CITY HEADS REELECTED

BIGGEST ELECTION IN CITY'S HISTORY IS HELD TUESDAY

Crockett, Boone, Arnold Re-named As 590 Vote

Casting the largest number of votes ever polled in a Littlefield city election, voters Tuesday chose to allow Mayor L. R. Crockett and city Commissioners Pat Boone and H. C. Arnold to remain in office for another two-year term.

Five hundred and ninety voters trickled to the city hall courtroom all day Tuesday to give Mr. Crockett, incumbent, a comfortable margin of 168 votes over Homer Hall, only other candidate.

Commissioner Boone, polling more votes than any other city candidate, retained his office for another year. Mr. Arnold will be the other commissioner, drawing 218 more choices than W. E. Jeffries, third candidate.

Final count of mayorality votes gave Crockett 379 and Hall 211. In the commissioners race, Boone polled 439 ballots, Arnold 375 and Jeffries 221. 42 absentee votes were cast.

Winning candidates will be sworn in probably at the next regular meeting of the mayor and commissioners.

"I am deeply grateful to the voters of Littlefield for their generous support of my candidacy," said Mr. Crockett following the election. "I intend to bend every effort in giving the people of this city the best administration that it is in my power to give, and will cooperate with the commissioners in working out a program for the best interests of our city."

"I wish to take this opportunity of expressing to my many friends in Littlefield, my sincere appreciation for your votes and loyal support in the recent election, and also to thank each of you for your co-operation during the past two years, and to assure you that I will merit the confidence you expressed by the good vote you gave me in the recent election," Commissioner Boone stated.

"I wish to thank each of my many friends in Littlefield, for your vote and support in the recent election, and to assure each of you that your efforts were sincerely appreciated. It shall be my aim and desire to conduct your City business economically and that for the best interests of all," said Mr. Arnold.

"Monday Biggest Dollar Day This Year," Declare C. of C. Members

MERCHANTS ARE GLEEFUL OVER TRADE PICK-UP

Co-operation, Advertising Big Factors, Says J. S. Hilliard

Monday last was pronounced by several Littlefield merchants as the "biggest dollar day this year," at the regular luncheon meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday noon, which was presided over by J. S. Hilliard, vice-president.

G. M. Shaw, who is connected with J. H. Ware Dry Goods, stated that establishment enjoyed the best volume Monday than any other Dollar Day this year; that large numbers from many miles away, including Muleshoe, Whiteface, Goodland, etc., were in Littlefield Monday taking advantage of the bargains offered by the business establishments and contributed the large Dollar Day attendance in Littlefield to the extensive newspaper advertising.

Mr. Shaw, as member of the Trades Day Committee, reported considerable interest aroused in Littlefield's Dollar Day, stating he made a survey of the business establishments, and that everyone was heartily in favor of making it a larger event.

Morris Morgan brought out the fact that Dollar Day advertising heretofore has been mostly confined to dry goods establishments, and suggested he would like to see the grocery stores and other business establishments in general participate in the Dollar Day program.

The trend of his talk was that Dollar Day benefitted the various business establishments, and that the only way to make a big success of

YOUNG DEMOS TO FORM UNIT HERE MONDAY

County League, With City Chapters, Is Aim Of Group

Young Democrats of Lamb county, all precincts, are invited to meet in the court room of the City Hall, Littlefield, Monday evening, April 8, at 8:00 p. m., according to word given to the Lamb County Leader today.

The objective of the meeting will be the formation of a Young Democrats club of Lamb County. It is understood that the plan to be followed if practicable is the organization of separate clubs in each of the towns of the county, and the setting up of the county organization from these clubs, but that if only enough representation for the entire county is present to warrant one club, then the single county club will be formed.

Littlefield Marches Into First Place At County League Meet

Carrying off seven of the ten cups awarded, Littlefield High and Ward school entries piled up 272 points to win first places in the county inter-scholastic meet which closed Saturday at Olton.

For the ninth year in a row, the local high school gathered enough points to emerge first in the Class A race against Olton, Sudan, and Amherst. Littlefield scored 160 against Olton's 114 points, Sudan's 89 and 35 for Amherst. Should Littlefield win the Class A cup next year, it would be permanent school property.

The Ward school division, Littlefield's 142 points swept them far in front. Sudan, with 45 points, was second, Olton was third with 44 points, and Spring Lake, with 36, was fourth. Amherst and Spade, with 25 and 67, followed. This cup taken by Littlefield next year, would become permanent property.

Cups won by Littlefield were boys debate, girls debate, three playground ball trophies and the two general championship honors.

Mrs. Eddie Timian and children returned Tuesday from Roscoe, where they visited her brothers and sisters in law, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cooper and Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Cooper and other relatives, for the past two weeks.

FOURTEENTH INSTALMENT

SYNOPSIS . . . Ellen Church, 17 years old, finds herself alone in the world with her artist mother's last warning ringing in her ears, to "love lightly." Of the world she knew little. All her life she had lived in a small rural community . . . Ellen, alone, turned to the only contact she knew, an art agent in New York. Posing, years of posing, was her only talent so she was introduced to two leading artists, Dick Alven and Sandy Macintosh. Both used her as a model and both fell in love with her . . . but Ellen, trying to follow the warped philosophy of her mother to "love lightly," resists the thought of love. Her circle of friends is small, artists and two or three girl models. Ellen attends a ball with Sandy. While dancing a tall young man claimed her and romance is born. A ride in the park, proposal, the next day marriage to Tony, and wealth. But she'd "Love Lightly," Ellen told herself. She would never let him know how desperately she loved him, even though she were his wife. Ellen insists upon living her own life, maintaining her home in her small room, even though Tony is wealthy . . . Jane, of Tony's wealthy set, is disappointed in Tony's sudden marriage to Ellen. Jane then makes every effort to win Tony away from Ellen. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"I don't get Jane," she said finally. "What's she playing for, Tony? Not that it's very sane to ask—I know what she's playing for. It's you."

There was a seriousness back of Tony's casual sounding speech. "Jane and I," he said, "knocked around together for years. I suppose she's gotten to sort of taking me for granted . . . After all, we weren't responsible when we met, you and I. We shook all of the world's plans into a cocked hat."

Ellen spoke resentfully. "That," she said, "makes me feel like a spare tire. If you want an annulment any time, you and Jane—"

"You'd drop me as easily as that?" said Tony. "You mean it?" Ellen wanted to say that she didn't mean it; that she wouldn't give him up, not for fifty Janes. But instead she made her mouth into a straight line and lowered her lashes so that Tony couldn't look into her eyes.

"I'd let you go as easily as I'd let go of this—" she told him. She opened her fingers and the huge chiffon handkerchief that she was carrying fluttered, like a dead butterfly, to the conservatory floor. "I'd—"

"Yes, you would!" said Tony gruffly. All at once he had gathered her so tightly into his arms that her body felt bruised against the hardness of his body. "I'm sick and tired of this stuff," said Tony, "it's time for a showdown. We're not fencing, you and I—we're married. It's time we behaved like human beings, or—"

He stopped. For there was a rustle of skirts (skirts do rustle, this year) and a voice spoke. "Oh—but I'm intruding!" said a voice. "It always seems as if I choose the wrong time for my entrances, doesn't it?"

Of course, it was Jane—it couldn't be anybody else. She stood in the doorway of the conservatory—the light was behind her. They couldn't see the outline of her face—the expression of her eyes and mouth—but somehow Tony's arms had loosened, somehow Ellen was wriggling free of them.

"You don't know," said Jane, "how silly I feel!"

Tony didn't say anything at all—perhaps it was because he couldn't trust his voice. Ellen didn't say anything either, for a moment, and then—

"It's quite all right," she said "we were just rehearsing our big scene."

Jane took a step into the conservatory.

"It seems to me," she said at last, and levelly, "that it's always a big scene, that it's always a rehearsal. You and Tony aren't married, really—"

"Well," Ellen extended her slim left hand, "here the evidence, and I have my marriage lines somewhere."

If Tony had been clever enough he could have read the desperation of her bravado.

Jane went on—her voice had thickened.

"You know what I mean," she said. "You and Tony don't belong together. You belong with fellows like Sandy and with that Dick of yours. Tony—Tony's down my street. It's all so silly. It's like playing hide in the dark, and finding you with the wrong person when the lights come up."

"Yes, isn't it?" agreed Ellen. She wouldn't give Tony a chance to say it first—she'd say it.

"I wonder," said Jane, "why you came to my house—"

"I wonder," said Ellen, "why you asked me."

Tony spoke at last.

"Oh, for crying out loud," he said "it's complicated enough without—"

Ellen was smoothing the dress of her pretty dress.

"Yes," she said, "it—complicated enough with—without me. I think it's just about time that I did the conventional thing—even though I am a professional Bohemian. It's about time I told you, Jane, that I've just had word from town. The obvious telegram—or what have you. Explain to your guests that my grandmother is ill; tell them that a great-uncle has died and left me a legacy. Tell them I've gone back to pose for Dick, tomorrow—and tomorrow's Sunday, too. That'll perhaps be nearer the truth."

At once she was running from the conservatory, scurrying along through the darker corners of the room. And then she was out of the door and racing up the stairs. Now she had gained the haven of her room and was tumbling things into her suitcase.

There was a knock at the door. For a moment Ellen didn't answer, and then with an effort she steeled her voice until she could speak.

"The door opened. It was Jane's mother."

"I met Tony," Jane's mother said without preamble. "He told me that you weren't well. That he was afraid you were going home. Something like that. Is there anything I can do?"

Ellen's voice was steady.

"I was going to leave a note for you," she said. "To tell you—how sorry I am. Yes, there is something. I wish, maybe, that I could be taken to the station. I've had a telegram, you see."

"Poor child," said Jane's mother, "I hope it's not bad news!" Ellen's eyes, meeting hers, knew that she didn't believe in the mythical telegram.

"Yes," said Ellen, "I'm afraid that it is bad news."

Jane's mother was still standing in the doorway. Swiftly she spoke. "Jane is my daughter," she said, "and I love her very much. Maybe she's a little spoiled; but she's a dear girl. And you must remember that she has loved Tony for a long time."

"Whereas," answered Ellen, "I haven't!"

"Ah," said Jane's mother, "you haven't! You'll have to love him a great deal to make up for the time you've missed."

She was turning, and then— "I'll make your excuses to the rest, at breakfast," she said. "Don't you worry. And if you don't want to go down through the crowded rooms, now, I'll have the car wait for you at the side door. It will take you right to your door, of course. Traffic is not heavy—this time of night. It will be quicker than the train—"

Ellen was looking at her.

"My mother's hair," said Ellen, "was like your hair. Her eyes were sweet—like your eyes. But she was always so tired."

"I'm tired myself, most of the time," said Jane's mother, and then silently she had closed the door.

When Tony arrived ten minutes later, after locating the room through a certain amount of bribery and corruption—when he tapped at the door of that room there was no answer. After a moment he pushed the door in, even though he didn't belong on the floor. But there wasn't anyone in the room where he entered. There wasn't even the dust of powder on the immaculate top of the vanity table.

It was nearly dawn when Ellen arrived back in her own little room. She threw her suitcase, unpacked, across a seat, and undressed rapidly and flung herself across her bed. And, though she had quite expected to sob herself to sleep, she didn't. Exhaustion is like that—it drains one of the emotions!

There was bright sunshine—yellow, buttery sunshine—lying across Ellen's face when she awakened. And, such is the buoyancy of youth, coffee and toast restored to her a certain amount of confidence in herself. Her voice didn't even tremble when she called Dick on the phone.

"If you're working today," she told him, "I'm just the girl that will help you. Here am I, all alone in town over Sunday."

The taxi seemed to crawl through the quiet Sunday streets, and yet at last she was with Dick in his old familiar workroom.

Ellen, with scarcely more than a word of greeting, went behind the accustomed screen and changed into her Indian dress. And then she was out again and posing, a little kneeling figure once more—once again the child priestess.

When Tony came knocking at the door, after the first half hour of her posing, when at Dick's bidding he pushed the door wide, she did not change her position. Even though his coming was—just now—more than a surprise.

"I'm here," Tony said by way of greeting, "hunting for my runaway wife!" He didn't address Ellen at all; he spoke to Dick.

"Yes," answered Dick, and went on painting. "I didn't know," he added, "that she was a runaway."

Ellen spoke. She spoke dully, although she was in an agony of anxiety and embarrassment.

"I didn't tell Dick anything about the rouse party—except that I'd come home," she warned Tony.

"I shouldn't think," said Tony, "that you'd have to tell him any more. Alven's got sense."

"Which he doesn't always use," Dick threw in. All at once he had thrown down his palette. "You two kids," he said, "had better beat it now—" from here. I'm tired. I can't work any more today. I suppose you had something of that sort in your mind when you came here, Brander?"

Tony still wasn't speaking to Ellen. He was speaking over her head, at Dick.

"Ellen ran out on us last night," he said, and his tone was cool. "Well, it was a dull party. I don't blame her! As soon as I discovered she'd gone, I set out after her, of course. But I got—" he fumbled for words, "in so late that I went to the club. When I stopped at her place this morning I found that she'd blown, as usual. If you—"

his voice was wistful, "if you've really finished working—" there was something pathetic in proud Tony's appeal. "I'd like to take Ellen out with me for a little drive somewhere or other."

"Oh, by all means," said Dick. He was busily scraping bits of paint together with his palette knife.

Ellen hadn't been consulted. Almost before she knew it she was The liberalization of electric consumption is in step with your own desires for more current and in such an inexpensive manner.

J. W. Preston, noted evangelist and lecturer, made a strong appeal to the student assembly for higher moral standards in his lecture here last week.
Reverend Preston declared that principles make the man or woman able to master problems. He said the real man or woman has enough above the eyes to make him or her overcome the snares and temptations of life.
A mushroom may spring up, get its growth, and perish in one day, but it takes slow and painful growth to become a man, the speaker said.
Unless America cleans up morally she will eventually follow the path of other nations that have gone into decline because of moral decay.

CHURCHES
METHODIST CHURCH
J. W. Hendrix, Pastor

The superintendent endeavors to open the church school at the exact moment set out in this announcement—9:45 a. m. It would be very greatly appreciated if all would be on time.

THE MORNING WORSHIP is at 11 a. m. The choir is very efficient and the worshippers very greatly enjoy their part in the service. The subject of the morning message will be, "THE SHAMELESS VAGABOND." The service is well attended and has about it an air of freedom and cordiality.

THE EVENING WORSHIP has also several features. The Leagues all meet at 7:15, the adult study meets at 7:30 and the evening worship comes on at 8 o'clock. This time the music will be in charge of the Choral club.

It looks like at this time the service will be in charge of the Young People. We will have to finish this announcement in the Bulletin for Sunday's services. You may be well assured the service will be well planned and executed. A most interesting crowd appears at these services. The evening service is the most important of the day—is surpassed by none.

TABERNACLE BAPTIST CHURCH

On Friday night, beginning at 8:15, a special service will be held at the Tabernacle Baptist Church for the benefit of all persons who work on Sundays, and unable to attend on that day. This also gives opportunity to those of other churches, together with their pastors, to visit with us, should they so desire. Every effort will be put forth to make this an interesting and helpful service, regardless of one's denominational beliefs.

In addition to the regular song service, special messages in song will be given by Essie Lou and Anna Mae Malone, Mamie Brewer and Mrs. David Glazener.

As a prelude to Friday night's sermon, Evangelist John R. Denning will give a brief outline of just what the Tabernacle Baptist Church stands for, according to the Scriptures, and the type of sermons the public may expect to hear from that pulpit. He will then preach on the following subject: "The Three Crosses of Calvary."

Remember, it is Friday night at 8:15. Plan now to come.

The services for next Sunday are as follows: Sunday School, 9:45 a. m. Lesson subject: "Ministerial Qualifications, and Warning Against Evil Teaching." Titus 1.

On this day, the Evangelist will begin a series, which will continue through several Sundays. Each Sunday morning he will preach on doctrinal subjects delineating what every local church MUST BELIEVE AND PRACTICE, if they hope to advance under the blessing of God, and in the power of the Holy Spirit. The Sunday evening messages will concern the Signs of the Times, comparing present day National and World events with the Holy Scriptures.

The specific subjects for next Sunday are:

11:00 a. m.—"Alpha, The Beginning."

8:00 p. m.—"Omega, The End."

Come and hear. You will enjoy everyone of these messages, if you believe in old-fashioned, pure gospel preaching.

Texas Utilities Makes Cut in Electric Rates To Residential Users

Abreast of the times the Texas Utilities Company announces in this issue the introduction of a new departure in electric rates for residential service. Our information is that this particular announcement is the first of a series of statements planned by the company in order to set out fully the benefits which every home may have by studying the rate's possibilities.

For many years engineers in and out of research laboratories have succeeded in eliminating any doubt that electric current had an unsurpassed value for numerous convenient and economical applications. The simple ease which homes have today in the use of current has long since passed any experimental stage. In this section facilities by which generation and transmission of electric current have been made generally available by the Texas Utilities Company lies a fact quite often overlooked by the average user.

While engineering achievements and economical costs are admitted on all sides, a considerable effort has been made by various agencies to emphasize the adaptation of electricity in the direction of a broader contribution to the social well-being of the home. This trend is one of undoubted merit. In the field of home lighting, useful household appliances, refrigerators, cooking, air-conditioning, and what have you, the possibilities are practically unlimited. The area is fortunate in that a company has for twenty years in this section both in good times and bad made its contribution along such well defined lines.

There is an undoubted bit of sentiment attached to the "good old days" when the lamp globe of the kerosene era was furnished to the last degree in sparkling brilliance but the steady glow of present-day standard wattage lamps today puts the old days in deep shadows. It is rather hard on broom-corn, too, even though a "new broom sweeps clean" to put it against one of the modern sweepers. Very much like old Dobbin in a quarter mile against a modern car for finish and speed.

Perhaps one of the best means the average home could employ to determine where added current at no greater cost could be profitably used would be to make a room to room analysis of the present lighting conditions. In the application of the "Ultimate" rate we understand the increased cost is little. It is a much larger use of current. The attitude of thinking that present use of kilowatt hours is ample might have a tendency to minimize the influence at work in the whole country to put in the household the widest, fullest use of this household servant.

By BILL NORRIS

THE 13th GUEST

(Or Fortune's Queer Quirks!)

Brownfield golluf-ers, Rough and ready, Burned the course in Style quite heady.

Local lads shot Pars and birdies; Some went 'round in Early thirties.

Each team garnered Six good matches, But that's where you'll Find the catch is—Brownfield lost, and All is jake, 'cause Twelve men don't a Golluf team make!

A lucid picture, friend fans, of what happened here Sunday when the home club and visitors from Brownfield halved twelve matches and discovered that the team from Terry county should have brought 13 men. Kismet, Allah be praised, and staff like that.

Spring football, together with the usual collection of sprained backs, stiffened leg muscles, and rusty shoulder blades, broke loose Monday when Coach Brack picked about 20 boys out of some thrice that many candidates, suited them from his meagre stock of grid togs, and put them to work.

From the seven letter men back in the lineup, and the fairly good material from last year's squad, plus two or three up from Grammar school, the Littlefield mentor believes he can shape a presentable eleven for the tough 1935 season.

"But time is the best seasoner of all, and most of my boys will need another campaign or two to get them working like veterans," Coach Brack said.

However, the square-jawed Wildcat guide is pleased with possibilities for 1935 as compared with lineups at the same period in the past three years.

The veteran McKnight, up for his last season, heads a pack of lettermen which includes Pierce, another last-year man, Rowe, Brantley, Gibson, Ray Smith and Lakey. Loss of Foust through injuries, and Chisholm, who "as moved to the Sudan

"PLAY BALL—PLAY BALL—PLAY BALL"

NEW YORK... Another baseball season gets under way. The 1935 pennant dash swings into action in leagues all over the land, within the next two weeks. And above are the two great diamond stars who symbolize the game. On the left is Babe Ruth, mighty batsman... On the right, Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, great pitching star. Their every meeting, as the Boston Braves play the St. Louis Cardinals, will be noted by millions of baseball fans, everywhere.

district, will cripple the Cat line more than somewhat. But new material, if it comes up to expectations, will go a long way toward making the 1935 squad as good as last year's outfit.

To fill the footgear of Linton Smith and Allen Kendrick, 1934 centers, Barksdale looks to Big Chick Beavers, on the Grammar squad last year, J. Walker and Cecil Tubbs.

Should Walker or Tubbs prove good passers from the line, Beaver, a 160-pounder, might get his chance in the backfield. Beavers was a ball-lugger of note on Grammar games the past season.

Other likely material includes C. James from last year's squad, N. Tubbs, a new linesman, and Swanner, who might make a good back. The Cats will need good backfield material, as McKnight is the only strong ball-carrier of the lot. Gibson and Smith, on the squad last season, saw action in a few games, but won't reach their 1935 playing peak until well into the season.

Thanking kindly all directors of events and donors of eight new cups, Director General H. P. Webb, Olton, declared early this week that sportsmanship was better this year than ever displayed. 3,000 saw activities at Olton, he said.

Boquet of the week goes jointly to Director Webb and all directors and coaches who so zealously worked to make this the biggest Lamb County meet to date.

An unusual turn of luck gave the Littlefield golf team a victory over the Brownfield team after both squads had finished in a 6-6 dead heat in the second local South Plains League tourney Sunday.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

A consensus of opinion handed down from two sources which could easily be declared as "in the know" of today's heretofore devious trends of business indicates that industry is rearing its head, throwing off the shackles of gloom and preparing to rise to new peaks "sometime in April."

Secretary of Commerce Roper came out last week with a generally favorable report made on the basis of the first weekly "spot check" of business conditions, recently initiated by commerce department experts stationed in 28 important cities. Here is the gist of this report:

"Automobile sales continue at high levels, with increased employment in manufacture. While mostly quiet on the real estate front, property repairs and alterations are considerably active. Somewhat increased industrial activity is noted in Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Detroit.

"Although a little less favorable than other branches of business at this time, the wholesale trade is picking up somewhat, with a good Easter season in prospect."

Dun & Bradstreet, in a recent weekly trade report, indicated that the nation's trade is apparently "taking full advantage of the normal seasonal rise to provide momentum which will carry it beyond the reach of enervating extraneous influences."

Both of these reports, while hinting that certain dark spots keep the situation from looking overly rosy, seem to picture the country's commercial trends as definitely preparing for a hike.

Sectional reports, always a fairly heavy finger on the pulse of the trade movement, point to the fact that the coming of Spring has brought a new confidence in the nation's ability to straighten itself out financially.

The First "Alloyed Oil"

—for better lubrication of today's high-speed, alloy-steel motors

Alloyed by the Germ Process

Just as the metallurgist adds small amounts of other metals to make special alloy steels, so we add small quantities of a concentrated oily essence to highly-refined, paraffin-base motor oil. This Germ Processing, discovered and patented by Continental scientists, gives Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil lubricating qualities no other oil has.

YOUR MOTOR is built of parts made of special alloy metals. Car manufacturers and metallurgists worked together to produce metal alloys strong and durable enough to withstand the greatly increased pressures and temperatures of the modern motor.

Oils, too, must withstand these pressures and temperatures and they must have extra oiliness and film strength to do it. Yet oils generally have no more oiliness and film strength than they had ten years ago. And many new refining methods now used to make oils free from carbon and sludge have lowered instead of increased oiliness and film strength!

Continental, pioneering as it has pioneered for 60 years, has developed the first alloyed oil—Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil! It is custom-made for high-speed, alloy-steel motors. It has 2 to 4 times the film strength of straight mineral oil, as tests on the Timken machine have proved! It has more oiliness than any oil has naturally. It penetrates and combines with metal surfaces, forming a permanent lubricating film—the "Hidden Quart". It is a pure, clean oil, free from carbon and sludge troubles. It gives extraordinary mileage as well as motor protection, as proved by the Indianapolis Destruction Test.

Say "O.K.—Drain"—fill with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil and you will have the finest lubrication you can buy!

FACTS!

In last week's issue of the County Wide News, they carried a news item showing the splendid progress of our Littlefield Schools for the past three years, which was correct and which we all appreciated very much, and was justly proud. However this news item did not give any exact dates and figures, and in order that the public may know just how and by whom these savings were accomplished you will find below some interesting facts taken from the minute books of the Littlefield School Secretary.

Littlefield, Texas, May 21st, 1932

Also B. M. Harrison, Superintendent, and J. S. Hilliard, Secretary, when the following business was transacted:

Minutes of the meeting of May 17th, 1932, read and approved.

First to come up for consideration was the matter of valuation for tax purposes for the year 1932. And it was moved by Trustee E. A. Bills and seconded by Trustee R. E. McCaskill that the School Board recommend to the Equalization Board for the Littlefield Independent School District that they reduce the values on the real estate at least forty per cent (40%) from the values used in 1931 with the privilege of making equitable adjustments in the equalization as they see fit. After some discussion the motion was put and carried four to three, as follows:

Littlefield, Texas, Sept. 3, 1934

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES of the Littlefield Independent School District met in regular session Sept. 3, 1934, with the following members present:

- |                          |                |

| DR. J. D. SIMPSON        |                |

Also Superintendent A. B. Sanders and H. C. Arnold, Secretary

The work of the Equalization Board was presented to the Board for their approval. The Equalization Board established similar values to those of 1933, making some adjustments and recommended to the Board that since this value at a rate of $.75 on the hundred dollars would secure the amount of taxes required in our 1934-35 budget that the Board reduce the present rate of $1.00 per hundred dollars to $.75. After considerable discussion Dr. Simpson made a motion that we accept the work and recommendations of the Equalization Board, set the rate per hundred dollars at $.75, seconded by J. M. Blessing. Motion carried 4 to 3, Mr. James, Dr. Simpson, Mr. Blessing and Mr. Vinther voting for the reduced rate. Mr. Jeffries, Mr. Hall and Mr. Brannen voting against.

this program would be to make it a city wide event, by all business establishments cooperating.

Raymond Renfro of Renfro Bros. Grocery & Market was also called on to give his views on the Dollar Day program.

Mr. Renfro stated that he enjoyed a good business Dollar Day; that he would like to see all business concerns, including the grocery establishments, cooperate in making this monthly program a city-wide event.

Mr. Hilliard commended the merchants for their success so far with the Dollar Day program, stating that "advertising is the life of business," and that with the proper cooperation of the local establishments and the advertising of their merchandise, that Littlefield could have Dollar Day each month as big as cities much larger than Littlefield.

Dr. Ira E. Woods stated he believed "trade came to Littlefield Dollar Day because they can buy merchandise here cheaper than some other places." He offered the suggestion that the merchants impress on the public that their stores are well stocked with various lines at prices as low, if not lower, than many other places. Also that Littlefield appreciates the business extended them, and are doing their utmost to give good value for their money.

Morley B. Drake, on behalf of the Lamb County Leader offered every cooperation possible to the local merchants by the newspaper on the Dollar Day program.

J. W. Hale, Secretary-Manager of the Chamber, reported last Monday was a very successful Dollar Day stating he talked with people from many miles away, who were here for the special buying event. Mr. Hale suggested the appointment of a committee to canvas the town, in an endeavor to get all to cooperate. He suggested inviting all the farmers in the trade territory to bring anything they wish to dispose of to Littlefield next Dollar Day, which could be sold at auction on one of the vacant lots.

A. R. Hendricks reported that he had three lots on Main Street that he would be glad to allow the committee to use as auction grounds for the sale of the farmers implements or stock, or anything they might wish to dispose of.

Mr. Hendricks reported that Wade-worth was ready to proceed with the mill proposition as soon as the $15,000 required by him from the city was paid over.

H. C. Crews, Mr. Hale and Mr. Hilliard all spoke in regard to the necessity of an oil mill here, urging that the proposition be put through if possible.

It was also reported at the meeting that Mrs. J. M. Stokes, as chairman of the beautification program on behalf of the Woman's Study Club, asks that each club appoint a
