GOING DEEP AFTER THE OIL AND GAS

STOCKHOLDERS OF SANTA ANNA OIL & GAS CO. SURRENDER BONUS STOCK TO RAISE MORE CASH

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Santa Anna Oil & Gas Company last week the directors of the company stated that the drill was down about as far as the cash on hand would pay for and it was suggested that more money be raised to go deeper.

As all the original stockholders had received a bonus in stock equal to the amount of stock held by each it was proposed that this bonus stock be turned back into the treasury to be sold to raise more cash to continue the work.

Accordingly a canvass of all the stockholders was ordered and another meeting called for Tuesday of this week.

Tuesday it was reported that all the stockholders with one or two exceptions had agreed to this plan and had signed an agreement to this effect.

The directors then placed this stock on the market allowing every shareholder the privilege of buying his surrendered stock back. Many of them immediately took advantage of this and bought their stock back, with the result that approximately $1,000 was raised in a few minutes.

The drill was down about 1,200 feet already and these additional funds will suffice to put it down 1,700 or 1,800 feet if necessary.

PLAINVIEW PEOPLE IN EDUCATIONAL RALLY

CITIZENS OF THAT COMMUNITY ALIVE TO IMPORTANCE OF EDUCATION—INTERESTING PROGRAM

A very successful and instructive educational rally was held with the Plainview school last Friday afternoon and night.

The meeting began with an hour's program given by the students of the Plainview school, of which Prof. G. E. Richards is principal.

Next, vital school questions were discussed and these discussions were followed by a very pleasant informal reception.

At sunset lunch was served by the Ladies of the community—being one of the very enjoyable features of the occasion.

The night session was enlivened by the able handling of the subject, "A Country Board of Education" by County Superintendent McDonald. Prof. Richards then addressed the meeting on the "Great Need of Efficient Public School Libraries." Both of these subjects were discussed in a manner that aroused how deeply the speakers are interested in the progress of the public school. It is a happy sign of the times when people take such interest in their schools and the Plainview people are taking.

These local institutes have passed from the experimental stage to the field of practical utility and will be an important factor in the educational development of the state.

BRIEF AND BREEZY

A $10,000,000 shoe corporation has been formed in Massachusetts. Now watch the cowhide.

Pougepse court enjoins a husband from speaking to his wife for 30 days. Now stand aside and listen to wife.

A Chicago woman asked a divorce because her husband wore her undergarments. This is a case where clothes make the man trouble.

A man at Scranton, Pa., who claims to have a hen that lays seven eggs a day should be hired by party campaign committees to claim elections.

Here's a Boston preacher calling Newport "the vestibule of hell." This will disappoint many Newporters who thought they were really on the inside.

Wisconsin man loses an eye by being jabbed with a hairpin while he was kissing his wife good-by, in the morning. Experienced husbands have learned to dodge such perils.

The per capita circulation of the United States is now $35.08. Almost any paragraph that comments on this will have his share if somebody will lend him $35.

Perhaps the oddest suit ever entered is that of a young woman in St. Paul, who is suing another woman's estate for $2,000 for transfusion of blood supplied in an attempt to save the latter's life. This is blood money in a new sense.

THREE GOOD SHOWS BOOKED FOR SANTA ANNA

I have secured the management of the Shield Opera Hall for the remainder of the present theatrical season and will be able to furnish the theater going public of Santa Anna some high class attractions during the months of December, January and February.

The following attractions have been booked for December: "Rip Van Winkle," "The Sweetest Girl in Dixie" and Harry Green in that high class comedy scream "Eli and Jane."

These are all good, clean attractions and merit the patronage of all lovers of good wholesome entertainment.

Complete announcement of these attractions will appear later.

PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR GOES TO SWEETWATER

REV. J. M. YOUREE CALLED TO PASTORATE OF KARGER TOWN—PREACHES FAREWELL SERMON SUNDAY

Rev. J. M. Youree, who has been with the local congregation of the Presbyterian church during the past three years has been called by the church at Sweetwater and has decided to accept. He delivers his farewell sermon at this place next Sunday and expects to take up the new work at Sweetwater the first Sunday in December.

During his three years work at this place Bro. Youree has not only won the love and esteem of his own congregation but has won the friendship and admiration of hundreds of others and has made a splendid record in the work he has accomplished.

Largely through his efforts a small congregation has erected the prettiest and most expensive church house in town; the church membership has increased nearly three to one; the Sunday school, the Endeavor society and the other branches of the church work have all made splendid showings.

While his friends will, of course, regret to see him go away they are pleased that his splendid work at this place has won for him a call to a larger field of usefulness.

Mrs. Youree will continue her work in the public school until near Christmas when she will resign to join her husband at Sweetwater. Her going will take away one of the most successful and most popular teachers in the school.

SAM DAVIS AUXILIARY

TROUBLE WITH THE MEXICAN

Antonio Rodriguez, a Mexican, killed a white woman near Rock Springs, Texas. This was crime number one. The enraged citizens of Rock Springs arose as one man and burned the guilty Mexican at the stake. This was crime number two. On hearing of this burning of one of their countrymen a mob of Mexicans assaulted American citizens in the streets of the city of Mexico. This was crime number three and others have followed.

We doubt that it is ever wise to repay crime with crime. Doubtless Rodriguez was guilty and richly deserved his dreadful fate. But no community can afford to outrage the finer feelings of its citizens with the awful spectacle of a human burning at the stake. At least those who are guiltless can afford to wait and let the law take its course, and certainly there never is excuse for lynching until the courts have failed to mete out justice.

In this instance, Rodriguez, if left alone, would have died upon the gallows, the citizens of Rock Springs would have been spared the evil and the odium of mob law, the hundreds of Americans who are resident in Mexico would have gone about their respective vocations unafraid and unembarrassed, and withal the demands of justice would have been met as thoroughly through the courts as through the mob.

A FELON OR NOT A FELON?

Caleb Powers, of Kentucky, who was thrice convicted as an accomplice in the assassination of Governor Goebel, was elected to Congress last week. It will be remembered that at the time of the murder of Governor Goebel some ten or twelve years ago Powers was the retiring secretary of state for Kentucky and that he and the retiring governor, both of whom were Republicans, refused to admit their defeat claiming that fraud had been used in the election. An attempt was made to hold their offices by force and in the heat of the controversy Goebel was killed. With this crime the opposition went to pieces and many of the Republican officials fled the state, but Powers was arrested on charge of having conspired toward the assassination.

He brought to his defense some of the ablest legal talent in America and the case was fought out in court three times, Powers being convicted each time and lying in jail between trials. Always there was some pretext for an appeal, a new trial or a change of venue.

Last year a Republican was elected governor of Kentucky and one of his first official acts was the pardoning of Powers, whom he believed to be unjustly persecuted for political purposes.

Immediately on his release from prison Powers began planning to run for Congress, with the result stated above. But while he has been elected he may never take his seat in Congress. The constitution provides that no felon may sit in Congress and thrice has Powers been convicted of felony. However, he has been pardoned in a legal if not in a just way and this in the minds of some people will remove his disabilities. Anyway, it is an open question and most people will decide it according to their prejudices in the case. It will be a matter for the house of representatives to decide upon and as the Democrats will have a good working majority in the house Mr. Powers will probably have to fight hard for his seat. But he is a fighter and a shrewd one and the contest promises to be fast and furious.

HOW IT HAPPENED

Various influences contributed to the results, but there is no doubt that the predominating one arose from disappointment at last year's failure to make the promised downward revision of the tariff. Signs of this have been unmistakable, and every effort to counteract it has been futile. The prevalence of high prices and high cost of living has been largely attributed to this cause, rightly or wrongly, and has had much effect upon popular feeling.

The active part which ex-President Roosevelt has taken in the campaign of the year has undoubtedly contributed to the political reaction. His stooping to violent personalities in the contest has lowered him in the respect of the people and impaired his prestige, but more serious and more injurious in the estimation of the judicious has been his advocacy of an extreme policy of concentrating power in the Federal government and giving the executive a dominating influence over the other departments. In this he may not have been animated by a selfish personal ambition, but to many it had that appearance.—New York Journal of Commerce.

o o o

The other underlying motive that has prompted this crushing rebuke is his too evident design to seize upon the presidential nomination of his party two years hence. That the people of New York and the East will not have. If in the West, where confidence in his sincerity has been sorely shaken, he still maintains something of his old footing, that nevertheless will not save him from another defeat two years hence. The Taft administration must be strangely incapable if, after this demonstration, it fails to hold beyond his reach what remains of Republicanism in the South. Against the South and East he can hardly win a majority of the convention in 1912, and if he should win it judgment would be entered against him at the polls. He needs no sympathy. His well known character as a valiant fighter, his temper, and his disposition do not invite it. At least we hope that this crushing defeat will make of him a saner, a safer, and a wiser man, to the end that his admittedly great talents may not go to waste in embittered and lifelong resentment against a people who for good and sufficient reasons have put him aside.—New York Times.

Aesop's fable of the ass that carried the idol is recalled by Mr. Roosevelt's conduct since he returned from Europe. Seeing all the people as he went along bend themselves in reverence, the animal fancied that it was to him they were paying obeisance, and in consequence pricked up his ears and flourished his tail. Mr. Roosevelt, received abroad as a former president and hobnobbing with potentates, fancied that it was to him and not to the nation that obeisance was paid, and came back with the megalomaniac notion that he was greater than his country.

He foolishly fancied that he could brow-beat and bully the voters of this state into accepting his personal representative for their governor and the people of the United States into accepting his revolutionary and ruinous policies. He doubtless this morning has a truer measure of his own stature. He is not having "a corking time," but he knows more and now possibly will give us all a rest.—New York Herald.

The great Democratic victories of last week were due, at least in part, to the exceptionally clean and able men who led the fight in most of the states, and the election should be a lesson to both the parties that it is easier to win with honorable and efficient men at the head of the ticket. The Democrats could have won in Nebraska just as easy as they won in New Jersey if they had had such a man as Woodrow Wilson at the head of the ticket. But even a Democratic landslide couldn't carry such a fellow as Dahlman to victory.

New Mexico has a constitutional convention at work preparing a constitution for that territory, which is to be accorded statehood. This convention has decided that all state officers, except the land commissioner and the superintendent of public instructions, shall be elected for four years and will then not be eligible to succeed themselves. This idea commends itself to us as being an excellent provision.

In the state of Washington, last week, a constitutional amendment was passed allowing women the right of suffrage.

SWEETWATER, TEXAS

THE COMING METROPOLIS AND DISTRIBUTING
POINT FOR WEST TEXAS AND NEW MEXICO

With three trans-continental lines of railway, packing house building, already has good schools and churches. Santa Fe division shops and the Texas shops of the Orient Railway will be located here. Lots of building going on at this time. The town has a population of about five thousand people and I believe that in less than five years there will be twenty thousand people in Sweetwater.

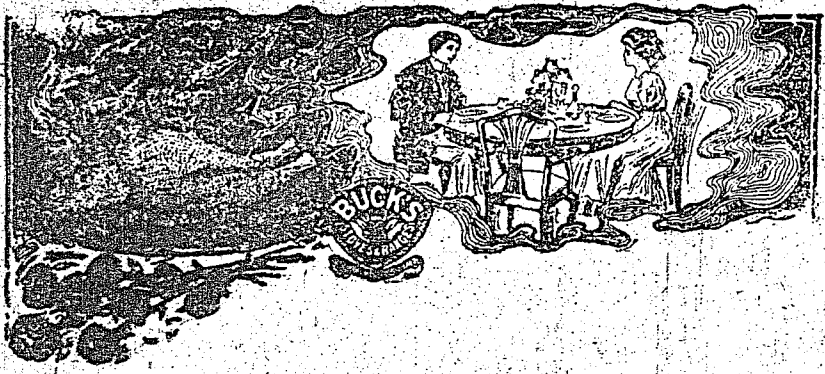

I have bought a lot of beautifully located lots, overlooking the town close to the business center and fronting on the street that it is predicted the street cars will follow in going from the town to the packing house. You are all familiar with the growth of Fort Worth since packing houses were established there.

Sweetwater will be the packing center of Western Texas and it is expected that there will be two more railroads into Sweetwater within the next two years.

I am offering to sell a few of these lots to my friends and the public at such prices and on such terms that you cannot afford to miss getting your part of them.

Come in and talk it over with me. It's no trouble to answer questions.

POLK & BAXTER

CANNON—GAME COCK!

While the Democratic tidal wave of Tuesday night was playing hob with republican hopes and landmarks, an enterprising newspaper man interviewed Uncle Joe Cannon.

"I am elected by 6,000," said the aged speaker. "I am a Republican. I have kept the faith. I have endorsed and have not apologized for the legislation of this congress."

The country can, now that it has settled the issue of Cannonism, confirm the claim of the old man without reluctance.

Henry Watterson called him, admiringly, a "staunch old reprobate."

That is true. There was nothing mealy-mouthed, whining, or indecisive about his stand. Not a note of apology tinged his attitude.

His speeches probably helped swell Democratic gains wherever he campaigned, and the things for which he stood unquestionably were largely responsible for Democratic victory the country over.

But from first to last, he never whimpered, ducked, compromised or evaded. He "stood pat" in the last ditch. That is more than you can say for nineteen-twentieths of his whilom associates and beneficiaries, who scuttled away from him the moment public disapproval manifested itself, and were readiest to bite the hand that had bestowed favors upon them.

The nation will not tolerate Cannonism or its significance. Nor will it withhold its admiration for the game old cock himself.—Atlanta Constitution.

MATTER FOR CONSIDERATION AT NEXT SESSION OF CONGRESS

One of the fights to come up in the next session will be over the congressional representation. The census returns will be in, and should there be no change in the apportionment of representatives the greatly increased population, would make a tremendous increase in the membership of the house of representatives, already unwieldy with a present membership of 391.

The present pro rata of representatives is one congressman to 194,000 population, but probably the fight will be to increase the apportionment to 225,000, which naturally would be fought by such states as Missouri and Iowa, where there has been no increase in population, as an increase in the apportionment would cut down their representation.

The same thing came up ten years ago when an increase in the apportionment was proposed, the two states then in danger of losing some of their representatives being Virginia and Maine. Those informed seemed to be of the opinion there surely will be an increase in the basis of representation.

Texas, however, has small individual concern in the outcome, since the increase of population in the state has been so great that the chances are good for there to be a new member or so added even should there be an increase in the apportionment.

WINTER COURSE IN AGRICULTURE

It is desired that those farmers who expect to take advantage of the winter course in agriculture, that is to be commenced at the A. & M. College of Texas, in January, send their names at once to G. M. Evans, College Station, Texas.

This winter course is being arranged especially for the practical farmer—the man at home who can give but a few weeks in the winter to school work that he may get the benefit of scientific advice on the important points of agricultural work. Mr. Evans is in charge of the extension work of the college, and is directing the work of the free correspondence course in agriculture. He is enrolling those who will come to the winter course, and will arrange quarters for them through co-operation with the secretary of the commercial club at Bryan. This winter course will include instruction in all kinds of agricultural work, animal husbandry, horticulture, veterinary science, etc. It is being arranged for the actual farmers of the state. Being held in January it will be at a time when the farmers can leave home, and the entire expense will be as cheap as remaining at home for the same length of time.

Dept. of Engineering	252
Department of law	260
School of Medicine	178
School of Pharmacy	60
School of Nursing	32
Special	1

Total 1,846

This is an increase of about 100 students over the matriculation at a similar date last session. Counting in the summer school students and the students who are taking University courses by correspondence, considerably more than 3,000 students have been registered in the University for the current session. No student is received in any department until he has completed a full high school course. In the law and medical departments every student must have done, in addition, a full year's work in a reputable college.

MORE GRASS CROPS

In an address at Macon, Ga., Dr. Knapp, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, made some striking comments on the changing character of farming in countries as population increased. After describing the value of tilling a farm and the benefits accruing from the better drainage secured, he said:

Farming cannot be successfully carried on in any country without live stock. I have noted how the nations, as the lands have advanced in price, have changed from tillage crops to grass crops. When I was a boy three-fourths of England was under tillage. Today less than one-fourth is under tillage, and the population has multiplied many fold. The same is true of Holland. It is almost entirely a grass country and lands are worth on an average $500 per acre. The same is true of Denmark. If it has been the experience of these nations that as land advanced and life became more strenuous they turned toward grass, it seems that the same will follow in our case. In other words, they made up their minds that they could get more out of land from grass and live stock than they could by cultivating it. They only use the cultivated crop as a means of rotation, but the main crop is the grass crop. What are they doing with their grass crops? In Holland and Denmark it is the dairy problem, and they have been able to develop a cow that is almost a perfect machine for manufacturing those fine hays and fine pasture grasses into high priced butter and cheese. Their registered stock will average to produce for the farmer 1,000 per cent net profit more than the ordinary cow.

coffee, prominent importers from New York testified that Brazilian coffee had been shipped to Arabia in order that it might be re-imported from Aden as Mocha coffee, and they said that the practice was still in force, although as Dr. Wiley remarked, the dealers did not always go to the trouble of shipping coffee to Arabia for re-export before branding it as "Mocha," or some other brand recognized as fine coffee.

THE DEED OF A DOG

This morning Mrs. Calvin Oliver, who lives on Hutchings avenue, was taken suddenly sick and at home alone. She used every means she could think of to make the neighbors hear her cries, but could not. So she called their bird dog to her and wrote a note, tying it to dog's collar with a necktie in order to attract the attention of her husband and told him to go, which he did at once, going directly to where Mr. Oliver was at work. Mr. Oliver at once discovered the note, and upon learning its contents hurried home. His wife explained to him when he reached her bedside, how their noble dog had summoned him to her in time of need when all other means at hand had failed her.—Ballinger Ledger.

FRANZ JOSEPH DOHNER

The story of Franz Joseph Dohner should be an inspiration to every boy or girl in Texas who must overcome difficulties in order to secure an education. Although totally blind from childhood, he has had a successful career as a student, being now employed as instructor in mathematics in Harvard University. He was educated first at the State School for the Blind at Austin, afterwards attending the University of Texas, where he graduated in 1898. He then studied for three years in Germany, and secured the highest scholastic honor awarded to any person, the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy. After teaching for two years in the University of Texas, he went to Harvard for special work in mathematics, and is now a member of the regular teaching staff of that great institution.

Low Shoe Peril.
The constant wearing of low shoes and slippers will spoil the shape of the ankles, especially if one must be much on the feet. An exercise which gives shapeliness to the lower limbs consists in standing straight, hands on hips, heels together, then rising slowly on the tips of the toes while drawing in the breath; then while exhaling it slowly return to the first position, feet flat on floor. Do this every morning and evening for ten minutes; also as much as you can wear high laced boots, drawing the laces as snugly as comfort will permit. Draw them in by degrees, not all at once.

Perfuming the Hair.
The perfumed hair cup has met with favor with women who are fond of dainty conceits, and one may be easily made at home. After the shampoo and at night these cups should be worn, and the fragrance is lasting. Fashion them after the style of the Dutch bonnet. Between two layers of silk put a sheet of cotton batting with plenty of sachet powder, using always the same perfume. Many women prefer the Florentine orris, but when you find a perfume to your liking use it all the time, as it bespeaks more refinement than having all sorts of essences about your garments.

Doesn't Know Her Age.
There is a glaring phase of unfairness in the position of the two sexes, despite all our struggles for the suffrage. A woman still dreads to tell her age, no matter how youthful she may look, while as long as a man looks youthful he is generally willing to admit and even to boast of how many milestones he has passed. There is at least one father who understood this problem in time and who gave his daughter a fair chance in life by never letting her know how old she was. He realized at her birth that a time would come when she would want to tell her age, and he spared her the frustration of having to prevaricate, so she was never told either her age or the place where she was born, and there were no birth records preserved in the family.

Ways of Remodeling Your Last Season's Suit.

A SMART SUIT OF BROWN ZIBELINE. Overhaul your wardrobe and find out just what you have.

There is your winter suit. You feel as though you could not wear it another season. But how can you afford another? Let's look it over carefully. The skirt is frayed, in the first place. Well, that can easily be remedied. This is a plan which will serve many times. When the hem of your cloth gown cuts out take a very sharp pair of scissors. Insert at the largest hole and cut the edge of the hem through very exactly so that there will be no jagged spots. Turn both the edges this gives in toward each other, the inner ones a little more than the outer or dress edge and waste carefully. Then slip stitch by hand, dampen and press. Remove the basting threads before the final press, cutting them frequently so that there will be no pulling. After pressing sew on a good quality of mohair skirt braid, letting it come below the edge, and be sure that this braid has been shrunken or at the first wetting the hem will all wrinkle.

But before going any further it will be well to clean all spots from the suit before attempting any further renovation. The coat is perhaps the most difficult matter. It is doubtless too long and has the long shawl collar of the past season, but it is not hopeless. Cut the coat to a becoming length, a little below the hips. Fit closely about the hips, then use the material cut from the coat to make the new sailor collar and wide lapels. Have the entire suit pressed thoroughly by a tailor, and, lo, you have a new and fashionable garment.

The smart suit pictured offers excellent suggestions for remodeling last year's finery. It is a three piece affair, and the coat is lined with a brown and tan silk which makes the upper part of the skirt and peasant bodice. A cream lace yoke veiled with brown chiffon brings the waist right up to date.

SELF RELIANCE.

The man who is self reliant seeks ever to discover and conquer the weakness within him that keeps him from attaining what he holds dearest. He seeks within himself the power to battle against all outside influences. He realizes that all the greatest men in history have been those who have had to fight against sickness, suffering, sorrow. To him defeat is no more than passing through a tunnel is to a traveler. He knows he must emerge again into the sunlight.—William George Jordan.

Burials in Coffins.

Burial in coffins in England was not usual until about 1700 or even later. While the right to naked burial was not denied, it was questioned whether our forefathers could insist upon the privilege of being inclosed in "a big box, perhaps imperishable," and so laid in the earth. At Farnham about 1680 only fourteen out of fifty-five persons buried were buried in coffins.—Manchester Chronicle.

NEW FINERY SET.
In line with the popularity of black and white effects this season that royal pelt ermine has come into more than usual favor from the fashionable world. It not only adorns hats, trims evening gowns and street suits, but makes the stunneriest of the new small piece sets. The illustration gives a good impression of how attractive is the new makeup in collar and muff sets of ermine.

The belted feature of this pointed stole is particularly smart, as is also the turned down collar with its broad tie of silk.

The Separate Waist.
Persian effects in separate waists are one of the latest comers in the dress world, and they are certainly attractive when soft colorings are selected.

The natty blouse in the cut is of pale though rich Persian colorings cur-

IN PERSIAN CHIFFON AND SATIN.
ried out in chiffon, which material is used over a foundation of navy blue satin. The folds and studded buttonholes and covered buttons are of the blue satin. Such a waist worn with a dark blue cloth costume is exceedingly good taste.

The Bread Board.
Hold the knife in a slanting manner and follow the grain of the wood while cleaning dough off a bread board. Also do the washing of it away from the iron sink, for the least grease and black will get into the soft wood.

A Good Example

"I am a good example" writes Mrs. R. L. Bell, of McAlester, Okla., "of what Cardui will do for suffering women."

"I suffered with my head and back, for over six years, and although I tried everything, I never could get anything to do me any good, until I began to take Cardui. Cardui has surely helped me! and built me up and I am so thankful that I have found something that will do me good. I feel so much stronger and better than I have in a long time."

It is well to make up your mind, before you are sick what medicine you will take when you are sick.

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

You will be glad to take it when you are tired, miserable and when life seems a weary grind. It will put new thoughts into your head, fresh courage into your mind. If not sick now, at least burn Cardui on to the pages of your memory, so that when you are sick you will ask for it without thinking.

If sick or weak, get a bottle today. At all druggists.

THE FIRST STATE BANK & TRUST CO.

PAY TO J. P. Raney OR ORDER $ 26.15
Twenty Six and 15/100 DOLLARS
A. B. Clark

My Dear Son: I regret to learn that you have lost some money by reason of the payment of a bill in cash to an unauthorized collector. The mere fact that he presented a printed bill head was no assurance that he had any authority to make the collection and receipt for your money.

You have a bank account with the First State Bank & Trust Co., and I cannot understand why you did not pay the bill by check drawn payable to the party to whom you were indebted. You would then have been safe in giving it to the collector, inasmuch as you would have been under no obligation to examine into his credentials, for the bank is responsible to you for the full amount if the check falls into the hands of a dishonest person. When your check is returned to you at the end of the month it must bear the endorsement of the party to whom you made it payable, and is then a legal and indisputable receipt for your money, which you should file away with other vouchers for future reference.

Hereafter deposit all money you receive and pay all of your obligations by check. The bank will attend to your bookkeeping without any expense to you.

I regret that you had to pay the above-mentioned bill again. Let this be a lesson. Affectionately,

YOUR FATHER.

Mr. and Mrs. Burris, of Santa Anna, were out to hear Bro. Smith Sunday.
