EXPORTS TO DECIDE LAND USE IN AMERICA

Pointing out that it was the farmer whose skill and energy provided a large share of the exports which paid the loans America made in building our early railroad systems and industrial plants, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace recently emphasized that the present generation of farmers can no longer produce to the limit of the land's capacity.

"Through a tragic sequence of drift and mismanagement, our economy has come into a state which makes it necessary to revise the production schedule of agriculture. Unless and until export markets re-open for our wheat, corn (in the form of hog products), tobacco and the towering surplus of cotton is scaled down, we must limit the acreage planted to these crops.

"Although our agriculture is less intensive than that of some other countries, it is too intensive for our present needs. Since the war, the area required to produce crops for export has declined by some 40 million acres. At the same time the decrease in number of horses and mules has released about 30 million acres for production of food for human beings. All these things have saddled agriculture with surpluses that beat down prices.

"Whether we shall soon again need the retired acres to produce export crops depends upon what national policies our people choose to follow in the future. I shall not discuss my thesis that America must choose between three courses: nationalism and isolation, internationalism, and a well-planned course between the extremes. Upon which course our people choose hangs the fate of our export markets for farm products in the future.

"But whichever we choose, it is to the national interest to conserve our basic resource—the soil. If we go the way of little export trade we will force many millions of acres out of export crops and into pasture. Then the man who has already learned the technique of pasture management will be in the van. If we reopen export markets and there is again demand for more plowland, pastures and meadows will furnish rich land to put into crops."

LARCENY MODERNIZED

A new racket has sprung up in west central counties of Texas recently. Mules and some times other draft stock has been stolen, loaded into a truck during the night and placed on the Ft. Worth market early the next morning. Hardeman and Cottle counties suffered most from this form of theft the past week.

Another racket being worked appears to be getting over in some places. Two men in a truck visit the farms and purchase beef stock. A check is given on a bank in some other part of the state in payment. A number of cattle are rounded in to a central point and shipped out. The farmers later find they were given "dry" checks in payment for the stock. By the time complaint is made to the officers, the stock has reached its destination and sold. No traces can be found of the rascals who worked the scheme. In some instances where the loss is small, the stock growers fail to make any complaint at all though they know they have been defrauded. They do not seem to want the public to know that they were so "easy" as to take a check from a stranger on a foreign bank. —Donley County Leader.

$5.00 FINE FOR MERCHANT TO READ!

Did you get your catalogue? We got ours and it is a dandy. Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck put out attractive books. They are the Bibles of the business world so far as the common people are concerned and are consulted much oftener than the real Bible. Attractive cuts, entertaining and well written descriptive matter with prices is certainly appreciated.

A curious thing we have noticed is that the prices in each catalogue are about the same. Would think they would get together and put out one catalogue for those catalogues cost a lot of money, about $1.25 each. In the trading vicinity of Saco about 2000 of these catalogues were received within the past month. These new batches are coming rather fast and this is called for on account of so many things going up so fast. In checking up high salaries recently the government found, so we understand, that $400,000 per year was paid to the president of one of these concerns so evidently their prices are high enough to make plenty of money. The cost of mailing one of these large catalogues is considerable, about 11 cents from Chicago to Saco.

Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward have spent over $5,000 during the past year in advertising through their catalogues to Saco people. And they get the business and lots of it.

It would be cheaper for these catalogue houses to buy up a few newspapers and that will likely be their next step to cinch all the business.

There are two things that the average merchant hates to do. One is to pay the preacher and the other is to pay out money for advertising. Paying the preacher, of course, might possibly do some good for those who feel their sins, but paying the editor is throwing the money away.

There is no question but that better bargains can be had in town but the country man is not going to spend time running around trying to find out about it. "Hiding his light under a basket," not advertising, is what is making the country merchant poor and the catalogue house rich.

The average merchant has his wires crossed all the time, he thinks its price competition that is ruining him. It's nothing of the kind, its advertising competition that is getting his goat.—Saco (Mont.) Independent.

ABUSE OF THE LAW

At a recent annual meeting of the American Bar Association it was openly admitted by prominent members that public confidence in the courts and their administration of the law is being steadily weakened.

A report was adopted denouncing "the growing prevalence of the use of expert witnesses with their conflicting testimony." This referred particularly to the use of alienists in criminal cases, where experts may be secured to testify that the accused is insane, provided he has the money to employ them.

As a matter of fact, lawyers in convention very frequently criticize the prevailing method of criminal procedure, but so far they have done very little to correct it.

Legislators are also to blame for the present state of affairs, but as most legislators are lawyers the responsibility still rests almost wholly upon the legal profession.

By the passage of innumerable laws regulating everything under the sun, and imposing upon peace officers the task of enforcing trivial and often foolish statutes, the perpetrator of major crimes such as murder and robbery have all the better chance to escape punishment. If more attention were given to the prevention and punishment of these serious offenses, it might be possible to reduce their number.—Leader, Wellington, Texas.

There is stronger competition between towns nowadays than between individual merchants, and the towns that have co-operating merchants are the towns that are getting the business. A town divided against itself cannot prosper. It is much better to agree to disagree on disputed points than to allow dissension to creep in to community affairs. — McLean News.

HOORAY FOR THE PRESSURE COOKER

Gee, it's great to travel and see sights. Just think what a splendid time and trip the seniors had on their journey to Carlsbad. We seniors think that we are very fortunate indeed to have had the opportunity. We saw things that we shall never see again. We feel that this is an occasion which will be in the hearts of the class members for some time.

Have you ever thought just how much the senior class owes to the man who invented the car and the faster means of travel? If this vehicle had not been found it would have been impossible for this group to have spent the week end so far away from home and for such a large group to go. There were thirty people who enjoyed the trip.

The pressure cooker also has had a great part in the journey because each person brought some canned food of some kind from his home. Otherwise we would have been required to buy and our expenses would have been entirely too great. As most everyone knows the business men and citizens of the town played about the most important part because they furnished the money which is a necessity in order to travel in these times. We are very glad that Mr. Adams was so generous with his truck and is such a good driver. If he had not taken the group I imagine that we would have stayed at home and liked it.

Let me say again that for myself as well as the class that we wish to thank each one who played any part whatsoever in making this trip possible. Besides enabling us to see sights, the tour was very educational.

Business Men Donate Toward Carlsbad Trip

Since Friday morning the senior class of Wheeler has been to Carlsbad Cavern and back without an accident. The group visited the Museum in Canyon and also in the Palo Duro Canyon near there. According to Miss Winona Adams, sponsor, everyone has enjoyed the trip very much.

Such a trip was made possible only by the different firms and citizens of Wheeler. The senior class feel very indebted and wish to thank the following; R. E. Brazil, O. B. Miller, The Royal Drug, Ernest Lee, The Wheeler Times, C. C. Fillmore, Mrs. M. L. Gunter, J. M. Lawrence, The Peoples Store, Jake Tarter, C. B. Witt, City Drug, Levi Reid, C. N. Wofford's Store, O. ## INTERVIEWS

NOTE: In this paper from now until the close of school will appear each week interviews of four or five members of the senior class.

"Well—er— my name is Sally Jane and I'm sixteen years old, and I ain't been kissed by no boy just as yet. I am planning on being grown in a few more years if the climate is favorable," were the opening remarks made to the reporter.

She has lived in Wheeler since she was a wee little girl. She never did attend any school of higher education except once she went to college at Clarendon and again she went to Austin and got a piece of paper that said something about a degree and a major in sociology and in economics and a minor in history. She can't count all her beaus but there were nearly thirteen until one or two got married in all parts of the world. She has been teaching school at Wheeler one hundred years plus five more. The first year she started as the first grade teacher and within two weeks she was promoted to high school. The next term she just started in Junior High and then got sent on up to high school. She has been a freshman sponsor for two years and she has been the sponsor of the '34 senior class since they have been in the sophomore class. She has planned one Junior-Senior banquet and she sincerely hopes that she never has to give another one. She has helped to present two high school plays and has been at the head of the one-act plays for the county meet in Wheeler as long as they have been in progress. Miss Sally Jane has been basket ball and volley ball coach for the last three years. Her hobby and ambition is to travel some more. She has been in thirty states in the Union and plans to go in more this summer. Before she is an old maid she hopes to go to Europe and play around for a spell. Swimming is her favorite sport because she does not get to go very often. Her mother says that she is a nice girl and did not get any spankings but got lots of whippings and this must go to prove that history repeats itself, because all girls get some paddlings. Now, I reckon and so does she as to how that this is all of her life, so goodbye. According to this reporter the seniors are very fond of their sponsor. All the above facts belong to Miss Winona Adams of the Wheeler high school.

FIFTEEN HOME EC. II GIRLS DISPLAY DRESSES

Those who had their dresses on display were; Mazie Bean, Dorothy Burgess, Rutha Mae Conner, Ruth Dill, Helen Gilmore, Ruth Faye Garrison, Adell Hampton, Willie Mae Hollabough, Elizabeth Joss, Chlorene Morgan, Mary Eunice Noah, Lorine Roper, Gladys Warren, Florine Wright, and Velma Pillars.

Miss Bernie Addison spent the week end with her parents in Quitaque.

HELEN IS HONORED AT BIRTHDAY DINNER PARTY

In honor of her sixteenth birthday, a surprise six o'clock dinner was given to Helen Gilmore at her home Tuesday night, April 10, by her mother Mrs. J. L. Gilmore.

A color scheme of yellow and green was carried out in the place cards, table decorations and the menu. A very delightful menu was served consisting of steak, gravy, English peas in potatoes nests, tomatoes, pickles, lettuce, pineapple salad, iced tea, and ice cream. At the end of the second course the cake was brought to the table and the candles were lighted for a short time. After the dishes were removed from the table, Flinch was played until a late hour.

Dinner was served to Ruth Dill, Elizabeth Joss, Fay Ficke, Mamie Lee Starkey, Mary Eunice Noah, and the honoree Helen Gilmore.

HOME EC. CLUB GIRLS TO SPONSOR FOOD SALE

Pies, cakes, doughnuts, cookies, and candy will be sold at reasonable prices all day Saturday, April 14, by the Home Economics club. The location for the sale has not been decided, but will be in some vacant building on Main street, if possible.

The proceeds will be used to send Orveta Puett, Ruth Dill, and the sponsor, Miss Bennie Mae Williams, to Austin for the dress contest, which will be held April 26, 27, and 28.

"If a club girl has not visited you before Saturday and you wish to put in an order, notify me or one of the club girls," states Miss Williams.

Seniors are Guests at Annual Banquet

Last Thursday night the seniors were guests at the Junior and Senior Banquet given by the Junior class and sponsor, Mrs. J. L. Gilmore. The banquet was served in the gymnasium of the school building. The ban-room was draped with pink and white crepe paper. Along the walls were six pink carnations and a small piece of green. The nut cups were pink and white as the place cards. On the hands of the boys cups there was a pink head and on the girls cups there were roses on the handle. The programs were folded in book form pictures of a senior in her cap gown. On the inside of the first at the top was a small diploma. The menu consisted of fruit cocktail, mashed potatoes, english peas, celery, chicken a la king, carrot and cabbage salad, buns, strawberry ice cream, coffee, and pink and white mints. The program was based on the carnation. Theodore Connor was toastmaster and Rev. A. Curtis Weeks, Laney Mae Tillman and Mr. J. L. Gilmore and in response to these were Winona Adams and Coy Hix. The group sang two songs and Merriman Hawkins gave reading. Ruth Dill, Helen Gilmore, Mamie Lee Starkey sang Moonlight and Roses. Mr. Witt gave the oration. After the program the ball captain for this year gave report talk and the two captains for season said a few words. All the school teachers were present and girls basket ball captains were on to say a few words.

Dark Faces Cause MUCH EXCITEMENT

Sure and don't ask any of the seniors what is wrong with their faces, and do not run when you see them coming because they do not have any kind of a disease. They only blushed their faces on their trip. There are not any Mexicans in our group, those who have dark faces sunburned a wee bit. Now, isn't that fun? You might think so but you had a red race I'm sure that would not have such a nice laugh at it.

Each person has a different complexion for the color of his face, for instance; Willie Mae says that she got embarrassed and is still blushing and she thinks that her mother had her each morning before she went to school, for sleeping too late. She went swimming and hit her head flat and blistered his face. Marguerite cried so much because she did not spend the week end away from home that her eyes and face were swollen and very red. John Ficke said that the reason his face has a pink color in the last few days is because he is an Irishman, he is a Dutchman really. I even heard that something had happened to Mr. Gilmore's face although all has the same color, his mouth somewhat out of shape. Where did I find the persimmons? I thought I got ripe later in the season. Oh, mean no harm just telling how everyone has changed over the week.—Yours 'til faces do not blister.

Light in the LASSO'S NOOSE

Curtis seems to think that the rock caves are about as good as Carlsbad Cavern, at least when other parties are close at hand.

You underclassmen may ask the seniors about these little incidents. (I didn't say they would tell you) but that makes most of the seniors' red?

What does the word "mug" mean how do you do it?

"Iz" just can't keep out of things, even got under the table at the Senior Banquet.

I hear that a certain senior received a very morning caller Monday morning. How about it Doraen? (I think his initials are Bill Owen)

Why didn't the toastmaster tell the seniors at the banquet? I know he some.

I'd putting all joking aside, I know the seniors say that they surely liked the little souvenirs that the seniors sent them and also the generosity of the business men and healers.

Chipped Cups

Every time I see chipped dishes, I always feel poor, as if they were the direct result of poverty. When I wash and care for real china, my attitude changes; I feel as if I owned the world—you know the feeling. Possession of that which is fine and good gives a man courage and high ideals. This descent may seem radical to some of you, but stop, concentrate, see the result. Beautiful china adds the charm of luxury to a table as culture adds to the man.

In these transient moments are we going to allow the use of harmful drugs and foods? We are not, but we permit the use of things which are as deadly to our minds as carbolic acid is to our bodies. Some of you are gifted with rare abilities, but your minds resemble cracked tea cups.

Excuse me; I simply can't refrain from using comparisons. An old man, wise and gray, walked slowly home from his plowing, and as he walked he muttered prayers—his life was full, his joys many. He was like old china which some of us are fortunate enough to possess.

Then again I recall a young man, drunken and evil, who swayed as he walked, as only a drunken man can. He was like a cup without a handle; his soul was intact, but he didn't have control of himself. He was as useless as a broken cup; he served only to mar the appearance of a decent town.

We are aware then of this fact: mothers must raise their sons to become good and worthy citizens. Life is a heavenly gift, yet some of us use our lives as trash barrels. Remember young Americans, America will be in your hands some day.

I urge you as a fellow citizen to improve your mental faculties, and don't let them be as broken dishes. Adopt this as your slogan: I will do my part in building a stronger and a better mind. I will not be a chipped cup, but I will be one which won't break when hot coffee is poured in it.—F. V. R.

land. I can't think of anything but the potato."

"Paddy'll love that. I mean to tell him you said he was an Irish potato," Pam said. "He's awfully funny about himself—and us," she added in a softer voice. "He vows he entirely lost visibility in the British matrimonial market when news of his cousin's numerous heirs got around. He even says he was afraid I wouldn't be able to see him without the glorifying light cast by a title. But he was coming back after me anyhow this autumn," she ended exultantly, anxious that Smif should not misunderstand.

"Of course he was, darling," Smif reassured her. "Stone says he's one of the best, and crazy about you." She was glad for the girl's sake, heartily fond of her, yet so tense in her own misery that moments seemed like hours and she thought she would never find herself alone.

Pam dropped a kiss on her cheek.

"I'm off," she announced, "and I'll see that none of the others bother you."

The door shut behind her at last and Smif lay in semi-darkness waiting for the sounds that would signal the departure of the party for Box Hall. She knew the hour set for the start. She knew that Stone could be trusted to get them going according to schedule, but the minutes still lagged and she looked at her watch half a dozen times before she heard the welcome clatter of horses' hoofs as they came around from the stable.

There was a little more but she did not read it, sitting for a moment as if she had turned to bronze. Then she mechanically accepted the slip of yellow paper that Daly had picked up from the floor and presented to her.

It was a check for the amount which, at his request, she had advanced Bill-Lee, to be applied on the purchase price of the plantation. Legally, should she refuse to accept it, she might be able to enforce her claim—at the cost of informing the world that her brother had broken faith. That she would never do. Her decision was made on the instant.

With a murmur of letters to write before the party set out, she rose and left the room.

Pam was occupied with Paddy Miles; Susan was watching her daughter's happy expression with tender understanding. Her Charlie might not be a romantic figure but she had married him for love not for money. Most of the others were trying to follow Stone's finger as he traced their route of the day on a map he had spread on the table. Only Eve Goodhue saw Smif's face and half rose as if to accompany her, then sank back in her chair, fearful of intrusion. There was no doubt in her mind that Smif had suffered a blow of some sort, and this impression was confirmed a little later when one of the maids came with a message that Miss Lovely had a headache and was lying down. She would not attempt the long ride with them, and hoped they would make the necessary apologies and explanations to Mrs. Gracey.

"She must be feeling very bad," Susan said, rising. "I'll go up—"

"Let me, mother," Pam begged. "please! I want to see her for just a minute. I'll find out if she ought to have a doctor—"

"We can both go—"

"I wouldn't," Eve spoke deprecatingly. "Headaches get better if one is very quiet. I had one once, so I know."

There was something in the way this was said that caused Susan to sink back in her chair. Eve Goodhue was a very definite personality.

"Very well, Pam, you go," she consented, "and don't stay long."

"Only a minute, mother," Pam passed out, giving her mother a friendly pat as she went by.

Outside Smif's door she knocked lightly. Smif had expected this. She knew some one must come to inquire if anything could be done for her, but she longed passionately for their departure. She wanted to be alone at Lovelys to take her farewell of all that she had loved through an absence that would have weakened the tie to any save a faithful heart.

"Come in!" she called cheerily enough. She had herself well in hand.

Pam peeped in cautiously as if she expected some serious manifestation of an illness that had laid low so stout a soul.

"Is your head very bad, Smif darling?" she inquired.

"Not at all," Smif replied promptly. "My head is a polite prevarication. It's something inside me that's dropped a stitch. I know the Box Hall cook and I feel that discretion is the better part of valor for the present, so I'm going to stay—here," she had been about to say "home," only stopping herself in time. Lovelys was home no longer. Not when Miss Mercedes was to be its mistress, Smif had jumped at once to the conclusion that Bill-Lee had sold to Stone. "Keep the others away, Pam, that's a good scout. I do feel peculiarly rotten, but I'll be all right by the time you get back."

Pam halted for an instant on the way to the door, then returned with a soft little rush and slipped to her knees by the side of the couch.

"I don't want to bother you, Smif dear, but there's something I want to tell you even before I tell father and mother, because I believe you wangled it somehow. Paddy and I have fixed it up. We're going to be married and I'm awfully happy. . . . An Irishman is different from an Englishman, isn't he?"

"To be sure he is," Smif agreed heartily. "Paddy Miles is a peach, or whatever their favorite fruit is in Ire-

"I Mean I'm in Love With You. Madly, Foolishly, Insanely in Love With You."

Stone declared. "It made me perfectly furious to see you sitting there wishing me on Mercy."

"Wishing you on Mercy!" Smif echoed his words helplessly. "Honestly, Stone, I don't know what you mean."

Before he spoke again he pushed the fittings of the desk irritably here and there. Then, with one sweep he shoved them all aside and leaning across it, looked directly into her eyes.

"I mean I'm in love with you. Madly, foolishly, insanely in love with you. So much in love that I'm afraid to look at you in public for fear I'll murder any puppy who happens to be talking to you. Don't you know you are a dream come true? Even as a child, I told my mother I meant to marry the girl in the miniature." His eyes held hers. He was bending nearer and nearer. The effect was hypnotic. With an effort Smif wrenched her gaze away. "The very first day I saw you it was all I could do to leave without telling you—"

Mercy.—She must think of Mercy.—She had promised to help her—and maybe Mercy was a prey to the feelings that were tearing at her now. To save herself, since she dared not meet his eyes, she fixed her attention on his mouth. That had been the feature she had held in doubt when first she saw him. Tender, sweet—why had she ever questioned it? And then it smiled and Mercy was forgotten.

"Oh, Stone," she cried softly, "I never knew I liked your mouth before—but I love it."

"I'm glad, I'm glad you do," he murmured, as it sought hers. And as their lips met passion leaped like an electric spark from the one to the other. If it had been unrecognized before, even Smif was aware of it now.

Tennis singles: second place, Nora Pearl Bentley. Tennis doubles: third place, Annie Williams, Florette Miller and alternate, Wilma Connell.

We are proud of our students who worked so diligently that our school might place as high as it did.

We couldn't expect to win first place in Class B schools with schools in that division that had an enrollment three or four times that of ours. We hope this injustice will be eliminated in the future.

High Point Student

Pauline Shankle has the honor of being high point student for Magic City, with 20 points to her credit. We would like to have many more like you, Pauline.

Literary Society

Literary society will meet on Thursday afternoon of this week instead of Friday, the regular time. This date was changed because some of the faculty and students are attending the district meet at Pampa, Friday.

Pupils to Enter District Meet

The volley ball team will enter the district meet this year. This is the first time that volley ball has been included in district events. Our team made a good showing at the county meet again this year, showing that they had been in training. We are proud that the girls will represent our school there.

Pauline Shankle will represent Wheeler county in girls extemporaneous speaking. We are proud of Pauline for having won first in the county and we believe she deserves much praise since she is only a freshman in high school. This is a new record, for usually this event is entered only by upper class students.

College Entrance Examinations

Magic City students are availing themselves of the opportunity of taking college entrance examinations. By this means their credits will be accepted by any institution of higher learning in Texas.

Fifth Sixth-weeks Honor Roll

Science Club Visits Shamrock

In keeping with their program outlined, the general science class under the supervision of Mr. Rucker, visited the Shamrock steam laundry and dry cleaners plant where a close study was made of the various methods of cleaning and laundering clothes. Mr. Montgomery was the guide and lecturer in the dry cleaning plant, while Mr. Nunn carried the class through the laundry.

Much valuable information was gathered by the students, all of the class taking notes which they will use in reports for their scrapbooks.

This class also visited the creamery, where Mr. Harris took them through explaining everything as they went. Upon reaching the cold storage department Mr. Harris "set 'em up." Oh my, but we did enjoy it. Many thanks to this generous hearted man.

Everyone enjoyed the creamery visit immensely and we are sure it will add much to our notebooks in the way of a concrete understanding of the creamery industry.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Cole and sons LaVeau and Everett were called to Pampa Monday, to attend the funeral of Albert Dale, nine months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Brown Hughes, Mrs. Cole and Mrs. Hughes are sisters.

Where Do You Trade?
