A Second Glance

By Leon Watson

National columnist Julian Bond said last week that Ronald Reagan has discovered the Trilateral Commission.

Like a sizeable number of Americans, Reagan believes "there's something sinister about this association that links 19 present and former members of the Carter administration, including President Carter and Vice President Mondale.

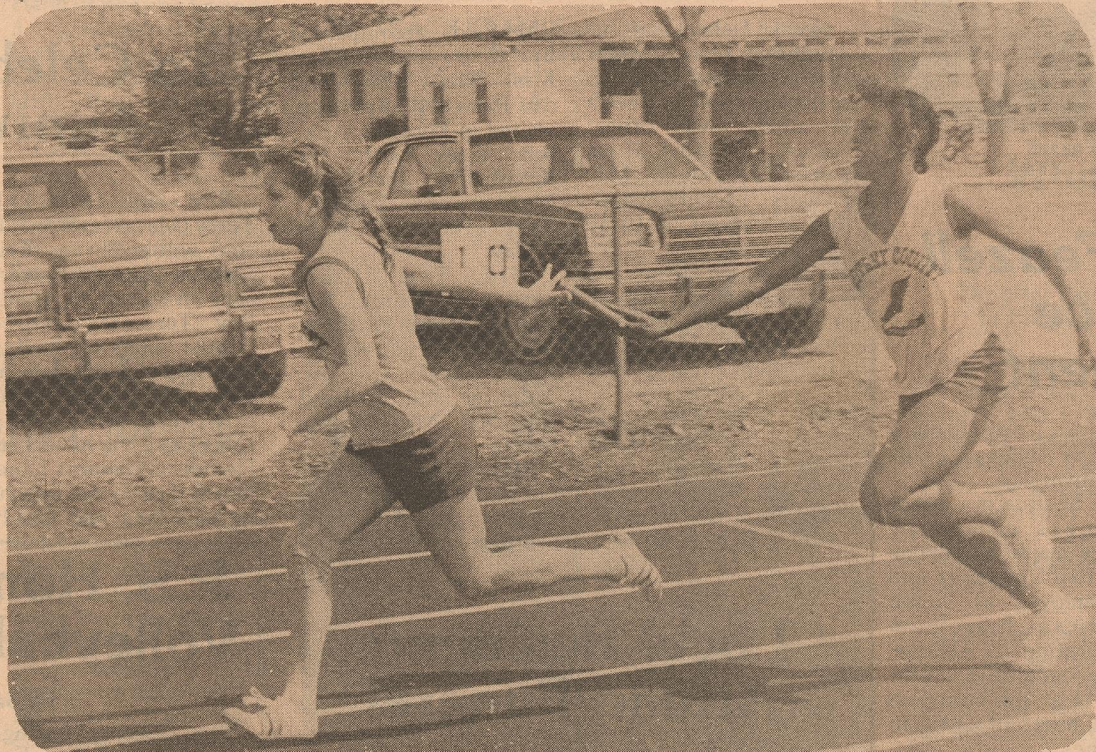

The Trilateral Commission, founded at banker David Rockefeller's urging in 1973, is composed of 250 private citizens from North America, Japan and Europe. Its public purpose: to insure closer political and economic ties between these regions.

But the coincidental -- or purposeful -- linkage between the Trilateral Commission and the Carter administration upsets Reagan, Bond said.

It upsets many others who don't share Reagan's politics.

In addition to Carter and Mondale, the Trilateral Commission's membership list has included: Cyrus Vance, secretary of state; Harold Brown, secretary of defense; Zbigniew Brzezinski, chief adviser on national security; Andrew Young, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations; Gerald

84th Year of Newspaper Begins with this Issue

This issue of the Matador Tribune marks the beginning of the 84th year of newspapers and local news coverage in Motley County, according to research by Mrs. Lila Meador, previous owner of the paper.

The Tribune is the successor of the Motley County News, Matador Maverick, Motley County Journal, Texas Maverick, Matador Messenger and the Matador Gusher.

Present publisher of the weekly publication is Leon Watson, who purchased the paper Jan. 1, 1979. Ray Freedman owned the paper from 1977 to 1979, Lila Meador from 1974-1977, Douglas Meador from 1935-1974, Douglas Meador and Howard Hamilton from 1934-1935, Douglas Meador from 1933-1934, and G.C. Mitchell who published the Motley County News from 1925-1934.

Meador's Matador Tribune was in competition to Mitchell's County News during 1933, and in 1934 Meador-Hamilton partnership purchased the Motley County News from Mitchell and the following year Meador purchased his partner's interest and again became sole owner.

H.O. Ward published the News from 1921-1925, W.D. Starcher and C.A. Lamb published the News from 1920-1921, and Lamb and George W. Ellis had the Matador Gusher from 1918-1920. Bob Johnson and John Perkins put out the News from 1915-1918. Homer Knowles printed the Matador Messenger from 1911-1915 and before that T.L. Allison published the Messenger from 1908-1911.

An earlier newspaper was the Texas Maverick printed by H.A. Mullenix from 1902-1908. (Issue dated May 15, 1908 lists the masthead as the Matador Maverick.

The Texas Maverick was published by Clyde P. Kendall from 1901-1902.

R.P. Moore started the Motley County Journal in 1897. Two daughters of Mr. Moore still live in Matador but they do not know how long their father published the newspaper, as that was before they were born. Lee S. Smith and J.N. Smith printed the Matador Maverick beginning in 1894, but again the length of publication has been lost in time.

The earliest newspaper which can be traced in record in Motley County was the Motley County News published by Clarence Nugent from 1891 to 1894.

First offset issue of the Matador Tribune was in 1900 when a page form for an insert was thrown in before the paper was printed. Publisher Douglas Meador took the proof and with page proofs of the remainder of the issue, drove to Friona to have it printed. In August of 1966, a special edition on the 75th anniversary of the county was printed offset at Hereford. The Tribune has been printed offset continuously in Floydada since the fall of 1969. (Except for the time Freedman owned the paper and printed it on his offset press at Earth, Texas).

Without the necessary offset equipment until leasing a Compugraphic machine in 1972, all copy was set on the linotype and the pages made up as for letterpress, then full page proofs were made on the shop's Miehle press. These were then taken to Floydada, camera-ready.

Then linotype, Miehle and other letterpress equipment are still stored in the Tribune building. The present publisher has tried to find a museum or other location for the equipment but has of yet failed to find a home for it. Because of the need of room for more modern equipment it is feared the history making presses must soon be disposed of.

Douglas Meador won his first state-wide award, a silver loving cup, in 1934 for his column, Trail Dust. He subsequently won numerous awards for column writing. In addition, the newspaper was awarded many first place plaques and trophies, including two sweepstakes awards, for news writing, advertising and photography. These included regional as well as state awards, and were in addition to many second and third place certificates. In 1952 Meador was chosen Newspaperman of the Year by the Dallas Professional Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi. In 1972 he was presented a plaque by the Cimarron Valley Historical Association, headed by Harold Brown, a native of Floydada. Members of the West Texas Press Association joined local friends in attending the ceremony. Meador was a past president of both the West Texas Press and Panhandle Press associations. The plaque was later mounted on a brick base in a small park across the street from the Tribune building, which Meador had offered to the city as a pioneer park in memory of his parents.

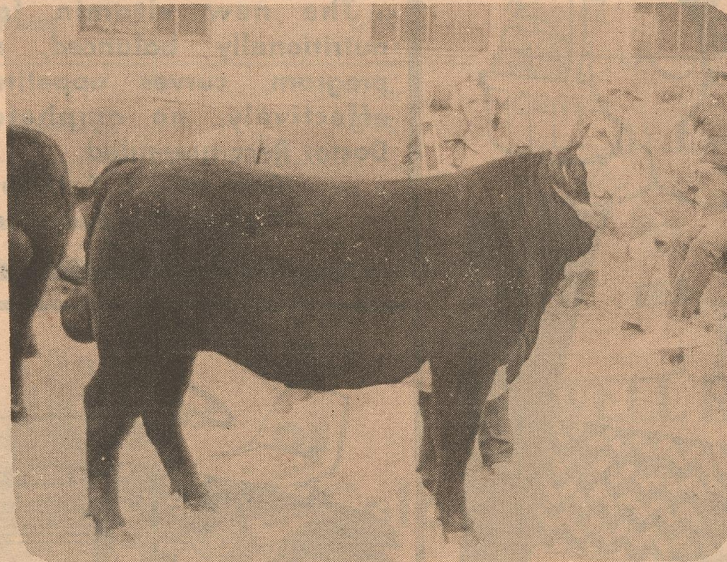

Trail Dust has been published in book form and in January, 1979, Frank Hildebrand of the Texas Tourist Development Agency took a dozen copies of the book to England and Scotland, where he presented a copy to each of the mayors of the towns visited. Front page of the Matador Tribune dates September 29, 1938 is among other newspapers placed in a metal chest in the base of a monument to the founders of the State Fair of Texas, to remain for 30 years from Oct. 8, 1938.

Also a signal honor for the Tribune: this newspaper was among those selected for its coverage of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. The papers were on display in swinging frames at a meeting of the Texas Press, the following year, probably at the mid-winter meeting. These were to be sent to archives in Washington, D.C.

Lions Hear Guest At Recent Meeting

Two guests, Mrs. Harold Campbell, Matador, and J.C. Thomas of Plainview were speakers at regular meeting of Matador Lions Club, Tuesday, March 18. Four other guests were delegates from the Lubbock Lions Club, here to welcome the Matador club into District 2T-2 and to invite the local members to attend the district meeting in Levelland, May 15-16. The Matador Lions Club formerly was in District 2T-1, embracing counties in the Panhandle area.

Mrs. Campbell reported on a seminar titled "The Miracle of America," conducted by Dr. W. Cleon Skousen and Dr. Glen Kimber both of the Freeman Institute, which she and her husband recently attended in Lubbock. Another member of the team was Congressman George Hansen, (R) of Idaho. A similar seminar, she announced, was scheduled for April 25-26 and May 2-3 in Paducah, sponsored by the Paducah Chamber of Commerce and the Cottle-King Counties Farm Bureau.

"The seminars are designed as a study of the U.S. Constitution, its background, the factors involved in its writing, and the way it has been abused in the last 50 years," Mrs. Campbell explained. "The public is informed of its constitutional rights and the basic freedoms on which this country was founded," she stressed as she urged her listeners to take advantage of this opportunity and attend the meetings in Paducah. Dr. Skousen has been one of the speakers of the High School Students Citizenship Seminar sponsored by Texas Farm Bureau for 15 years, and which has been attended by Motley County students during that time.

Introduced by program chairman Lion Forrest Campbell, Mr. Thomas, Executive Director of the Central Plains Comprehensive Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center in Plainview, explained the various services offered by the organization.

Motley County was one of the founding counties of the Center which serves Hale, Parmer, Castro, Swisher, Floyd, Bailey, Lamb, Motley and Briscoe counties. There are six satellite centers operating out of Plainview, with Floydada being the nearest one to Matador, Mr. Thomas said. Annual report of the MH-MR Center reveals that ten persons from Motley County received counseling last year. This was the lowest of any county listed, the next being Briscoe County with 31. Highest number served was reported by Hale County, with 850 projected clients.

The Center offers counseling or treatment for abuse cases, including alcohol and drugs, and prevention of mental illness; developmentally disabled children, including mental retardation, epilepsy, cerebral palsy and autism and both inpatient and outpatient care in many other areas.

Local Sales Tax Rebates Above 1979

State Comptroller Bob Bullock Friday said city sales tax rebates for the first quarter of 1980 grew substantially compared to the first quarter of 1979 but the increases don't fare as well under close inspection.

The apparent increases are partly offset by the fact that during the first quarter of 1979 city sales tax allocations were down due to late filings and a backlog of 2,400 returns in the agency's accounting system, Bullock said.

System improvements have eliminated the backlog and strengthened the agency's ability to quickly handle returns and put more money into the system for rebates, he said.

Bullock said 1980 rebate payments to cities from the first of the year total $138.7 million, compared to 1979 payments of $100 million over the same period, an increase of about 38 percent. He said 924

Texas cities will share $78.6 million in sales tax rebates during March, compared to $56.6 million in March of last year.

"A 38 percent growth at first blush seems astonishing, but my current revenue estimate projects that sales tax revenue would grow 26.5 percent during the current budget period and we've got 17 more months before we'll close the books," Bullock said.

Roaring Springs will receive $505.60 in rebates, bringing the city's 1980 payments to date to $1,600.35.

The rebate check for Matador will total $2,676.78, bringing the 1980 payments here to date to $4,321.83.

The city sales tax is collected by merchants and other sales tax permit holders along with the state sales tax and is rebated monthly to cities in which it is collected by the Comptroller's office.

Caprock Trapper's Have Snake Hunt

Caprock Trapper's Association held a rattlesnake hunt this weekend, March 15th and 16th. CRTA had held down the publicity purposely. We had decided to start off small as we intend to make this an annual event. I have been on many a hunting trip, everything from elk in Colorado to bear in the mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee, but nothing I enjoyed anymore than this weekend.

We got started Saturday morning about 10:30 at the Dickens Rifle and Pistol Club. Our thanks to the club for letting us use their facilities. I took one party and Dean Shaw took one party to various surrounding ranches and we hunted until after dark. Then started again about the same time Sunday morning and hunted until about dark Sunday night. We then went to my home and weighted out the snakes.

Ricky Bynard of Bynard Fur Co. Rt. 1, Severy, KS. 67137 is doing for the hunt and also bought all the snakes at $3.00 a pound. Ricky was a lot of fun. He hunted hard and is a good sport. After we got our snakes weighted, Ricky donated several and we cleaned them and had us a snake fry, along with some venison my wife, Linda donated to the cause.

I just want to thank everyone involved in the whole affair, especially this paper. Next year we are going to really set up a snake hunt. We were a little late this year as many of the snakes had started to leave their dens. The potential is here for a large snake hunt as Dickens and Motley Counties are real snake country.

Prizes were not given but we divided up the snakes. Most of these participating donated theirs to CRTA in their fight against the anti-gun and anti-trapping movement.

Thank you, Preston Mynatt, Public Relations Officer Caprock Trapper's Association

C. Smith, ambassador-at-large on disarmament talks; Richard N. Gardiner, ambassador to Italy; Elliot L. Richardson, special representative for the Law of the Sea Conference; Warren M. Christopher, deputy secretary of state and Paul C. Warnke, former special negotiator on arms control.

What the Trilateral Commission actually does may be less important than what people think it does, and why its members have been chosen to do it.

The left and right ends of the American political spectrum agree that the probability of finding so many highly placed officials among any pre-selected group of 250 citizens -- fairly divided across oceans and among different cultures -- is extraordinary, Bond says.

A Reagan staff member gave the right's anti-Trilateral thinking. It is precisely the left's objection.

Edwin Meese III, the Reagan campaign's chief of staff, said, "All of these people come out of an international economic-industrial organization with a pattern of thinking on world affairs." That pattern is perceived by the Reagan forces as "soft on defense" and by the left as too concerned with boosting ungovernable economic ties -- all of which amount to the same circle traversed 360 degrees in opposite directions.

Meese says -- and the left would agree -- that the Trilaterals believe "trade and business should transcend, perhaps the national defense."

Bond said, what Trilateralism really means is that our president selected his secretaries, assistant secretaries and ambassadors from a one-note chorus. That chorus echoes his conviction that systems can triumph over politics and personalities, and that properly managed economic development can eliminate the causes of international tension.

It's an interesting theory. Whether it's correct or not, Reagan and many others wonder why its proponents come from a pre-selected elite. Who selected whom, and for what?
