Teachers Are Human Engineers Lions Speaker Alarmed By Education's Crisis

There is a shortage of 130,000 school teachers in the United States today according to Dr. Horace C. Hartzell of Texas Technological College, Lubbock, principal speaker Tuesday at the regular luncheon meeting of the Matador Lions Club.

"We need to teach so many, so much in such a short time," Dr. Hartzell declared, "and there are not enough teachers and not enough schools and not enough school rooms. It is alarming when we consider that this nation is spending only 14% of its income on education while Russia is spending 15%."

"There is so much more to learn in this age," Dr. Hartzell said, "than when the parents of the present generation went to school. Teachers are human engineers who are to shape the future destiny of this nation and the world, through their work with our boys and girls."

Dr. Hartzell compared parents as the bowman and the bow and the child as the arrow. He said the parent can only aim the child in the right direction.

He saw, however, hope in the nation's being brought to the realization of its education crisis. "When it becomes dark the stars are visible," Dr. Hartzell quoted as applied to education. He was introduced by Superintendent Bert Ezzell, program chairman.

Matadors Take 3rd Conference

By Johnny Ezzell

THIRD straight conference victory in a row was racked up by the Matador Matadors Friday night when they dressed the Turkey Turks to the tune of 48-7. A stone wall line held the Turks scoreless until near the end of the game. Big gun for the Matadors was Arvin Ellithorp who scored three touchdowns.

Dayton Graham opened the scoring on a 25-yard romp over right tackle Pat Green, converting on a 10-yard run for the Matadors. Second tally for the Matadors came in the second quarter when Ellithorp went 25-yards up the middle. Pat Green again converted. Charles Renfro went 8 yards around right end. Ellithorp went 2 yards over right guard for touchdowns. Green converted both times.

Dayton Graham went one foot in the fourth for Matadors fifth touchdown of the game. Ellithorp then broke over right guard for 60 yards to tally the sixth score, with Green again converting.

Graham passed to Pat Green for 14 yards and loosed another pass to A. B. Simpson (end) for the seventh and last score of the game. Pat Green kicked his 6th (out of seven tries) extra point to make the score 48-0 at this point in the game.

With four minutes to go Coach Ray Hopkins sent in his freshman squad and the Turks took the kickoff to move 75 yards for their only score of the conference contest. B. Wheeler went 10 yards for the score and B. Weatherly ran over the extra point.

The Matadors will go to Silverton tomorrow evening where they will meet the Silverton Owls for the 4th conference game. It is expected that a large caravan of fans and boosters will follow the home team. The game is called for 8 p. m.

Hallow'en Damage Reported "Light"
Damage to property by Hallow'en pranksters was reported as "light" in Matador and Roaring Springs. Windows received their usual coating of soap, trash and cans scattered over the streets and trailers were removed from the moorings, but actual destruction was lighter than in previous years.

Gangs of masked small fry made their rounds for "trick or treats" and appeared to enjoy the Hallow'en custom more than the older youngsters.

Final Rites Held For Mrs. C. W. Winn

Final rites were held here today at 2:30 p. m. at the Methodist Church for Mrs. C. W. Winn, 87, who died in Stanley Hospital at 8 o'clock Tuesday night. She was conveyed to the hospital Monday afternoon after suffering a stroke at her home in north Matador.

Many new features of beauty, comfort, safety and economy are claimed for the newest Chevrolet. The appointments are equal in many instances to those found on fine cars costing twice the price.

Work Started on Highway Project

Work has now started on the $450,000 State Highway Department project of widening and improving US 70 from Matador to the Cottle county line.

R. L. (Bob) Nabers, Assistant District Engineer of Childress, who was here Tuesday said that contractors are moving in and starting operation which will probably require 25 men. He said, however, that as soon as the work gets under way approximately 50 men will be employed from six to eight months.

Mr. Nabers said the concrete bridges and culvert work will be first in the progress of the improvement project. The road is to be widened to four-lane and a new bridge will be constructed across Teepee creek to eliminate the dangerous curves in the present route. The curves at the east Motley county line will be removed and the highway will make a different approach into Cottle county.

J. E. Edwards Named To Lead Campaign

AN INTENSIVE DRIVE to raise $2,000 for the Matador Community Chest was launched this week. J. E. (Jake) Edwards, Matador grade school principal, accepted chairmanship of the fund drive and has announced that he hopes to raise the quota in two days of intense solicitation, November 18-19, although much preliminary work will be done in advance. Mr. Edwards led the Community Chest movement here when it was started six years ago.

Other members of the Community Chest committee are Dr. J. S. Stanley, Randall Whitworth, Ralph Stapleton and Bill Seale. Of the $2,000 budget set by the committee, $800 will go for the support of Matador Boy Scout Troop 60. In past years Salvation Army has received $150. Emergency relief fund (for the aid of local needy cases) will receive the largest amount of the budget.

Area embraced by the Matador Community Chest is the area of the Matador Independent School district. A total of five groups will benefit from the funds.

Purpose of the Community Chest is to reduce (or eliminate) the "clip board" drives that are made during the year. Each request for funds of any nature from the chest is carefully screened by a committee of local citizens.

Value Of Chest Cited
Elmer Stearns, executive vice-president of the First State Bank at the Tuesday Lions Club meeting cited the value of the "one donation" plan of the chest.

"We are pleased with the Community Chest," Mr. Stearns said, "and it is a satisfaction to make a year's contribution at one time. It is convenient to send request for contributions to the Community Chest committee knowing that the cause will be screened, and if found worthy, that a contribution will be made. We know that our welfare dollars are going where they should go."

Matador Exes Will Observe Veteran's Day

Response to invitations mailed to former students and teachers of Matador schools, to Homecoming activities on November 11, has been gratifying both in payment of dues to the association, and interest in the event.

In an executive and committee meeting called Sunday afternoon by President J. E. Edwards it was stressed that the association includes all ex-students and former teachers of Whiteflat, Barton, Ballard, Fairview and Clements schools which have all been consolidated with Matador.

Plans for a brief Veteran's Day Memorial service to be included in the activities for the day, were also discussed, and it was suggested to hold this service immediately preceding the evening football game, on Burleson Field. Invocation, Color Guard, Taps and singing of the National Anthem is the tentative order of the service outlined.

Members of the county's two ex-servicemen's organization, Fleming Post American Legion and V. F. W. will participate in this part of the day's program.

As on previous homecoming occasions, Matador business firms will cooperate with the ex-students in publicizing the affair with display windows, old school pictures, annuals, souvenirs, etc., are solicited, and those contributing are urged to collect their individual contributions following the homecoming as the merchants will be unable to keep a record of the donated articles.

All pictures will be welcome, and those that have not been displayed in previous years will be especially appreciated.

AUSTIN—Speculation is running high that both Gov. Allan Shivers and U. S. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson will have leading roles in the selection of the next Democratic presidential nominee.

Both have denied participation in any movement for a Southern coalition to block re-nomination of Adlai Stevenson.

Johnson denies that he is heading up a coalition. Nomination is up to the delegates, he said, and he will support whoever wins out. And, he is not a "conservative," the senator stressed, but a "moderate."

Johnson, before his heart at- tack last summer, was considered a likely future contender for presidential nomination. Some believe, should he regain his health sufficiently, he again will enter the picture.

Gov. Shivers, at the conclusion of the Southern Governors Conference, took a slightly different approach. He said he will vote for the presidential candidate "I think is best for the future of my country, and I hope the Democrats can produce that man."

Leaders of the Texas Democratic Advisory Council, set up by Speaker Sam Rayburn, say they plan to carry on organiza- tional and money-raising efforts. This liberal group, organized to "carry on the functions of national committeeman" during the years Wright Morrow was barred from the seat, has raised money the past four years for the national party. It now is busy organizing for control of presidential conventions next year.

On the other side of the picture is the Democratic State Executive Committee, conserva- tive pro-Shivers organization. DSE also is carrying on organiza- tional and money-raising ef- forts and has no intention of stopping, according to State Chairman George W. Sandlin.

A DAC meeting is scheduled for Nov. 4, to select a leader to replace Navarro County Judge Jim Sewell.

Outside observers have suggested a connection between the resignation of Sewell from the liberal group and the ousting by conservatives of Wright Morrow. It is part of an over-all effort, they hint, to rid both groups of extreme left and right-wingers and merge Democratic party func- tions for a strong voice in na- tional affairs.

Officials of the State Health Department have declared that three Salk polio shots are necessary for maximum protection against crippling effects of polio.

Children who have had two shots should have the third "booster shot" early in the Spring of 1956, the Department urged.

In answer to a series of ques- tions, the Health Department ex- plained that it is not known at present exactly how long pro- tection from three Salk shots will last. Experts now estimate protection at about two and one-half years. Perhaps after that time, booster shots again will be advised.

Persons who already have re- ceived from polio also should have the shots, the Department said. There are three types of polio. Having a case of one type will not set up immunity against the other two. The Salk vaccine is aimed at giving immunity to all three types.

Only nine Texas children have been stricken with paralytic polio despite Salk inoculations. Dr. Henry A. Holle, state health commissioner announced. The nine cases were among 473,830 vaccinated children.

UT Entrance Exam Approved

Beginning next fall the Uni- versity of Texas will admit stu- dents on the basis of aptitude test scores.

Tests are to be given probably three times a year, without cost to the applicant, at centers throughout the state.

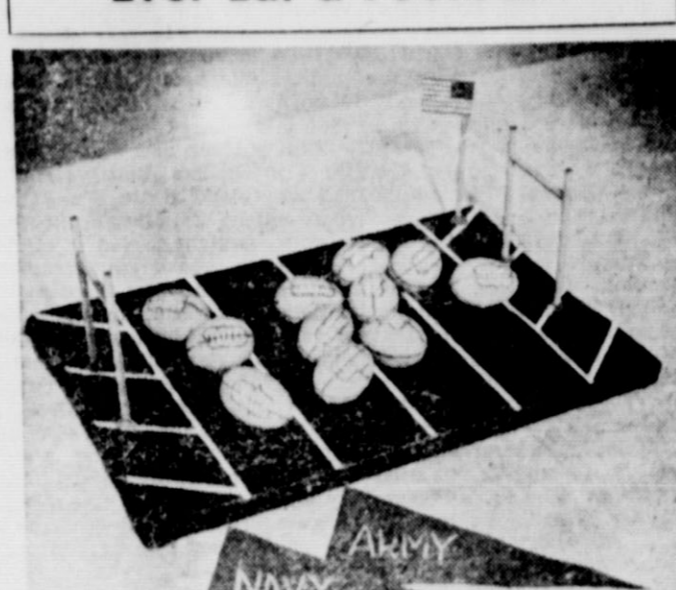

Rapidly increasing enrollment necessitated tests to eliminate students who will be unsuccess- ful, the Board of Regents stated.

Suggestions include (1) greater publicity on the cost of crime, (2) establishment of a four-year college course in criminology, and (3) education of youngsters by a touring "crimobile" equipped with latest detection devices.

Participants were the Texas Law Enforcement Foundation, the Attorney General's Citizen Committee on Law Enforcement and the State Law Enforcement Advisory Council.

Booby Prize Stolen

Last year Austin received the "booby prize" in the Safe Driving Day contest. Award was a dentured fender which was displayed — but not proudly — on the city hall lawn.

Painted on the fender, in white was "Awarded to Austin, Texas for Last Place in the First Annual Safety Bowl."

Theft of the "prize" was discovered last week when preliminary work began on the upcoming S-D Day. Nobody knows who took it, or when. "We never were too happy about getting that thing in the first place," said Captain Bob Miles of the Austin Police Department. "We didn't keep up with it very closely."

COME TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Attendance At State Fair Breaks Record

Breaking all records, the State Fair of Texas wound up with a total attendance of 2,611,271 for the 16 days and 17 nights of its 1955 exposition.

The fair broke its own national attendance record of 2,506,463 set at last year's fair, and also established a new world's record for single-day attendance at any annual fair. The big day was Saturday, Oct. 15, when the crowds totaled a fantastic 323,224.

A total of 82,337 fairgoers saw the State Fair Auditorium attraction, "The Pajama Game" and "Ice Capades" attracted over 100,000.

The junior livestock and poultry auctions for steers, lambs, pigs, turkeys and broilers resulted in total sales of $173,027 for the hundreds of boys and girls who took part. The junior live- stock shows were the largest in the fair's history.

Dates of the 1956 State Fair of Texas have been tentatively set for Oct. 6 through 21.

Date Changed For T-O Game

One important change will be made in the format of next year's fair, due to the way the calendar falls. The Texas-Oklahoma football game will be played on the second Saturday of the fair, rather than the first, and this schedule will hold for the next three years.

As a result, Rural Youth Day, which this year attracted over 100,000 boys and girls from all parts of the state, will probably be moved to the opening Satur- day of the fair, rather than the middle Saturday.

The opening day football fea- ture of the 1956 exposition will be a night game in the Cotton Bowl between Texas A&M and Texas Tech.

Clubwomen Discuss Current Problems

A film, "Last Date", portraying the dangers of reckless driving, was shown by James Priddy, Soil Conservation Service Specialist when El Progresso Study Club met Thursday in the home of Mrs. G. E. Hamilton.

In addition to the film, a forum was led by Mrs. U. L. Willie on the subject, "The Clubwoman Looks at her Country's Problems". Mrs. Willie also discussed the merits of a two-party system of government as the cornerstone of true democracy.

"Racial Stresses and Strains" was outlined by Mrs. Arthur Fair, who pointed out that this is a major problem in America. She said that desegregation was a slow process but great strides had been made toward this end in the past 15 years; also that race prejudice was not confined to the Negro race but to other races in the U. S. A.

Mrs. Ralph Stapleton spoke on the question, "Is Labor too Powerful?" She revealed that in the United States today there are 63 million employed laborers and only 17 million are members of unions, the most powerful union being the AFL which dates back to 1890. "Improved working conditions and a living wage are the direct benefits of the labor movement. Even the farmer and rancher are benefitted by the increased purchasing power of the working man as is the whole economic structure of the country", Mrs. Stapleton said.

Present, other than those on the program, were: Miss Mary Keith and Mesdames L. E. Campbell, W. W. Clements, A. J. Daffern, Howe Hines, Vance Gilbreath, W. D. Lipscomb, D. E. Pitts, Sr., Frank Pohl, Fred Simpson, Melton Thacker, A. C. Traveek, Jr., C. P. Waybourn, Harry Willett, J. R. Whitworth and J. L. Woodruff.

DAUGHTER OF EX-STUDENT IS NOTED MUSICIAN

The daughter of one of Matador's ex-students is a musician of note in Dallas symphonic circles. She is Miss Juanita Teal, contralto, daughter of Mrs. Vashti Cammack Teal (Matador class of 1909) and a niece of local residents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cammack.

Signal honors went to Miss Teal, Dallas Symphony soloist, last winter when she won the G. B. Dealey Memorial award of $500. She was the first singer to win the coveted award, previous winners having all been pianists.

Sunday night, (Oct. 30) she was one of the featured soloists when the Chancel Choir of the University Park Methodist Church in Dallas, directed by Dr. Fred D. Gealy, presented the Franz Joseph Haydn "Mass in D Minor". Known in Germany as the "Nelson Mass" and in England as the "Coronation of Imperial Mass", the oratorio was composed in 1798 at Eisenstadt.

A program of the presentation was received by the Tribune from Mrs. Mae Sandlin Fee, also an ex-student (class of '20) who is registrar at S.M.U.

Synthetic Fabrics Now Protected by Modern Equipment

Most of the new synthetic fabrics that go into apparel for men, women and children require special cleaning treatment. In some instances the materials are damaged or ruined when processed by conventional methods.

C. B. Hale, owner and manager of Modern Cleaners, has equipped two presses with Davis Nev-R-Spot liner plates and Davis Fabric-Renewing plates, which make it possible to press Daeron, Orlon and other synthetic fabrics in complete safety. The plates lift and renew the nap as it is pressed.

Modern Cleaners also use the Sta-Nu cleaning process which replaces the original textile finishing agents lost through time and wear. The garments look better and last longer. No extra charge is made for use of the Sta-Nu process.

Another policy at Modern Cleaners is the free plastic bag given with each $3 worth of cleaning in one order.

Mr. Hale also operates the Matador Laundry and has installed much new equipment in the plant, including a Hammond washer. The machine is used on finished and rough dry work and insures complete protection of materials. The Hammond washer is the same tumbler-type process as dry-cleaner washers. Matador Laundry is popular with customers who like the economy and convenience of the help-yourself service. Customers have their choice of self-service, rough dry, or completely finished work.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Dobbins, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Simpson and Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Leary were Matador visitors Sunday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bearden, as guests at a birthday dinner given in honor of Mr. C. D. Bird's 89th birthday and also honoring Hal Courtney on his birthday.

The Diary of Mary White

NOTE TO OUR READERS:

After reading several installments of Mary White's diary written from Elim, Alaska where she teaches an Eskimo school, we are convinced others would enjoy the articles. Mrs. White is a gifted writer, and a dedicated teacher, and is capable of meeting almost any kind of crisis with fortitude and a calm perspective. She is truly a 20th Century pioneer who is able to take a droll point of view of incidents that lesser mortals might see as calamities.

The Tribune will print as much of her writing each week as space will permit. Some issues may fall to carry any of her story while other issues may contain two or three columns. Breaks will not be made except at the change of dates in her diary and publication of installments will be in chronological order.

The absorbing saga begins when the R. W. White family (R. W., his wife, Mary, and their children, Marelda, 15, Theretha, 11, and Roger, 8) started for their new home on the Bering Sea at Elim, Alaska where Mary White would teach an Eskimo school while her husband would be engaged in Civil Service work.

The White family visited friends in Matador in July. Preparations for a two year's sojourn in Alaska had been made and their furniture and household effects had been shipped by boat from Kettle Falls, Washington to Elim.

From Matador, the Whites returned to Kettle Falls, and upon leaving, visited a brother, Conrad Banister and family near Spokane before entraining for Seattle.—The Editors.

July 24, 1955 (Sunday)

The day to begin has begun! Had breakfast with Conrad and Lorene and family. They left for Spokane to attend church on Nora Street. The girls went with them. After they left I repacked suitcases. We would have to carry only five and could check the others. We met Conrad and family at 12:15 p. m. and proceeded to Natatorium Park. We had fun riding this and that, especially the bumper cars. They are for "kids". Don't know why Conrad and I had to ride, do you? At 3:00 o'clock we went to the Great Northern depot and began checking baggage and arranging schedules. Conrad and family departed for Valley about 4:00 o'clock. Our train was to leave at midnight so we proceeded to arm ourselves with reading material for the long wait.

As usual, the kids set up a howl to go to a movie. We searched the paper and decided we wanted to see "Not as a Stranger", showing at the Olympic. It was only six blocks but we had to cross Skid Row to get there. Ugh! Not a pretty sight. We all walked in except Papa, who went to the window to get the tickets. I thoroughly enjoyed the picture, but had I known the cost, my Scotch ancestors would not have let me. The cost was $4.87. After years and years of 50c for adults and 20c for children just taken for granted, I decided I'd look before entering the next time.

Out of the show at 6:30. We still had a long wait and for me it turned out to be a miserable one. I was burning up (or, down whichever the direction is). The thermometer said seventy-four degrees and everyone else seemed comfortable—but I was far from it. Marelda soon occupied the couch in the Ladies room. Roger took a bench in the main waiting room. Papa read contentedly and Theretha and I prowed. We played with the self-service elevator, investigated the express department, the taxi department, the Spokane River flowing by on one side, and passed our appraising glance over a big percent of the incoming and outgoing passengers. Midnight finally did creep around!

Our pullman reservations are on Car 15. We got blithely out the gate and up to the porter standing on the steps of the first car.

"What car, please?" he asks. "Car 15" we answered.

"Down that way, Sir." We go down that way past so many porters who have the same instructions that I lose count. It turned out that Car 15 was the very last car on the train. Did you ever try lugging five heavy suitcases and herding three sleepy children down a mile long (so it seemed) train on a hot July night? Well, DON'T. We had three lower and two uppers reserved. What do you think? Yes, a man is sound asleep in one of them. He is supposed to be in L-10, Car 14 but he is in L-10, Car 15. So we find another empty space and poke Roger in it rather than disturb the gentleman at that time of night. Oh, the comfort of good cool sheets on a foam rubber mattress, with air conditioning! Good-night.

July 25, 1955 (Monday)

I awoke aware that it was full daylight and that we were passing beautiful scenery. I glanced out of my window then back at my watch. 3:00 a. m. Oh, no. Nothing could be worth staying awake for at that time of the morning, so I crawled back under the covers and slept until 7:00. By that time the children were up and had had their berths made. Seems that I was a slow poke.

Just across the aisle from me was an elderly (and talkative) lady from Massachusetts. Yes, she was a teacher going to Alaska. She was to be stationed at Mt. Edgecomb and work with the Indians of that area.

Off the train in Seattle at 8:00 a. m. Breakfast in the coffee shop. Called Mr. Farrell (U. S. Civil Service Assn't Officer in Charge) and he had made reservations for us at the Stewart Hotel. Checked in, left the children with instructions not to disturb the entire floor, and reported to the office (Room 107 Federal Building) at 9:30 o'clock. Signed red tape papers until 12:00. Not finished but go pick up the children and have lunch in the hotel dining room. I suppose it is according to the dictates of fashion but with lovely rugs, beautiful furnishings and well dressed people, why do such places have to be so dimly lighted that one has to peer searchingly to discover that all the customers aren't brunettes and what lovely colors are on the dinner ware.

Lunch over, we appeased the three young members of the family by letting them spend the afternoon in a movie. The bell hop told us how to find a nice theatre only two blocks away. A large sign on the box office window said: Adults Only. Like good parents we shunned the "evil" show and three blocks down found one showing three western features. Good! The children would be entertained for four and one half hours. Back to the office in the Federal Building we went. We got our travel tickets on P.A.A. and instructions as to whom to see in Juneau.

All business was attended to by 2:00 o'clock. Free time, what should we do? Shopping all done—didn't need to eat again—children wouldn't be out for nearly three hours. Oh yes! That show—the adults only one—wonder what lurid secrets we would learn? No one knows us here in Seattle, so let's go. Comfortably seated and full of anticipation we discovered the first feature was "The Prodigal". Since this is a show with a Biblical background—what did they mean by adults only? Oh, well, they probably saved the other until last. I was a little put out that they would double feature a picture with a Biblical background with this "adults only" deal. When I realized the second feature was over and that I had seen nothing but first class entertainment I was flabbergasted. The joke was on the greenhorns. They must, because they just can't tolerate those of us who have to go through this growing-up process.

Dinner in the dining room, a round of baths and to bed early preparatory to the big take-off tomorrow.

July 26, 1955 (Tuesday)

Breakfasted early. All dressed in our Sunday best we dashed across the street during a down-pour of rain (not unusual in Seattle) and boarded a limousine in front of the New Washington Hotel. Arrived at the airport in due time. While awaiting call to board our plane, we looked over the Air Terminal building which is really a very swanky place. You could easily see why. Passengers were pouring in and out by the hundreds. I never realized so many people traveled by air.

We took off at 9:15. The clouds had lifted enough that we got a good view of Seattle and its waterways. We got fair glimpses of the San Juan Islands and the Strait of Juan de Fuca. The coloring of the landscapes from close view must be simply beautiful for even from our thousands of feet up it was colorful. We climbed to 19,000 feet and the clouds shut off all view. The sun was shining brightly for us, however. Quite a sensation to be "upstairs" as our captain casually called it. We had a pressurized cabin but my stomach refused to believe anything I told it. We landed for a brief moment on Annette Island then off again.

The weather was such from there to Juneau that we could see the Inland Passage and the snow-capped mountains of the Alaska mainland. Had to circle Juneau for about ten minutes waiting for traffic at the airport to clear. The pilot, for the sake of the tourists showed us the sights—Douglas Island, Gastineau Channel, Mendenhall Glacier, a huge gold mining dredge and numerous lakes. Was glad for this extra treat, even if my stomach was trying to get into my mouth. Landed to discover a temperature of 72 degrees and everyone grumbling about the heat.

Checked in at the Juneau Hotel (they must have built this one in gold-rush days) and then reported to Alaska Native Service Office—(A.N.S.). Met Mr. Max W. Penrod, our boss in Alaska and liked him immediately. Outlined program for the next day then went back to the hotel for the children and out to eat dinner. We passed a place called the Nugget Shop and all of us were fascinated by the jade and ivory display from the Diomedes Island carvers. Ate at the Bill Shields Cafe. The dinners were $2.50 each, about twice what they would have been in the States, but there was twice as much food too! Even R. W. couldn't consume more than half of his, so you can imagine. To bed early to rest my weary bones and read. Got up about 10:00 p. m. and pulled the west shade so I wouldn't have to sleep with the sun shining in my face.

July 27, 1955 (Wednesday)

Awoke to a typical Juneau morning according to residents here. Walked to breakfast in the rain and could not see tops of the surrounding mountains for the clouds. Spent a busy day with more red tape and dozens of department heads. Went on the payroll however, and that was a piece of red tape that I enjoyed. Walked around docks and window shopped some Children went to show. Read a little and retired early.

Elementary Elim

The Diary of Mary White

NOTE TO OUR READERS:

After reading several installments of Mary White's diary written from Elim, Alaska where she teaches an Eskimo school, we are convinced others would enjoy the articles. Mrs. White is a gifted writer, and a dedicated teacher, and is capable of meeting almost any kind of crisis with fortitude and a calm perspective. She is truly a 20th Century pioneer who is able to take a droll point of view of incidents that lesser mortals might see as calamities.

The Tribune will print as much of her writing each week as space will permit. Some issues may fall to carry any of her story while other issues may contain two or three columns. Breaks will not be made except at the change of dates in her diary and publication of installments will be in chronological order.

The absorbing saga begins when the R. W. White family (R. W., his wife, Mary, and their children, Marelda, 15, Theretha, 11, and Roger, 8) started for their new home on the Bering Sea at Elim, Alaska where Mary White would teach an Eskimo school while her husband would be engaged in Civil Service work.

The White family visited friends in Matador in July. Preparations for a two year's sojourn in Alaska had been made and their furniture and household effects had been shipped by boat from Kettle Falls, Washington to Elim.

From Matador, the Whites returned to Kettle Falls, and upon leaving, visited a brother, Conrad Banister and family near Spokane before entraining for Seattle.—The Editors.

July 24, 1955 (Sunday)

The day to begin has begun! Had breakfast with Conrad and Lorene and family. They left for Spokane to attend church on Nora Street. The girls went with them. After they left I repacked suitcases. We would have to carry only five and could check the others. We met Conrad and family at 12:15 p. m. and proceeded to Natarium Park. We had fun riding this and that, especially the bumper cars. They are for "kids". Don't know why Conrad and I had to ride, do you? At 3:00 o'clock we went to the Great Northern depot and began checking baggage and arranging schedules. Conrad and family departed for Valley about 4:00 o'clock. Our train was to leave at midnight so we proceeded to arm ourselves with reading material for the long wait.

As usual the kids set up a howl to go to a movie. We searched the paper and decided we wanted to see "Not as a Stranger", showing at the Olympic. It was only six blocks but we had to cross Skid Row to get there. Ugh! Not a pretty sight. We all walked in except Papa, who went to the window to get the tickets. I thoroughly enjoyed the picture, but had I known the cost, my Scotch ancestors would not have let me. The cost was $4.67. After years and years of 50c for adults and 20c for children just taken for granted, I decided I'd look before entering the next time.

Out of the show at 6:30. We still had a long wait and for me it turned out to be a miserable one. I was burning up (or, down whichever the direction is). The thermometer said seventy-four degrees and everyone else seemed comfortable, but I was far from it. Marelda soon occupied the couch in the Ladies room. Roger took a bench in the main waiting room. Papa read contentedly and Theretha and I prowled. We played with the self-service elevator, investigated the express department, the taxi department, the Spokane River flowing by on one side, and passed our appraising glance over a big percent of the incoming and outgoing passengers. Midnight finally did creep around!

Our pullman reservations are on Car 15. We got blithely out the gate and up to the porter standing on the steps of the first car.

"What car, please?" he asks.

"Car 15" we answered.

"Down that way, Sir." We go down that way past so many porters who have the same instructions that I lose count. It turned out that Car 15 was the very last car on the train. Did you ever try lugging five heavy suitcases and herding three sleepy children down a mile long (so it seemed) train on a hot July night? Well, DON'T. We had three lower and two upper reserved. What do you think? Yes, a man is sound asleep in one of them. He is supposed to be in L-10, Car 14 but he is in L-10, Car 15. So we find another empty space and poke Roger in it rather than disturb the gentleman-at that time of night. Oh, the comfort of good cool sheets on a foam rubber mattress, with air conditioning! Good-night.

July 25, 1955 (Monday)

I awoke aware that it was full daylight and that we were passing beautiful scenery. I glanced out of my window then back at my watch. 3:00 a. m. Oh, no. Nothing could be worth staying awake for at that time of the morning, so I crawled back under the covers and slept until 7:00. By that time the children were up and had had their berths made. Seems that I was a slow poke.

Just across the aisle from me was an elderly (and talkative) lady from Massachusetts. Yes, she was a teacher going to Alaska. She was to be stationed at Mt. Edgecomb and work with the Indians of that area.

Off the train in Seattle at 8:00 a. m. Breakfast in the coffee shop. Called Mr. Farrell (U. S. Civil Service Ass'n Officer in Charge) and he had made reservations for us at the Stewart Hotel. Checked in, left the children with instructions not to disturb the entire floor, and reported to the office (Room 107 Federal Building) at 9:30 o'clock. Signed red tape papers until 12:00. Not finished but go pick up the children and have lunch in the hotel dining room. I suppose it is according to the dictates of fashion but with lovely rugs, beautiful furnishings and well dressed people, why do such places have to be so dimly lighted that one has to peer searchingly to discover that all the customers aren't brunettes and what lovely colors are on the dinner ware.

Lunch over, we appeased the three young members of the family by letting them spend the afternoon in a movie. The bell hop told us how to find a nice theatre only two blocks away. A large sign on the box office window said: Adults Only. Like good parents we shunned the "evil" show and three blocks down found one showing three western features. Good! The children would be entertained for four and one half hours. Back to the office in the Federal Building we went. We got our travel tickets on P.A.A. and instructions as to whom to see in Juneau.

All business was attended to by 2:00 o'clock. Free time, — what should we do? Shopping all done—didn't need to eat again — children wouldn't be out for nearly three hours. On yes! That show—the adults only one—wonder what lurid secrets we would learn? No one knows us here in Seattle, so let's go. Comfortably seated and full of anticipation we discovered the first feature was "The Prodigal". Since this is a show with a Biblical background—what did they mean by adults only? Oh, well, they probably saved the other until last. I was a little put out that they would double feature a picture with a Biblical background with this "adults only" deal. When I realized the second feature was over and that I had seen nothing but first class entertainment I was flabbergasted. The joke was on the greenhorn. This was a show where no children were allowed because some s o p h i s t i c a t e d adults do not like to associate with "noisy brats". I, frankly speaking, did not know that there were such. Don't think I would have patronized it if I had. I've never figured out yet how some people get born all grown-up. They must, because they just can't tolerate those of us who have to go through this growing-up process.

Dinner in the dining room, a round of baths and to bed early preparatory to the big take-off tomorrow.

July 26, 1955 (Tuesday)

Breakfasted early. All dressed in our Sunday best we dashed across the street during a down-pour of rain (not unusual in Seattle) and boarded a limousine in front of the New Washington Hotel. Arrived at the airport in due time. While awaiting call to board our plane, we looked over the Air Terminal building which is really a very swanky place. You could easily see why: Passengers were pouring in and out by the hundreds. I never realized so many people traveled by air.

We took off at 9:15. The clouds had lifted enough that we got a good view of Seattle and its waterways. We got fair glimpses of the San Juan Islands and the Strait of Juan de Fuca. The coloring of the landscapes from close view must be simply beautiful for even from our thousands of feet up it was colorful. We climbed to 19,000 feet and the clouds shut off all view. The sun was shining brightly for us, however. Quite a sensation to casually called it. We had a pressurized cabin but my stomach refused to believe anything I told it. We landed for a brief moment on Annette Island then off again.

The weather was such from there to Juneau that we could see the Inland Passage and the snow-capped mountains of the Alaska mainland. Had to circle Juneau for about ten minutes waiting for traffic at the airport to clear. The pilot, for the sake of the tourists showed us the sights—Douglas Island, Gastineau Channel, Mendenhall Glacier, a huge gold mining dredge and numerous lakes. Was glad for this extra treat, even if my stomach was trying to get into my mouth. Landed to discover a temperature of 72 degrees and everyone grumbling about the heat.

Checked in at the Juneau Hotel (they must have built this one in gold-rush days) and then reported to Alaska Native Service Office—(ANS). Met Mr. Max W. Penrod, our boss in Alaska and liked him immediately. Outlined program for the next day then went back to the hotel for the children and out to eat dinner. We passed a place called the Nugget Shop and all of us were fascinated by the jade and ivory display from the Diomedes Island carvers. Ate at the Bill Shields Cafe. The dinners were $2.50 each, about twice what they would have been in the States, but there was twice as much food too. Even R. W. couldn't consume more than half of his, so you can imagine. To bed early to rest my weary bones and read. Got up about 10:00 p. m. and pulled the west shade so would not have to sleep with the sun shining in my face.

July 27, 1955 (Wednesday)

Awoke to a typical Juneau morning according to residents here. Walked to breakfast in the rain and could not see tops of the surrounding mountains for the clouds. Spent a busy day with more red tape and dozens of department heads. Went on the payroll however, and that was a piece of red tape that I enjoyed. Walked around docks and window shopped some Children's to show. Read a little and retired early.

Merit badges were presented to Clinton Burns in home repairs and rabbit raising; to Rob in Darsey in home repairs; to Carter Luckett for book binding and beef production; to Jimmie Welling for home repairs, and to Bobby Cross in book binding, home repairs, masonry, public health, first aid, poultry keeping, rabbit raising, pioneering and surveying.

Boys advancing in rank were given appropriate gold emblems signifying their achievement and duplicate emblems were presented to the mother of each boy.

Impressive Service
Following assembly bugle call by Mike Groves, candles were lighted and the house lights lowered during invocation by Rev. W. V. O'Kelly. The impressive opening ceremony consisted of spotlighting the American Flag by Hal Dean Hines, Clinton Burns and Larry Hoyle, and the Pledge of Allegiance led by Pat Groves. Guests were welcomed by J. R. Whitworth and introduction of the Court of Honor Committee was made by Scoutmaster Algie Groves. Committeemen: Gerald Yeates, Mike Hoyle and D. E. Pitts, Jr., assisted Scouters Groves and Freddie Welling in the investiture services.

Singing of the Scout Vesper Song by the troop members was the benediction for the evening.

Rev. W. V. O'Kelly, pastor of the Methodist church, also made a statement in favor of the chest, saying: "I think this is a very worthy cause and that the plan is very good. The people who really deserve aid receive it while the imposters are screened out. I feel certain the people will support it as they have in the past."

To Make Brief Drive
Mr. Edwards said yesterday that he believed the campaign could be completed in two days. "The people of the Matador Independent School district are familiar with the chest," he said, "and it should not be necessary to 'sell' them on the plan. I hope every citizen will have his check ready when the volunteer solicitor arrives."

"The dollar contribution type of giving will not bring us to our goal," Mr. Edwards said.

"and since this is for an entire year and the average person will give $2 or more to some form of charity each month, the contribution could be estimated on that basis."

Volunteers who will do the "leg work" in soliciting the contribution during the two-day campaign, will be named next week.

SOCIAL SECURITY REPRESENTATIVE SCHEDULED HERE

Our representative will be in Matador at the First State Bank at 9:30 a. m. on November 8th and will be glad to assist in all matters pertaining to social security.

"How Social Security Covers Farmers," a booklet recently issued by the Social Security Administration, explains in easy-to-understand language the rights and obligations of farm people under the social security law, according to John G. Hutton, manager of the Lubbock social security office.

The booklet is intended to help a farmer determine whether he is employed or self-employed, especially in relation to the farming of land leased on a cash rental or share of the crop basis. A section of the publication is devoted to income reporting requirements for self-employed farmers. This information is timely, as the reporting of self-employment farm income and the paying of the social security tax will be a part of the Federal income tax return for 1955 which is due April 15 of the coming year.

Anyone can get a free copy of the booklet at the Lubbock social security office at Room 202, Veterans Administration Building, 1616-19th St., Lubbock.

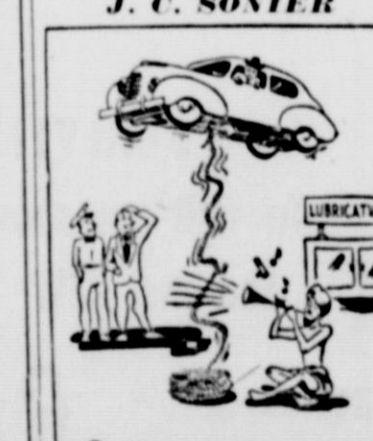

"Since the first crude plow uprooted the first square foot of sod, and since man's axe first bit into virgin forest, erosion of the soil has been a problem. It is as old as history. Down through the ages it has influenced the lives of men and the destinies of nations and civilizations. In the United States today, no problem is more urgent."—Dr. Hugh H. Bennett.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Last Word in Farm Machinery

Curly Lawson was first in this area to use one of those roadside vending machines. He's sold milk and eggs in one about a year now, and recommends them highly—but with reservations.

"Mine's the latest model," says Curly. "Built-in refrigeration unit—heater—an automatic sign turner-on for night. Takes any combination of coins."

"However," he warned, "those machines aren't cheap to buy... or operate. They run about $3500. If you're not on the main highway like I am—where lots of city people pass—you'd better stick to the old methods."

From where I sit, you have to admire Curly for his pioneering spirit. Of course, there's also plenty to be said for those who tend to stick to the old proven methods. People's ideas differ on the subject—on any subject. Like you may always drink buttermilk with your meals... while a glass of beer's the "automatic" choice with me.
