Specific action is under way toward the formation of a rural telephone cooperative that would serve as many as 4,700 farm homes in Lubbock county and parts of Hale, Lamb, Hockley, Lynn and Crosby counties, it was revealed Thursday.

Some 4,700 farm home owners have been mailed a circular letter and application for membership in the South Plains Rural Telephone association, said L. A. Howard, who is acting as attorney for the newly organized cooperative without charge.

The farmers hope to participate in a $25,000,000 fund made available for lending to such cooperatives for construction of rural telephone systems.

The circular letters and application forms request remittance of a $5.00 membership fee. The proceeds will be used for postage and other expenses toward securing an initial loan. When the loan is granted, the fee will be converted to a straight membership fee, and when a member ends his membership fee after using the cooperative's services, the fee will be returned to him.

No Connection Locally Although the cooperative has no official connection with the Lamb County Electric Cooperative, J. H. Carl, manager, said his office is cooperating to the fullest extent in helping organize the telephone association.

Meetings In This Area Organization meetings will be held at Spade and Anton in the near future, and as soon as the dates of the meetings are set, farmers will be notified through the Lamb County Leader.

BULL LAKE PHILOSOPHER WORKING ON INCOME TAX PLAN THAT TAKES INTO ACCOUNT LOSSES IN LAST 20 YEARS

Editor's note: The Bull Lake Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm is having his annual troubles with his income tax report, his letter this week reveals:

Dear editor:

Being a farmer, at least bein classified as one by the United States government for taxin purposes only, I have a tremendous struggle on my hands every January tryin to get my income tax made out, and I don't mind sayin after a session with my bookkeepin system there ought to be some simpler way of keepin the government goin, or of excusin a man who ain't got no knack for figures.

I have considered gettin an expert out here to figure mine, and even had one tell me I wasn't takin off enough depreciation, for example said I ought to depreciate eight bales of Johnson grass hay I've had on hand for five years, which I've kept mainly because they're comfortable to sit on when I have to move my readin room from the house to the barn, which occurs whenever the weather's pretty enough for my wife to put out a washin, but the way I figure it is after you reach a point in your tabulations where you don't owe no income tax, ain't no use goin any further, the government ain't advanced enough to pay you when you go in the hole.

But I have been workin on a simplified system, to eliminate fill-in out all those blank lines, which is a major undertaking when you're tryin to get your income figures off the wall paper in the kitchen and tryin to be honest also, I know I wrote down what I got for a Jersey steer some time last September, but my wife must have written a recipe over my figures, as I can't find em and I don't want to put down too little for it, and blamed sure ain't gonna put down too much.

Why can't the bank just look over its records and size up the situation and say, now there's so-and-so, he had a pretty good year, he could pay a little income tax, but there's so-and-so, he ain't made no money this year, his well's dried up, wound up in worse shape than he started, he ought to get off free this time.

This system might make the bank a little unpopular with some people, but so does callin in a note or refusal to make one in the first place. Also, an income tax ought to be based on a longer time than 12 months. A man might make a lot one year and lose twice as much the next five years in a row. A farmer can cash in on high prices one year and the government is around hollerin for a slice, forgettin all about the crop failures he's made. Just takin off deductions for losses in the last 12 months ain't enough. A man ought to be allowed to include all the losses he can think of in the past 20 years. This might not produce much revenue, but it sure would sharpen a man's memory.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Prosperity is the touchstone of virtue; for it is less difficult to bear misfortune, than to remain uncorrupted by pleasure. —Tacitus

The virtue of prosperity is temperance, but the virtue of adversity is fortitude; and the last is the more sublime attainment. —Bacon

SUCCESSFUL PARENTHOOD

By Mrs. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS Associate Editor, Parents Magazine

QUARRELING MAY BE the most unpleasant thing your child does. It has its origin in the child's need to assert himself and to be squelched altogether. Little children quarrel alone, little children quarrel with their differences—they are screaming at the next they are conning blocks into the same.

beings must learn, and finding out from experience that quarrels are less pleasant than agreeable companionship is more apt to stick than constant admonitions that "to be good is to be happy."

If minor quarrels are to be left to the children to settle, what is a minor quarrel? It isn't easy for a mother to see anything normal about two snarling youngsters! According to the Yale child guidance clinic, minor quarrels include "name calling, screaming, pushing, and most cases of hitting where no weapon is used." Children can't do much harm to each other with their bare hands, but if one picks up a toy train with which to hit his companion over the head, it's time for an adult to interfere.

Another thing about too much adult supervision, youngsters soon learn that staging a fight brings mother or teacher to the scene, all attention and interest, even if disapproving. How much better to learn that mother will come faster and stay longer to admire a well built sand castle than to separate children who are throwing sand in

Give Us Back Our Sidewalks, Slim!

That over an article in the last week, but I didn't like it. After all, the man it was about—Slim Henderson—is a good fellow.

When I came into quite a windfall, I bought the old place. The deed gave him the land—right down to the sidewalk. Then Slim started to make his sidewalk to make his better.

It wasn't fair to the town so in my article. Next Slim comes around and know what I mean—getting folks riled against him. I felt ornery myself, and we had quite a set-to over the whole business.

From where I sit, that was foolish. Once we'd cooled off (over lunch and a bottle of beer at Andy's Tavern), Slim decided the sidewalks should stay—for the common good, and I promised next time I'd take a good look at the other fellow's point of view before writing any articles about him!

Letting children express aggression while they are still young enough to do it in harmless direct ways is one thing—constant bickering is something else, and not a very healthful climate for character growth. It may take a good deal of unobtrusive managing on mother's part to keep the atmosphere generally pleasant. Separating the children on especially quarrelsome days, without punishing or blaming either one, is a good ruse. If a new toy starts a conflict, you may have to umpire—for taking turns is essential. The timid child must learn his rights, just as the aggressive child must learn restraint.

This view of quarreling as a necessary step in the child's social development is only one of many conclusions about the various aspects of growth arrived at through the study of thousands of children

Lubbock C. of C. To Hold Open House

Everyone is cordially invited and sincerely urged to attend the open house of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, which will be held from 2:00 p. m. to 6:00 p. m. on January 29 in the new $65,000.00 building located at 902 Texas ave., Homer D. Grant, president of the organization, announced this week.

"We want all of the people of Lubbock, and especially the surrounding area, to attend our open house," Grant said. "We particularly want the newspaper editors and wives, the publishers and wives, chamber of commerce officials and wives, city and county leaders and wives, to attend. We of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce realize that without splendid cooperation which we receive year after year from all of the people on the South Plains we would not have been able to own such a building. We call our new building the 'Community Work Shop'—and this it really is since the continuous work of building a greater Lubbock and South Plains is carried on daily in its offices."

"Our building was planned with as meticulous care as to design, floor plan, layout, and the job to be done it—as a factory would be planned by the nation's largest industries for efficient operation and production, and we believe that other community leaders might be interested in planning such a building for their own city."

The chamber of commerce building is declared to be the best in the city.

Sheriff's Magazine Article Complimentary To Sid Hopping

From the Sheriff's Association magazine of a recent edition, appeared the following article regarding Lamb County's sheriff, Sid Hopping. Believing it to be of interest to many of our readers we are reproducing it in full, as follows: (Editor's note)

No. Your Guess Is Wrong, Hopping Is Not an Ex-Rancher
Usually when a man is elected sheriff, especially of a western county, it is taken for granted that he rose to his place of eminence from a ranch, or that he was a "trader" or perhaps a cattleman. Now and then he graduated from the professional ranks of rodeo riders or promoters. This has occurred so many times that the several professions, including that of sheriff, have become analogical. However, when Sid Hopping took over the reins of sheriff of Lamb county, he didn't have to accustom himself to walking, nor attach splints or leg straighteners to iron the bows out of his underpinnings. Neither did he get homesick for the smell of the barn or the aroma of hide-searing branding irons. For Hopping emanated from a more passive line of endeavor. He moved into the sheriff's office from commercial life, although law enforcement was not a novelty for him. He had previously had enough practical experience to understand the responsibilities that confronted him, and his educational background and business experience were adequate to enable the installation of a sound and public-pleasing administration.

Sid Hopping, from every practical angle, is a native son of Littlefield. So is Mrs. Hopping. Sid has lived in the city for 21 years—that is, in Littlefield or elsewhere in Lamb county. He taught in Littlefield schools and had also acted as assistant football coach there. Six years of his time had been spent as deputy tax collector, and another eight years as chief deputy sheriff in the administration of Sheriff Sam Hutson. He also worked at oil leasing and in the real estate business. During last year—the year Mr. Hopping won the sheriff's office, he and his father, R. C. Hopping of Lubbock, completed a county-wide survey of appraisal of Lubbock county.

Hopping is, as always, an active participant in civic and county affairs, a clean-cut personality, and is keenly devoted to efforts to improve conditions in Lamb county. He holds membership in the Masonic order.

The two children of Sheriff and

Mrs. Hopping are Billye Marie Hopping, a daughter, a junior at Texas Tech at Lubbock, and a 16-year-old son, Clifford Coke Hopping, a senior at the Littlefield High school.

The man of the west, who, so far as is known, never followed the life of ranching, rodeo, etc., seems to be making a hit with his business-like administration of the Lamb county sheriff's department. This estimation is based on unsolicited comment by citizens of Lamb county.

PUBLISHER-SPEAKER — A man who travels 100,000 miles a year to speak before professional, civic and educational groups, comes to the Lone Star State to talk to Texas newspaper publishers on January 28.

He is James D. Arrington, publisher of the Collins (Miss.) News-Commercial. Texas newspapermen will hear his address during the annual Mid-Winter meeting of the Texas Press Association in Austin. Arrington knows that by making people laugh, he can put across a serious message painlessly. Therefore he has created a reputation for himself as a speaker by convulsing audiences from New York to Los Angeles and from Chicago to Jacksonville.

As a newspaper publisher, he uses the same tactics, injecting the light touch wherever possible. People in Collins like to tell the story about the time the front IDEA-MAN — Newspaper publishers, some 300 strong, from every corner of Texas, will hear a talk by Charles H. Wiseman of Des Moines, Iowa, on January 28 in Austin. The occasion will be the annual Mid-Winter Meeting of the Texas Press Association.

Wiseman, son of a former newspaperman, owns and edits the Publishers' Idea Exchange, a compilation of tested advertising ideas which goes monthly to 1500 newspapers over the country. Advertising for retail merchants will be the topic of his talk when he addresses Texas publishers.

Collecting outstanding advertising ideas is Wiseman's hobby as well as his vocation. The Publishers' Idea Exchange was first started while he was a student at the University of Wisconsin. After being dropped for several years, it was re-established in 1934 and has grown in popularity among newspaper publishers and their advertising merchants the country over. Van W. Stewart, publisher of the Ochiltree County Herald in Perryton, is TPA president and will preside during the meeting.

page of the News-Commercial was filled, and Arrington still had a full-length picture of a Collins citizen which needed page-one space. So he cut the picture in two, ran the bust on page one, with a line, "Continued on page 2," where the waist, legs and feet appeared.

Arrington will be the speaker for the closing banquet of the TPA meeting. TPA President Van W. Stewart of The Ochiltree County Herald at Perryton has announced that approximately 300 Texas newspaper people will be in Austin for the convention.

 April of each year." He stated that vegetables production has not as yet proved as an industry here on the Plains.

A discussion on various subjects by the group is as follows:
Dairying: "Dairying is a profitable business here on the Plains and it will continue to be profitable if ample pasture is available."
Grain Sorghum: "One half of grain sorghum produced is used for industrial purposes. Approximately 5,000 articles can be made from grain sorghum, most of which require a starch base."
Beef: "Beef production would be a good investment in the Littlefield area with more and better pastures."
Water: "Littlefield has not supported the Lamb County Water association as it should have." (The group suggested that Attorney Arthur Duggan be asked to speak before each civic club in Littlefield, and talk on underground water).

Soil Conservation: It was stated that the businessmen of Littlefield have been invited to attend the soil conservation meetings which are held on the first Monday night of each month and they have also been invited to attend Field Day, which is to be held February 15. Field Day is to start at the F. O. Masten farm, located two miles north of Sudan, at 9:30 a. m.

Marketing and Diversification: "Diversification will come to this area and the Chamber of Commerce should help find a market for these products."
Water Legislation: The group suggested that the Chamber of Commerce suggest to each civic club that they sponsor a program on water and soil conservation. They also suggested that more farm dinners be held and that water and soil conservation be discussed at these dinners. It is the plan of the agricultural committee to have more meetings of this nature so as to develop a definite program of work.

Those attending the meeting included David Eaton, Hardy Shelby, John McQueen, Roy Gilbert, Lester Nelson, W. E. Heathman, Walter Gray, V. M. Peterman, Maurice Carlton, Gus Parrish, W. H. Cunningham, Nelson Naylor, Turner, C. H. Messer, J. G. Simmons, Viggo Peterson and Pat Mann.

To Report On Water Projects

Reports on tentative domestic and industrial water projects for west Texas will be made by representatives of the bureau of reclamation at a joint meeting of the executive board of the West Texas Chamber of commerce and all committees of the WTCC and affiliated West Texas Domestic Water association to be held in Abilene January 26.

Harry P. Burleigh, state planning engineer for the reclamation service, will report on the results of recent studies of the Brazos and Colorado river watersheds by reclamation engineers for the purpose of locating sites for multi-city dams.

Encouraged by the call for immediate action on water resources as set forth in President Truman's executive order creating his Water Resources Policy commission, committees will be activated at the meeting to pursue immediate passage in congress of its bill to amend the present national water laws by establishing municipal water as a criteria for dam building and giving municipalities priority over all other water users.

Chairmen and members of the four new water committees of the WTDWA have been called to the meeting by Homer D. Grant, president, and J. M. Wilson, WTCC president, issued the call to the executive board of the WTCC and chairmen of all other committees.
