House Ablaze With Masses Beautiful Cut Flowers, Ferns And Colorful Exhibitions of Art

Community Club house beautiful cut flowers, ferns and art work, the Ninth Annual Flower Show of the Civic League, were opened to the public today. The show far surpasses any of the previous ones. Never before have so many beautiful flowers and ferns been shown in Eastland. From the walls of the club house they give an artistic and surprising description of the supreme excellence of the floral art. A large crowd of people gathered to see the show which was opened at 2 o'clock. The show is being held in the club house which is a beautiful building. of china, bric-a-brac, curios and tapestries. Mrs. Virgil T. Seaberry, well-known Eastland artist in sketch work has an interesting display of drawings, good humored but pungent satires on several prominent Eastland men. The flower show will be opened all of this afternoon and will reopen again Saturday morning, to continue through late Saturday night. Lunches are being served from a booth in charge of Misses H. O. Satterwhite, Frank Castleberry, Will Keith and Luther Bean, the proceeds from which are to go to the First Methodist church. The Civic League has for sale a newly originated cook book, each of the recipes it contains having been either formulated by Eastland women, or tested by them. Mrs. W. E. Chaney is chairman of the cook book committee. A large crowd was present this morning when the show was officially opened, and it is predicted that a record attendance will view the floral exhibition this afternoon and Saturday.

Tanner Anxious To Hear of Texas Election Final

Will Be at Post Awaiting All News of Choice of Texas Voters; "Something in the Air." Dr. H. B. Tanner, Eastland physician, staunch member of the republican party, is certain that "there is something in the air," according to a letter received from him today from Seattle, Wash., where he is attending his daughter who is seriously ill. Dr. Tanner enclosed a clipping from the Seattle Post-Intelligencer telling of the finding of a "Kittitas county frog" imbedded in a rock-like formation, 10 feet deep, by workmen excavating for a pier. "The Texas frog that lived 30 years in a cornerstone now has its nose out of joint," the clipping said. "While the adventures of 'Old Rip' in the cornerstone of the courthouse at Eastland is ancient history," Dr. Tanner said, "still it is news abroad and I always notice anything about Texas and especially Eastland when I am abroad. I left home suddenly Wednesday in response to a telegram telling of the serious illness of our daughter and arrived here yesterday and found her very ill with pneumonia. She apparently passed the crisis yesterday for her temperature dropped to normal. I did not neglect my civic duty but arranged for my absentee voting, mailing my ballot from Los Angeles. I certainly will be at the listening post election night for news from Texas. I think there is something 'in the air.'"

Eastland Meets Brownwood Here This Afternoon

Two Teams in Good Shape for Only Class A Battle in Oil Belt This Friday. A large bunch of pouting Brownwood Lions arrived in Eastland this morning to meet the Eastland Mavericks in a football game to decide which team shall win the rest of the 1928 football season from the oil belt of the Oil Belt District. The two teams are scheduled to clash at Maverick field this afternoon beginning at 3:15 o'clock. A large crowd from Ranger, Cisco, Gorman, and other towns are expected to witness the only district game in this section this week. The Mavericks will go into the game in excellent shape, having had a week's rest after an easy struggle with the Baird team last week. On the other hand, or rather on the same hand, the Lions are equally rested and prepared for a hard fight. Although neither of the teams are to be particularly feared by class A leaders at the present time, each is capable of defeating the other one and for the first time this year each team will meet a district contender with the odds even. The field, drenched with rain two days ago, is almost dry and in good condition.

Earthquake Does Damage to School

LOMPOC, Calif., Nov. 2.—An earthquake at 7:05 last night caused damage of $10,000 to the high school gymnasium here. The tremor caused the explosion of a gas tank which demolished the building. No other damage was reported. AUSTIN, Nov. 2.—In a stormy session at which disagreeing statements of members were contradicted and called "false," the state board of control this morning by a 2-to-1 vote ordered its purchasing division to buy the remainder of machinery recently requisitioned for by the state highway commission. The purchasing division was ordered to "follow absolute specifications" of the highway department in making purchases but the board voted down a substitute offered by Dr. H. H. Harrington that the purchases be made "as selected and recommended by the highway department." Machinery was recommended by name and brand in the highway department recommendation. STRIKERS, POLICE In Heated Battle. SIDNEY, Australia, Nov. 2.—Police and union dock laborers fought for half an hour in the streets today. The police, confronted by 1,000 workmen, were outnumbered and fired on the crowd. Three men were wounded, one seriously. It was the most serious disorder growing out of the waterfront strike. The union men, angered at the protection given to volunteer workers who took their places during the strike, attacked a group of volunteers in the street. Police tried to stand between the two factions but were stoned by the rioters. Finding their clubs useless, the police fired over the heads of the crowd as a warning. A concerted charge was made by the mob and the police fired into the crowd. During the struggle dozens of men were pushed into the harbor but all were pulled out.

Manner in Which Burns Received Still a Mystery

Mutterings Begore Death Make Family Think She Was Foul Play Victim. LAKE BLUFF, Ill., Nov. 2.—Effrieda Knaak, 29-year-old Sunday school teacher, died in a hospital here today and with her last words increased the mystery surrounding the manner in which she received the burns that caused her death. Miss Knaak died at 3:55 a. m. and her last words uttered a few hours before was: "I wonder if they did it and why? I did not do it, I did not do it. They did it." "I have made my peace with God," she had sighed a few moments before. She died with a smile on her parched, burned lips, maintaining the air of peace she has kept during the hours she was in the hospital. Her body was found Tuesday morning in the basement of the city hall, her limbs burned almost to the bone and her face seared with fire. On regaining consciousness she declared that she had tortured herself in the furnace of the building to purify her soul of a love for Charles Hitchcock, handsome night policeman and her instructor in elocution. Because of her last statement, however, Miss Knaak's family are convinced that she did not inflict the burns on herself but that someone attempted to murder her. KERRVILLE, Texas, Nov. 2.—At elections held recently in Schreiner Institute, Hal Phillips of Eastland, was chosen by his classmates to be secretary of the high school sophomores. This is Phillips' first year in Schreiner. His election to a class office attests his popularity among the students.

New York Cheers Alfred E. Smith In Noon Parade

Given Great Ovation as He Marches Up Broadway and Fifth Avenue. NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—New York cheered, screamed and fought today over the man that has made it sidewalks a legend in a presidential campaign. It turned out by hundreds of thousands, frenzied and milling, to greet—as only New York can—Alfred E. Smith in a noon-day parade up Broadway and Fifth avenue. Men, women and children forgot lunch. They crammed the sidewalks. They hailed the governor as "President Al." They sang. And they battered a little group sent out by the National Woman's party to talk anti-Smith talk in the midst of the Smith delirium. Through it all from the Battery to the city hall and thence to Fifth avenue, Smith rode, sitting on the folded back top of a handsome car, smiling and waving his brown derby. He was preceded by a band and mounted police. He was followed by other cars, bearing notables and by thousands that broke through police lines to cheer him on. The democratic nominee will speak tonight in Brooklyn, New York.

Pastor to Relate Story of Release Of Famed Toad

The story of the releasing of "Old Rip," the horned frog, from the Eastland county courthouse cornerstone, will be told by the Rev. Mr. Singleton, pastor of the Eastland Methodist church, in a sermon at that church Sunday evening at 7:30, according to the announcement made by Mr. Singleton. The pastor was present when the now famous frog was taken from the metal box in the cornerstone and in the sermon Sunday evening he will tell what he saw. At the 11 o'clock hour at the Methodist church special communion services will be held, which will be the last communion service for this conference year. There will also be special music and a reception for members at the 11 o'clock service, it is announced.

Sanitary Officer Makes Report of Work Done During Summer Here.

Jay Phillips, Eastland sanitary officer, closed his work of mosquito extermination November 1. During the period between April 1 and November 1 this year Phillips, according to his report, treated from 40 to 107 places weekly for the destruction of mosquitoes. In this work he used 8,200 gallons of oil which was donated for the purpose by various garages and some of the gasoline plants. The oil was distributed through a knapsack spraying machine and the methods used was very successful. Phillips in commenting upon his work said that Eastland experienced more trouble with mosquitoes the past season than for any season since he had charge of the work or for the past seven years. This, he said, was due to the fact that there had been much rain and that the people, not having been bothered with mosquitoes much in recent years, had grown more careless about leaving mosquito breeding places about their premises.

Comulsory School Law to Be Strictly Enforced in Eastland School District

J. A. Crosby, truant officer for the Eastland independent school district, is busy checking up to determine if children in this district who are required by law to be in school, are attending school and if not why not. He has quite a lengthy list of names and says he is going to see that each child coming within the age limit is either in school or has a satisfactory reason for not being. Under the state law each child between the ages of 8 and 14 years must attend school, either a public or private school, for at least 120 days during the year. The period of enforced attendance opened on Nov. 1, which was last Thursday. Crosby is working under the direction of the Eastland school board and has specific instructions from that body to strictly enforce the compulsory attendance law. The penalty for failure to comply with the compulsory attendance law is a fine of $5 for the first day, $10 for the second day, $15 for the third day and $25 per day for each day thereafter. This fine is to be assessed against the parents or guardian of the child.

Restriction of Parking Brings Some Complaint

The city ordinance restricting parking of cars on the Eastland county courthouse square has met with favor, it seems, from most everyone with the exception of the many business people and others on the streets just off the square. The ordinance prohibits the parking of cars for a longer period than one hour on the square and this has caused most of the cars to be parked on the side streets and has caused the same complaint to arise from business firms on these streets as were made by the merchant on the square. People in business on the side streets complain that not only do transients park their cars on these streets as were made by the but that those who are employed downtown park their cars on the side streets so as not to have to move them every hour, and leave them there throughout the day. In making their complaints the business firms on the side street affected by the new parking ordinance offer the argument that if the merchants on the square were entitled to restricted parking that they are even more entitled to it because of the fact that these streets now have to take care of all cars left parked on the streets during the day.

Motion for New Trial Overruled

Judge Elzo Been of the 88th district just afternoon today overruled the motion for a new trial in the case of O. G. Allen convicted on a liquor charge and given a two-year term in the state penitentiary. Judge J. R. Stubblefield, attorney for Allen, accepted to the court's ruling and gave notice of appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeals at Austin. One of the grounds urged by the defense for a new trial was the reference one of the jurors is alleged to have made during the deliberations to the fact that Allen did not take the stand in the trial of the case. P. L. Parker, Guy Webb, L. A. Tullos and C. E. Yates, members of the jury, were placed on the witness stand by the defense and questioned with reference to the remark made about Allen not going on the stand. Parker testified that some juror, he did not know who, asked the question, "why didn't Allen go on the stand." Guy Webb also testified that he heard some similar remark but did not know who made it. Tullos and Yates both testified that they did not make nor hear the remark. It had been stated that the remark was made by a juror from Cisco. Yates and Tullos were the only jurors from Cisco on the case the testimony showed. The court set Allen's appeal bond at $2,000, but reduced it to $1,500 when Judge Stubblefield objected and made the statement that Allen's mother and one of his sisters were invalids and that Allen had no property.

New Trials Denied Thompson, Davis

Motions for new trials in both the Clyde Thompson case and the Thomas Davis case were overruled by Judge Elzo Been of the 88th district court this afternoon. Thompson and Davis were convicted on charges of murder growing out of the killing of Lucian Shook near Leary on Sept. 7, an d were given death sentences.

Dodge Announces New Senior Six Representing New Era In Motor Car Design and Performance

Style in motor car design that reflects tomorrow's fashion is represented in the New Senior Six models announced by Dodge Brothers Corporation in six body types now on display in the salesrooms of Dea Sanders Motor Co., local dealer. Body lines and interior appointments have been harmonized in a new style creation in which engineers directed all effort to find the best in appearance and performance that could be built into a motor car.

Exceptional riding comfort made possible by the fact that springs extend nearly 80 per cent of the car's wheel base, longer and roomier bodies together with ruggedness and dependability which have gained Dodge Brothers products a world-wide reputation are featured in the car. Its smart style, emphasized by every curve of headlamps, radiator, sun visor and fenders, makes it a car of distinctive personality, offered after months of refining a proven design. The price range from $1,575 to $1,845, f. o. b. the factory.

Driven by a powerful six-cylinder "L" head motor, exhaustive tests have proven the New Senior a car with lightning acceleration to high speeds, and capable of economically sustaining those speeds for hours with the minimum of vibration and driving effort. New standards of performance are claimed in its operation. Controlling this speed and power are Lockheed hydraulic internal expanding four-wheel brakes, operated by the slightest touch of the foot pedal. The hand brake operates on the propeller shaft, and the lever is located at the left of the driver. Braking facilities given the driver a constant feeling of absolute control, regardless of speed or road conditions. Brakes are completely enclosed, and protected from dirt and dust.

Exterior hardware of the New Senior including radiator shell, head lamps, bumpers, hub caps, door handles, cowl hump and moulding, and spare tire brackets are chrome plated, attractively setting off the body lacquers and color combinations in which the car is available. The rakish body, representing new achievements in design affords maximum vision and comfort for every passenger. Insulation of rubber and felt eliminate all vibration between the body sills and frame. Doors are of the wide rugged type with heavy hinges and buffers to provide quiet closing and positive lock.

Passes Declared The Hope of The San Angelo Team

By BLONDY CROSS (San Angelo Sports Writer) What chance has San Angelo, so far the wonder team of the Oil Belt district, against Ranger Saturday at Ranger.

There is a question we believe can be answered with ease. That game looks out and dried. In fact, we believe San Angelo almost has a good chance to beat Ranger as San Angelo had to beat Cisco here week before last. All along prior to that Cisco game you were told that if San Angelo's passes clicked San Angelo boasted a wonderful opportunity to thump the powerful Big Dam aggregation. All San Angelo knows the Bobcats thumped Cisco even if the score was but 13-10-13. San Angelo knows that a veteran referee, one who should know far better and who today does know far better, got crossed up on the rules and made a play that eventually resulted in a Cisco touchdown.

Now if those passes click again Saturday at Ranger, the Bobcats stand an even chance to nose out a heavier and hard-fighting Ranger team.

Aggies Thinking About The Three Games Yet Ahead

COLLEGE STATION.—Virtually eliminated from the conference race by defeats in their first two conference tilts, Texas Aggie gridsters this week buckled down to a period of unusually rigorous training, determined to make a garrison finish in the three conference games yet ahead, those with the S. M. U. Mustangs, Rice Owls, and Texas Longhorns. "It isn't the start, it's the finish that counts" is the slogan that has been placed on the bulletin board of the Aggies' training quarters, and the work early in the week indicates this will be the slogan for the remainder of the year.

Having reduced his squad to 30, Coach Dana X. Bible is bringing down with an unglazed hand in a final effort to build up greater aggressiveness in the Aggies' style of play. There was a marked lack of this characteristic in the performance against the Razorbacks last week, Coach Bible said. Commenting further on the Arkansas-Aggie game, Bible pointed out that the Razorbacks had a heavy, inspired team. The Razorbacks have made football history in the past on their homecoming day and only once has a team been successful in defeating them in such a game.

Whoofus Whiffletree's Woozy Wonderings

Politics has invaded sports. Announcements from Democratic National headquarters is to the effect that Knute Rockne, most famous football coach, is for Al Smith. So are Babe Ruth and Bobby Jones and John J. McGraw. Likewise Gene Tunney, Walter Eckersall, former All-American quarterback, is another supporter of the brown derby. Sammy Mandell, lightweight boxing champion; Arnold Horween, football coach of Harvard; Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees; Johnny Farrell, holder of the open golf championship; Larapping Lod Gehring, and Louis Stoddard, polo star, are others.

Laverne Fator, leading American jockey; Johnny Garvey, Yale's star halfback; Vincent Richards, the tennis star; Joe McCarty, manager of the Chicago Cubs; James J. Corbett, the old-time boxing champion; Reggie McNamara, the iron man of bicycle riders; Stubby Kruger, Olympic swimming champ Chick Meehan, coach of New York University—these are going to vote for Smith.

Then we find Joie Ray, the Marathon runner, Al Simmons of the Philadelphia Athletics, Wilbert Robinson, Donie Bush and George Moriarity, all of whom managed big league teams last year, are lined up for Al.

The fact that politicians realize the great interest that the American people take in athletics and the magic of the great names of sport stars indicates more richly than any mere words how deep is the hold of baseball, football, and other athletics on the great public.

One thing that impresses us about football games—high school games—these days is the fact that frequently both teams score enough points to win an ordinary game. For instance, Athens lost to Marshall last week, 32 to 19. There are lots of games that 18 points will win. Eastland lost to Ranger 26 to 25. Other similar scores will readily occur to our readers.

The point we are striving to make is that the skill and fighting qualities of the teams have improved. Back in 1921 and 1922 in this territory, the teams that scored the first touchdown would almost always win unless the score palpably weaker team happened to draw "first blood" by recovering a fumble for a touchdown.

Each team was anxious to get the jump on the other and they fought furiously until one or the other had scored. Then the team scored on usually went to pieces and the other team piled up the count.

Had that still been the case, Ranger would have walked away with last week's game for early in the second quarter the Bulldogs were leading, 13 to 0. But the Eagles, instead of giving up, got started and tied the score before the half was up. They kept the drive in the third period and went into the lead. But that only seemed to rouse the Bulldogs to greater fury and they tied the score.

The fact that one team doesn't crumple just because the opposition scores first makes the games more exciting. Furthermore it teaches the boys a lesson for life's battles—and that is never give up even when the odds are against you. And it teaches the team that is ahead that, in football or in after life, there is danger in resting on your oars. If you don't keep up your fight, you are liable to go down.

Marshal Yen, Shansi "Model Governor" Drives Out Bandits North of Peking

BY D. C. BESS United Press Staff Correspondent PEKING.—The "model governor of Shansi," Marshal Yen Hsi-shen, has quietly and steadily been extending the model rule in his own province to the vast territories northwest of Peking which have come under his domination as a result of the Nationalist victories over Chang Tso-lin.

In spite of the handicap of illness, Marshall Yen has personally directed the work of bringing peace to districts which have been harried by bandits and thieving soldiers for years. Unlike many officials, he has sought, no publicity for this splendid work, and this correspondent has learned some of the details only with some difficulty in Peking.

The northwest district of Chihli province was a no-man's land so long that roving bandits became supreme. It was dangerous for travelers and the brisk trade with Mongolia has been almost ruined. But Shansi soldiers have now penetrated this entire area, and foreigners and Chinese who have recently returned, report a remarkable improvement.

Andrews Praises Region Roy Chapman Andrews, the Mongolian explorer, states that in all his years in China, he has never seen the northwest of Chihli so well governed. Everywhere he went, he said Shansi soldiers greeted him with smiles and a cheer welcome. He had no trouble traveling here, although in previous years he has had to buy immunity from bandit leaders.

One of Marshall Yen's chief subordinates, who was given charge of one of the northwest districts, told this correspondent after repeated questioning, that he now believes the people of northwest Chihli can appreciate Shansi rule. Bandits have been gradually disarmed, he said, and Shansi garrisons established in all the principal towns and villages.

Worked Under Difficulties For the first time in years, he stated, and his assertion is supported by impartial accounts, the people of the northwest are able to go about their business without fear. The same civil government which

Big T. C. U. Half Is Out For The Rest Of Season, Injured

FORT WORTH.—There will be little or no scrimmage in the Texas Christian University Horned Frog football camp from here on out. Head Coach Matty Bell has decided that his boys are too far along to take chances of unnecessary injuries. With the breaking of Robert's crack sophomore half-back, the Frog mentors have decided to ease up, and opportunities for Old Man Injury to do damage to the team will be afforded only in games.

Clyde Roberson, end, who was injured in the Aggie clash, is back in shape and will open against the Baylor Bears Saturday. Other than Roberts, the whole Frog squad is ready for action. The big halfback is now de combat for the remainder of the season, removing one of Bell's best bets in the backfield.

The Frog Coach has practically decided on his starting line up for the Bear Tilt and the following list will appear on the program: Martin and Roberson, ends; Williams and Moore, tackles; Reynolds and Brumblow, guards; Akins, center; Grubbs, quarter; Toler and Morgan, halves; Griffith, fullback. This team will average 185. The backfield weighs in at 163.7 average and the line, tackle to tackle 188.

Cheer up, the election will soon be over and the papers will be printing news again.

$100 REWARD
REWARD FOR EVIDENCE OF VIOLATION OF ELECTION LAWS
I have received reports from some counties that officials are threatening not to count the split ballots marked for the Hoover Electors and the Democratic State and Local Candidates in next Tuesday's election. The Attorney General has held that this is a violation of the law.
The Federal Courts have held that any threat of intimidation intended to prevent a lawful voter from casting his ballot at such an election is a crime under the Federal Laws.
Out of funds contributed for that purpose, I hereby offer a reward of $100 for evidence resulting in the conviction of any election officers or other persons, violating the Federal or State Laws protecting the Presidential Election to be held in Texas on next Tuesday, November 6th, 1928.

Bulldog-Bobcat Game Will Be Elimination Contest in Oil Belt

Either One Team Or Another to Be Pushed to Front

Eyes of Oil Belt Turned Up on Lillard Field for the Feature Game of the Week.

The team that tied the Cisco Lobes and the team that tied the Abilene Eagles will clash Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Lillard gridiron in a game that should abound in action and thrills—a game that may produce the outstanding team in the race for the oil belt district championship. Neither team has been defeated and the results of Saturday's game will have a far-reaching effect on the ultimate winning of the district title.

San Angelo's leading Bobcats—on the basis of their moral victory and actual tie over Cisco—today rate as the most dangerous team in the district. If you say that 13-13 draw with the Lobes was a fluke, how do you explain that the Bobcats gained 50 yards more from scrimmage than the Big Dam team did? How do you explain that second touchdown the Bobcats put over—when they were trailing and gamely came from behind to knot the count? If that kind of playing is a fluke, then the Battle of Waterloo was a Mardi Gras and the Revolutionary war was a circus parade.

The team that outfought the Cisco Lobes—with their reputation that has been state-wide for the past five seasons—is not going to be a bit daunted at meeting the Lillard Bulldogs.

And those same Bulldogs are in none too good condition to face the fast and tricky attack of San Angelo. Garland Hinman, the 135-pound captain, was out on his feet in the Abilene game and he is still badly crippled. He may not start. Hammett, whose passing turned the tide last Friday, is in battered shape and will be seriously handicapped. Arkansas McLaughlin, who tore through the Eagle line, is another casualty and Bohannon is another.

On the other hand, the Bobcats have had two weeks' rest since the hard game with Cisco and are in splendid condition, with the possible exception of James, guard.

And the fact that Mollie Crawford Angelo's assistant coach, scouted Ranger in the Abilene game while Ranger has not scouted the Bobcats will give the invaders a big advantage. Crawford so thoroughly analyzed Ranger's plays that the Bobcats have worked a week in perfecting a defense and so confident are the Angelenos that the San Angelo Standard announced a day or two ago that the Bobcats would break up Ranger's passing attack.

News dispatches from San Angelo refer repeatedly to the Bobcats' aerial game. That may be a smoke screen to hide the type of attack that will be sprung in this game. It would not be surprising to see San Angelo flash a series of off-tackle plays and end runs—for with their speedy backfield these should prove effective especially if the Bulldogs are set to try to stop passes.

Who is going to win? If the Bulldogs play as hard as they did against Abilene, they stand a good chance. But, brother, any team that tied Cisco had better be considered seriously before the game and during the game—otherwise, you'll be considering them seriously after the game, when it will be too late.

A great flock of fans from Eastland, Cisco, Breckenridge, Strawn and other towns will be on hand for the game Saturday and an attendance of 4,000 is in prospect.

Alameda

Alameda school opened Monday with a very few in attendance.

Only a few people in this community got their peanuts thrashed before the rain. The most of the hay will be damaged to a great extent.

We are all mourning the loss of a dear friend and neighbor, Mrs. A. E. Martin, who died Monday evening at 6 o'clock. She was buried at the Alameda cemetery by her husband, who died two years ago. Rev. Cole Jackson of Moran, Texas, did the preaching.

Miss Margie Rodgers spent Sunday with Miss Effie and Clara Belle High of Ranger.

Singing at Alameda was well attended. We were very glad to have Mrs. Cooke, Mrs. Woods, Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Hubbard and also Miss Hazel Woods of Ranger with us and we invite them to be back with us on our next singing day.

Mr. and Mrs. Dock Watson and family, who have recently moved to New Mexico, arrived last Tuesday night to be at the bedside of her mother, Mrs. A. E. Martin, but it was to her sad disappointment her mother had already been buried.

J. M. Elliott and family of near Carbon visited C. M. Rodgers Sunday.

CUBAN GUIDES LICENSED

HAVANA.—All Havana guides will be examined by a special examining board and permitted to exercise their profession only if they can present a certificate of good conduct from the chief of police and letters of reference from persons of recognized morality, according to a decree signed by Mayor Miguel Mariano Gomez.

The action was taken, as the result of numerous complaints of robbery and blackmail made by American tourists each winter. The majority of the complaints stated that unscrupulous guides invited tourists to enter questionable places of entertainment and then separating them from their bank roll, either through out-and-out robbery or blackmail.

CLEVER VOLUMES POURING FROM THE PRESSES DAILY

By PAUL W. WHITE (United Press Feature Editor)

Genius of Mockery
One of the most eminently readable biographies of the year is Victor Thaddeus' "Voltaire, Genius of Mockery" (Brentano's).

Thaddeus has given us a brilliant study of a man who had an even more brilliant mind—a man who intellectually was so far ahead of his generation that present-day contemporary thought follows largely the ideas expressed by the sickly son of a Paris notary.

Nor has Thaddeus yielded to the craze of many modern biographers to debunk their subjects. True, he does show that Voltaire often lied, frequently became a tandy to curry favor and at times was guilty of the hypocrisy he so valiantly and energetically made war upon.

But on the whole the Voltaire in this volume is that magnificent rebel whose sneers and verbal thrusts awoke the consciousness of France (and indeed a great deal of the entire western world) to the fact that injustice reigned and shackles were upon the citizenry.

No Padding
One of the most simply told and most straightforward recent novels of the season is "Nothing Is Sacred" by Josephine Herbst. The novel (published by Coward-McCann) is the account of the life of a middle class family and their reactions to the one big dramatic event of their lives.

The people in this book live through the startling authenticity of their conversation, their revelatory actions and thoughts. "Nothing Is Sacred" is an unusually well done realistic novel written without adornment or padding.

P. D. F. R.
Although the letters P. D. F. R.—the title of Inez Haynes Irwin's new novel—do not reveal their full significance until the end of the book, that denouement is pure drama. A swiftly moving, thrilling story of youth today, Mrs. Irwin has imbued into her novel a rare spirit of originality. This hectic jazz age is seen through the eyes of Margaret Rhodes, a well-bred New England woman, returned to her home after 25 years in Africa with her scientist husband, now dead.

From her landing in New York—up to her triumph in saving her beautiful young niece from an unscrupulous man—the story is a masterly contrast of adjustment of two epochs and two fields of experience. In her African life Margaret Rhodes has succeeded in killing a lion—a woman-eater—who has devastated the villages. It is her lot to save another young woman from a predatory male here in this sophisticated age. The young woman is her niece—and how she does save her is an intensely fascinating story. With her customary understanding of human motives and with a rare sympathy Mr. Irwin gives a picture of the youthful smart set that stands out with vivid authenticity. Her background of Africa protruding into modern super-sophisticated New York is the word painting of a writer whose knowledge of her subject is genuine and convincing. The book is published by Harper's.

Other New Books
The story of the part played by the Philippine Constabulary in the pacification and development of the Philippines is related by Col. John R. White, who had 13 years of service in the Islands, in his book "Bullets and Bojos" (Century).

Told with impartiality and fairness to both the natives and the Americans, this book is enlivened in parts by adventurous tales of guerilla fighting in the Negros and Mindanao Islands. Unimpaired by any racial prejudice, Colonel White tells his story simply and clearly. General J. G. Harbord has written a foreword to the volume.

"From Kaw Teepee to Capitol, the Story of Charles Curtis" (Stokes) by Don C. Seltz is the life story of the Republican nominee for vice president of the United States.

Born on the Kaw Indian Reservation in Kansas, a great-grandson of Chief White Plume, the young Curtis lived with his tribe on the reservation until he decided to cast his lot with the white man. Seltz tells sympathetically of Curtis' early struggles and poverty.

FRENCH WIVES ACQUIRE WORK TO AID INCOME

Forty Per Cent Of Married Women Now Have Employment By United Press.

PARIS.—About forty per cent of French married women go out to work for their living, which explains why "détaché at the office" is no longer a purely male privilege here.

With the depreciated franc, the fact of the wife going to a job each day has become more and more accepted, so that most girls who marry in France do so with the expectation that after the honeymoon they will go back to the office, workshop or factory. That is necessary because the average weekly salary of the young Frenchman is about sixteen dollars and insufficient to keep two.

Therefore, the young wife who wants to keep herself smartly dressed must earn her "pin money."

That is all very well as far as it goes, but it is widely believed that the domestic menage suffers from the new regime. It is said that, as the wife finds many interests and companions apart from her husband who, in turn, has not the responsibility of hurrying home in case the little woman is lonely, so do young couples drift apart.

"The majority of young girls and boys married in Paris don't know what family life really is," declare critics, "and there is no doubt that many of these wives make the convenient excuse of office work when they want to spend an evening out in company other than their husband's."

It is certainly a fact that, because of their separate ties and interests, many young husbands and wives see little of each other—perhaps less than before marriage. "Bachelor wives" and "week end spouses" are the descriptions which the humorous reviewers are applying to this new type of young woman.

Both Stars, But Years Apart

The last time Mrs. Fannie D. Hall McCollin, right, appeared on the stage, a young girl named Claiborne Foster made her debut in the same play. The other day Miss Foster, who now is the star in a Broadway production, called at the Actors' Fund Home in Englewood, N. J., and found Mrs. McCollin. Here you see them sharing reminiscences and a box of candy.

A letter to Homer D. Wade, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce from W. G. Crush, passenger traffic manager of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad announces that the road mentioned will give specially low rates for this occasion. Mr. Crush's letter reads:

"We have provided for special low round trip rates to Waco, on this day round trip tickets being sold for all trains arriving in Waco on November 10, and good to leave Waco prior to midnight, November 12, thus giving practically three days in Waco for those taking advantage of this

HUB OF EASTLAND COUNTY

We are the largest city in the county—finest schools, churches and public buildings. Surrounded by land suitable for raising anything one could want.

WHY SHOULDN'T WE BELIEVE IN EASTLAND?

Some people carry the boasting spirit so far that their friends get tired of hearing them extolling the glories of their home town—but for every person of that kind, there are scores who go the opposite extreme. They seem to want to give the impression that they are superior to their surroundings, so they point out all the defects they clearly see in their home community.

But There is Nothing Winsome in This Spirit. The rewards of life go to the people who are sanguine and hopeful that they see everything around them in bright colors. Their hopeful spirit encourages their friends to do things, and a group of such folks will make any city go ahead.

That's what we have in Eastland and that's the kind of firms and merchants it takes to say, "We Believe in Eastland," and go on record as such—boasting, striving, forging ahead for a bigger, better Eastland, and are taking advantage of this unique method of co-operating with The Eastland Daily Telegram and are lining up for this Big Booster Page.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Sybil Thorne, lunching with Mabel Moore, her dearest friend, encounters Dolly Weston, who tells her excitedly that she has dreadful news of Valerie. Valerie West is the girl Tad Thorne married, and Tad is Sybil's adored brother. Sybil has never liked Valerie, and has suspected numerous smirch affairs.

Now Dolly tells her that Valerie is planning to desert Tad, and clope with a man from New Haven. At first Sybil is inclined to let Val go ahead, but Dolly and Mabel convince her that it would break Tad's heart, and persuade her to interfere. When Dolly makes a frantic declaration about the way men feel when their wives are unfaithful, Sybil decides to save Tad from whatever pangs Valerie might cause him.

Now go on with the story:
CHAPTER XXXV
Suddenly Sybil became amen-
"All right, Dolly," she said, "I won't tell Tad. And if Jack will drive us, I'll go down to New Haven tonight. Thanks for telling me about it, Dolly. You mean, well, I guess. Perhaps it's for the best. I'll see what I can do anyhow. Don't worry about my dragging you into it. And don't tell Dot Faxon's crowd."
Dolly turned wide eyes on her friends.
"Why, Sib?" she reproached gently, "don't you know you can trust me? I'm awfully fond of Val—really. Wild horses couldn't drag a word out of me. I'll run along now. You and Mrs. Moore will want to be making arrangements. Valerie will thank you some day for this."
Dolly winked back surprising tears, and powdered her nose resolutely.
"Good-by," she said. "You're good kids—both of you."
"My dear," said Mabel when she had gone, "that girl's been in a jam herself. And Tom Weston raised the devil. It's plain as the nose on your face. Did you ever know a girl to give herself away so?"
"I'll bet Tom had her on her knees. It's a wonder to me he ever took her back. But he put the fear of God in her, sure as you live. That's why she wants to save Val. She's been through the mill herself."
"Say, these modern wives! What's become of good old-fashioned morality? They make happiness their god. Then they sit in virtue's feces. No wonder they're discontented. The blind fools!"
Sybil sighed.
"It's a dizzy world, Mab. Have you seen Tom Weston lately? Old before his time. Grayer than his father. Lines like scars. Poor Tommy. If a fool woman can hurt a man that much, then, Mab, I'm going to bring Val home again."
"Coggin's on the Post Road is a nefarious place. Bantam as a circus. In the semi-privacy of crimson booths men and girls made love. Under a red and green striped awning an orchestra made strident noise. And in the little space between the double row of painted booths couples danced and laughed, and continued to make love."
Valerie raised her glass, and smiled provocatively into the flushed face so close to her own.
"Here's to the movies," she cried, "and fame!"
"Their glasses clinked."
"To Valerie West," he responded, gravely, "on the billboards!"
She dimpled demurely.
"I always did think," she admitted, "that I have a nice, euphonious name—effective, you know, for posters and electric lights. The girls at school used to say it sounded exactly like a movie star's. And I don't mean to brag. But, honestly, I do take the best pictures. They flatter me outrageously. Everyone says I photograph like Billy Dove."
"My dear," he protested, "you will make poor Billy look like a washout."
"Oh, Darl! You adorable flatterer." Then, starting speculatively into her empty glass—"You know, Darl, they say blond beauty fades soonest, but I don't think so—do you? I think it all depends on the woman herself."
"Dolly Weston's been running round for years, and she still looks like a china doll. And there's my sister-in-law, Sybil. She is awfully dark, and she's been through a whole lot. But there are lines when you'd swear she wasn't a day over 20."
"I knew a girl named Sybil once," he interrupted, "Whenever I think of her I take another drink."
He drew a flask from his pocket. "Ginger ale, Sweet?"
"Just a little. Did you love her, Darl?"
Valerie pouted.
"I think you're horrid."
"Well, you asked me."
"But you don't love her any more?"
"I'll say I don't! She walked out on me, Sweet. I'm off her for life. I hope she has lumps in her mashed potatoes."
"Oh, Darl, don't joke. Tell me about her?"
"That's all there is, old dear. The righteous Sybil smiled, and her well-known breath one night, and left me flat. Most outrageous thing ever happened to a man."
He reached for her glass, and his fingers found her wrist. Dull red suffused his face, and his eyes burned with an unholy fire.

"Val, I never wanted a woman so much in all my life."
"How about Sybil?"
"The devil with Sybil!"
A girl in a crimson skating suit pelted cotton snowballs. A girl in a pink tarlatan kicked and whirled. And a girl in a rush skirt shimmed. Waiters hurried about, depositing small bottles of rank liquor under folded napkins.
Ten o'clock... Eleven o'clock. The place was wild and noisy. The girl in the rush skirt kissed half heads impartially.
The girl in tarlatan was soaking wet and swearing roundly. Someone had ducked her in the iridescent fountain.
Sybil and the Moores had driven from Boston directly to the Ramseys in New Haven. Briefly Sybil introduced herself to Valerie's hostess. A plump creature swathed in satin, dripping monkey fur, hennaed and facialed and pucked. A matron of glib phrases.
"Poor Val!" she exclaimed volubly. "We actually DROVE her out this evening. To Gooch's—such a jolly place. Mr. Ramsey had a beastly headache. We were all going, but the very last minute—"
An expression of conventional concern succeeded Mrs. Ramsey's fixed smile. "Nothing's wrong at home, I hope?"
Sybil chuckled maliciously. "Oh, no—we're just giving Val a little surprise party. She will be SURPRISED, won't she, Mrs. Ramsey? Of course you'll phone and have her paged. But we'll drive fast—and perhaps we'll get there first."
Mrs. Ramsey elevated her tweaked brows. Flushed apoplectically. But Sybil had flown.
"A little speed, Jack! Step on it!"
Through the frosty night they drove like mad.
"It's like the movies," giggled Mabel, snuggling warmly against her husband's shoulder. "Sib, the ingenue lead, and you're the hero, Jackie, rescuing the innocent in her from the villain at Gooch's."
Presently they were there. Standing in the doorway. Life and love surged by, staggering sometimes as they passed. Youth in youth's arms. And youth in age's embrace. Pretty rouged cheeks against heavy jowls, and the corrugated skin of old dancing fools. Tragic-comedy. The business of having a good time.
Sybil's glance embraced the great dining room.
"There they are—over in the corner booth. Val's facing us, powdering her nose."
"Like a flash she had left them. A slim little figure in a plaid sport skirt and beaver jacketette, threading her way between the dancers."
"Sybil! What are you doing here?"
Valerie swayed a bit unsteadily. Clutching the table cloth, dragging the china perilously.
"God Almighty!"
The man with her was on his feet. White as death. Facing Sybil across the empty glasses and the stained linen. The words were coming from dry lips, choked from a palsied throat—
WHERE DID YOU COME FROM?

Name It and Win It!
Name it and you may have it, says John W. Nicely, superintendent of the poultry department of the Oklahoma State Fair, at Oklahoma City. This queer bird is a cross between a Rhode Island Red hen and a guinea rooster. Its owner insists on being unidentified. It moves like a guinea and makes a noise like a rusty saw in a hard pine board.

Did You Ever Stop To Think?
That electric lights are no longer a novelty in business had a necessity, and when properly used are a great aid in selling. Stores that have well lighted windows attract much attention from passers-by.

If merchandise is well displayed, the lights well arranged and the stocks well advertised in the newspapers, business is sure to be better day by day.
Everybody likes to look at well lighted, well trimmed windows; they create a desire to possess—and a desire to possess means more sales.
All stores should be attractively lighted. Each store window should be lighted differently from that of its neighbors. The electric light companies and electrical supply dealers, if called upon, can help in arranging lights.
Newspaper advertising is the greatest pulling power known to bring customers to a store, but it takes well lighted, attractively displayed stocks to help complete the sales.
Window shoppers and newspaper readers are the customers of today and tomorrow.

NO CITY FLAG.
MILWAUKEE.—A perplexing situation has arisen at the city hall due to the fact that William George Bruce, one of the official delegates to the launching of the new Hamburg-American line motorship "Milwaukee" in Germany has received a telegram from officers of the line asking that the official city flag of Milwaukee be brought to Hamburg to be used in the ceremony.
Although a design for a city flag was submitted to the council in 1917 the matter has never been passed by that body. A banner composed of alternate angular bars of blue and green with a red circle in the center containing a cream colored letter "M" is being considered by the city fathers, although some wag has suggested that a beer barrel rampart would be a more fitting design.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Iowa has 13 electoral votes, Wisconsin 13, Minnesota 12, Kansas 10, Nebraska 8, North Dakota 5 and South Dakota 5.
Hoover undoubtedly will carry Iowa and Kansas, Wisconsin is very likely to vote for Smith. Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska has come out for Smith, and the result in Minnesota, Nebraska and the Dakotas will be difficult to forecast.
Farm relief, prohibition and religion have been made the most important issues in this great agricultural section. It is a nominally Republican region, but it is most irregularly Republican, for it has sent to the Senate La Follette, Norris, Shipsteads, Fraxiera, Howell's Breugharts, in fact by far the greater portion of the Senate's progressive bloc.
In the five states called doubtful, Smith is running strong and the Democrats have claimed all of them at one time or another. Representatives of the farmers in those states led the "farm revolt" before, and at the Kansas City convention.

Some of these leaders, notably non-office holders, have bolted from Hoover. Now it is up to the farmers themselves. There has been some defection, of course, but "farm revolts" are notoriously unreliable, as was proved in 1924, and the Republicans say they aren't worrying in 1928. They admit that Smith strengthened himself on his western invasion, but they are sure that he didn't change anywhere near as many votes as he needed.
It may be significant to point out that the combined Davis-La Follette vote in 1924 was 25,000 more than the Coolidge vote in Nebraska, 3000 more in North Dakota, 210,000 more in Wisconsin, 25,000 less in Minnesota, and 1000 more in South Dakota. Figuring one is confronted with the puzzle of figuring just how many La Follette votes Smith can get, how many Republican votes he will win and how many Democratic votes he will lose.

Wisconsin has shown affection for Smith from the start. Senator Blaine's declaration for Smith was an encouraging boost. Senator La Follette's silence is regarded as tacit acquiescence with Blaine. Nebraska is the state most likely to be affected by the announcement of Senator Norris. Democrats claim Smith has appealed to most of her German voters all along. The Lutheran Synod has declared against intolerance and the State Federation of Labor is out for Smith. Smith's Omaha farm relief speech sounded good to many Nebraska farmers. But Senator Howell and Governor McMillen have been campaigning for Hoover, and the Norris delay in declaring for Smith encouraged organization leaders.

Smith's anti-prohibition attitude and his religion are serious handicaps to him in those regions where farm discontent might otherwise turn the tide for him. Only Norris could deliver Nebraska to Smith, and perhaps not even he.
The great handicap in the farm states from the Smith point of view is that in ordinary years there is no Democratic party to speak of. Minnesota, for instance. There the national organization has undertaken to create an emergency machine, sending Senators Wheeler of Montana and Wagner of New York to the scene.

WASHINGTON—Presidential campaigns never again will be what they used to be.
William Jennings Bryan traveled 18,000 miles in the campaign of 1896 and spoke as often as he could persuade the engineer to stop. But it won't happen again.

For several reasons. First, of course, the radio has changed everything. Today the candidate can reach millions, from one end of the country to the other. If campaign speeches decide elections, then radio and the newspapers will provide that decisive factor rather than personal stump speeches of the candidates regarded from the standpoint of their effect within carshot.

Again, political parties have come to realize that it is important to keep their candidate in good health. The horrible possibility that a candidate might collapse or even die during a campaign, leaving his party in an unprecedentedly unfortunate position, has often been brought home to them.

Another reason Bryan's record is not likely to be beaten is that he was only 36 years old, and possessed of powerful physique. Hoover and Smith are no crickets, but each is 18 years older than Bryan. It probably will be a long time before we have another 36-year-old candidate.

The most cogent reason of all for the curtailment of speaking programs for the candidates again gets us back to the radio. It explains why Governor Smith has not been making a far more arduous campaign and accepting the many requests he has had for additional speeches.
A candidate has only so many good speeches in his system—so many different speeches, that is. There are only certain issues on which he dares to touch at all.

But over the radio he can't make the same speech twice. If he does, most of his audience is likely to claim that they've heard that one before and turn the dial. That your correspondent judged from a few nights of listening in, was the main trouble with Borah's speaking tour in Smith's wake.

It is now being explained that

ASPIRIN

You doubtless depend on Aspirin to make short work of aches, but remember that it's just as dependable on many other pains! Neuralgia? Many have found relief from Bayer Aspirin. Or for toothache; an effective remedy of any age. Whether to break up a cold, or relieve you from neuritis or deep-seated rheumatism, there's only one like Bayer Aspirin. Just make certain it's genuine Bayer on the box and on every tablet. All druggists give directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin—it does NOT affect the heart.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Elberfeld.

What Will the Other Driver Do?

If the driver behind knew what the driver ahead was going to do, automobile accidents would greatly decrease in number.
A set of "Driver's Signals", standard the country over, is doing much to prevent accidents on city streets and country highways. The use of these hand signals, as illustrated below, promotes safety and adds to the pleasures of motoring.

Make Every Week Safety Week

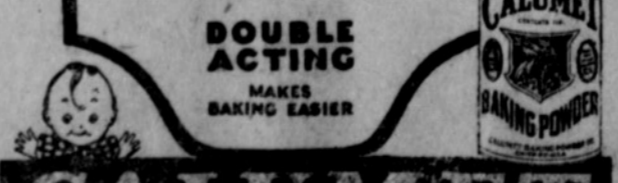

Every 24 hours, automobile accidents in the United States claim an estimated average of 2,360 persons killed or seriously injured, an astounding total of 850,000 casualties a year. Enough people to populate a city of metropolitan size! A loss of economic wealth—exclusive of property damage and insurance—of $700,000,000.
Care in driving and walking, as suggested in the annual observation of "National Safety Week", must be observed at all times, if this huge loss of life, limb and wealth is to be reduced. Accidents are caused by discourtesy, carelessness, inattention and violation of traffic laws. The peak hour for accidents is between 5 and 6 p. m. daily.
The Magnolia Petroleum Company with its 15,000 employees and hundreds of trucks and automobiles, is vitally interested in reducing the number of automobile accidents. Every Magnolia employee is a driver. To this end, makes a practice to observe every "National Safety Week".

NEA New Orleans Bureau
Despite the fact that he lost both arms in a railroad accident, Paul Behne, of New Orleans, is a capable artist. He has trained himself to draw by holding brush or pencil in the elbow-crotch of his left arm, which was cut off just below the elbow. Here is Behne and a sample of his work.

WEST WARD P. T. A. PLAN FOR SCHOOL BENEFIT

A series of programs are planned for the coming school month at the West Ward School, the first one being presented Wednesday morning from 9 to 10:30 o'clock by grades 1A and 2B, under the direction of Miss Lilla Moran, the teacher, and Mrs. Frank Caywell, the "room mother."

A novel feature in the Parent-Teacher work, has been arranged that of having these programs, presented by individual rooms in order to bring about a closer acquaintance and acquaintance, between the mothers of the children in this particular room with their teacher and with themselves.

The room mother idea is being introduced in Eastland for the first time through this extension of the West Ward Parent Teacher Association work, and is proving very successful.

In spite of the inclement day, sixteen mothers were interested visitors and enjoyed the following program:

Song, "Good Morning"—By the children.

Talk, by the Rev. W. T. Turner, on "Making the Best of Your School Opportunities."

Bible Story, Feeding the Multitude, was most interestingly given by Mrs. W. T. Turner.

Prayer.

Children then engaged in the competitive baseball game in number work, 2B grade boys and girls.
