OPPOSITION TO M'ADOO BEATING ON KLAN

CROSS COUNTRY FLYER IS BEHIND HIS SCHEDULE

Maughan Lands at St. Joseph Several Minutes Late; Resumes Flight.

NORTH FLATTE, Neb., June 23.—Lieut. Russell Maughan was forced to land here at 12:49 p. m. today because of engine trouble. He is attempting a daylight flight to San Francisco.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 23.—Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan, attempting to cross the continent from dawn to dusk, landed at Rosecrans flying field at 10:33 a. m. central station time, today. He was slightly behind his schedule, which called for a landing here at 10:30 a. m.

The Curtis plane swept down from the sky with the speed of a hummingbird and cheers arose from spectators as Maughan stepped from it to eat a hurried lunch. Mechanics worked feverishly filling the tank, changing oil and going over the machine.

At 11:37 Maughan took off for Cheyenne.

MITCHELL FIELD, L. I., June 23.—Lieut. Russell L. Maughan took off at 3:59, eastern time, today in an attempt to fly from here to San Francisco between dawn and dusk. The first rosy streaks of a warm June day were just reddening the east when this intrepid flyer shouted "contact." There was a roar from the exhaust of the big Curtis pursuit plane and the pilot was off on his third attempt to span the continent between dawn and dusk.

The schedule called for stops at Dayton, Ohio; St. Joseph, Mo.; Cheyenne, Wyo., and Salsduro, Utah. The distance from here to the Crissy Field, San Francisco, is 2,670 miles and to make the flight in 19 hours, 15 minutes of daylight, Maughan must average about 165 miles an hour.

PASSES OVER INDIANAPOLIS INDIANAPOLIS, June 23.—Lieutenant Maughan passed over Indianapolis at 8 o'clock this morning on his flight across the continent. His plane was visible for only a moment as it shot across Indianapolis.

DECATUR GLIMPSES FLYER DECATUR, Ill., June 23.—Lieutenant Maughan passed over Decatur at 8:55 o'clock this morning. Decatur is 40 miles east of Springfield.

Anderson Returns From Visit To Ford Plants In Michigan

T. J. Anderson, 305 First street, who was the high point man in the Ford selling contest in Ranger and who was one of the 24 high point men in the United States in selling Fords during March, has just returned from Detroit, where he visited the Ford plant as the guest of Henry Ford and the Ford Motor company.

The 24 high point men in the United States were entertained in appreciation of their work. Jimmie Wilder of Breckenridge was the only other Texas man to make the trip in company with Anderson.

While in Detroit, Anderson said that they made a tour of the factories of the Ford plant, which included the Lincoln and tractor plants. The Ford company has two monster plants covering 565 acres and having a total output of 10,000 Ford cars, 450 tractors and 42 Lincolns daily, with 110,000 men, representing approximately one-tenth of the population of Detroit, in the employ of the company.

Over $12,000,000 in construction work is now under way at the Highland Park and River Rouge plants, with the River Rouge plant expanding, according to Anderson. The Highland Park plant covers 265 acres and the River Rouge covers 300 acres.

Baker Will Lead Fight On the Klan In the Committee

NEW YORK, June 23.—Newton D. Baker said today that he had been instructed to present an anti-klan plank similar to the one proposed by Ed Moore. He said that he would follow the delegates' instructions and present the substance of Moore's plank denouncing the Klan.

Burkett Says His Prospects Looking Better and Better

Joe Burkett, candidate for governor, spent a few hours in his office at Eastland today while passing through from one speaking appointment to another. In discussing his candidacy with his friends he said: "The past week brings wonderfully encouraging reports from every corner of the state. These reports are not only encouraging, they are flattering. I found not just a few letters upon my desk but literally dozens of them telling me that although I already had a good support in these sections, the people are turning their support to me in throngs. That is the great middle class—the class who controls the destiny of nations."

Senator Burkett said he has met personally more than 200,000 people, the greater majority of whom had declared themselves in his favor. He has made over 450 speeches and there are only 38 counties in which he hasn't spoken, but will speak in those counties within the next two weeks. He has spoken in a number of counties two to four times. Besides this, he will campaign the larger cities before election day. He said he had accomplished something that no candidate for governor had ever done and that he never felt better in his life.

BURKETT SAYS STUBBLEFIELD WAS IN ERROR

Declares Statements Reported Made in Speech at Carbon False and Slanderous.

Senator Joe Burkett, candidate for governor, who spent Sunday with his folks here, when he heard and read of the attack made on him by J. R. Stubblefield in a speech at Carbon Saturday afternoon, immediately called Mr. Stubblefield over the telephone and told him that many of the charges he made against him in the Carbon speech were untrue. He later issued the following statement regarding the matter: "I notice a report of a speech made by Judge J. R. Stubblefield at Carbon last Saturday which, if the report be a true report of his speech, is false and slanderous in many instances."

Judge Stubblefield is credited with saying 'Joe Burkett went to the county depository bond of Security State Bank & Trust company. . . . That statement is untrue. I did not sign the bond and did not authorize anyone to sign it for me.'

The newspaper report further credits Judge Stubblefield with saying 'Joe Burkett advised them to write the bank a letter on July 12, 1921, to have about $600,000 of Eastland county's money transferred from an interest bearing account to a non-interest. . . . That statement is likewise untrue.'

The report further credits Judge Stubblefield with saying 'Joe Burkett suddenly developed an enlargement of the heart and just a few days—not more than a week before this defunct bank closed its doors—Joe suddenly with his great love and affection, filed a deed conveying his farm out yonder to his wife for love and affection.' Now the real truth about this matter is, that when I was married I was without funds of any character, but my wife was given some money by her father. This was invested in a little home at Putnam, in Callahan county, and later sold and invested in a 160-acre tract near Dothan in this county, which was sold an invested in a farm south of Eastland—the one which I decided to my wife in 1920. In July, 1920, more than a year before the bank closed, I decided this land to my wife, which was in reality her land. The land had an indebtedness against it amounting to about $3,000. I do not remember when the deed was filed for record, but I remember that it was filed along with some other deeds, which I had been holding in my office, neglecting to file them for record.

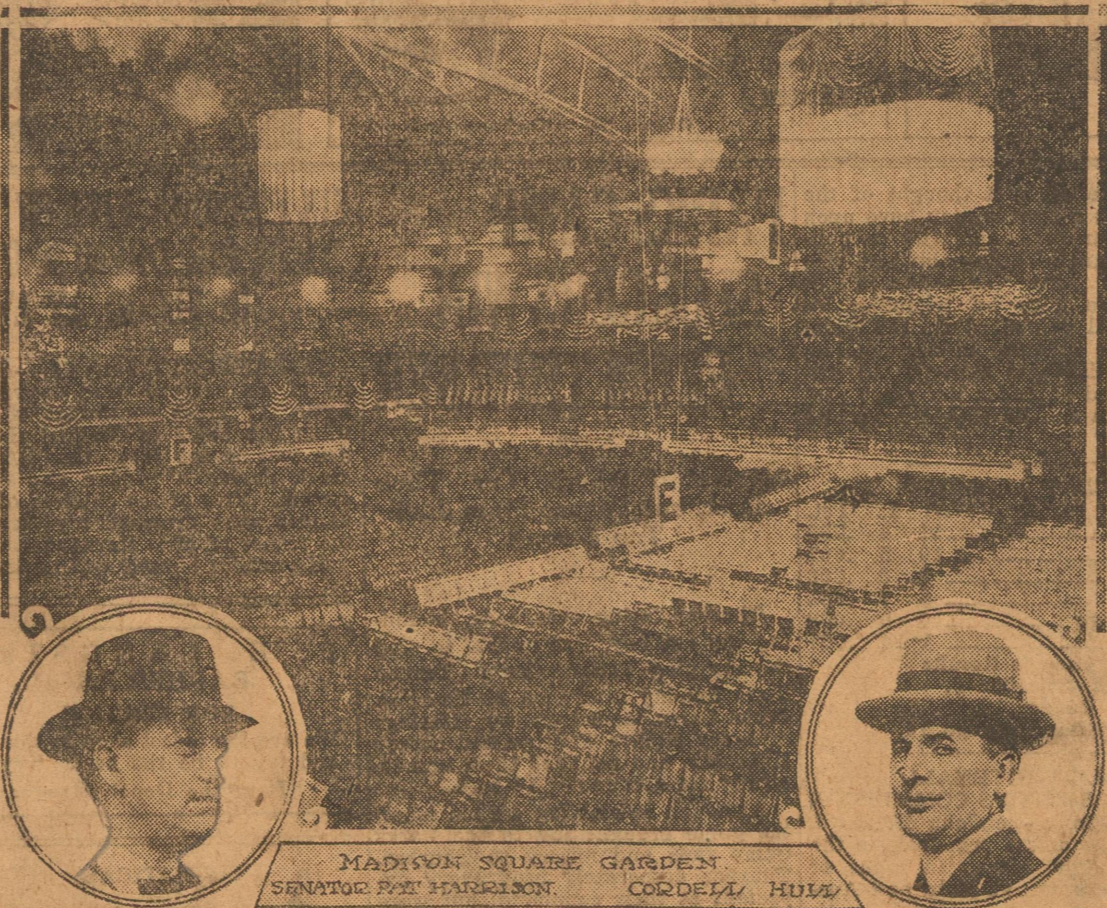

"I did not know of the condition of the bank. I was at Austin in the senate when it closed its doors, and had been for several weeks, and knew absolutely nothing about the happenings with reference to the bank and I did not know anything about the bond of the bank for I did not sign it, and am not liable thereon."

"I did not transfer any property to my wife except that which belonged to her by reason of it being the proceeds of her own separate property."

"Both Judge Stubblefield, if he really said what is attributed to him in the Oil Belt News, and the paper itself, have done me a grave injustice in making such slanderous and libelous statements which are unjust and untrue and without foundation in fact."

"Signed: JOE BURKETT."

BRITISH MAKE CHINESE TAKE QUICK NOTICE

Warship's Guns Trained on City Brings Reprisals After Murder of American.

PEKIN, China, June 23.—Commander of the British warship Cookshaker by threatening Wanshien, compelled Chinese authorities to honor Edwin G. Hawley, an American killed by junkmen, and to execute by shooting in public two officials of the junkmen's guild.

Officials of Wanshien have promised to take steps to prevent foreigners hereafter being molested. Hawley, a native of New Jersey, had been in China 15 years, employed by a British firm transporting wood and oil by steamers. Junkmen resenting the intrusion of machinery into their river livelihood, beat Hawley to death. The commander of the warship trained the guns on the city and required the highest Chinese authorities to walk in mock humility in the funeral procession after which two leaders of the guild were taken to where Hawley had been killed and shot to death while the population looked on.

Stryker, United States consul, reported that the inhabitants and the Chinese military authorities appeared to be very much awed by the example of western justice and has given assurance that the offense would not be repeated.

NATHAN LEOPOLD JR. ONE TIME TEACHER OF BIRD LIFE TO THE WEALTHY

CHICAGO, June 23.—Learning that Nathan Leopold Jr., one of the confessed slayers of Robert Franks, 14-year-old schoolboy, had essayed to be a professor of ornithology—conducting classes in bird life among families of the wealthy, the office of State's Attorney Crowe today announced that several of Leopold's former pupils would be called for questioning.

Leopold, it was learned, made his spending money by organizing classes in bird lore. The wives and children of wealthy Chicago business men were enrolled.

"We will examine those who were pupils of Leopold," an attaché of the office said. "They may give us additional information about Leopold's life."

MINNESOTA TOWN IS HARD HIT BY STORM

Dues, city official of Ballaton, which sent the telegram, gave no particulars but asked for immediate state relief.

MAYOR COCKRELL OF FORT WORTH SOON TO LEAVE

Will Take Presidency of William Woods College at Fulton, Mo.

FULTON, Mo., June 23.—Mayor E. R. Cockrell of Fort Worth, Texas, has accepted the offer of the presidency of the William Woods college here, it was announced today. He will not take over the position until the campaign for a city manager form of government in Fort Worth is completed.

Mayor Cockrell has been here several days conferring with officials of the college and said he expected he would be able to return and take up his new duties by Sept. 1. He was born near Fulton and is a nephew of former Senator Cockrell of Missouri, who held a record for long service in the United States senate.

Bands Of Music Fill New York With Glad, Sweet Song

NEW YORK, June 23.—Life here today was just one band after another. A concentration of bands in honor of this and that candidate dinned into the ears from every side.

McAdoo Delegates Stand To the Last Ditch, They Promise

McADOO'S HEADQUARTERS, NEW YORK, June 23.—In a speech to some 200 enthusiastic delegates that came today from the Pacific coast, William G. McAdoo, appealed to his followers to "stick to the last ballot." His appeal brought loud cheers and replies, "We're here to fight all summer, if necessary; we are 'last ditchers.'"

"We have been told by a hostile press that you will be trailing in the dust after the first ballot," McAdoo shouted. "But I know that you will not desert, and that you are not here to betray, but to execute your trust."

DANIELS ONE OF DARK HORSES FOR PRESIDENCY

Former Secretary of Navy Is Known to Posses Both Brains and Courage.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, under President Wilson, may be the dark horse in the democratic presidential race. Many an observer would place his money on the field in the coming free-for-all.

Daniels came into prominence through the newspaper world. He was picked from the editorial chair of his Raleigh, N. C., News and Observer by President Wilson in 1913 and made secretary of the navy, a post he held throughout the war leaders' administration.

The former secretary of the navy is a curious mixture of a pacifist and a fighting man. Many stories are told of how his criticisms in the News and Observer have brought him into encounters of physical violence with those he criticized. Daniels is supposed to have been wounded in some of these combats, but despite such setbacks he fearlessly continued the attacks in his newspaper.

But, Daniels always liked to be known as a man of peace and so regarded himself, for he is a mild-spoken and retiring man. Daniels is a progressive in political thought. He ardently championed the policies of his chief, Woodrow Wilson, and remained faithful to the late president to the day of the latter's death, although he never was regarded as one of those closest to Wilson.

When the little-known editor took the helm of the navy department in Washington, he began to run things in a way that caused some of the old-line elements of the navy to throw up their hands in disgust. He was ridiculed as a country editor.

The Dry Navy.
Daniels favored prohibition, and even though this was before the eighteenth amendment, he abolished the liquid refreshments that long had been a tradition of the officers' ward-rooms on American mon-o-war. On every American naval vessel, liquor was read out of existence. And thus the secretary of the navy won the sobriquet of "Grapejuice Daniels."

It was after Daniels had barred liquor from ships of the navy that he accompanied President Wilson on a short trip down the Potomac. Wilson, who was not an absolute abstainer, was chilled and felt the need for some stimulant. Now the Mayflower comes under the navy, and Daniels had made his liquor order applicable to the president's yacht. His chief's wish was denied. It is said that at that time Wilson was not greatly impressed by his secretary of the navy's order.

A further paradox in Daniels was that despite his progressivism and his reputation as a man of peace, he probably was one of the strongest "navy men" that ever has sat at the desk of secretary of the navy.

While he supported and championed the peace policies of President Wilson, such as the league of nations covenant, he nevertheless made a constant demand on congress for authorization to make the American navy second to none in the world. Daniels has bitterly criticized the naval disarmament treaty negotiated by the Harding administration as rendering the American navy impotent.

Admitted to the Bar.
Daniels was born in Washington, N. C., May 18, 1862. He is a college-educated man and was admitted to the bar, but did not practice. Instead he became state printer for North Carolina. For a while he was chief clerk of the department of interior in Washington. Returning home he became editor of the Raleigh State Chronicle in 1885. In 1894 he consolidated this paper and the North Carolinian with the News and Observer, of which he has been editor since. For some time Daniels has been prominent in democratic politics in the south. He has written extensively since leaving the navy department.

UNDERWOOD IS SETTING PACE FOR AL SMITH

Effort Being Made by McAdoo Opposition to Force Klan Issue Into Foreground.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The Texas delegation today organized with Tom Lovas as chairman and the national committeeman for Texas and Mrs. J. T. Bloodworth of Fort Worth, national committeewoman. Alva Bryan, Waco, was named as Texas member of the resolutions committee and Mrs. Murrell Buckner of Dallas as the credentials committee.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The McAdoo special, bringing boosters from California and Western states, arrived shortly after 9 a. m. today and began ejecting pep into the McAdoo campaign. Led by a band blaring, "California, Here I Come," the delegation swept along the streets to the Vanderbilt hotel to listen to an address by McAdoo.

Three pretty girls in a taxicab at the rear of the procession, threw California oranges to the crowd.

Opposition to McAdoo.
UNITED PRESS HEADQUARTERS, Waldorf Hotel, New York, June 23.—Foes of William G. McAdoo for the democratic presidential nomination are concentrating today to bring the anti-Ku Klux Klan issue directly before the convention for vote, and by winning this fight on the floor, beat McAdoo for the nomination before the nominating of candidates is begun. This line of action was agreed upon by the McAdoo opposition leaders following a careful canvass of the situation.

The canvass showed that many of the delegates are ready and willing to vote for McAdoo for the democratic nomination and equally ready and anxious to vote for a strong anti-klan plank which shall name the organization specifically. McAdoo adherents probably will have a majority of the platform committee and this majority will report out a plank on the klan so moderate as not to name the klan directly, according to indications today.

The anti-klan delegates on the committee then would draft a minority anti-klan plank, naming the klan, which would be presented to the convention and this would force a vote on the floor.

Advocating a plank that names the Ku Klux Klan specifically as expressive of a condition in American and religious life against which the democratic party should take a positive stand, Senator Oscar Underwood of Alabama would become the leader of and spokesman for the powerful faction which adheres to the same view. He declared today he would stand for the principles as enunciated by the democratic platform in 1856, which which followed activities of a quasi-secret society known as the Know-Nothing. A formal resolution has been presented to the committee by Foreney Johnston, which provides:

"Resolved: That we do reaffirm the principles set forth in the democratic platform of 1856 and condemn as un-American and undemocratic any secret or quasi-secret organization in the furtherance of any political objective whatever, and in particular condemn such actions intended to prescribe the rights of citizens of the United States as have been taken by that organization known as the Ku Klux Klan, or that hereafter may be practiced by any organization whatever."

Senator Underwood is said to be the first candidate for the presidential nomination to come out as standing avowedly for an anti-klan platform.

CALCUTTA PREPARES WELCOME FOR AERIAN ROUND WORLD FLYERS

OIL INTERESTS AT CROSS CUT LOOKING VERY GOOD
Mr. and Mrs. T. J. O'Donnell and Mr. and Mrs. John Dunkle were in Cross Cut, Saturday, looking over their oil interests in that section. They found conditions quite satisfactory, one of their wells making an average of 100 barrels of oil daily and the other making rapid drilling progress. Both wells are offsets to the Dunkle and O'Donnell lease.

BIBLE THOUGHT. THE SUPREME RULER.—Exalt ye the Lord our God, and worship at his footstool; for he is holy.—Psalm 99:5.

WOMEN IN CONVENTIONS Whatever else may be said of it, the atmosphere of this year's republican convention is higher than that of any of its long list of ancestors.

It is a question whether the dryness of the proceedings—of which there was a chorus of complaint—is not due in part to the leavening influence of the women, and whether they will not serve to ballast in the future those ebullitions dear to every convention-goer.

Will women stampe, shriek in enthusiasm, forget all their customary quietness of four years to join in a typical convention outburst every presidential year? Maybe. They didn't start it in Cleveland; perhaps they will in New York.

The republicans' nomination of General Dawes, the Chicago banker, for vice president, is particularly pleasing to the new leaders of the party, headed by Secretary Andrew Mellon, and to business interests.

Belgium's steel and iron business is the largest in its history. With seven less furnaces in operation the production shows an average gain over 1913 of more than 7,000 tons. This is due to increased efficiency.

The Brazilian government has authorized municipalities to establish butcher shops to sell meat at actual cost, and gives cattle for this purpose priority in shipping over all other commodities.

Ford car No. 10,000,000 was completed at the Detroit factory on June 4. The last million cars were manufactured in 132 working days.

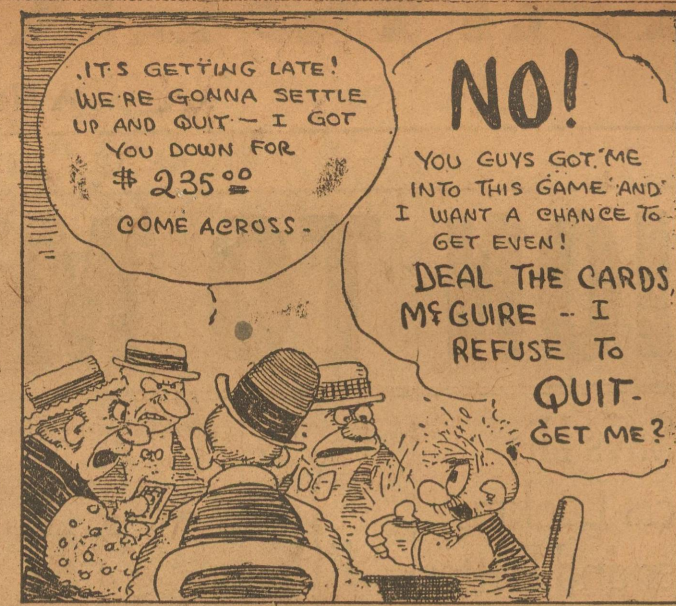

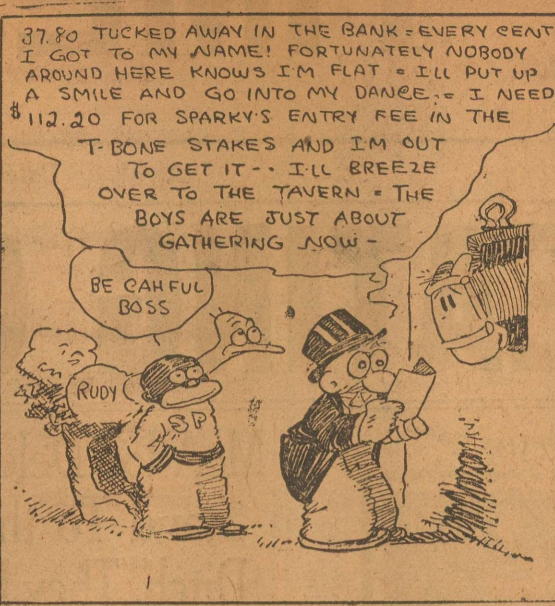

The British labor government proposes to build during the next few years 2,500,000 workers' houses, at a cost of about $3,000 each. The proponents claim the cost represents only 10 per cent of the "drink bill."

Better homes is considered the first necessary step to improve labor conditions.

A Wall street financial authority has stated that the reduction of tax on rubber auto tires which goes into effect July 1, will increase the profits of some of the leading manufacturers from $6875,000 to more $1,000,000 annually.

The tax paid heretofore has been passed to the consumer. After July 1, it will go to additions to profits. The Wall street financial authority appears to have been left out of this melon cutting.

JOHN W. DAVIS MAY BE CHOSEN TO LEAD PARTY

West Virginia Regarded as Strong Possibility for Democratic Nomination.

NEW YORK, June 21.—"What is life worth after all if one has no philosophy of his own to live by?" John W. Davis wrote a friend who had suggested he abandon his corporation law practice in order to increase his availability as a presidential candidate.

The friend wrote that Davis had a good chance for the democratic nomination if he would withdraw from the law firm with which he had long been associated and which numbered the Morgan interests among its clients.

Davis is a West Virginian, a native of Clarksburg, where he long practiced law and which he twice represented in congress. He was born there April 13, 1873. His youth was unmarked with those vicissitudes popularly supposed to mark the early career of most great men.

Up on leaving the university Davis served for two years as assistant professor of law at Washington and Lee University. Later his success gained him in addition to this modest bachelor of laws the honorary degree of doctor of laws from West Virginia University of Birmingham, Eng., University of Glasgow and Yale.

In the trying war year of 1918 Wilson selected Davis for the most important diplomatic post in the service of the government, plenipotentiary to Great Britain. Davis served at London until 1921 representing the United States during a difficult period marked by victory in the war, the negotiation of the Versailles treaty, and the refusal of the American senate to ratify either the treaty or the covenant of the League of Nations.

Davis returned to private practice in this country to build up his modest fortune, which had suffered by the expenses imposed by his duties at the London post. As a member of a prominent New York legal firm he practiced corporation law and numbered the great banking house of Morgan among his clients.

At the democratic convention in San Francisco in 1920 West Virginia cast her vote regularly for Davis for president. At one time during the long deadlock between the McAdoo, Palmer and Cox forces observers sensed a near-stampede to Davis. But it did not come off.

Political critics then coined the phrase "we can't have a candidate who danced around the court of St. James in knee breeches," referring to his ambassadorship at London.

This year the same critics professed to fear the label "Morgan lawyer." Friends of Davis pointed out in rebuttal that he was a brilliant lawyer, an able administrator, a great ambassador, and personally bore an unimpeachable reputation. They pointed out that he was handsome, a fine public speaker, with a most engaging personality, a good campaigner—in other words, almost the ideal candidate. But the objection was still whispered.

And when the appeal was made to him that he remove this one serious bar to his candidacy he replied: "You offer me a chance to be the democratic nominee for the presidency, which carries with it in this year of grace more than a fair prospect of becoming president of the United States. In exchange I am to abandon forthwith and immediately a law practice which is both pleasant and, with modest bounds, profitable; to throw over honorable clients who offer me honest employment; and desert a group of professional colleagues who are able, upright and loyal. The only limitation upon a right thinking lawyer's independence is the duty which he owes to his clients, once selected, to serve them

Without the slightest thought of the effect such a service may have upon his own personal popularity or political fortunes. Any lawyer who surrenders this independence or shades this duty by trimming his professional course to fit the gusts of popular opinion, in my opinion, not only dishonors himself, but disparages and degrades the great profession to which he should be proud to belong.

EASTLAND COUNTY'S CASE MAY BE APPEALED TO U. S. SUPREME COURT

Judge Joe F. Orr of the law firm of Burkett, Orr & McCarty, returned yesterday from Dallas where he had been several days in conference with Bailey, Nickels & Bailey of Dallas and Coffey & Coffey of Austin, attorneys in the Eastland county case against the state bank commissioner, in which Eastland county is seeking to recover approximately $600,000 of county funds that were in the Security State Bank & Trust company here when that institution closed its doors more than a year ago.

Mr. Orr stated that a motion for a new hearing would be filed with the state supreme court and, if that was denied, the case would, in all probability, be carried to the United States supreme court.

FLEWELLEN IS IN RACE FOR COUNTY JUDGE

Announces "Hat Is in Ring," and States His Platform So All Can Understand.

Announcing his candidacy for the county judge of Eastland county and county judge of the commissioners' court, L. H. Flewellyn says: To the Voters of Eastland County: I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of county judge of Eastland county, subject to the action of the democratic primary to be held July 26, 1924.

I was born and reared in Bell county, Texas. Graduating from the Belton high school in 1909, I attended the state university at Austin for six years, receiving from that institution my academic degree in 1913 and my law degree in 1915. After practicing law in Dallas, Texas, for a year and a half, I severed my legal connection to enter the first army training camp at San Antonio.

After receiving an honorable discharge from the army, I practiced law in San Antonio, Texas, for one year, and then entered the department of justice of the United States government. Upon leaving the department of justice, I came to Ranger, Texas, where I began the practice of law Sept. 1, 1919, and have been a resident of Eastland county ever since.

The office of county judge is a very important position, and I feel that I am well qualified to administer its duties for the welfare and best interests of our county. I believe in strict economy regarding the expenditure of the county's funds, and, if elected, will at all times insist upon this policy, in order that the taxpayers may receive full benefit for every dollar expended and in order that every dollar expended may go as far as possible.

I believe in good roads first, last and all the time, and, if elected, will at all times support and co-operate with the county commissioners in the construction and maintenance of good roads and highways. Each community of our county, regardless of how small, should have good road connections with all other communities, and I will use my best efforts to bring such a condition into existence should you elect me to this office.

Graft and corruption in office are inexorable, and, if elected, I shall not hesitate to expose it and stamp it out whenever and wherever detected.

I am unalterably opposed to the Ku Klux Klan, and, if elected your county judge, you may rest assured that Eastland county's affairs will not be administered from Atlanta, Ga. "A house divided against itself cannot stand," and the sooner we eliminate the klan from our politics and from our midst, the better off our county and its people will be.

Should I be elected, however, you may rest assured that both klanmen and anti-klanmen will at all times receive fair and impartial treatment at my hands.

I expect to make a thorough campaign between now and July 26, and will appreciate the support and influence of all good citizens of our county.

Very truly yours, L. H. FLEWELLEN, Candidate for County Judge of Eastland County, Texas.

OLDEN LOSES SLOW GAME TO BRECKENRIDGE

Magnolias Outclown Dynamos, Both Teams Failing to Support Pitchers.

OLDEN, June 23.—Before the largest crowd of the season, Breckenridge and the Magnolias staged a hippodrome at the Breckenridge baseball park Sunday afternoon and the Magnolias, outclowning the Breck aggregation, lost, what was scheduled as an Oil Belt association baseball game, 13 to 8.

The game was featured by wrangling over the umpires' decisions, wild heaves, sleepy baseball and wild base running. The Olden outfit protested the game in the fifth when Tabor scored from second on a rank overthrow of first by Supina. The score was tied at that stage of the game, with one man down and two on the sacks.

While the debate was on, Coop seemed to grow cold and lost his effectiveness and Breckenridge taking advantage of sloppy support afforded him from that time on pounded over several runs. Chandler relieved him in the eighth but was wiled by Charley Koch, who shut the Stephens county gang out on Saturday went in and stopped further scoring.

Gore pitched a steady game for Breckenridge, but was also the victim of ragged support. White, Magnolia catcher, duplicated his feat of Saturday with a smash over the center field fence.

RANGER WINS FROM CISCO IN SEVENTH INNING

Final Score of Exciting Game at Ranger Nitro Park 12 to 6.

Ranger outfit, outplayed and out-lucked the Cisco aggregation Sunday in a hectic swat-fest. The game was anybody's game until the seventh inning, when a combination of hits and errors gave Ranger five runs and spelled doom for Cisco.

McElreath and O'Keefe started the ball rolling with two home runs. O'Keefe slammed his in the fourth with two on and tied the score. Ragged playing by both teams allowed more hits than usual and errors were numerous.

Weatherford while hit freely scattered Cisco's hits so that no damage was accomplished. The Nitros landed on Browning for numerous doubles, three-baggers and one home run.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH PEOPLE ENJOY OUTING, PICNIC FOR THE TOTS

The summer camp of the Ranger First Baptist church's pastor, the Rev. W. H. Johnson, closed last Saturday afternoon. It was open for a week, during which time the pastor was on duty at all hours to receive guests and was visited by about 400 persons. Nearly 100 young persons took possession of Friday night and had a merry time.

The camp was on Caddo creek, hot very far from the town of Caddo. Fishing, boating, swimming and outdoor sports were the diversions. Fishing was good, it was reported, and always there were plenty of fish for the hungry visitors, although it usually required that they do the catching. It was said to be one of the most delightful outings ever afforded members of the First Baptist church.

The annual Sunday school and church picnic is announced for about 30 days hence. Place and exact time have yet to be determined.

The primary department, in charge of Miss Hodges, will meet for a picnic and social in the basement of the church Wednesday of this week at 9 o'clock in the morning. All primary scholars in the Sunday school are invited.

Boils

THERE is a reason for everything that happens. Common-sense kills misery. Common-sense also stops boils! S. S. S. is the common-sense remedy for boils, because it is built on reason. Scientific authorities admit its power! S. S. S. builds blood-power, it builds red- blood-cells. That is what makes fighting-blood. Fighting-blood destroys impurities. It fights boils. It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It always wins! Mr. V. D. Schaaf, 557 15th street, Washington, D. C., writes:

"I tried for years to get relief from a bad case of boils. Everything failed until I took S.S.S. I am now absolutely cured, and it was S.S.S. that did it."

During his first charge a clergyman found the women of the church entirely too much interested. Such a storm of petty squabbles arose from their over-careness to help that in despair he gave up. Not long afterward he met his successor.

CITIZENS OWE DUTY TOWARDS JURY SERVICE

Do Not Seek It, but Serve Willingly When Called, Says Jurist.

By JUDGE ROYAL R. WATKINS.
 Every true and loyal American has an inherent desire to be of some service to his country.

There is also a desire to manifest this service without any ostentation, or demonstration by the average man, at every opportunity that presents itself. Such is the makeup of the red blooded American.

There comes a time to most every man, about once a year, an opportunity to be of real genuine service to his country in an humble way—this opportunity is jury service.

Some men think it a very unimportant matter, and seek means to avoid it. They frequently permit themselves to get in such a frame of mind about jury duty, that they become unfit for such service.

This is the wrong attitude to take in this most important work. It smacks just a little of disloyalty; not that such men do not love their country, but they look upon such service as unnecessary work, they think it is irksome. On the other hand it should be considered by all as an opportunity to do something worth while—something good—a real duty to his country and his fellowmen.

A jury is the most important part of a trial court. All facts at issue in the cases tried in the courts with a jury are to be determined by it, and upon its decision, judgments are rendered by the courts.

The jury is called upon to determine in criminal cases, whether or not a person is guilty of alleged crimes and if his liberty and sometimes his life is to be taken away from him, if found guilty of such crimes.

In civil cases, the questions of taking property away from one person and giving it to another; assessing damages for alleged breaches of contracts, or injuries by one person to another.

Trials by jury in the history of the administration of justice, is comparatively new. We do not find any reference to such trials in the Bible. It was created when the Magna Charter, the great bulwark of liberty was adopted in 1215, and was passed on down to us as a guarantee under our constitution adopted in 1776.

Through the jury, real justice is sought in each case; and justice is one of the cardinal principles of our government. It is the noblest concepts of the human heart. It makes no distinction of persons, it recognizes neither high nor low, neither rich nor poor, the classes nor the masses. It is stern, yet kind. It is strong but it views all sides impartially without anger—without malice. In order to mete out justice in our courts, the jurors must be honest men, free from any bias or prejudice or opinions concerning matters to be determined by them. They must be able to view each and every question of fact absolutely impartially.

Our government is the best government on earth. It is a government of laws not of men, and all laws should be rightfully administered; always respected and strictly enforced. It is the duty of every citizen to assist in every way to see that the laws are justly administered and impartially enforced, as jurors, such can be accomplished, and with good jurors in the administration of justice, the laws and the courts will be respected by all.

Whenever you receive a summons for jury service, respond to it. Arrange your business affairs so you can give your country just a few days' service. You will receive compensation. Still it may be a sacrifice, but you will be better off than you would be should you have happened to an accident or stricken with illness that would have prevented your attendance at business affairs.

Do not seek jury service. A reluctant juror is usually the best. One who seeks such service, is like a willing witness. He is liable to jeopardize justice.

Be of some service to your country at every opportunity possible. Help in the administration of its courts at all times. When you do this you are a benefactor to your fellowmen and the nation.

DEER, LIKE BEAR, WILL CARRY YOUNG IN MOUTH
 SARANAC LAKE, N. Y.—Edward Spain, Adirondack guide in the Beaver river section, asserts that deer as well as bear will take up their young in their mouths, when they believe the little ones are threatened.

The guide recently came upon a doe with two fawns but a few hours old. One fawn was weak and could not walk. Evidently in great fear that the guide would harm the helpless fawn, the anxious mother picked up the weakling by holding the loose skin of its back in her teeth and hastened into a swamp, the other fawn trotting by her side.

MILLIONS KEPT IDLE BY MISERS IN UNITED STATES

NEW YORK, June 21.—There are 8,000 misers in the United States who would rather hear the jingle of their money as they play with it and call it pet names, than have it draw interest in the banks, according to Joseph S. McCoy, United States treasury actuary.

These 8,000 Americans have over $400,000,000 hid away in the old woolen sock or sewed up in mattresses, McCoy estimates.

About half of this hoarded wealth is kept out of circulation by foreign born residents, McCoy said, while farmers have about $125,000,000. The rest is in children's banks, who, however, McCoy doesn't accuse of "holding out" on the banks.

McADOO SEEKING PLACE OF LATE FATHER-IN-LAW

Former Secretary of Treasury Leading in Contest for Democratic nomination.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Wm. G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury under his father-in-law, President Wilson, is one of the leading candidates for the presidency before the national democratic convention here June 24. His managers claim more delegates on early ballots than are claimed for any of the other candidates. No figures are offered to dispute this claim.

McAdoo is frankly after the nomination this year. Although McAdoo's name went before the 1920 convention at San Francisco, June 28, as a candidate for the presidency, McAdoo was really not an active candidate. It was an open secret that he would not decline the nomination, but he made little personal effort to secure what he believed would be an empty honor. It was no secret that he expected the "after the war" reaction to result in a republican victory. His friends admitted that McAdoo did not believe his candidacy to succeed Woodrow Wilson wise from either a party or a personal standpoint. He believed the cry which the republicans were already raising against the "Crown Prince" would kill him politically if he ran in 1920.

However, his name went before the San Francisco convention and he received 266 votes on the first ballot. At one time it looked as if he would be nominated and his friends had a band located near his summer home waiting to serenade "the candidate." However, J. B. Cox, of Ohio, was nominated on the forty-fourth ballot, with 732 1-2 votes to 267 for McAdoo, the second man.

Defeated by Murphy
 At that convention, McAdoo could have been nominated had but Chas. Murphy, late leader of Tammany Hall, said the word. And McAdoo was a New Yorker. Whether the death of Murphy will change the situation if it develops that Al Smith cannot win, but McAdoo can with the aid of New York, only the convention can answer.

At all events McAdoo comes to the 1924 convention as a Californian. He moved to Los Angeles in 1922, where he had attractive business offered him in his profession, that of the law. Some of that business mixed his name with the oil probe in Washington last winter, but only in a professional capacity. However, so bitter was the feeling at the time against anyone appearing with oil money, no matter how obtained, that the political referee had already counted nine over McAdoo when he got up and resumed the battle, with results surprising alike to friend and foe.

 McAdoo was born near Marietta, Ga., in 1863, and his boyhood was spent in the poverty of the wake left by Sherman's march to the sea. The elder McAdoo was a lawyer and a judge. His wife was Mary Faith Floyd, descendant of the Floyds of Mexican war fame.

Young McAdoo was educated at the University of Tennessee. At the age of 19 he was appointed deputy clerk of the United States circuit court for the eastern district of Tennessee. When he was 22 years old he was admitted to the bar in Chattanooga. In 1892 he went to New York, where he built the Hudson river tunnels, still known as the McAdoo tubes.

Went Into Politics
 McAdoo's first venture into national politics came in 1912 when, as a delegate from New York to the Baltimore democratic national convention, he was among the first to propose the name of Woodrow Wilson. He became vice chairman of the democratic national committee.

When Wilson announced his cabinet in 1913, it included the name of William Gibbs McAdoo as secretary of the treasury. Then, four years later, when, as a war measure, the government took over the rail system of the country, it was on McAdoo's shoulders that fell the burden of administering the lines.

McAdoo stayed on the job in Washington until February, 1919. He then resigned.

McAdoo's first wife was Miss Sarah H. Fleming of Chattanooga, Tenn. He was married to her while practicing law in East Tennessee. Mrs. McAdoo died in 1912. On May 7, 1924, McAdoo was married at the White House to Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, daughter of the president. They have one child, a daughter.

Announcement

The State Board of Medical Examiners, Co-operating with the State Medical Association of Texas, announce the beginning of a Campaign of Public Education of Medical Subjects.

The medical profession has long recognized its obligation to the public in respect to the spreading of a more general knowledge of interesting and vital facts concerning public health.

There are many important facts relating to the cause, prevention and cure of disease that the public should know and does not know. It is felt that the public mind has been confused and misled by the numerous fads in medicine, and that it is not realized that there is a vast difference between theory and scientific fact.

In order to present positively known facts and to clarify the atmosphere as to theory, thus providing you with the means to protect the health of yourself and your loved ones, the legalized medical profession of Texas is entering upon this campaign.

Within the next few days addresses of extreme interest will be made from as many platforms as possible, by numerous well-known physicians, and covering a variety of public health subjects in a most illuminating manner. These speakers are thoroughly informed and capable of presenting their subjects in a manner that will be both interesting and entertaining. There will be no paid propagandists.

The practice of medicine, as such, is a matter of prime importance, in that upon it rests the foundation of public health. It is clear that the first efforts in the prevention of the spread of disease depends upon practicing physicians. If the existence of contagion or infection is not discovered early by competent diagnosticians, the opportunity for immediate and effective prevention is lost. A physician operating solely upon some theory of the cause of disease, disregarding all the known facts of medicine and allied sciences, is jeopardizing the lives of the public.

An educated, qualified medical profession is the first bulwark of defense against disease. The public should demand protection through a set standard of educational qualifications of all who would practice the healing art.

The Medical Practice Act of Texas is designed to protect the public in exactly this manner. If this fact were generally understood public opinion would not permit the flaunting of this law as at present is the case. This law does not concern itself with and requires no examination on the theory or method of practice. Applicants are examined only on the fundamentals of medicine; the facts that have been developed through long years of study; facts which are subject to absolute proof. Practitioners of "sectarian" medicine of whatsoever type may come before this board for examination and receive license if they have the necessary schooling and can pass the fair examination.

The contention is for an educated, honest medical profession and a public informed on the facts of medicine, that it may protect its health and its life.

NOTE — Dr. E. H. Cary of Dallas will speak at the Liberty Theatre on Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock on this extremely interesting subject. You will consider it an hour well spent to attend this lecture. Be there, for the sake of your own health and that of your family.
