Competition begins with the search for oil.

Competition

gives you the best petroleum products

in the world at the lowest prices

The U. S. oil business is one of the most highly competitive industries in this country and, for that matter, in the world. Every time you buy a gallon of gasoline or a quart of motor oil, there are at least 100 companies that would like you to buy from them.

Your purchase stimulates competition far beyond the service station driveway where you make it. It stirs scientists to find more oil for your use. It urges production men to produce oil more efficiently and economically and with less waste. It extends through low-cost transportation pipe lines to refineries that seek better ways to make more and better petroleum products to compete for your business.

Is this competition a good thing?

It certainly is. It's a good thing for you because you get the best petroleum products in the world at the lowest prices. It's a good thing for the country because it stimulates the continuous development and conservation of a vital natural resource. And it's a good thing for the oil business: competition keeps the industry strong, vigorous, progressive.

Improved drilling and producing methods increase supplies of oil at reasonable prices.

Pipe line companies seek to improve their service and to reduce the transportation cost of oil and finished products. Their success is a major factor in keeping prices of petroleum products low.

Competitive refineries never let a day pass without trying to find a better way to make more and better petroleum products for your use.

Your service station dealer competes in product quality and service with all the other dealers in your neighborhood.

February 2nd Set As Children's Dental Health Day

More than half of the children in this country have as many as six cavities in their teeth before they begin school.

That's the estimate of Texas dental authorities and state health officials as they announced February 2 as the date set for the fifth annual observance of Children's Dental Health Day.

The day has been set aside in an attempt to call public attention to these startling facts: Ninety-eight per cent of all 15-year old boys have one or more teeth missing, decayed or filled.

Over 284 million cavities are afflicting the teeth of American children, with teeth decaying six times faster than they are being filled.

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Scripture: Matthew 19. Devotional Reading: 1 Timothy 6:2-11.

Poor Rich Man

Lesson for February 1, 1953

THE MAN had everything. He was young, he was in an executive position, he was in vigorous health, he was respectable, he was very rich. And still he felt something missing. After all this, what? What was there for him over and beyond the pleasant and powerful life he was then living? He was spiritually sensitive; he could feel that all he had was still not quite the thing.

Camel and Needle

The man in the famous story (Matthew 19) never did get what he wanted, so far as we know. The reason is, he did not want it enough. The price was high: nothing less than everything he had, and his wealth was great. So he "went away sorrowful" and that is the last we see of him. What Jesus said as he watched him go has caused a great deal of discussion, both at the time and ever since. According to Matthew, Jesus said that it is harder for a rich man to enter God's Kingdom (that is, to have eternal life, or to be saved) than for a camel to get through a needle's eye.

Dr. Foreman

All sorts of efforts have been made to show that Jesus could not possibly have meant this. The words translated "camel" and "needle's eye" could possibly mean something else, but they probably don't. We may as well face it. Jesus meant to say that the only way a camel could get through a needle's eye is by a miracle; and it is more of a miracle for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God than for a camel to pass through a needle's eye. He did not say it was impossible; he did say it was possible only with God. This is as shocking in 20th century America as in first century Palestine.

Riches Are Risky

Actually there are many more warnings against wealth, in the Bible, than against poverty. The "have's" are in more spiritual peril than the "have-not's." Why this is, can be shortly stated. A minister who had had many contacts among the super-rich of one of America's Gold Coasts remarked to the writer that wealth makes the first generation hard, the second generation soft. The man of wealth may easily trust in his possessions and not in God, in short to make a god out of his own property. He may test right and wrong by what the effect is on his holdings.

Because his friends are mostly among other rich people, he is constantly tempted to habits, diversions, recreations, customs which are not Christian. Further, the possession of wealth tends to make the owner near-sighted; like the rich young ruler who turned his back on Jesus, he can neither see clearly his own best interest nor the needs of men and women in the shadowed ways of life.

Don't Be Ruined by Riches

Now it is not true that Jesus taught that all first-class Christians must be complete paupers. It is not true that Jesus taught that no one with property can be a Christian. It is not true that Jesus laid it down as a rule for all his followers that they must give away everything they have. One of his best-loved disciples was John, who owned a home of his own. We can recall Lydia and Barnabas among the early Christians; we can all name Christians who have served God and their fellow-men with their money. When a doctor tells a patient he must get rid of his appendix, he is not saying that all healthy persons must do the same. But when an appendix is a danger, out it must come. Now wealth may be a danger, a source of moral infection. The one best way to keep from the dangers of possessions (and these begin as soon as we have as much as one surplus dime) is to learn to think of them, and to use them, as a trust from God.

To be Christian in the earning and acquiring of what we have; to be Christian in the using of it; to spend what we have as if Christ were spending it; to remember that of him to whom much is given, much shall be required; to regard what we own as so much opportunity for doing good, instead of so much insurance against hardships; this calls for the grace of God.

plies in the case of a person absent for a term of seven years and not known to exist who leaves no heirs and no will.

Presumably, there is hardly a person who does not have some individual or charity that he would prefer to have his estate, rather than have it go to the State by default, so to speak. Yet, surprisingly, estates worth many thousands of dollars do escheat to the various states from time to time.

Now, before you shrug the matter off with the idea that these statutory provisions could not possibly apply to you, better think a minute. Suppose you and your spouse have no heirs besides each other and your children. Many people do fall into this category.

In event of a catastrophe resulting in death for you and your entire immediate family, no legal heirs would remain. Therefore if you had no will, your property would go to the State. In preparing a will, it is possible to provide for such an eventuality.

In this hypothetical case, you would probably want to designate some friend as executor, to take care of all necessary arrangements and then distribute the estate according to your wishes.

On the other hand, if you have plenty of possible heirs, a will could be used to designate which of them shall participate in the division of the estate. And, even if you wish your property to be distributed entirely in accordance with our statutes of descent and distribution as explained in previous columns, a will could provide for an orderly and economical partition of your property, preventing any waste of the assets by heirs impatient for a settlement.

What happens to property which escheats to the State? Following certain required legal formalities and court proceedings, all escheated lands are set apart to the Permanent Free School Fund of the State, and may be leased and sold by the local sheriff under a court writ and the money received therefrom paid into the State Treasury.

FARM LABOR OUTLOOK

Slightly less available farm labor at a slightly higher price! That is the forecast of the United States Department of Agriculture for farm help during 1953. The statisticians strike an optimistic note, however, by adding that the labor supply is expected to be sufficient, on the whole, to keep farm production at high levels.

The number of workers employed on farms has decreased steadily during the past 15 years. At the same time, labor requirements have also declined because of rapid gains in farm mechanization. The result is that per farm work now is the greatest on record. Further progress in mechanization and other advances in technology should lower labor requirements. Even so, the problem of replacing some workers must be met if high production is to be maintained.

Prospects are that wages paid farm workers this year may rise less than 5 per cent, as compared with a rise of about 7 per cent in 1952. The extent of the rise will vary according to the net losses of farm workers to industry in certain areas, and to the Armed Forces.

Although only a nominal increase in the net size of the Armed Forces is predicted in 1953, the rotation of service personnel will create labor problems for some farmers who lose men needed as replacements in the corps.

The farmer also faces the continued threat of losing laborers to nonfarm employment because of higher wages or improved working and living conditions. It may be good business for farmers in need of help to be on the lookout for potential year-round workers and to train them. Difficulties also may be experienced in getting adequate supplies of seasonal workers in some areas this year. The Texas farmer has had plenty of experience in this line. Due to constant policy changes, or often inadequate agreements, the supply of available bracero labor varies greatly from year to year. A good flexible policy on labor importation from Mexico is the hope and goal of many people in Texas.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

STATE MAY WIN ESTATE WHEN DECEASED LACKS WILL Made your will? If not, the State of Texas may wind up as owner of your estate upon your death. Under our statutes, the estates of persons having no heirs who die intestate revert, or "escheat", to the state.

Such provisions have been carried over from the English common law. There, under such circumstances, the estate escheated to the British crown. The theory of the process is that the sovereign (or state), having been the original owner of all lands before they were parceled out to individuals, is entitled to a return of such lands when the possibilities of legal inheritance have been exhausted.

This idea has been expanded to include personal property as well as real estate. It also ap-

Our WASHINGTON Letter

THE WEATHERMAN upset the forecasters to give Washington the most perfect, cloudless day you could imagine for the inaugural. Then that night the rain began and continued for twenty-four hours.

Texans were in evidence for the gala affair. Several exhibits from the Lone Star State figured prominently in the four and one-half hour parade. The Cavaliers from San Antonio, the Kilgore College Rangerettes, a float sponsored by Denison—the Eisenhower birth place, all combined to grab off a lot of attention from the spectators who came from everywhere. The Banquet in Brownwood Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lancaster of Evant, Texas, is visiting his sister, Mr. and Mrs. Pleas Williamson. Mrs. Ann Bryan and Frances and Mr. Zack Bible were Monday evening supper guests in the Williamson home.

float featured a replica of the house at Denison in which the General was born.

AMONG TEXANS who made the trip were 53 students and teacher - sponsors, principally from Uvalde. The group included students from Del Rio, Goldthwaite, Stockdale, San Angelo and Holland. Mrs. Louise Black and Mrs. Reuben Loeffler were on one of the Texas special trains. Mr. and Mrs. John Matney of San Angelo happened to be here visiting and took in the big show. So did Mrs. Maurine Burroughs, a teacher, of Coleman. Mrs. Burroughs is here on a Ford Foundation project, she having been selected from among thousands of teachers for a year of special research and study.

Also up for the inaugural festivities were Adolph Stielor of Comfort and Mrs. W. Gillespie Stacy of Austin. The latter operates Camp Mystic at Kerrville.

BUT DESPITE ALL the hoopla attendant on it, Inaugural Day was essentially a solemn and majestic one because of what it symbolizes. An inaugural reaffirms the continuing constitutional life of our Republic. It symbolizes the reality of the fact that we are a nation of free men and free women whose free vote determines who shall head and direct our democratic Government. It reaffirms again the self-evident truth that governments can derive their just powers only from the consent of the governed.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gregg and family were in San Angelo Saturday on business.
