Top Republicans Begin Vote Hunt

Prize Is Control Of 84th Congress

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 —UP— The fight for control of the 84th congress is off to a roaring start with Republicans warning that a Democratic win will "sabotage" the Eisenhower administration which Democrats say has flopped.

Two leading GOP campaigners—Vice President Richard M. Nixon and House Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr. — hit the campaign trail Wednesday to spark their party's bid to retain and expand its present slender hold on Congress.

Although the official Democratic campaign kickoff is scheduled for a party rally at Indianapolis, Ind., Friday and Saturday, 1952 presidential candidate Adlai E. Stevenson warmed up Wednesday night with a blistering attack on the GOP administration.

Both Hit Sabotage Theme

Both Nixon and Martin bore down on the theme that a Democratic victory at the polls on Nov. 2 would wreck President Eisenhower's program. And both lashed out at claims that the Democrats have or will support his program.

Nixon told a Republican rally at Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday night that the election of a Democratic congress "in November" would "mark the beginning of the end for the Eisenhower program in January." He said a Democratic congress would "torpedo this magnificent work — now at its midway."

"Don't let the opposition candidates, as they clutch at our popular president's coat-tails, fool you with promises that they will 'support' him," Nixon said. "Ask them if they will vote for the Republican leadership on Jan. 3."

Election of a Democratic congress in November would pass the all-important committee chairmanships to Democrats. At present, the Republicans have a one-vote edge over the Democrats in the Senate and five in the House.

Stevenson Hits Hard

Stevenson, in a speech at Cincinnati, Ohio, swung hard at what he termed the "failure" of the administration during its first two years. He ticked them off as loss of American influence in the world, the breakup of western unity, high living costs, low farm prices and increased unemployment.

Martin said at New Brunswick, N.J., that Mr. Eisenhower's program will be "sabotaged and ripped to shreds" if the Democrats control the next Congress. He said they would try to "embarrass and hamstring" the administration to lay the groundwork for the election of a Democratic president in 1956.

The House speaker heaped praise on the Republican stewardship, saying that "seldom in history has an administration done so much in so short a time to add to the personal health, happiness and safety of the American people."

Stevenson Initiates Demo Bid

Quips, 'GOP Not Party, But Brawl'

CINCINNATI, Sept. 16 —UP— Adlai E. Stevenson told a Democratic rally here Wednesday night that the party's gains in the Maine election convinced him Americans were tired of the Republican "diet" of "niceness, nonsense and nastiness."

At the same time, the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee labeled the Republican party "not a party, it's a brawl."

"The ugliest of our exhibitionists and the bitterest criticism of our public policy in two years has come from Republicans," he told 1,500 Hamilton county Democrats. He pointed to "the degrading Army - McCarthy spectacle that has divided the nation and revolted the world," and to the recent difference of opinion between President Eisenhower and Sen. William Knowland (R-Calif.) over whether this country should break diplomatic relations with Russia.

The former Illinois governor charged that the Republicans dealt in "slogans, doubletalk and deceit," which he described as "the unsound dollars of politics." And he added that "evidently the coin of our political debate is to be further debased" in the campaign this fall.

McCarthy May Have Rich Field

HOUSTON, Sept. 16 —UP— Wildcat Glenn McCarthy made it official Thursday. He may have himself another multimillion dollar oil field in Bolivia.

McCarthy telegraphed the Houston Press Thursday: "Well, Los Monos No. 2 finally completed, excellent oil well. Color of oil green. Forty - six gravity. Choke five-eighths inch. Gas-oil ratio 800 cubic feet per barrel; oil flowing rate of 100 barrels a day; still cleaning. Indications are that it is increasing on different chokes to find optimum rate of flow."

The wire was the first official word on the McCarthy venture since he went into the Bolivian jungles months ago to recoup a lost fortune. Up to now, rumors instead of oil have flowed freely.

FIRST PERSON TO DECIPHER THIS CAN HAVE THE WALLET

OCONOMOWOC, Wis., —UP— Local police had their pick of six states Thursday in their efforts to return a lost wallet.

The wallet, which a card says belongs to Edmund Kofman, was found on a highway near Highland, Ind., by Adrian Ooms of Seattle, Wash., who dropped it off here. The owner, police discovered, hails from Dorchester, Mass., and currently is en route from Newton Center, Mass., to Denver, Colo., in a rented trailer owned by a man in Fort Worth, Texas.

Red Guns Pound Nationalist Island

TAIPEI, Formosa, Sept. 16 —UP— Communist Chinese guns stepped up their shelling of a tiny Nationalist-held island in the Tachen group 250 miles north of Formosa, Nationalist authorities said Thursday.

The Nationalist defense ministry said Red artillerymen on Tumen island fired about 22 rounds against Yikingshan before Nationalist defenders silenced the enemy.

Military spokesmen said the Communists had shelled the tiny island several times recently but apparently stepped up the tempo Wednesday.

The spokesmen said two small Communist motor junks were sunk during the past 24 hours, one near Amoy and another in the Tachen area.

Several hundred rockbound islands make up the Tachen group, and about 200 are occupied by the Communists. Between the Na-

Patino Heir Not Kidnaped

PARIS, Sept. 16 —UP— Fabulously rich Madame Antenor Patino said Thursday she has custody of the child her son-in-law, British hotel heir Jimmy Goldsmith, "stupidly" reported as "kidnaped."

Goldsmith told a press conference earlier that his ailing four-month-old daughter was missing and he believed her kidnaped.

He said the child born to him and the late Maria Isabella Patino, youthful heiress to Bolivian tin millions, was in danger of death if she did not receive prompt medical care.

Goldsmith made his charges as it was learned that his dead wife's parents had started court proceedings asking custody of the baby, Isabel Marcelle Christina.

Thus, it appeared that what Goldsmith termed a "kidnaping" might be the start of a fight for the child's custody.

Madame Patino, the Duchess of Durcal and estranged wife of Bolivian tin millionaire Antenor Patino, confirmed the possibility of a fight with a statement.

Through her lawyer, she announced that she had taken charge of her tiny granddaughter.

Rogers On Area Tour

Rep. Walter Rogers, of Pampa, is spending today in Dumas and Friday in Borger.

The congressman took a farm tour in Dumas at 8 a.m. today and was engaged the rest of the day in appointments. He will stay in Dumas overnight.

Friday morning he will be in Borger to address the Kiwanis Club at noon and have appointments in the afternoon. He will be back in Pampa Friday night.

The Fall Festival in Panhandle is on his schedule for Saturday morning and he is expected back in his Pampa office in the Comb-Worley Building Monday morning.

Rogers was in Amarillo Wednesday where he had appointments in the afternoon and an evening meeting concerning the Amarillo Air Force Base.

Texas Will Appeal Segregation Edict

AUSTIN, Sept. 16 —UP— Attorney General John Ben Shepperd Wednesday put Texas among the seven states which will file briefs with the U.S. Supreme Court on the question of racial segregation in the public schools.

"We feel we should file a brief in order to properly present the Texas position on this question," Shepperd said. He said the question of a brief had been under constant and exhaustive study for several months and he had conferred with a number of educators, teachers, legislators and state officials before deciding to file it.

The state's chief legal officer said he didn't think filing the brief would not bind Texas in any decree stemming from the May 17 decision by the high court that racial segregation in schools is unconstitutional. That decision involved four states and the District of Columbia.

"The Texas segregated school system is unique and most Texas citizens think Texas should be allowed to work out her own problems," Shepperd said. "We will urge this view in our brief." An aide said the "uniqueness" referred to by the attorney general meant conditions varied widely between such sections as East Texas, where there is a large Negro population, and West Texas, where there are few Negroes.

Shepperd said the court's May decision hinted machinery might be set up to take evidence in various states. He said he hoped this would be true in Texas, as it would allow state and local authorities to present their case. Tennessee, Florida, North Carolina, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Maryland previously indicated they would file briefs by an Oct. 1 deadline which the Supreme Court set. Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana will not intervene in the case.

Gov. Allan Shivers pledged during his successful renomination campaign that he would maintain segregated schools as long as he is Texas' chief executive.

Dulles Talks Rearmament Of Germany

BONN, Germany, Sept. 16 —UP— U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles flew to this West German capital Thursday for talks with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer on rearming Germans under a new defense plan.

The Dulles-Adenauer conversations were expected to center mainly around a British proposal which would bring West Germany into a defense pact which links Britain, to West Europe.

Dulles' fast-moving schedule called for discussions in London Friday with British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden before returning to the United States Saturday.

In a recorded radio-TV report to the nation, broadcast Wednesday night, Dulles warned Red China that "powerful" U.S. air and naval forces stand ready to strike at "any aggressor" in the western Pacific.

He also advised both Republican and Democratic election campaigners to "stop at the water's edge" in debating foreign policy so the United States can face the world "as a United Nation."

Dulles' radio-TV report to the nation on the new Southeast Asian Treaty Organization created at Manila last week was recorded so he could catch the plane for Europe.

Oil Progress Week On C of C Agenda

The Oil and Gas Committee of the Chamber of Commerce meets tonight at 7:30 to make plans for observing Oil Progress Week in Pampa Oct. 10 through 16, George Cree, Jr., chairman said Thursday.

Last year's extensive program was awarded a certificate of merit. It is not known whether the contemplated program will be as elaborate as the one presented in 1953, E. O. (Red) Wedgeworth, manager of the C of C said.

Ag Department Sets Grain Support Cuts

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 —UP— The Agriculture Department plans to cut price support levels on 1955 feed grain and possibly other crops which have just been freed from production controls, it was learned Thursday.

The cutbacks will not be announced before the November elections, the informed source said, unless present plans are changed. Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson Wednesday eliminated a "total acreage allotment" program which would have limited secondary crop planting next year on farms with more than 10 acres of land idled by production controls on so-called basic crops.

Benson's action was cited in many quarters as a result of pressure from GOP farm belt congressmen who reportedly were unhappy about the initiation of the toughest farm control program in history during an election year.

Benson told reporters at a news conference he himself did not know of any "pressure." He said he had "discussed" the control problem with congressmen, however, who felt it would be a hardship on one-crop farmers by denying them cash crop production on idled land.

City To Start Pest 'Fogging'

Those flies that have been buzzing around your nose the last week are getting "fogged" and should be giving any more trouble.

Beginning Monday, they will get the "spray" treatment, according to City-County Sanitarian L. E. West.

But if the flies are still around after Sept. 25, it appears it will be a "buzzing" winter, because that is the day the city's annual fogging-spraying program is scheduled to end, West said late this morning.

The city's sprayer broke down last week, West continued, pointing out that that may have been the reason for the increase in the fly population. The sprayer went back to fly duty the first of the week, however.

Pampans have not been cooperating in the covering of trash cans this year as they did in 1953. West went on. There is an ordinance prohibiting the leaving of trash cans open. No one has been prosecuted on it this year, though.

The city sprays one week and fogs the next during the summer. West said surrounding communities have also been plagued with flies and other bugs more this summer than usual. It's the humidity and the general weather, he said.

High And The Mighty U.S. Has Monopoly On Tall Buildings

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Empire State building may be about to lose its distinction as the tallest building in the world. Its rival, a proposed new office building in Manhattan, is quite naturally an American product. Nowhere else in the world have architects and builders used the dimension of height with such spectacular success. This is the second of a series.

By ROBERT ZIMMERMAN
NEW YORK, Sept. 16 —UP— If a 1,500-foot skyscraper is built as planned over the site of Grand Central terminal in New York, it will add a few more feet to a building record that is already safely in American hands.

River Bridge 42 Per Cent Complete

Work on the Canadian River Bridge, between Pampa and Perryton, today was an estimated 42 per cent complete with the end of pile-driving scheduled for next week.

Resident highway engineers late this morning reported work was underway on Bent No. 6. There are 41 bents — rows of piling — being put up and they are working backward from No. 41 to No. 1.

Once work on the bents is finished, engineers pointed out, the pouring of web walls and putting the caps on the bents will occur. Actually, that work is being done right along.

Next item on the bridge agenda is the hanging of structural steel, when the bridge "will begin to look like a bridge." It has been estimated the bridge will be completed by April.

Gasoline Price Cut In Houston

HOUSTON, Sept. 16 —UP— Motorists beat a path to north Houston Thursday to get in on a price-cutting skirmish that could lead to an all-out gasoline price war.

Drivers were telling attendants at three major service stations to "fill 'er up" and saving, thus for, two cents a gallon on either regular or premium gasoline. "Self-service" and "cut-rate" outlets were selling gas at as much as eight cents a gallon below major brands.

ROBBERY SCENE

A lone gunman walked into the branch office of the Bank of New Mexico in Albuquerque Tuesday, held a gun on the manager, robbed the bank of $111,168 and then locked the employees in the vault. Bank manager Adriano Salazar and Sadie Renfro examine the empty safe in the bank's vault. Robbery is believed to be the first in Albuquerque's history.

Optimists To Stage Kid Boxing Matches

The Pampa Optimist Club, which has taken over the Pampa Boys Club activities, made formal plans for conducting the program this winter at the weekly meeting last night.

The club will hold a "boxing league" this fall and winter. The boxers will be divided up into a six-team league.

Sponsors for four of the teams have already been named. They are Elmer's Super Market, First National Bank, Spokesman and Panhandle Insurance. The other two sponsors are due to be named today.

Coaches for the six teams were selected at last night's meeting. They were Ollie Wilhelm, Bill Cooper, Foster White, Jack Robinson, Tommie Ellis and Clay Crossland.

A coaching school for the above coaches will be held next Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Johnny Campbell and T. J. Watt, former Golden Gloves, will serve as the school instructors. The school will be held at 7:30 p.m. on each of the above evenings.

Ora James is the chairman of the Optimist boxing program.

MONOPOLY

(Continued from page one) feet is surpassed by 28 buildings in New York alone, by five buildings in Chicago, by at least one building in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dallas, Detroit, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Toledo, Ohio, and Columbus, Ohio, and by the First National Bank of St. Paul, Minn., if you count the 100-foot sign on top of it.

In all of Great Britain the highest structure is the 400-foot spire of Salisbury cathedral, which is shorter than the state capitol at Lincoln, Neb.

Russians Can't Claim And the skyscraper is one thing the Russians can never say they invented. Their closest copy is a 32-story Moscow University building that rises 443 feet, or about the height of the First National Bank in Oklahoma City. It is outdistanced in height by 112 buildings in 25 American cities.

Before World War II the Soviet government announced plans to build a new palace of the Soviets in Moscow that would be 75 feet higher than the Empire State building. But steel for the structure was unavailable during the war and the project has never been resumed. The site today lies vacant surrounded by a wooden fence.

The 700-year-old St. Stephen's Cathedral in Vienna is the tallest structure in Austria at 443 feet, but is not quite as tall as the Louisiana capitol at Baton Rouge. The tallest office building in Scandinavia will be the new 28-story, 280-foot tax bureau in Stockholm, but there are 14 buildings higher than that in Detroit alone.

The Grand Central skyscraper that financier Robert R. Young wants to build for the New York Central Railroad would take over from the Empire State as the tallest building in the world and would have more floor space than Chicago's Merchandise Mart, which now ranks as the largest privately-owned building ever constructed.

No Challenge to Pentagon But the Pentagon in Washington will not be challenged as the world's "largest" building. Though it is only five stories tall it has a floor area of 6.5 million square feet and covers 34 acres, making it larger than any palace, church or public building in the world.

St. Peter's Basilica in Rome, the largest church in Christendom, covers only four acres. The Mohammedan Mosque at Mecca encloses five acres but much of it is open court. Probably the only building in modern times that could have matched the Pentagon in size was the palace of Shah Jahan erected at Delhi, India, in the 17th century. It enclosed 300 acres and actually covered 50 acres without including the gardens and court-

Mrs. Bob Vail Describes European Visit To Rotary

Most of the people of Europe are friends of America, was the conclusion Mrs. Bob Vail, wife of a Cabot Co. executive, expressed yesterday when she spoke before the weekly luncheon meeting of the Pampa Rotary Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Vail recently returned from three-months stay in Europe where Vail, head of Cabot's engineering department, worked in the carbon black industry of both England and Germany.

Mrs. Vail pointed out the difficulties of a tourist in attempting to analyze and appraise the many facets of European life and viewpoint. Too often, Mrs. Vail said, hurried views and misconceptions plague understanding, which is so important in cooperative endeavor.

Part of the Vail junket included a hurried plane trip through Southern Europe, touching Italy and then to Spain. Mrs. Vail commented on marked contrast between the countryside and people of Central Europe as against Southern Europe. She said she felt that nature just didn't endow Southern Europe as richly as her neighbors to the north, and as a result there seemed to be more poverty and hardship.

Guests at the Rotary meeting were John Rankin, R. J. Rust, Walter Rogers and George Casti.

Third Special Duval County Judge Named

SAN DIEGO, Tex., Sept. 16-UP - A Houston judge became the third special judge in six months to preside over the stormy 79th Judicial District Tuesday.

Judge A. C. Winborn of Harris county's Third Criminal District court was sent to the district on temporary assignment. He succeeds Judge Maxwell Welch of Bowie county, who served as special judge after the resignation last month of Judge A. S. Broadfoot of Bonham.

Broadfoot was named special judge after the Texas Supreme Court on March 17 removed Judge C. Woodrow Laughlin of Alice on misconduct charges. Laughlin won nomination to his old post on the July primary and is slated to return to the bench in January.

The first matter on Winborn's docket is a motion by the Duval county grand jury that four witnesses called by the jury be held in contempt. The jury reported the four refused to answer questions and invoked the Fifth Amendment.

The four are County Treasurer F. Saenz, Jr., School Supt. R. L. Adame, County Democratic Chairman J. C. King and a San Diego garage owner, Vidal Garcia. All are backers of political boss George Parr.

Judge Welch dismissed similar motions against King and Garcia on Sept. 3, but the grand jury then filed new motions, based on different points of law.

Winborn was assigned to the four county 79th District by Judge Max M. Rogers, presiding judge of the Second Judicial District.

Top Stars Enthused Over 'New' Medium

By JACK GAVER
NEW YORK, Sept. 16—UP—Helen Hayes and Frederic March, two of the all-star cast for "The Royal Family" to be seen Sept. 15 as the first of the new CBS dramatic series, "Best of Broadway," have some interesting things to say about TV and the theater.

Miss Hayes regards TV as the "new road" whereby a player can reach audiences throughout the country.

"The Royal Family" will be seen live on a network of 99 stations," she said. "In this list of 99 is every audience I have ever appeared before — and a good many more."

March finds that television combines a lot of the best of such other mediums as stage, screen and radio.

"Television calls for a sustained performance—as does the stage," he explained. "That's good. Television allows a certain mobility, with several cameras, with close-ups and medium shots — as does film. That's good, too. And television provides a great, immediate audience — as does radio. That, also, is good."

"On the debit side, as far as the actor is concerned, I can think of only one real criticism of television. It is so blasted ephemeral. A few rehearsals... you're on the air... one performance... and that's the end."

One of radio-TV's oldest programs went back on the air Saturday night — "Your Hit Parade" on NBC-TV.

This was the start of the program's fifth television season. It has been 20 years since it originated as a radio program.

The principals are the same except for Dorothy Collins — Raymond Scott leading the orchestra and Gisele Mackenzie, Snooky Lanson, Polly Bergen and Russell Arms handling the vocals. Miss Bergen substitutes for Miss Collins for the first 13 weeks. Miss Collins, wife of Scott, is expecting a baby soon.

Quick Film Job

One of the fastest jobs of preparing films for a regular television series that is not a news program, will be carried on all fall out in Los Angeles. It involves the weekly football forecasts of Norman Sper, who has been picking the winners for 24 years and is credited with a mark of 80 per cent accuracy.

The 15-minute programs will be put together each Saturday night, after the day's results are in, and will include predictions of top games of the following Saturday. It will include film clips of plays involving the teams for which forecasts are made, with Sper pointing out strength and weakness, the major basis on which he selects winners.

Prints of each program then will be shipped quickly around the country to key points for use by more than 127 stations on the Friday evenings before the big games.

Border Crime Probers Start Work Friday

EL PASO, Sept. 16—UP—A Senate Judiciary subcommittee will open hearings Friday into reported border crime conditions, including narcotics traffic from Mexico.

Investigators for the subcommittee arrived in El Paso Monday.

"There seems to be considerable quantities (of narcotics) coming across the border," James Bobo, subcommittee counsel, said. He said that if narcotics are coming into this country from Mexico, then "they are available for juveniles."

Other Choice Programs

Martha Wright resumes her delightful 15-minute TV program of songs for the ABC network Sunday after a vacation period.

"You Are There" on CBS recreated the Oklahoma land run of 1889 Sunday.

"Toast of the Town" emanated from Hollywood Sunday. It was another in the biographical series, involving the film career of Darryl F. Zanuck, production head of 20th Century-Fox. Many of the movie company's stars appeared on the show.

High Plains Crop Prospects Improved

AUSTIN, Sept. 16—UP—Crop prospects improved slightly during August on the High Plains, the El Paso valley area and in upper coastal counties but declined in other sections of the state, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported Tuesday.

The USDA's crop reporting board, in a general crop report as of Sept. 1, said prospects improved over Aug. 1 for grain sorghum, rice and broomcorn but that "somewhat smaller" cotton, corn, hay and Irish potato crops now are indicated.

Rainfall was less than three-fourths normal for the state during August, with above-normal rains falling only in the northern high plains and Trans-Pecos areas, the USDA said.

The USDA forecast cotton production for Texas on Sept. 1 at 3,375,000 bales. Reduced prospects in North Central, North and East Texas and from dry-land acreage in the northwest were largely offset by higher production indicated for southern areas and irrigated cotton in the northwest and Trans-Pecos.

els, compared with 55,198,000 bushels in 1953.

However, peanut prospects remained poor. Production of 102,500,000 pounds was forecast, only 57 per cent of last year's crop and 36 per cent of average.

Record Rice Crop

A record rice crop of 16,430,000 100-pound bags was forecast by the USDA, which said both acreage and yield per acre were the highest of record.

All-hay production was estimated at 1,522,000 tons, 11 per cent below the record harvest of 1953 and 2 per cent below average.

The USDA said a prospective sweet potato crop of 1,485,000 bushels was the third lowest of record. The 45-bushel yield per acre now indicated equals the record-low yield harvested in 1952.

Broomcorn production was placed at 5,200 tons, slightly under last year's 5,300 tons, but 19 per cent below average.

The USDA reported Texas' citrus crop weathered July and August in "good condition" although fruit growth was checked "a little due to high temperatures."

Swim Emblems To Be Given

Red Cross will distribute to Gray County Schools 99 certificates and emblems to those who successfully completed the summer water safety program, Mrs. Libbie Shotwell, executive secretary of the local Red Cross Chapter, said today.

The awards, to be distributed by school principals, will be made to 55 youngsters in the beginners' group, 15 intermediates, eight swimmers, 17 junior life savers, and four senior life savers.

"One-sixth of all the children in the summer program received achievement certificates. It certainly is a good average," Mrs. Shotwell said.

Earlier this week Miss Martha Montgomery of the Pampa Red Cross water safety program, accompanied by Mrs. Shotwell, presented at the Lefors Lions Club meeting a program on "Water Safety For Your Community."

Following the program life saving certificates were awarded seven youngsters.

Junior life saving awards went to Mark Braly, Ross Hunt, John Kyle, David D. Lewis, Dickie Spence, and Calvin Stracener.

MISS AMERICA

Lee Ann Meriwether, "Miss America of 1954", smiles happily as she poses with her trophy in Atlantic City. The 19-year-old beauty from San Francisco entered pageant as Miss California.

There is no escape for a TV performer. Everywhere, fans. Judson Laire, "Mama's" Papa, went to Europe on his vacation. The CBS-TV network doesn't extend to Europe, so Laire figured he could go without worrying too much about wearing out his arm giving autographs. Little did he know.

One night he was in Rome, attending the opera. He was recognized and, poor, there goes anonymity. It seems the opera was being attended by hundreds of Americans. All through Europe, Laire found himself surrounded by vacationing Americans. He came home, his autograph arm weary.

Next summer, if he can get reservations, he's going to try a little mountain resort in one of the craters of the Moon.

One great advance in civilization that is coming soon is ketchup in toothpaste-style dispensers. Watch for the commercial — "brush your hamburgers twice a day, see your butcher twice a year."

It never rains but it pours. Even for actors. Or maybe especially for actors. Anyhow, consider, if you will, Scott McKay. Very shortly he will step into John Forsyth's role in "The Teshouse of the August Moon," which is pretty good stepping. And shortly after that he'll begin a career as Celeste Holm's leading man on her new CBS-TV show, "Honestly Celeste."

These two big breaks couldn't happen to a nicer McKay. Scott is a tall, good-looking, sandy-haired actor, who admits that his first love is and always will be "the theater." By that, of course, he means the legitimate, or walk-out-on-the-stage-and-act kind of theater. That's as opposed to the motion picture, or walk-out-on-the-set-and-sit-around kind of theater.

And McKay knows his Hollywood. He was a heavy in "Duel in the Sun," the big Western which is now being revived. He describes the character he played in that one, which took him a solid year to make, as "a villain so mean he wasn't fit for anything but fodder."

McKay says that nowadays the role of Hollywood in an actor's career is changing. "Actors today treat Hollywood and movies as a stopover. They go out and make a picture and then come back to New York. They're all doing that — Montgomery Clift, David Wayne, John Forsyth — all of them."

He's doing the same. He says he wouldn't particularly care to go through that year of filming "Duel in the Sun" again — although he wouldn't mind getting the salary all over. But meanwhile he's as excited as a dog with a rhinoceros bone over his two assignments this fall.

"Fisby — the role I play in 'Teshouse,'" he says, "is a wonderful part. I'm doing it at least 10 weeks, while Forsyth is making a picture. It's the kind of part that the longer you play it, the more you get out of it. Burgess Meredith is replacing David Wayne as Saking at the same time I replace Forsyth and both of us are tremendously thrilled by the play."

And, on TV, McKay will play a cub reporter in the Celeste Holm series, with Miss Holm another cub reporter. That starts over CBS-TV in October and all the cubs are looking forward to it.

Julie DeJohn, one of the two DeJohn Sisters — they sing and make records like "their latest, 'Crazy Song Of India' — has a reputation as a bit of a screwball. She does absolutely nothing to warrant that reputation. Nothing. Well, she does have one little habit — she goes into an Indian hand wrester whenever she shakes hands with anybody.

A few days back, the DeJohn Sisters were in Niles, O., and met the mayor. His honor held out his hand. Julie went into her hand wrestling act and the mayor, a small fellow, wound up on the floor. Julie was honestly embarrassed and begged forgiveness, which was forthcoming. "But," said the mayor, "let's not shake on it."

Very un-screwballish gal, Julie. Twenty-nine cents out of every dollar you pay for an automobile goes for taxes.

Lanky Actor Accuses Wife Of Infidelity

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 16 —UP— Actor John Carradine, 48, filed suit against his wife, Sonia, Monday, charging she committed adultery "various times" in Chicago, New York and in their own home.

Carradine in his superior court action said his 33-year-old wife "shared sleeping quarters" in their home with a man identified as Eugenio Carlos, a Brazilian student of the secretary to the late Brazilian president, Getulio Vargas.

The actor said Carlos also appeared "naked in presence of the children," Christopher, 7, Keith, 5, and Robert, 3, five months.

Carradine asked the court for custody of the children, who he charges were taken by his wife to her parents' home in San Mateo, Calif., while he was on a recent trip to New Jersey.

JOHNSON IN HOLLYWOOD
 By ERSKINE JOHNSON
 NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Marjorie Main, the loosely upholstered belle with the coffee-grinder voice, was discussing spiritualism, Alcoholics Anonymous and old clothes. She really gets around conversationally.

I expected to find Ma Kettle living in a broken-down shack and roasting potatoes in an open fire. "Everybody expects that," she said.

But the Main home is a charming California-type bungalow. Marjorie, with runs in her stockings, looked out of place, though. "I guess," she said, "I should be living in a shack."

Marjorie agreed with me that she's a Hollywood character and then confessed that she didn't like a new dress until the derriere was worn out, and that she regularly attends Alcoholics Anonymous meetings (not because she's an ex-tipper).

She also confessed that she's always bringing mediums home with her and that she'd rather eat in a health-food cafeteria than in "any of those Hollywood cafes where you can spend a fortune on a sandwich and get an ulcer."

She became interested in AA through the organization's work with a friend and "they did such a marvelous job that I became interested and now I wouldn't miss a meeting. They give me a spiritual glow."

At one meeting, though, there was a glow on her face that wasn't spiritually inspired. "I had just left a steam bath," she confided, "and my nose was as red as W. C. Fields. I was wearing an old broken-down dress and my hair was flying all over the place. The chairman wanted to speak to the alcoholics alone and asked the nonalcoholics to leave the room."

"I stood up and started to walk out when one of the ushers grabbed me and said: 'Hey, you, get back in there.' 'I told him I was there only as a friend and he replied: 'Don't kid me, sister.' 'I damn near didn't get out of there," she added.

Following the death of her husband, a lecturer named Stanley Krebs — "I liked lecturers so well I married one" — she read in an old diary where he had arrived one morning at Grand Central Station at 11 a.m.

"I was playing on Broadway in 'Dead End' at the time," she said, "but every morning for a year I went to Grand Central Station at 11 o'clock. People thought I was a little crazy, but somehow I expected he might try to contact me there through the spirit world."

Stanley didn't, though, she said, although later "we had a nice conversation on the bank of the Hudson River."

Shortly after signing at MGM, Marjorie brought home a medium who said she had visions of Marjorie signing seven contracts. "I told her it was impossible. I had just signed with MGM—and there was only one contract with four carbon copies."

Marjorie lowered her voice and said: "Just then we heard a knocking. 'On the ceiling?' I stuttered. 'No,' said Marjorie, 'on the door. It was a messenger boy from MGM with SEVEN contracts for me to sign for a radio series.'"

Marjorie said she could always tell if people were psychic. "They have a weird look in their eyes," she explained. "I was taking a steam bath the other day and I noticed that strange look in the eyes of a woman next to me. I asked her if she was psychic. She said she was. We practically had a session right there in the steam bath."

About those old duds she wears: She's happy about her success in Hollywood because now she can wear them. She has a psychology about old clothes.

FRYING MAPLE STICKS — Mrs. Louis Bonney, 628 N. Somerville, lifts the browned "maple sticks" from her fryer. They are breakfast rolls, something like doughnuts, she explains. After the sticks are cooled they are frosted with a maple-flavored icing. (News photo)

This Is My Dish

Maple Sticks Provide Good Breakfast Fare

By JANE KADINGO
Pampa News Woman's Editor

Mrs. Louis Bonney, 628 N. Somerville, has been cooking and baking things for over 23 years, and loves it. "I'm not just an ordinary cook," she stated modestly, "I don't do anything fancy."

Mrs. Bonney cooks for her husband, who works for Culberson Chevrolet Company, and her three children. Her oldest son, Gene, is a junior at McMurry College, Abilene; Keith is a senior in Pampa High School; and Lynda is a freshman in Junior High School. "They all like Mother's cooking," she laughed.

The Bonneys came to Pampa five years ago from Colorado. Mrs. Bonney says she makes housekeeping a full time job, but she does manage to do quite a bit of Sunday School work for the First Methodist Church.

One of her favorite recipes is a basic hot roll recipe, from which she makes a variety of rolls — cinnamon, Parker House, even doughnuts and maple sticks.

Below is the basic recipe and how she uses it to make maple sticks, which are something like a doughnut or breakfast roll.

Scald 1 quart milk. While still hot, add 1 cup mashed potatoes, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup shortening. Let it cool. Then add 2 cakes yeast softened in a little water. Add enough flour to make a light dough. Let rise 20 minutes (approximately). Add flour until dough has the desired stiffness. Add 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. soda, 2 tsp. baking powder.

Mrs. Bonney says this dough keeps for days in the refrigerator. For making any of her variations, she lets the dough rise until double in bulk and kneads it.

For making the maple sticks, she takes "a piece" of dough and rolls it into 4 or 5 inch long rolls. Let it get "light." Fry in deep

Three New Recipes For Tasty Peaches

PEACH COBBLER
2 to 3 cups sliced peaches (these should be firm and not too ripe)
½ cup sugar
1-2 to 3-4 stick butter
Rich piecrust dough
Roll the piecrust fairly thick and have sufficient amount to cover the bottom of greased shallow rectangular baking dish, with enough on each side to completely cover the peaches. Arrange peaches over this piecrust, spread sugar over them, dot generously with butter, and sprinkle lemon juice over all. Fold the sides of the dough over the peaches, pressing together top and ends so the juice will remain inside as long as possible. Cut several gashes in the top of the dough. Cook in moderate oven (about 350 degrees) for approximately 30-45 minutes. The juice will eventually come out into the dish, and the top of the cobbler should be baked with this periodically. Serve hot. Don't let the summer go by without this peach treat!

The following is a recipe from the eastern part of the state from a cook who was born and not made!

BRANDIED PEACHES
½ bushel firm, ripe freestone
12 pounds sugar
1 yeast cake (or 1 package powdered yeast)
Scald and skin the peaches, and put them into an earthenware crock (five gallon size). Add the sugar and put cover on crock. The second and third day stir the mixture gently to help dissolve the sugar, adding (on the third day) the yeast, which has been dissolved in a little of the juice. Keep the crock covered always, using a weight to hold the peaches submerged. Look at them every day or two, stirring gently on each occasion. When the peaches sink to the bottom they may be taken from the crock and put into glass jars.

Scattered through the Food Pages today are other peach recipes, some of which may interest you.

PEACH SOUFFLE
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon butter or substitute
½ cup milk
2 teaspoons melted shortening
1 egg
2 tablespoons sugar
8 halves peaches
Sift the flour, salt, baking powder and sugar together; add the milk, well-beaten egg and melted shortening; mix well. Brush pan with melted butter, pour in the mixture and press the halves of peaches into the dough. Sprinkle with sugar and bake 25 to 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve warm or cold. Peach syrup may be served over the dessert.

fat until nicely browned. Drain on paper toweling. For the maple icing, she uses an ordinary butter icing. The ingredients are:
3 cups powdered sugar
½ cup melted butter
2 tsp. cream
Maple flavoring to taste.
When rolls have cooled, frost with this icing.

Cook Hamburgers In Different Ways

With many folks hamburgers are synonymous with a picnic whether they are cooked in the backyard fireplace, portable grill or at a picnic spot. Here are five hamburger suggestions given by meat expert Reba Staggs.

- (1) To season plain hamburgers add 1 teaspoon of salt, ¼ teaspoon of pepper and 2 to 3 tablespoons of minced onion for each one pound of ground beef. Grill hamburgers over coals 4 to 5 minutes on each side.
- (2) Give hamburgers a cheese stuffing. For six servings, combine 1 cup grated cheddar cheese with 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and ¼ cup of chili sauce. Mix well. Spread half of patties with stuffing. Top each with a second patty and broil 8 to 10 minutes on each side.
- (3) Prepare onion burgers. For six servings, combine 1½ cups chopped onion, lightly browned in 2 tablespoons of butter or margarine, with 2 teaspoons prepared horseradish, 2 teaspoons prepared mustard and ½ teaspoon salt. Make 12 thin patties. Spread mixture on 6 patties. Top each with a patty and press edges together. Broil for 8 to 10 minutes on each side.
- (4) Vary the ways in which you serve hamburgers. Spread buns with a mixture of softened butter or margarine mixed with ½ teaspoon garlic salt and ½ teaspoon onion salt and toast. Instead of buns, use French bread.
- (5) Serve plain hamburgers with

Treated Thinnings from Woodlots Provide Farms with Fence Posts

Two-to-four-inch growth thinned from farm woodlots, some empty oil drums, and copper naphthenate preservatives mixed with stove oil, give any farm a supply of enduring fence posts. Defense against virtually everything destructive, the preservatives also protect wooden construction in all farm structures and equipment.

Technicians and forestry experts are working out a scheme to ease the $70-a-day drudgery of replacing farm fence posts. The plan includes farm woodlot control by cutting less desirable young growth for fencing and treating the posts with the inexpensive naphthenate preservatives to give them longer service life. Naphthenate Preservatives Institute technicians are developing formulas whereby naphthenate preservatives obtainable at local paint stores can be mixed with fuel oil and other cheap carriers to treat posts right on the farm. Forest and agricultural experiment stations are ascertaining the woods which, by absorbing more preservative, make the most enduring fence posts.

THE STORY: Private Detective Jim Dunn, working on an investigation, told the Pampa News, his wife, in the summer estate of the wealthy Carlson family in Colorado where they will pass as caretakers for his client. Stopping for keys, Dunn finds that he has not been given one to open the gate. As he stands at the gate, a young man appears.

IV
A HANDSOME man in his early twenties, tanned so deep his fair-hair looked white was smiling at Jim.
"We want in," Jim said.
"No can do. Sorry. You have to have a key."
Jim picked at the binding chain, let the links fall back with a clatter. "We've come to open a place called The Spire. I understand ingress and egress to the place goes with the deed. My boss bought the place. I can show you the deed."
The smile broadened. "Sorry, I can't read. You own a place in here, or have reason to come in, you should have a key."
"So I should," Jim admitted. "Funny how it could have jumped off the wire like that."
"Very funny. Go away and don't bother me."
Jim took a flashlight from his jacket pocket, turned the powerful beam overhead. It did not take long to locate the double wires which led directly to the small cabin. "All the modern conveniences, like phones. And how is my good friend, Toby Argyle?"
The same smile stayed on the young man's face. "I don't know what you're talking about. He used a tone of voice which made it perfectly clear he was lying."
"You could save me trouble by unlocking the gate," Jim said mildly.
For a moment the young man's smile thinned still more. He tried to shade his eyes so he could see past the glare of the lights. He said, "Can't do it," and walked away.

Jim got back in the jeep.
"Home again?" Nancy asked.
He opened the glove compartment, put his gun on his lap.
"Nope. Maybe Handsome thinks so. But that chain didn't look too strong to me." He eased the station wagon forward in drive, pushed the bumper gently against the gate.
The young man appeared again in the headlights. He had his mouth open to yell.
Jim gunned the motor. Tires spun and squealed. The whole gate bulged. The chain snapped, whirled off through the trees. Both sections of the gate flung back with the suddenness of their release.
Jim stopped when the jeep was still a few feet from the young guardian of the gate.
"Too bad the chain fell off," Jim said.
The smile was still on the man's face as he stepped quickly from the light, vanished in the shadows and darkness under the trees.
ABOUT an eighth of a mile from the gate, the road divided into three even narrower ways. A finger pointing sign-board indicated the left-hand trail as leading to The Spire. Dunn made the turn automatically, before he remembered and slammed on the brakes.
"Let's take a look at that map again. Seems to me we should be going more in that right-hand direction."
A combination of dash light and flash showed the turn clearly, the right-hand fork as Jim had remembered. He left his gun with Nancy as he got out and walked on ahead, using the flashlight sparingly. He did not have far to go, only around the next blind curve.

A cattle guard was under construction. At least rails were neatly piled near-by. But at the present a four-foot ditch cut across the narrow road, a ditch partly filled with rushing water. Jim Dunn felt his anger begin to boil at the pit of his stomach. Even allowing for the crawl to make the blind curve, there would have been a severe jolt. He walked slowly back to the jeep, flashing his light into the dense undergrowth along each side of the road. He found the warning sign, left it where it lay, walked more quickly.
"You better take the gun," Nancy said.
"Something?"
"I think so. Some sort of sound back where the roads forked. Metal scraping on metal sounded like to me."

JIM started to back the station wagon into the narrow opening which would permit a turn. He stopped again, got out and used the flashlight. "No bets missed," he muttered. He pulled the strands of old-fashioned wire with their wicked inch-and-a-half barbs aside, got back in and turned quickly.
"I have a smart husband," Nancy said. "What made you think there might be something there?"
"Only place to turn," Jim muttered.
They reached the forks of the road. "Look, Jim. The sign. It's pointing in the right direction now."
Jim did not slow up. "Probably the noise you heard. A heavy wrench on that metal standard to turn it. I'll bet we'd find the dirt loosened around its base."
"Not stopping to look?"
"Not me," Jim said firmly. "Maybe we're supposed to stop there. Or at least if we didn't have to stop before to fix a few flat tires."
"Delaying tactics?" Nancy asked.
Jim thought of the ditch again, but with more of a chill than with anger. "Maybe."

Authorities Leery Of Con's Confession In Co-Ed's Death

MCALISTER, Okla., Sept. 16—UP—Authorities Wednesday studied a confession by a lifer in the Oklahoma State Prison that he committed a 1940 Pennsylvania murder.
The prisoner, Jack Ray, 34, confessed Tuesday he beat Rachel Taylor to death at State College, Penn., in March, 1940, in order to get a letter which involved him in a narcotics ring.
Ray said he used the same .45 caliber pistol for the fatal beating that he used in a murder at Cordell, Okla., in October, 1939. He is serving life for the Cordell killing.
Ray confessed the Taylor murder after a six-months' investigation which Oklahoma officers said stemmed from a tip by another prisoner last March.

Condemned Killers Back In Custody

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 16—UP—Two condemned killers, covering and begging officers not to shoot, were captured in a wood Tuesday shortly after a jailer, bludgeoned in their escape, died of his wounds.
Highway patrolmen using bloodhounds and a helicopter flushed Gerald Gallego and Minor Sorber, shoeless and hungry, not far from where their escape trail had disappeared five days before.
Their arrests almost coincided with the death of J. C. Landrum, the jailer one of the men battered with an angle iron in their break from the Hinds county jail early Friday.

Desegregation Takes Place In Face Of White Rebellion

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va., Sept. 16—UP—School segregation returned Wednesday to Green River county as Negro parents sent their children back to their old classrooms in the face of a rebellion of white students and parents against integration.
The usual peaceful calm of this southern West Virginia agricultural region was broken suddenly Monday night when a mass demonstration was staged by students and parents against allowing 23 Negro students to attend White Sulphur Springs high school.
At first, Negro parents refused to send their children back to their former schools, which they said were "inadequate." But at a lengthy meeting Tuesday night, they agreed to wait another year before pressing for integration—until the Supreme Court hands down its final decree against segregation.

Need No Law

"There ought to be a law" was the response of some Pampans to last Friday's Pampa News' question of the Week, "concerning the problem of sex and horror type comic books."

Latest indication of this viewpoint is the establishment of special committees throughout the country designed "to do something" about horror and sex type comic books now being sold on some newsstands.

Men and women's civic groups want to do something about these comic books.

The main problem is in finding a method whereby the books could be placed on a restrictive sale without running into an infringement of the freedom of the press. And there you have it in a nutshell.

A bunch of us don't like something so we'll make a law and change it.

The battle of vulgarity as opposed to good taste is one that has been going on a long time and probably will continue so long as there are people with different backgrounds, different tastes and different cultures. Public opinion in connection with matters of good taste and bad are subject to the whim of officials and the general public at any given time.

Most of us can remember when the present-day bathing suit, for either men or women, would have been considered extremely vulgar and in bad taste and there were many instances in which communities framed legislation that was designed to halt such practices. Today there is general recognition of the fact that it is not within the province of government to legislate in such matters and the only police force necessary is that of the individuals themselves.

In the instance of comic books and horror stories, Freedom Newspapers, Inc., has conducted a survey which shows that there has been considerable voluntary censorship of the material presented to the public by the store owners, who have a perfect right to determine for themselves what they will and will not sell.

Moreover, this judgment on the part of the sellers may not necessarily be dictated by their disagreement with the material presented but may stem from the fact that their customers for other items being sold in the establishment may object to buying where such comic books and horror stories are sold.

What apparently has been overlooked in all of the furor is that all of the books are sold to individuals, either adult or children. In the instance of adults, it may be their preference for this type of reading and judging from the sale of the books there is quite a market.

In the instance of children, particularly children under 18 years of age which is the primary concern of many civic groups, it would seem that the parents of the children involved ought to be the ones who would do the policing. Of course, if parents who have long been in the habit of turning over the training and instruction of their children to the public schools and who feel no responsibility this is no excuse for attacking the freedoms of others.

If the civic groups are really interested in education, here is a project for the members to get their teeth into by attempting to educate through voluntary effort and persuasion the parents to accept the responsibility for their children and see that the youngsters don't buy the books. Then the objective is accomplished, the youngsters are insulated against the bad taste and no one is injured.

But "there ought to be a law" is not the answer.

Squeaking Wheel Gets Grease Or Don't Be Pushed Around

By HENRY McLEMORE

By J. P. McEVOY

I was barely heart-high to a plow handle when I heard the old saw: "The squeaking wheel gets the grease."

Naturally I knew what it meant, for my Sunday morning chore was taking the wheels off Mother's one-horse buggy and slathering grease on the dry axles.

But years passed before I realized that this old saw had sharp teeth and a satisfying philosophy. It was then I decided I would go through life as a Squeaking Wheel.

I satisfied with being one myself. I have made a lot of converts — but not enough. Think of all the rascous cruise directors who delight in shooing cozy honeymooners out on senseless dates to play dreary shuffleboard matches.

And timetable haunted tour managers, herding sleepy travelers into crowded cars and buses at ungodly hours for endless sight-seeing trips.

And those bi-lingual (double-talking) guides, distracting you with garbled misinformation when you are trying to appreciate the harmonious lines of an old ruin or a new dam.

Headwaiters in every land can cast hypnotic spells that paralyze most of us. The obedient eye, the Mona Lisa smile, the prehearsal paw — all have a hideous fascination that drugs our willpower.

But you don't have to sit behind that paw. When the headwaiter says "Follow me" — just don't follow him. Stand where you are and see where he stops. If you don't like the table, stay put. He will have to come back to you and he will realize this that he is dealing with a man — not a mouse.

Frank Case told me once about the Englishman who came to lunch at the Algonquin Hotel, famous in those days for its round table of New York's celebrities. A formidable red velvet rope barred the entrance. Inside there was a wilderness of empty tables. Outside a line of cash customers drooled helplessly.

"The Englishman sauntered in," said Frank, "checked his Homburg and umbrella, looked down his nose at George, my haughty headwaiter who barred the entrance. His thin, aristocratic nostrils flared slightly as though he had detected a leak in the sewer, then he picked up my beautiful red velvet rope between his thumb and first finger and dropped it, like a dead mouse.

"He walked in, took a seat at the best table and made himself at home.

"I followed him," said Frank Case. "I told him that now I began to understand the secret of the greatness of the British Empire, and I would like to shake hands with a man who knew that rules were for fools and ropes were for dopes."

A truly formidable headwaiter does not mature over night. He goes through a long painful apprenticeship as a blundering bus boy, dropping trays of dishes behind you, and then as a lone-deaf waiter, lovingly perfecting the technique of evading your pitiful attempts to get service.

Some unaging genius wrote the perfect waiter's epitaph: "Here lies Pierre Potocover — waiter — God finally caught his eye."

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

The Rotten Apple In Our Schools

I want to quote from an article in the September issue of The Freeman magazine under the heading of "The Rotten Apple in Our Schools." It was written by Frank S. Meyer. Mr. Meyer, as The Freeman magazine points out, "came out of Princeton, Oxford, the London School of Economics and the University of Chicago—a Communist. He left the party in 1945 and has since put in a lick or two at exposing the communist threat."

First Great Breach of Limited Government

Listen to how Mr. Meyer lays at the doorstep of tax-supported schools the grass roots of collectivism, statism and welfareism. He puts it in this manner:

"The invasion of the field of education by public tax-supported authority was the first great breach in the concept of a government limited in its powers to the maintenance of internal and external order, the concept upon which our Republic was founded."

It is hard to conceive of any greater indictment against public schools than that they are destroying the American way of life of a limited government. Is it because this statement is true that no superintendent of schools, no member of the Board of Education, no Protestant preacher holding a pulpit will attempt to answer a few questions as he would before a court to determine whether or not tax-supported schools are in agreement with the Golden Rule? And the American way of life as set forth in the Declaration of Independence is certainly in complete harmony with the Golden Rule. And anything that violates the Golden Rule can only produce evil results, as public-schools are doing.

Here is another astounding but true statement from this article. Mr. Meyer says:

Fills Gap With Prejudices

"Now, as a matter of fact, it is nonsense to assume that because the child is not taught values and drilled into habits of thought he will spontaneously develop an educated independence of thought. What will happen instead is what is happening. The teacher, freed from the responsibility of teaching 'abstract values' in a disciplined manner, must fill the gap with something. Being under pressure to bring about 'adjustment' to the environment, he fills it with the current prejudices of his environment, and the prejudices of a contemporary educationist or a teacher trained by educationists are certain to reflect the fashionable collectivism of the day."

"This nihilistic method not only ends this in collectivism; it destroys the very ability to think clearly about anything. To learn to think requires effort and pain. There being no pressure to exert effort or to undergo pain, the mental habits of run-of-the-mill students are simply slovenly, while the bright ones develop into brash youngsters in whom flashes of brilliance only emphasize lack of intellectual development. That there are still a few hard-thinking young people about can only be put down to the remaining vestiges of home influence and the providential survival of a few good teachers in the interstices of our educational institutions."

A Death of Dependable Men

"This is a tragedy, first of all because it dwarfs the true potentialities of man. It makes scarcer and scarcer, year in and year out, the development of individuals strongly rooted in the wisdom of the past and capable of standing on their own against error, whim and fashion. But it is also a social tragedy. Such individuals are the only kind of men who can give society the leadership it must have if it is to solve its problems in the spirit of right and justice, to reject facile and erroneous solutions, and to survive as a free association of individuals.

"The primacy of society and the state over the individual, which is the essence of collectivism, can never be enforced so long as such men exist in reasonable quantities. The New Education, by destroying the possibility of rearing such men, by inculcating 'adjustment to society'—which can only mean subservience to society—has been perhaps the most important factor in making possible that widespread acquiescence in collectivism with which the body politic is today so deeply infected. It has left its students bereft of any defense against the fallacies of collectivism, unable to think their way through political problems, and with a vague uneasy feeling that anyone who puts the individual above the group or the State is somehow evil. Its effect has been catastrophic, and that catastrophe is the direct outcome of the philosophy of John Dewey and his followers.

"But the question still remains: what were the political and social conditions which made it possible for this philosophy to prevail? In my opinion, the conditions for the triumph of Deweyism in our schools and the consequent decay of education were created by a process which set in a hundred years ago or more. * * * Then the author gives tax supported schools credit for this decay. He continues:

"The movement for universal free compulsory state education began simultaneously with the emergence in American history, in the person of Andrew Jackson, of the type which Franklin Roosevelt brought to perfection, the demagogic leader of the masses." By the turn of the cen-

Europe Figures U.S. 'Hooked' To Foreign Politics, Wars

By RAY TUCKER

PARIS — Our European Allies do not expect to suffer any loss of U. S. money or military supplies from the "agonizing reappraisal" of our overseas responsibilities.

Secretary John Foster Dulles promised a restudy of our foreign commitments if France presented the European Defense Army from our side and regarded Dulles' statement as a mere diplomatic bluff.

Every member of NATO, and especially France and Britain, figure that we are too deeply committed to the idea of checkmating Russian aggression for us to withdraw from the international position, now or ever. In their own informal and nondiplomatic phraseology, Europe has us "hooked" to European politics, economics and possible wars.

So long as we continue to beat the drums for and finance the Communist resistance movement throughout the world, we must and shall help them to stay on our side and build up their economic and military structures.

Other factors account for European politicians' belief that their countries will continue as permanent wards of Uncle Sam. In certain respects, they keep closer tabs on Congressional votes on foreign questions than do most Americans.

As a result of these tabulations and similar data, they have no fear of the U. S. abandonment of Europe, the Middle East and the Far East to the Reds, either under a Republican or a Democratic Administration. They believe that aid to Europe on a grand scale has become a national policy, far above partisan bickering.

Eisenhower, they argue, was one of the original architects of the Western European Defense system. Again and again, he has pledged himself to expand and strengthen it. He and Secretary Dulles also have sponsored a program for collective security action in Southeast Asia.

It would be admitting a serious political and military miscalculation, if he picked up his marbles at this late and agonizing date, and took the U.S. out of the game. The British and French leaders, who know Eisenhower so well, do not believe him to be that kind of man.

So long as Roosevelt-Truman-Stevenson principles dominate the Democratic Party's thinking, the Europeans anticipate no reduction or ending of American aid.

Every European Foreign Office keeps charts on Congressional voting on these questions, and they show the Democrats to have been far more generous "giveaway" gentlemen than the Republicans.

How The Anti-Nazi League Promoted Strife In Atlanta

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK — I have just had an interesting, if painfully expensive interview, per long distance telephone, with Daniel Duke, attorney at law, in Atlanta, where he officiated as assistant attorney general in the case of a small-time group of high-binders called the Columbians, who were 100 per cent patriots all right but took it upon themselves to Jim Crow the Negroes thereabouts by threats, explosions and blows.

In his inquiry, Mr. Duke permitted equally pernicious New York non-secular Anti-Nazi League to lend a hand and make capital for itself.

The Anti-Nazi League, as I have said before, employs thieves, infidel fiduciaries, liars and sneaks to promote its end which is, in word, to arouse fear and hatred by whooping up reports of racial and religious persecution. Having exploited incidents of no significance, it then appeals for contributions to carry on its work of arousing the same fears and suspicions all over again.

In this case, back in 1946, the league sent a young woman to Atlanta who ingratiated herself with some of the Columbians, who were awful chumps, anyway, and then claimed great credit for a job which Mr. Duke, himself, and E. Andrews, the county prosecutor, performed with the regular apparatus for such work by law provided.

At the time, Mr. Andrews had a falling out with Mr. Duke and wrote that "these indictments were the result of a grand jury investigation in which the Anti-Nazi League in no wise participated. They were returned after serious deliberation, without fanfare newspaper publicity. At that time, I did not know that this league was conducting an investigation in this state."

"The Columbians were committing criminal acts, patrolling the streets armed, arresting Negroes without authority and committing acts of violence. They were deliberately causing turmoil, strife, hatred and prejudice between the Negroes and the whites for the purpose of gaining new members through this dissimulation."

"On Dec. 16, (1948) I was requested by Daniel L. Duke, assistant attorney general, to meet him in the office of the attorney general for the purpose of delivering to me certain evidence which disclosed other criminal acts by the leaders of the Columbians. I went to that office and there, for the first time, came in contact with the league. I am informed that Mr. Duke requested this league to send two of their undercover agents into Georgia to investigate. At this meeting a press conference had been arranged of which I was not notified."

Duke gave him "certain affidavits and the names of certain witnesses" and this material "together with other evidence which I had previously acquired, was presented to the grand jury and two additional indictments were returned."

Well, that is water over the dam, but since then Mario Buzzi, one of the professional sneaks, who says he is such a liar that he can't trust himself, got sore at Leodore Lipschutz, the head man, a rich refugee diamond dealer, and James H. Sheldon, who calls himself professor on the basis of a short hitch as a prof in the minimum category at Boston University.

Lipschutz and Sheldon should have anticipated this because they used him for the very attributes which caused him to turn against them, although he seems to have had better reason to betray them than some of their victims. He says that after he had a cerebral stroke they put him on relief.

Accordingly, Mario brought me, on his own initiative, a batch of correspondence, including a letter from Daniel Duke to Sheldon in August 1952, six years later, thanking Sheldon for his hospitality on a recent visit in New York, including an evening with certain eminent social and political figures of the Harlem colony which included Negro judges and a colored woman who is a college professor.

My call to Mr. Duke elicited remarks which seem to me rather jumbled.

"I am a man from the South," he said, "a Georgia boy. I left before it was over because I had a lawyer reservation, I am a Southern lawyer and I have a lot of the same ideas that my Southern compatriots have. I do not want to embarrass or hurt any person."

I can't imagine what he means to convey but shudder at the merest flicker of a thought that he was embarrassed about anything.

One of the letters dealt with a proposal that Sheldon should sue the Armstrong Foundation in Mississippi, operated by an elderly pianist, apparently a rich man, who published complimentary thoughts about Sheldon. Duke gave his professional opinion and set forth the costs of certain activities, including his personal expenses for a trip to Dallas and Austin, Tex.

A few weeks later, Sheldon wrote Duke that he was calling a meeting of the "executive committee" to get a formal decision on the Armstrong matter.

The suit was not filed, however, and the decision to forego it may

It's Your Country

BETRAYAL CONTINUED

STRANGE OBSESSION: Plainly, our national leaders are enamored of foreign countries. No cost, either in American lives, treasure, or sovereignty, is too high to pay for a smile from Europe or Asia. There may be reasons for this strange obsession, but they are not apparent to the American people. What is sickeningly apparent is that the adoring and costly courtship carried on by our government, at our expense, has been rewarded by a loss of cancer skirts and a hard kick in the teeth.

Some $9 billion or more of American taxpayers' money has been squandered on the Marshall Plan, the United Nations Organization, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the Foreign Operations Administration, the European Defense Community — all to no avail. Europe hates us, Asia hates us. Russia, without spending a man or a ruble, has become the favored suitor. Still, our lovelick, infatuated leaders do not know when to quit.

Only recently, with collapse of EDC a certainty, President Eisenhower sternly warned the American people against gloomy talk about Europe, because, he said, he has many great and good friends in Europe and therefore is not discouraged. What is this, incredible naïveté or overweening vanity? Is the President, completely unable to separate personal friendships and social contacts from the high office he holds? He says there is still something to be done in Europe and we are going to do it. What, for instance — another Marshall Plan for another kick in the teeth?

SEATO: Nor is Mr. Eisenhower discouraged over the appalling massacre and give-away of Indochina. While admitting that in some respects the "settlement" there was "not satisfactory," he looks upon it as a "new chance" to build a security system in Southeast Asia. What a delightful prospect for American servicemen and taxpayers!

Never mind about the costly failure of ECA, UN, NATO, FOA, and EDC, we still have the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization to look forward to — and to pay for. Asia doesn't want SEATO. India will have no part of it, nor will Burma, Ceylon, or Indonesia. Egypt's Prime Minister Nasser says it would stir up hate against us and would not protect the little powers from communist aggression. He cites Korea, saying, "Now, after the example of Korea, the Communists know what will happen — pact or no pact."

Nevertheless, despite Asian naiveté, despite the lack of Asian armed forces, despite the further drain on our own pocketbooks and defense manpower, and despite the example of Korea, we are going ahead with SEATO. The little nations of Thailand, Pakistan and the Philippines will join us, for whatever that may be worth; but there is every indication that our strongest friends in Asia, Nationalist China and South Korea, will be blackballed by our dearly beloved and enemy-trading "allies," Britain and France.

Jane Talk

By JANE KADINGO
Pampa News Women's Editor

EVERY WOMAN that likes to cook, loves a new recipe. And lately, it seems that every time I go for an interview for "This Is My Dish" I pick up a few additional recipes. Which of course, I love, as I like to cook — but, unfortunately, don't have time to go into it very deeply.

A WONDERFULLY simple recipe I received from MRS. LOUIS BONNY yesterday, in addition to the one for maple sticks, was one for "Banana Tea Bread."

The ingredients are:
1 1/2 cups sifted flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. baking soda
1/2 tsp. salt
1-3 cup shortening
2-3 cups sugar
2 eggs, beaten well
1 cup mashed ripe bananas (2 or 3)

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Beat shortening until creamy in a mixing bowl. Add sugar and beat until light. Add eggs and beat well. Then add flour mixture alternately with bananas. Add 1/2 cup chopped nuts for variation. Bake 1 hour in a moderate oven (350). Makes one loaf.

Mrs. Bonny says the bread is simply delicious when sliced thin and served with butter. She added that her son, Keith, is especially fond of this bread.

A WHILE BACK, I mentioned that someone had asked me how to remove grease stains from kitchen walls. After asking around, the general opinion seemed to be to cover them with a material that wouldn't stain. The prevention seemed to be the most satisfactory answer.

I saw this put into practical use one day while visiting with MRS. JOHN MOBLEY. She had a clear plastic lining the wall behind her stove and in the stove area. This is especially nice, as it does not deler from the wall paper design. You can see right through the plastic. Or if your kitchen isn't papered, the color of the walls will show through. The plastic was so transparent, it was hard to tell it was there.

I RECENTLY received some timely cooking hints from the Wheat and Flour Institute. Some of them are especially fine, I believe, as they deal with school luncheons, the concern of many mothers these days.

School days are lunch box days. If you have school-age youngsters, you once again have the challenge of making appetizing and nutritious packed lunches day after day. Youngsters who favor peanut butter sandwiches, will welcome this new variation, California Delight. Cream 1/2 cup peanut butter and mix in the juice of 1 orange gradually. Add 1/2 cup shredded coconut and 1 tablespoon shredded orange rind, mixing thoroughly. Spread 8 slices of enriched bread with butter or margarine. Spread peanut butter filling on 4 slices bread and cover with remaining slices. Makes 4 sandwiches.

Crisp, juicy red apples are now abundant on the market. Because they're thrifty in season, and tasty eating anytime, you'll want to include this fruit often on your fall menus. Apples make a really different sandwich just right for perking up school lunches. Cut cinnamon bread in thin slices. Cream margarine or butter and spread lightly on bread. Pare apples, core and cut in thin slices. Arrange on a slice of bread and cover with a second slice. Accompany with wedges of a snappy cheese.

Cream cheese is a lunch box favorite. Treat your children to taste-testing sandwiches made with this honey-orange spread. Combine 1 3-oz. package softened cream cheese with 1 tablespoon honey and 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, mixing until well blended and creamy. Makes filling for about 8 sandwiches.

A box lunch is not complete without a simple dessert. Make a lunch box dessert that will also be suitable for dinner desserts. Cupcakes are a good example. Make them in small cups for the children's lunch boxes and cover with a pretty colored icing. You can use larger cups for family meals and make a special icing for dinner dessert.

Marilyn Swink And Harry Vermillion Exchange Wedding Vows In Shamrock

SHAMROCK — (Special) — The sanctuary of the First Methodist Church, Shamrock, was the scene of the marriage of Miss Marilyn Swink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Swink of Shamrock, and Harry Boyd Vermillion, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Vermillion, also of Shamrock. Rev. Frank Beauchamp, pastor, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Vows were exchanged before an altar draped with white satin. The altar area was centered with an arch entwined with fern, flanked with tall baskets of white mums. Floor candelabra holding orchid tapers provided illumination. On the altar rail were baskets of white mums and orchid asters. Pews were marked with white satin bows.

Mrs. Cabot Brannon played a prelude of nuptial music. She accompanied Miss Frederica Abbott as she sang, "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer." Mrs. Brannon played the traditional wedding marches for the processional and recessional.

Candles were lighted by Misses LaDane and LaVerne Vermillion, twin sisters of the bridegroom. They wore waltz-length dresses of orchid net over taffeta. The fitted bodices were attached to full skirts encircled by double ruffles. Their flowers were wristlets of white pompons, tied with orchid net, and ribbon.

Miss Ila Carol Bledsoe was maid of honor, and Miss Sue Williamson of Quitaque was bridesmaid. They wore dresses of orchid net over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodices and full waltz-length skirts. The maid of honor's dress had a short sleeved jacket of net. The attendants wore headbands of net and carried colonial bouquets of white and orchid asters, tied with net and satin ribbon.

The flower girl, Susie Pardue, was attired in a dress of white net and a net quilt bonnet. She carried a basket of rose petals.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of lace and tulle, styled with a molded bodice of lace topped by a lace jacket with a rolled collar. The sleeves came to points at her wrists. Peplums of lace fell in points over the bouffant skirt

Open house was held between 3 and 6 p.m. with more than 300 guests registering from Amarillo, Miami, Borger, Denton, Topoka, Kansas, and other Panhandle towns.

Children of Mr. and Mrs. Simmons are Mrs. W. C. Powers, White Deer; Mrs. E. O. Bentley, Dorchester Corp.; Wallace Simmons, Hooker, Okla.; Horace Claude of Pampa; and Mrs. Prentiss McKee of Borger. Thirteen grandchildren were present and two great-grandchildren.

In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Simmons, Wallace Simmons, and Mr. and Mrs. Powers.

Miss Carol McKee of Borger registered the guests, and Miss Barbara Bentley and Mrs. Stanley McKinley of Hooker, Okla., presided at the serving table. All three are granddaughters of the honored couple.

Among the gifts were a large floral bouquet of giant yellow chrysanthemums sent by the Scottish Rites Masonic Chapter of Dallas and a sack with the inscription, "50 Bucks from 50 Buddies," containing fifty silver dollars from the Masonic Chapter of Pampa.

The bride is a junior student at Methodist Memorial Hospital, Lubbock, where she will continue her training. The bridegroom attended Midwest College of Commerce in Pueblo, Colo. He is employed by Furr Food Stores.

They will make their home in Lubbock.

BABY

In a crowded home, a playpen is a great help. But start putting Baby into it when he first spends time out of bed. At three months or so, when he's enjoying the sunlight on the floor, kicking a n d stretching, let him do it in the pen. That way, he'll be used to the bars and not consider them quite as offensive when he gets to the creeping stage. But no playpen will do all the time, he must have time to explore and investigate.

You know, because the doctor has told you, that Baby's crossed or uncoordinated eyes will go away. But relatives, particularly older ones, get upset and write confusing letters about not hanging toys over his bed. After a while you wonder if they really will go away after all. The best thing to do is not to mention the condition in letters to them and to screen the pictures carefully before sending them. The new mother has enough tasks on her hands without explaining a doctor's procedures to dubious relatives.

When a baby is very young, he may cry furiously before going to sleep. If you have checked that he is comfortable, warm and well-ventilated, then leave him alone, even for an hour, until he drops off to sleep. The next night it will take less time. In four nights he should go to sleep in ten minutes. Popping in on him will encourage him to cry, just to see you. However, when he learns to turn over one way, but not the other, and you hear a sudden cry, check on him. He may be jammed in the corner of the bed and unable to roll out.

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend: As all your other readers, I enjoy and learn a lot from your grand column. I think you are doing grand work, especially with the young people's problems.

Now this is mine: about a month ago we rented our house to a man that said he was from another town — he wanted the house as his work was around here.

He told my mother, when she asked him for the rent that was to be paid in advance, that he would go to his former home to get some of his things and bring her the rent.

Well, he moved in by car, as that was all the belongings he had — now we find out he never brought the rent, yet when mother asked him he promised it on the first of the month as he said he was a retired officer.

Yesterday when she asked him again, he said he didn't have the money and he could stay in the house or six months before we could make him move or pay any rent.

Is this so, or to whom can we go to see about this fellow? He can ride around and have money to drink on, as he is that way morning and night. We live on a ranch — I was injured in an accident and cannot do the yard work and help my mother clean up things as I used to, as my spine was hurt. So we asked him to do some of the work as well as to pay rent on his own yard. Well, he just sits in the house, along with his wife and mother, who is 74 years old.

We are moving their lawn, as well as doing our own work. Just what can we do?

Thank you for any information you can give as soon as possible. God Bless you for the good work.
L. H.

Dear L. H. — You probably will have to have your lawyer prepare an eviction notice, giving the man three days to pay the rent or get out. If he hasn't paid at the end of the three days, the lawyer will take the case to court and they will be ordered to get out.

You don't have to give them any more time than the three days. And next time you rent your house have the money in your pocket before turning over the keys to the house.

Shower In Lefors Fetes Recent Bride

LEFORS — (Special) — Mrs. Clell Breining, a recent bride, was honored recently with a coffee and bridal shower in Fellowship Hall of the Lefors Methodist Church.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mmes. Cliff Vincent, Bernard Johnson, F. P. Brown, Cleve Johnson, Jess Graves, E. J. Pafford, Bill Watson, and Miss Micky Sue Johnson.

The serving table was covered with a white Italian cut-work banquet cloth, centered with a crystal bowl containing an arrangement of yellow and white pompons.

The hall was decorated with big vases of dahlias and sprays of bridalwreath were wound around posts in the room and above the windows.

Miss Rebecca Breining, sister of guests, and Miss Margaret Cobb played background music.

Mrs. Bill Watson presided at the silver coffee service, and cinnamon buns with yellow and white mints were served to approximately 30 guests.

The hostesses presented the honoree and the bridegroom's mother with corsages of white carnations, and guests presented gifts. Approximately 25 others sent gifts.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. T. G. Hollingsworth and daughter, Louann, Mrs. V. W. Davidson and Ruth Audrian, all of Borger; and Mrs. Betty Chura of Fort Worth.

Mr. and Mrs. Breining were married Sunday in Lefors Methodist Church, and spent a week in New Mexico and Colorado.

Legion Auxiliary To Meet Tonight

The American Legion Auxiliary will hold a business meeting at 8 p.m. today in the City Club Room.

Committee reports will be made, including a special report by Mrs. Frank Yates on the recent national convention. Other business will be the forming of plans for the coming club year.

MANNERS MAKE FRIENDS

An important lesson in fundamental good manners is to teach your children to praise rather than low-rate a friend's new possession. The child who hasn't been encouraged to be pleased by a friend's good fortune may be scolded or hand-dropped as an adult.

He'll be the wet blanket who always sees something wrong with everything other people have.

Football Fever Hits Pampa

Austin of El Paso invades Pampa tomorrow night and the football season officially comes to town!

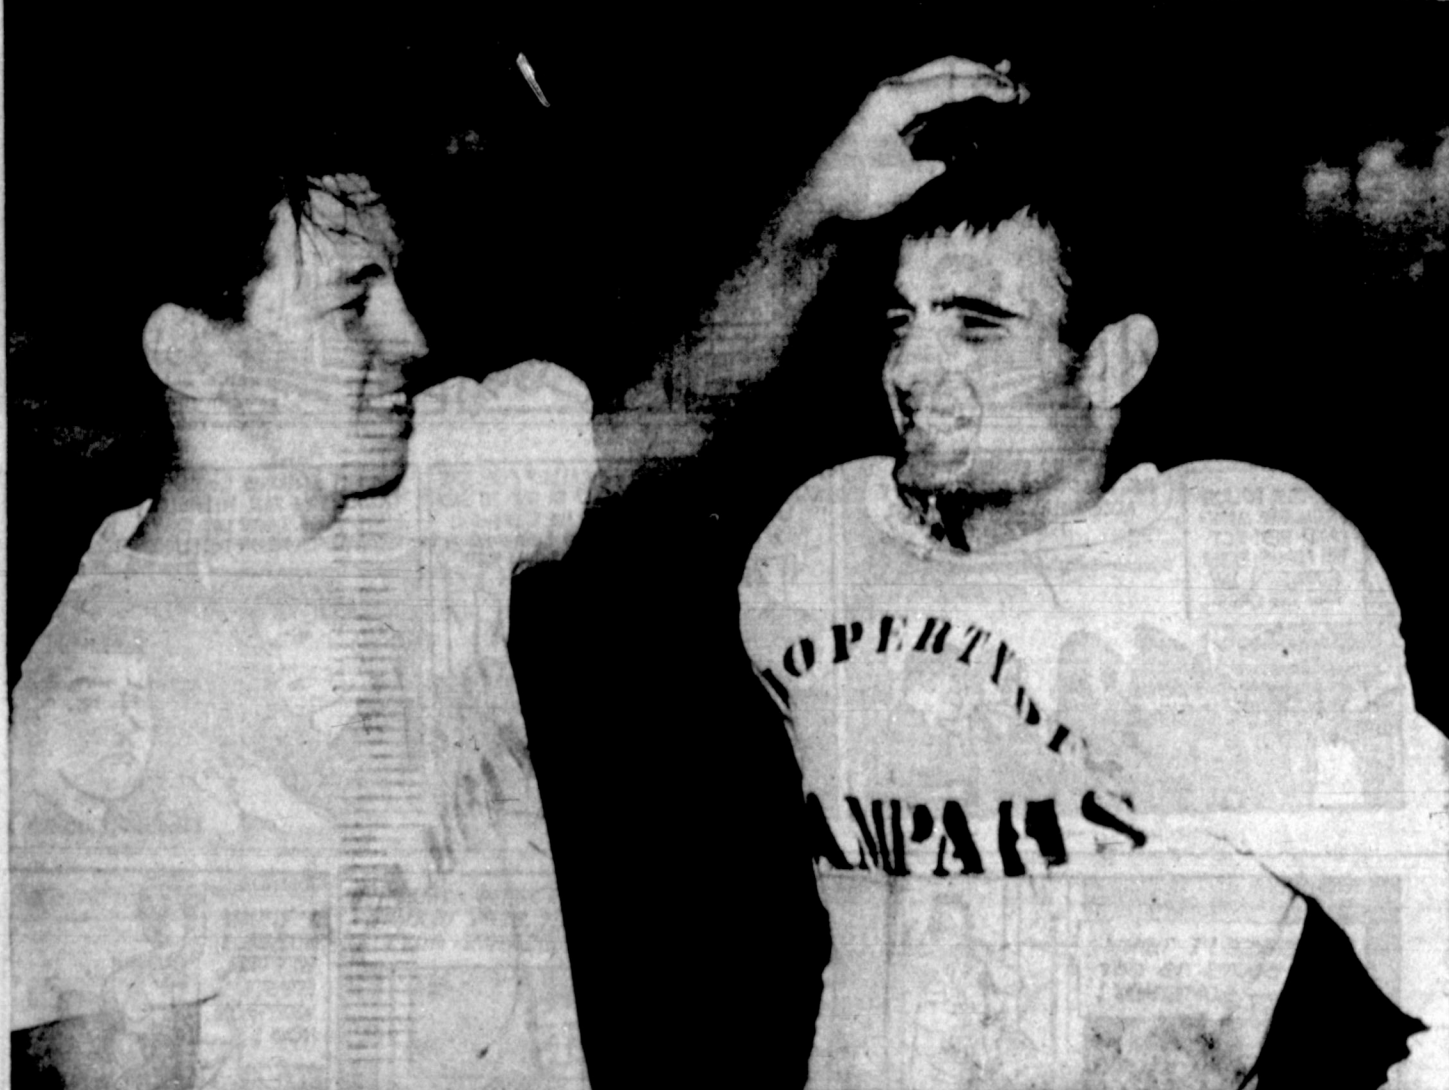

There was a lot of work necessary before the first game could be played, and in the upper left photo, Coach Aubra Nooncaster talks things over with Harvester co-captains, Harold Lewis (Left) and Ray Bonsal.

And below them, Ben Sturgeon, who now has been sidelined by a foot injury, pours cool water over Bill Fulenwider after a hot workout session.

In the right photo, the Arthur Aftergut family gets ready for the ball game, with home team pennants, cushions and blankets, Mr. and Mrs. Aftergut, Frances Ellen, 11, and Myron, 8, are ready to pull for the home team to win.

And below in the type of action that will be seen at every Harvester game here are the group of youngsters who lead the "12th man," the Harvester Cheer Leaders.

HOME AGAIN

Eugene Hart, 11, receives a playful spanking from his mother Tuesday after he returned to New York from Europe aboard the liner United States. With 17 cents in his pockets, Eugene left his Brooklyn home Sept. 3 to see a movie in Manhattan. Getting out of the subway he strolled down to North River pier where he boarded ship to look around. When he returned on deck he was at sea. He is three pounds lighter from seasickness but is determined "to be a sailor when I grow up."
