Hi! Happy Fathers day to all fathers today. The bread winner of the family in this time of the E.R. A. The reason I say this is that generally speaking this is so true. You can go to church or any public gathering and you will see many more women (I started to say gray headed. tho they are green, red, blonde, blue and every color of the rainbow) there than old men. The men work hard to help keep the women from exposing themselves to the danger of the weather etc. I mean just generally speaking that this is so. Though there are exceptions to almost all statements. Even me for example. I fell out of a pecan tree 23 years ago. I have not worked a day since then. The one that does not work is ahead.

There are many nice gardens here now. So all are enjoying a better variety of food for the table for a change.

I want to say this to the young ones that graduated here this year and also other young folks. Please, please stop that smoking. Some can smoke years and get by. Just think, if you smoke one pack a day that amounts to $200.00 per year. Though they get to two and three packs per day. Look how much that would be in twenty years.

I spent some eight weeks in V.A. Hospital with my eyes trying to save them and when I was ther the last time for three weeks with eye trouble it was 90% for smoking and drinking. I saw so many there that had lungs taken out with cancer. Saw some that when they cut into lungs, just sewed them up. Too late, just for a cigarette. I have never smoked one in my life. They also affected babies being born by mothers that smoke, some are born too soon etc. Tho not all are affected. Please avoid alcoholic drinks. Some can drink and control themselves tho so many cannot. It is just too bad when a person is raising a family. They will drink and spend their money and let their children go hungry and not clothed right. Seprive their children of an education. I know for I have seen this happen too many times. When I was in V.A. at Big Spring in 64 there was a man that was placed in my room (there were four beds in the room. It was my room each time I was there. Called butcher room. They thought I would lose an eye) About midnight and put to bed. Next morning he was sitting on side of his bed. He asked me to wet his washrag at the foot of his bed I did.

When Doctor came around at 9:00 a.m. he said that he told him not to drink any more when he left the hospital before after removing most of his liver. He said 'I cannot live without drinking' The Doctor said 'You will for today you will die.' He begged the Doctor to do something. The Doctor said 'You have done this yourself. Nothing can be done.' He died that evening in a private room.

In a room across the hall from me was a Mr. Robert Cain. He had a part of his liver taken out. He motioned me to come in his room. He asked me to write a letter for him to his sister. He said to tell her about the operation dn the Doctor told him if he did not drink any more he could be O.K.

He said that when he came off work in the evening he would stop and drink some beer. At supper he would drink beer, then go to the joint and drink again. He did not think it was like drinking whiskey. I talked to him three years later and said that he would swear that he had not tasted any beverages of any kind.(alcoholic). He was back with his wife and trying to live like a human being.

All of the above are actual facts that I have seen and experienced. A very large percent of all our accidents are caused by drunken drivers. Also many lives are lost by smokers accidently setting fires. Please Stop! Think! Listen to reason.

Yesterday was Flag Day. We should all be proud of Old Glory. It has cost very dearly in sweat, blood and

TESCO RELEASES FACTS ON INCREASE

Below is a chart showing effects of Texas Electric's proposed revenue increase on customers' residential bills. The chart also shows the effect on residential bills of the expiration of Texas Electric's Old Ocean natural gas contract. Proposed Revenue Increase We have requested a $123 million systemwide increase in revenue because of the impact of inflation on construction costs of power plants we are building to provide our customers with electricity made with lignite and nuclear fuels, as well as its impact on almost all other costs of providing electric service. Despite this proposed increase, our customers' bills will still be lower than they would be if we had not already completed eight generating units fueled by lignite coal. Because we've been able to use lignite to produce much of our customers' electricity, they have saved more than $250 million so far compared to what they would have paid for the same amount of electricity made with market-priced natural gas. By continuing this construction program and thereby holding down the use of high-priced natural gas and oil, the company can continue to help minimize the effect of rising oil and gas prices on our customers' bills. Old Ocean Contract Expiration Our 20-year Old Ocean natural gas contract, which provides a large part of our natural gas fuel, will expire at the end of this year. We presently pay 40 1/2 cents per thousand cubic feet for the gas we receive under that contract. After it expires, we will have to replace that supply with gas purchased at today's open market prices. These prices now are more than $2 per mcf. This increase in the price we must pay for natural gas also will be reflected on our customers' bills. Customers on TESCO's General Service (commercial) Rate may obtain an estimate of the amount of their bills under the proposed rates by calling Texas Electric's local business office phone 734-2514.

Again, however, our customers' bills would be higher if we were not using lignite fuel to produce almost 50 percent of the electricity they use, but instead had to use that market-priced gas to make all their electricity.

TSU FIELD DAY DEMONSTRATION SET JUNE 27

STEPHENVILLE, TX--- A field day to demonstrate the use of anaerobic digestion for the production of energy and management of animal waste will be held here June 27 at Tarleton State University. The program will start at 10 a.m. in the auditorium of the agriculture building on the Tarleton campus with a discussion of the construction and economics of anaerobic digesters.

Following lunch, the demonstration will continue at the University Agriculture Center with an inspection of a 7,500 gallon digester and a 30,000 gallon digester.

Dr. Ed Fulton, professor of agriculture at Tarleton, designed and built the two digesters under grants totaling approximately $200,000 from the Department of Energy and the Energy and Mineral Advisory Council of Texas.

Fulton started the project in March, 1976, with a metal drum as a small anaerobic digester. In the ensuing years he has develop an automated system with a 7,500 gallon tank. The new system is capable of producing approximately 5,000 feet of bio-gas a day.

Fulton has also expanded the utilization of the project from poultry manure to the use of waste from swine and dairy cattle.

At the June 27 seminar, Fulton will demonstrate the use of gas produced by the anaerobic digester system for heating, cooling and fuel for motors.

The day-long demonstration is free and open to the public.

Pick the fuels electricity can be made from:

- coal
- natural gas
- oil
- uranium
- all of the above

"All of the above" is right. But these days two of those fuels—coal and uranium—cost less and are more plentiful than the others.

For many years we built plants to use natural gas and some oil to generate all your electricity. And we still have to use a lot of those fuels. But for over 10 years, we've been building plants that use lignite coal. Today, almost half of your electricity is made at lignite plants. And now, we're building a plant to make electricity with uranium.

That's good. Because at the end of this year our biggest contract for low-cost natural gas expires. The new gas and oil we'll have to buy will be much more expensive.

This means the cost of electricity will go up. But it won't be as high as it would have been if Texas Electric hadn't planned ahead. Our use of lignite coal and our planned use of uranium are ways we're helping minimize the increases in your electric bills.

By conserving, you can help save on your bills. To learn effective conservation measures, attend one of our free Operation Tighten-Up workshops. Call us for information on a workshop in your neighborhood.
