BROAD REGISTRATION. In addition to the U.S.D.A. registration for control of thrips and boll weevil on cotton, Malathion is the only ultra low volume insecticide registered for use on 20 food and forage crops and beef cattle at 2 to 16 ounces per acre. (U.S.D.A. registered number 241-110).
- FREEDOM FROM DRIFT RESIDUE WORRY. Drift residues to adjacent food or forage crops or cattle present no problem at recommended rates.
- ALL-SEASON USAGE. Malathion has given outstanding control of boll weevil on cotton when used early for over-wintering weevil, later in the season for subsequent broods and up until killing frost in diapause control.
- ECONOMICAL. Cost of material alone does not establish true economy. To the cost of material per acre must be added... proven effectiveness in 3 years of commercial use... low hazard to the applicator and all target areas... broad registration, permitting application even on beef cattle... freedom from drift residue worry... and all-season usage on cotton from emergence to frost. These advantages PLUS low per acre cost makes Malathion LV Concentrate the No. 1, economical, ultra low volume insecticide for boll weevil control.

LIVING COSTS SHOW INCREASE

WASHINGTON—Consumer living costs rose three tenths of 1 per cent in April despite a decline in wholesale prices for the month, the Labor Department reported.

Lower grocery store food prices and decreases in new cars and appliances were offset by increases for clothing, home furnishings and furniture, the monthly index showed.

The consumer price level for April was 115.3 compared to 115 in March. The wholesale price index for April dropped four tenths of 1 per cent to 105.3.

Arthur M. Ross, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said the continued decline in retail food prices reflected reductions at the wholesale level since last year.

He said the declines were the result of lower prices for most fresh vegetables and fruits.

The increase in general house furnishing prices was the result of higher production and marketing costs passed on in a favorable situation.
