City Commission to meet Monday

STAFF REPORT
 The Pampa City Commission will meet Monday afternoon with a number of agenda items on which to discuss and consider taking action:

- Consider approving the minutes of the Sept. 23 regular commission meeting and the Sept. 22 and 26 special commission meetings as presented.
- Consider adopting on second and final reading setting a tax rate of $0.621027 on each $100.00 valuation of property for the 2014-2015 fiscal year and levying an Ad Valorem Tax rate on all property subject to taxation within the City of Pampa. This tax rate will raise more taxes for maintenance and operations than last year's tax rate. the

Statewide gas price average drops two cents

SUBMITTED BY AAA TEXAS
 IRVING – Gas prices continue their fall in the Lone Star State. The average price for a gallon of regular unleaded fuel in Texas is now $3.15, according to the AAA Texas Weekend Gas Watch. That is two cents less than one week ago and seven cents less than one year ago. Of the major metropolitan areas surveyed in Texas, drivers in El Paso are paying the most at $3.19 per gallon while drivers in Beaumont are paying the least at $3.09 per gallon. The national average pump price is $3.34 which is 19 cents more than in Texas.
 A little more than a week past the start of the seasonal fuel switch in many parts of the country, both the state and national averages continue to decline. This is due to decreased demand, cheaper crude oil and the cost savings associated with producing winter-blend fuel. Winter-blend gasoline is less expensive to produce, which can translate to lower prices at the pump. During the seasonal fuel transition, and barring an unexpected disruption to production or distribution, national and state averages often show steady seasonal declines.
 "Along with lower gas prices we typically see reduced prices for hotels and rental cars during the fall which make this time of year ideal for road trips to experience fall foliage and cooler outdoor temperatures," said AAA

First Bank Southwest holds annual cookout

 First Bank Southwest had its annual customer appreciation lunch Friday afternoon in the north end of the bank parking lot. The Pampa Animal Welfare Society (PAWS) was present with a number of animals ranging in age available for adoption and there were antique cars on display as well. Those in attendance were treated to hot dogs, hamburgers and beverages. The warm weather for the event proved that although fall has arrived, warm days aren't ready to completely give up on us quite yet.

Obituaries

Diane Lynn Vanzandt Reid

Diane Lynn Vanzandt Reid, 54, died on Sept. 15, 2014. Services were held at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 20, 2014 at the University Church of Christ with David Lough and Bob Shepard officiating. There was a reception in the Family Activity Center immediately after the services.

Dianne Lynn Reid

Diane was born in El Paso, Texas to Joe and Betty VanZandt on Oct. 22, 1959 while Joe was stationed at Fort Bliss. She always called the Panhandle her home as she lived in numerous Panhandle towns while growing up. She was a May 1977 graduate of Pampa High School and began her college education that summer at Frank Phillips College in Borger. Always an over achiever she completed her college education in three years graduating from West Texas State University with a Bachelor of Science in Education in May of 1980. The following fall she began her teaching career at Puckett Elementary School in Amarillo at the age of 20. She met the love of her life, Jeff Reid, at a friend's birthday party and after a very brief courtship they were married on June 5, 1981 in Canyon. The couple moved to Mobeetie in the fall of 1981 where they lived on Diane's family's ranch. Diane dearly loved the ranch especially spending time on the creek, working cattle or just prowling around. While living in Mobeetie they were blessed with two wonderful sons, Joshua and Jeremy. During the fall of 1987 they moved to Canyon where Diane was a fourth grade teacher at Reeves Hinger Elementary school. Never content to sit still, Diane earned a Masters of Education Administration degree from West Texas A&M University in December of 1991. Although her heart was always in the classroom she wanted to stretch and grow and served as an Assistant Principal at Westover Park Elementary for two years. At the time of her retirement in August she was the Coordinator of Migrant Programs at Region 16 Education Service Center. She had been at Region 16 for approximately 13 years serving in a variety of different capacities. She was so looking forward to retirement, spending time with the grandkids, travel, quilting, writing, camping, returning to India, quiet evenings with Jeff and possibly teaching again.

She is survived by her husband, Jeff, of the home; two sons, Joshua, his wife Meghan and children Emma and Henry of Lubbock; Jeremy and his wife Katy of Ropesville; parents, Joe and Janie VanZandt of Mobeetie; a sister, Jana Smiley and husband Mike of Amarillo; a brother, Damon VanZandt and wife Julie of San Antonio; a sister Becky Reed of Justin, Texas; two nephews, Steven and Matt Smiley and one niece, Kate VanZandt. In addition there are other family and friends too numerous to mention that greatly loved and respected her.

Although she loved flowers, Diane would have requested that any donations made as a memorial to her be made to the Old Mobeetie Jail Museum, P.O. Box 66 Mobeetie, TX 79061.

Olin Dellis Lyons Harris

Olin Dellis Lyons Harris, 79, of Pampa, died Sept. 23, 2014 in Pampa.

Memorial graveside services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 30, 2014, at Memory Gardens Cemetery, with Rev. C.W. Parker, chaplain of Gentiva Hospice (formerly Odyssey Hospice), officiating. Cremation and arrangements are under the direction of Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors.

Mr. Harris was born April 17, 1935 in Pampa where he was a lifelong resident. He married Ruby Riley and she preceded him in death on Oct. 23, 1988. Olin owned and operated H & H Machine Shop, and later worked as a truck driver for B & B Solvent, retiring in 2000. He was a veteran of the U.S. Navy, serving during peacetime.

Olin was preceded in death by his parents, a brother and a sister.

Survivors include many friends, including Barbara Mesneak of Pampa.

Air Force sports boss: Not enough focus on respect

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Air Force Academy sports programs have not put enough focus on commitment and respect but are working to correct that, the school's athletic director said.

The department is emphasizing programs to address character issues, and administrators are working with coaches to identify and avoid recruiting athletes with character problems, Athletic Director Hans Mueh said Thursday.

Hans made his comments to the academy's Board of Visitors, which reviews the school and reports to Congress and the Pentagon, The Colorado Springs Gazette reported.

The academy has been under renewed scrutiny over past allegations about sexual misconduct and drug use by athletes. Two members of Congress asked military and civilian agencies to look into claims by a former Air Force investigator about how the academy handles sexual assault allegations.

"We're good at stamina and courage and teamwork and self-confidence and self-discipline and the indomitable will to win," Mueh told the board. "The area we didn't focus on enough is this culture of commitment and climate of respect."

Board member Marcelite Harris, a retired Air Force major general, asked Mueh if coaches were evaluated on their ability to instill values in cadets.

"We need to define that a little better," Mueh said. "We have seen examples where coaches have abrogated that responsibility and pushed it off on cadets rather than being the adults in the room."

The academy's inspector general, Col. David Kuenzli, told the board he is wrapping up a review of sports programs that includes leadership, mission, finances and whether the program meets academy conduct standards.

Kuenzli did not disclose any of the findings. He is expected to submit his report to superintendent Lt. Gen. Michelle Johnson on Oct. 7.

Bouncin' Around Wildlife in the Texas Panhandle

One evening recently I took my daily walk around the “tree streets” here in Pampa. I was walking east on 23rd street, just past Chestnut, and saw some dark objects ahead that appeared to be going back and forth across 23rd. As I got closer, I could see that a small herd of cows had gotten out of their pasture and they were galloping across 23rd, while a few humans were trying to get the animals back where they belonged.

Just as it seemed the errant cows were going to be corralled, they turned and ran back across the street. After a few more round-ups, the cattle were finally back safely in their own field. I shared this experience with friends on Facebook, and one reply really made me appreciate the “wildlife” we can see here in our Texas Panhandle. This particular friend lives in New York City and the only “wildlife” she sees is her cat when she comes home at the end of her work day, and the pigeons that bedevil her cat through the window.

Here in the Texas Panhandle we have a nearly unobstructed view in all four directions of the compass. We can watch glorious sunrises and sunsets, and we can see storms approaching for miles. In New York City my friend sees... buildings, and maybe the occasional tree. As I've often mentioned here, I grew up in southern California, near Los Angeles. The only “wildlife” I ever saw was the Wilson Brothers (aka The Beach Boys) and the blue heron that waddled into our yard one day, its wings too coated with oil to fly.

I saw my first cows when my grade school classes took field trips to the Pomona Fair. While living in northern Illinois I learned how to drive carefully early in the morning and late in the evening to avoid deer crossing the roads. That's about as wild an animal that ever crossed my path there outside of the zoo. In Indiana, we saw our first turkey vultures. An opossum took up residence under our neighbor's garden shed and would wander across the back yard occasionally. We could hear coyotes yipping at night but rarely saw one. Most of the small animals we saw were the victims of motor vehicles.

During our short stay in Georgia, the most prolific non-human there was the insect population. There were fire ants, scorpions, carpenter bees (which look like bumble bees but are vicious little critters) and the disgusting palmetto bugs. Those bugs make the common cockroach look like a gnat. The first one I saw was the size of a Buick, and came crawling out of a rock wall as we were sitting outside eating ice cream at an ice cream shop. One of its cousins had the nerve to find its way into our house and stomped across our hearth. I went out the next day and bought out Walmart's supply of roach traps.

And here we are in Texas, where, yes, there are some awful insects but there are also some more interesting critters. I was amazed to see a fox in our back yard one evening. I watched the antics of some meadowlarks as they hovered like little helicopters and pounced on grasshoppers in the yard. I am amazed by the Longhorn cattle, and all the different breeds of horses and cattle here. I've seen bison and either emus or ostriches. We have hawks that circle our neighborhood, and blue jays that torment our cat, Boris, when he's on the patio. This evening as I walked, a big brown tarantula skittered across my path.

The one big surprise, though, that pleases me the most is the sight of eagles here. One afternoon as we drove north on Price Road, an eagle flew across the road into a field. I just kept saying, “An eagle! It was an EAGLE!” But the most awesome sight of all was on the evening of Sept. 11 as we sat at the Pampa football field watching our grandson play football. I looked up to see not one, but two eagles soaring and circling overhead. I thought it was quite a tribute to the day, and that's something you don't see in New York City.

Judi Smith resides in Pampa and can be reached at jlsmith46@aol.com.

The return of king dollar

Maybe the U.S. economy, a weakling for the last six years, is finally starting to flex some muscle. We're referring to the return of King Dollar

LAWRENCE KUDLOW

For those who haven't been paying attention, the greenback is in the midst of a rally not seen since the 1990s. It's racing past the euro, the yen and other currencies. Investors worldwide are buying the equivalent of stock in America, Inc.

If the rise in the dollar's valuation is sustainable, it's welcome news for the stock market, for fighting inflation and for U.S. growth prospects. Ronald Reagan said it best: A strong dollar is a sign of a strong America. This has been a long time coming. And it's still too early to tell whether the trend will continue. But the dollar has rallied significantly in recent months. According to the Wall Street Journal, “the resurgent dollar has logged its longest winning streak in 17 years, rising against a broad basket of currencies for nine straight weeks.”

One immediate impact of dollar strength is that it increases the demand for U.S. stocks and bonds. But the dollar rally is also a restraint against inflation, as well as a market signal of U.S. competitiveness relative to rival nations. It's a hopeful sign that Janet Yellen and the Fed may be more effective inflation hawks in deeds — though not in rhetoric — than commonly expected.

QE ends next month. And the Fed is expected to raise its target interest rate in 2015 and beyond. In any case, most of the Fed's balance-sheet expansion went into excess bank reserves instead of circulating throughout the economy. In other words, Fed policy was never as loose as people feared.

Naturally, some will write off the bull market for dollars as merely a sign that the greenback is the least rotten apple in the barrel. But that's not giving the dollar its due. It has been gaining strength against gold, which is the best measure of dollar value. At just above $1,200, gold has fallen back to early-January levels. And remember, gold peaked around $1,900 in mid-2011. We think one key explanation for dollar strength is the amazing efficiency revolution in American business that's taken place over the last five years. U.S. companies have become the best run in the world as they've ruthlessly cut costs.

Credit also the drilling bonanza in oil and gas, which is driving down energy costs for American producers of everything from steel to auto parts to microchips to chemicals to corn. King Dollar also is a capital magnet. We're already seeing this as foreigners flock to U.S. assets. The historical relationship is unmistakable. Periods of sustained economic growth and rising living standards are associated with a strong dollar. That was clearly true in the prosperous 1960s, 1980s and 1990s.

And while the strong dollar restrains commodity prices, it acts as a tax cut for American consumers and businesses. Gasoline, for example, is down to $3.35 from nearly $4. The CPI is up only 1.7 percent over the past 12 months.

A strong dollar increases the purchasing power of the greenback. So the money in your wallets and purses buys more goods and services.

Conversely, when the dollar crashed in the 1970s — especially relative to gold — the economy collapsed into a crippling stagflation. From 1999 to 2009, the dollar index dropped by almost 40 percent, with only a brief surge between 2004 and 2006. The economy and wages were sluggish at best.

The relationship between a strong currency and prosperity is lost on the many nations that adhere to the mercantilist model whereby a devalued currency supposedly gives a country a competitive edge by making exports cheaper. Japan is the classic example of this failed paradigm. Its economy has crashed in recent months thanks to higher taxes and a yen intentionally weakened to boost exports. The Japanese seem to think that the way to grow the economy is to make their citizens poorer.

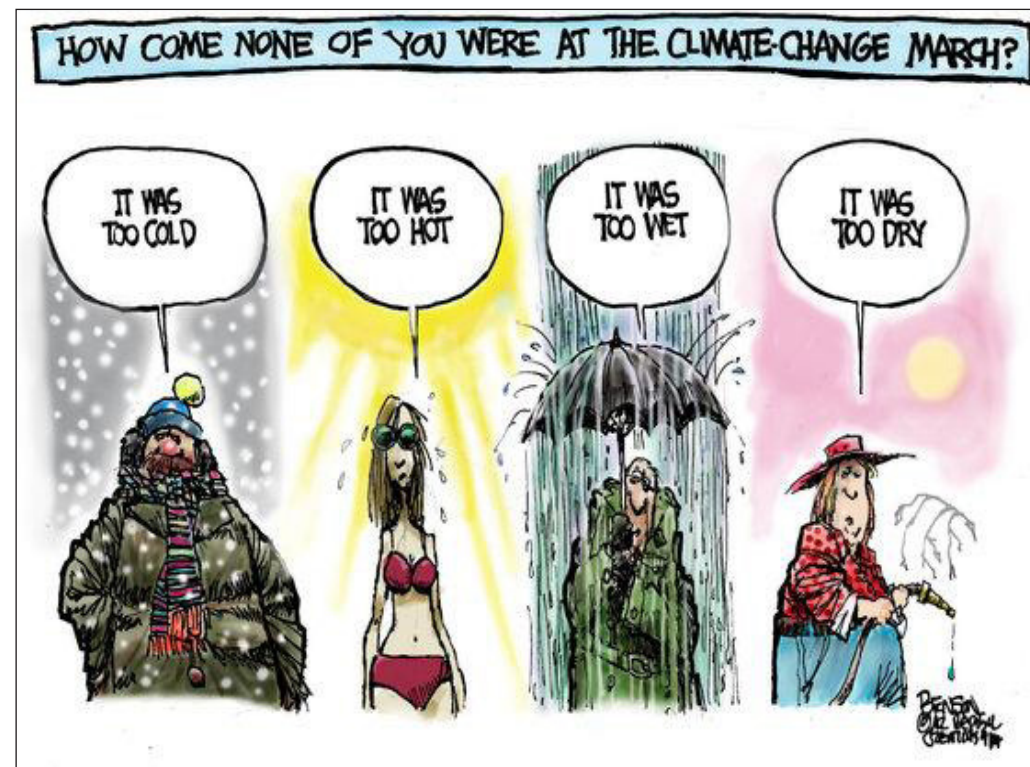

Of course, numerous policy blunders — Obamacare, high corporate taxes, carbon regulations, Dodd-Frank — are restraining U.S. growth and could derail the dollar comeback. KING cont. on page 5

I shared this experience with friends on Facebook, and one reply really made me appreciate the “wildlife” we can see here in our Texas Panhandle. This particular friend lives in New York City and the only “wildlife” she sees is her cat when she comes home at the end of her work day, and the pigeons that bedevil her cat through the window.

Here in the Texas Panhandle we have a nearly unobstructed view in all four directions of the compass. We can watch glorious sunrises and sunsets, and we can see storms approaching for miles. In New York City my friend sees... buildings, and maybe the occasional tree. As I've

A basket of snakes

“Once war is forced upon us, there is no other alternative than to apply every available means to bring it to a swift end.”

“War's very object is victory, not prolonged indecision.”

So said Gen. MacArthur in some of the wisest counsel the old soldier ever gave his countrymen.

Yet, “prolonged indecision” would seem the essence of the war the president has begun to “degrade and ultimately destroy” the Islamic State.

For, following only one night of bombing in Syria, Gen. Bill Mayville, director of operations for the Joint Chiefs, asked to estimate how long this new war would last, replied: “I would think of it in terms of years.”

“Years,” the general said. Yet, though we are already heavily into bombing, the president has no congressional authorization for this war in Syria.

Even Republicans are leery of voting for a war in Syria before the November elections. A third of the House GOP voted no to arming and training the Syrian rebels. The Democrats are even more wary.

And how are we going to “destroy” ISIS when Obama has ruled out U.S. combat troops and not one NATO or Arab ally has offered to send combat troops?

Consider Turkey. With its 400,000-man army, 1,000 planes, 3,600 tanks, 3,000 artillery pieces and self-propelled guns, the Turks, the largest military power in the Middle East, could make hash of the Islamic State.

Why have they not done so?

Because Turkish President Erdogan detests President Assad of Syria and has looked the other way as volunteers, including Turks, have crossed his border into Syria to join ISIS.

Up until now, this NATO ally has been a silent partner of ISIS. And, even now, Ankara has not volunteered to fight the Islamic State.

For Turkey is predominantly Sunni, and many Sunni see the Islamic State as a ruthless but effective ally against a Shia threat represented by Tehran, Baghdad, Damascus and Hezbollah.

If the Turkish army is not going to intervene in Syria against ISIS, and if Obama has ruled out U.S. boots on the ground in Iraq or Syria, where will the soldiers come from to dislodge the Islamic State from the Indiana-sized territory it has seized?

The Kurds can hold Erbil with U.S. air support. Iraq's regime, backed by its Shia militias, can hold Baghdad. But can the Iraqi army retake Fallujah, Mosul or Anbar, from which they so recently ran away?

Who are the major fighting forces in Syria who have for years been holding the line against ISIS? Answer: the Syrian army, Hezbollah troops from Lebanon, and Iranians, backed by Putin's Russia.

Denouncing the Islamic State for its beheadings of the two Americans and one British aid worker, Obama declared at the U.N.:

“There can be no reasoning — no negotiation — with this brand of evil. The only language understood by killers like this is the language of force. So the United States of America will work with a broad coalition to dismantle this network of death.”

Strong words, some of the strongest our Nobel Peace Prize-winning president has used in six years.

Yet, for three years, it has been NATO ally Turkey and Arab allies like Saudi Arabia and Qatar who have been clandestinely aiding this “network of death.” And it has been Assad, Hezbollah, Iran and Russia that have been resisting this “network of death.”

A year ago, the American people rose up to demand that Obama and John Kerry keep us out of Syria's civil war, specifically, that they not carry out their threats to bomb the army of Bashar Assad.

Had it not been for Assad, Hezbollah, Iran, and Russia, the network of death Obama, rightly excoriated from that U.N. podium, might by now be establishing its caliphate, not in Raqqa but Damascus.

Before we go any deeper into Syria, Congress needs to be called back to debate and vote on whether to authorize this new war.

For this war against the Islamic State seems, for some in that blood-soaked region, not so much to be a war of good against evil, but the first of several wars they want America to fight.

For them, the Islamic State is to be destroyed by the Americans. Then the Assad regime is to be brought down by the Americans. Then Iran is to be smashed by the Americans. Everyone in the Middle East seems to have in mind some new war for back. But the rising dollar may be sniffing out new pro-growth policies in a Republican sweep come November.

In fact, the best growth combination would be slashing corporate tax rates to 20 percent, letting S-corp small businesses pay the lower C-corp rate, and ending the double tax on profits earned overseas. Then the Fed could start normalizing interest rates.

This approach would get the economy cooking again, without inflation. American workers would finally get real pay raises, while business investment and the stock market boom.

King Dollar is the ticket.

the Americans to fight. How many such wars are in our vital interests?

While, undeniably, the Islamic State has shown itself beyond the pale with its beheading of innocents and its massacres of soldiers who have surrendered, let us not forget that our allies abetted these monsters, while adversaries we have designated as terrorists and state sponsors of terror were fighting them.

Lord Palmerston had a point when he said Great Britain has no permanent friends, no permanent enemies, only permanent interests.

Those interests should determine our policy.

Atmos Energy urges customers to prepare for winter today

SUBMITTED BY ATMOS ENERGY

AMARILLO — Atmos Energy is urging its customers to prepare today for what could be another bone-chilling winter. The United States faced extreme temperatures and record-setting natural gas consumption during the 2013-2014 winter heating season and according to industry leaders, the same may hold true this winter.

“The lessons learned from last year’s polar vortex is that there is no such thing as too much preparation,” said David Park, Atmos Energy president of the West Texas Division. “Last year we were able to provide affordable natural gas during critical periods thanks to our investments in our infrastructure and our underground storage. With winter on the horizon, Atmos Energy is planning for another robust heating season.”

Tips for customers:

In order to prepare for winter today, Atmos Energy advises all customers review their natural gas accounts. If you are a new customer or your service is currently inactive, call 1-888-286-6700 today to avoid long wait times on the phone and possible days without heat or hot water.

Tips for calling:

The best time to call is weekday afternoons. Mornings are typically the busiest time at our call centers.

Atmos Energy’s two customer contact centers, which are located in Texas, receive approximately 17,000 calls per day.

Customers who call during a busy time can use the automated phone system to schedule a return call from an agent, rather than wait on hold.

Contact us Monday-Friday from 7 a.m. – 8 p.m. (CST); Saturday 8 a.m. – 5 p.m. at 1-888-286-6700; and for emergency calls 24/7 at 1-866-322-8667.

Energy conservation:

Learn how to save energy throughout the winter at www.atmosenergy.com/wintertips

The best way to lower your energy bill is to use energy more wisely. A programmable thermostat allows you to keep your house cooler at night and when you’re away, and will automatically warm your house to comfortable levels for the hours you are home.

Try Atmos Energy’s on-line tools such as an Energy Calculator to help manage your energy use. Inspect your windows and doors for drafts. Use caulk or sealant to insulate as needed.

Energy assistance

If you are having trouble paying your utility bill, please visit our website to learn more about energy assistance programs.

Low-income customers are eligible for federal energy assistance through the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LI-HEAP), which helps pay energy bills and weatherize homes.

About Atmos Energy

Atmos Energy Corporation, headquartered in Dallas, is one of the country’s largest natural-gas-only distributors, serving over three million natural gas distribution customers in over 1,400 communities in eight states from the Blue Ridge Mountains in the East to the Rocky Mountains in the West. Atmos Energy manages company-owned natural gas pipeline and storage assets, including one of the largest intrastate natural gas pipeline systems in Texas and also provides natural gas marketing and procurement services to industrial, commercial and municipal customers primarily in the Midwest and Southeast.

For more information, visit www.atmosenergy.com. Atmos Energy can also be accessed through social media platforms such as Facebook, Twitter and YouTube.

Second annual ‘Zombies versus Superheroes’ 5K/1Mile and Safety Day

■ Raising money for local volunteer fire departments.

CLAUDE – Release your inner Zombie or Superhero or both! The second annual Armstrong Fire Zombie Fun Run and Safety Day is Saturday, Oct. 25 in Claude, raising money for the Claude and Washburn Volunteer Fire Departments, known as Armstrong Fire.

Two local 100 percent Volunteer Fire Departments continue to work together to raise money for fire equipment/trucks, along with Citizens Bank and other businesses. Everyone is excited about the second annual 5K Fun Run / 1Mile Walk through the streets of Claude along with Safety Day activities! All of the proceeds will go to the volunteer fire departments equally.

The Zombie Fun Run was created as a fundraiser last year with a themed-twist for an untimed 5K. This year, the added themed-twist is “Zombies vs. Superheroes”! You can run as a Serious Runner and stay Zombie Bait (either as a human or a Superhero) - running for your life as you wear flags for the Zombies to grab; or come dressed-up to join the Zombie Hoard, releasing your inner Zombie or Superhero-Zombie. There will also be 1Mile route through the streets of Claude.

Also, the third annual Safety Day will be in full-force. This is a collaborative effort between the Volunteer Fire Departments and the Armstrong County Office of Emergency Management with a free educational, hands-on approach to reach out to the community, promoting safety awareness, emergency preparedness, and a fun way to learn more about safety equipment up-close for all ages with free kids’ activities included. Support agencies along with several other local groups and fire departments will be in attendance.

“We are looking forward to another awesome turnout from the public this year especially with the addition of Superheroes vs Zombies”, Craig Thomas, Armstrong County Emergency Management Coordinator.

Visit our website www.armstrongfire.com for registration information (including Group Registration). You may sign up at the Amarillo, Claude, or Tulia Citizens Banks for $25 (Fun Run T-shirt included) until October 6th. You can also sign-up online at www.armstrongfire.com or call us at 806-335-7023.

Armstrong Fire is the joint effort of the Claude Volunteer Fire Department and Washburn Volunteer Fire Department in fund raising activities. For up-to-date information, go to Facebook.com/armstrongfirezombie.

Intel invests up to $1.5B in China mobile venture

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Intel will pay up to $1.5 billion for a 20 percent stake in a Chinese venture that will design and make Intel-branded chips for mobile phones and other electronics.

The Chinese chipmakers Spreadtrum Communications and RDA Microelectronics are controlled by Tsinghua Unigroup Ltd., a state-owned company funded by Tsinghua University in Beijing.

Intel is also attempting to become a tougher competitor in the mobile chip business, which it has been unable to dominate the way it has desktop and laptop computers. The company is also pushing for a larger share of China's growing mobile market, which is already the largest in the world.

The push has taken on added urgency as the popularity of smartphones and tablets and led to sales declines for traditional personal computers, Intel's main business for years.

The companies said Friday that Spreadtrum and Intel will create a new family of chips for wireless phones. Those chips should be available in the second half of next year.

The deal is expected to close in early 2015.

This is Intel's second corporate team-up targeting mobile chips in the past year. In May, Intel announced it would cooperate with another Chinese chipmaker, Rockchip, to use Intel chips in low-cost tablet computers running the Android operating system.

Tsinghua has rapidly become an emerging power in the mobile chip business. It has acquired both Spreadtrum and RDA in the past year.

Shares of Intel Corp., based in Santa Clara, California, slipped 13 cents to $34.01 in morning trading Friday. They had been trading near 52-week highs.

Panhandle Area Community Therapies (P.A.C.T.) recently met in Pampa for instruction in using therapy dogs to work with children in a grief session. They enlisted the help of therapist Cassie Willis of New Hope Counseling and Resources. Cassie shared many "tools" to use along with the dogs when guiding children through the grief process. Pictured are Gail Nabors, Cheri Vermillion, Diana McGarr with Gracie (our role play dog), Jo Humphrey, Linda Lanham, Sally Thomas, Carolyn Thomas, Shelley Haller and Cassie Willis.

Wounded man charged in Amarillo bat, sword fight

AMARILLO (AP) — Amarillo police have charged a wounded man with assault after he allegedly used a baseball bat to try to attack a homeowner who fought back with a sword. Potter County jail records show 24-year-old Chad Wayne Goode was being held Friday on a charge of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. Bond was not yet set for Goode, who police say was involved in a fight Thursday night in front of a residence. Police say Goode allegedly went to the residence, had a bat and tried to strike the homeowner. The resident struck Goode with what's believed to be a sword. A female witness drove Goode to a fire station for treatment. He was later arrested. Police on Friday didn't immediately provide more details. No attorney was listed for Goode.

sunday horoscope

A baby born today has a Sun in Libra and a Moon in Scorpio if born before 8:50 p.m. (PDT). Afterward, the Moon will be in Sagittarius.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Sept. 28, 2014:

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) This year you see life with renewed vitality. Your immediate circle of friends expands, and you enjoy your new pals a lot. If you are single, you will want a friendship as well as a relationship. It could be difficult to find someone who knows how to mix both successfully, but you will! If you are attached, the two of you often can be found with your friends. You will have the ability to manifest a mutual long-term goal. Both you and your partner could be very excited! SAGITTARIUS knows how to help you relax.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ You might spend a lot of time with one particular person today. By late afternoon, you will want to spread your wings. You will be quite content to go off to the movies or stop in on a jam session. You need some time to let your mind wander. Tonight: Opt for some exotic cuisine. This Week: You have a vision of what needs to happen. Follow it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ You have the ability to draw others out. Your charisma might make you feel overwhelmed, as so many people seek you out. You would prefer to be on a one-on-one level with a special person. Tonight: Add some spice to your life.

This Week: First get all the facts, then negotiate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Pace yourself, and know how much you need to do. You will get as much done as you want, but expect to be distracted later by a loved one or dear friend. Take off for a leisurely dinner together. Tonight: Love the moment.

This Week: Others seem to be doing your work. Don't complain.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Know what you expect from a new friend. This person might not meet the bar you have set, as it is very high. Relax a little, and give him or her some space. Go off and do something you really enjoy. Invite a dear friend along. Tonight: Let the party begin.

This Week: Plan on putting 100 percent into whatever you are doing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★ You might need some time at home to finish up a project or to get some more R and R. Be aware of an effort you must make toward a family member. This interaction will be crucial to preserving your relationship. Tonight: Make the most of the moment.

This Week: Use your ingenuity to move past a problem.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★ You are likely to say what you mean, and people might be disconcerted by what they hear. Let it go. They probably do need to hear your words. Visiting with friends might be nice, but you will want to head home earlier than usual. Tonight: Make a favorite dessert.

This Week: By Wednesday, you will come out of your cocoon.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ Understand that what is important to you at this very moment might not be important to someone else. Accept that fact and relax. You will have a better time together as a result. Touch base with a neighbor and catch up on his or her news. Tonight: Hang out with a friend.

This Week: Make calls and schedule a get-together.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ Indulge yourself. Your mood seems to be so much more relaxed than usual, and you will draw a loved one into some fun. Don't forget to join friends, as they have planned a get-together for a while. You won't want to miss all the fun and laughter. Tonight: Out late.

This Week: You might be too aware of how much a choice will cost.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★ You will need all the rest you can get today. Be a couch potato. Enjoy reading the paper. Take a nap or two. By later today, be ready to take the world by storm. Others will be delighted to see you in this mood. Tonight: And your weekend begins ... now!

This Week: Have a long-overdue chat.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Accept an invitation that throws you in the middle of the raving crowds, some of whom will be your friends! You'll enjoy the change of pace. Someone you meet today could be more important to you than you realize. Tonight: Get some much-needed sleep.

This Week: Not until Wednesday will you be ready to handle a problem.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★ You could be overwhelmed by a responsibility, but you will fulfill it. You won't have a question in your mind about what to do afterward. You always know where your friends are, and that is where you will be. Tonight: Let the party begin!

This Week: Friendship is the name of the game.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Take an overview of recent events. You suddenly could recognize that you missed someone's expression of his or her caring. You might want to backtrack and find this individual. Read between the lines a little more often. Tonight: Start thinking about tomorrow.

This Week: Expect to shoulder extra responsibilities through Tuesday.

Little green men and Social Security

TOM MARGENAU
Creator's Syndicate

About 40 years ago, a national organization conducted a poll of people in their 20s and asked them this question: "In the future, do you think you are more likely to see a Martian or to see a Social Security check?" It may not surprise you to learn that a vast majority of the respondents picked the Martian. In other words, young people back in the 1970s thought it was more likely that they would encounter little green men from outer space than a little green government check with their name on it!

Well guess what? Those folks (who are still alive) are now all in their 60s. Not a one of them has ever seen a Martian, but almost all of them see a little green government check each month. (Well, they see a notice from their bank indicating that a Social Security check has been deposited into their account.)

I am reminded of that survey almost every day because almost every day I hear some young person tell me that they are convinced Social Security will not be there for them when they get old. I've been hearing these gloom and doom predictions for 40 years now.

Back in 1973, shortly after I was hired and trained by the Social Security Administration, I was sent out to talk to a local service club about the program. After I gave a little speech, the very first question (actually it was more of a comment) I got went something like this: "I don't know why you bother telling us all about these so-called government benefits. We all know Social Security won't be around very much longer." Other people in the room nodded in agreement. I don't recall exactly how I responded. Probably not very well. I just recall being taken aback by all the negative reactions to the government program I now represented.

A few days after that speech, I was sharing that story with a much older colleague; someone who had started working in public affairs for SSA in 1940, just a few years after the program began. And he told me the very first comment he heard when he gave his first speech about the program was along these lines: "We all know that Social Security is a big government boondoggle shoved down our throats by the New Deal Democrats. I assure you the program will die even before FDR does!" (For those too young to remember, FDR was President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who died in 1945.)

What is it with the American people and their negative expectations for the Social Security program? I guess I can understand the guy back in 1940 wondering about the future of the program. After all, it was only a few years old then. But by the 1970s, Social Security had been around for almost 40 years. Why were the young baby boomers so pessimistic? It probably had something to do with their distrust of authority figures and government in general. But today, Social Security is pushing its 80th anniversary. How long must the program be around before people finally accept the fact that it's here to stay?

Whenever young people ask me, "Will it be there when I need it?" I respond in two ways. First, I ask them this question: "When will you need it?" Then I tell them that I needed Social Security when I was 10 years old. They usually look a little puzzled until I reveal to them that my dad died when I was a little kid. Shortly thereafter, my mother, brothers and sister and I started getting monthly survivor's benefits. I then point out that there are about six million children getting a Social Security check each month because a parent has died.

Then I further explain that there is about a 20 percent chance they will not stay healthy until their retirement years. That's why there are another 7 million people who get disability checks each month from Social Security.

In other words, the message I am trying to get across is that they may need Social Security long before their retirement years.

But the second and more important point I make to young Social Security skeptics has to do with the future of the program. I tell them that their "Will it be there when I need it?" question is the wrong one. They really should be asking: "How is Social Security going to change?" And that's because Social Security is not going away. It has been around for 80 years, and will be around for as long as our country is around. But the program has changed a lot in the last eight decades, and it will change as needed into the future.

Then I tell these young people that they should be getting involved in the debate about the future of Social Security. Sadly, that suggestion usually falls on deaf ears. I understand why. When you are in your 20s and 30s, you've got a lot of things to think about: jobs, spouses, children, mortgages, etc. Social Security is WAY back on a young person's list of priorities.

But the reason young people should be involved in the debate about the future of Social Security is because when Congress finally gets around to dealing with Social Security reform, whatever major changes are enacted will impact those very young folks who don't have the time to worry about it. For example, almost for sure the retirement age will be increased as part of a reform package. That change will not impact any of today's retirees or even anyone even close to their retirement years. But it will impact younger people. My son and daughter, both now in their 30s, will very likely have to wait until age 68, or maybe even later, to get their full Social Security benefits. That's something they and their contemporaries need to think about. That's why young people need to be asking, "How can I get involved in the debate about the future of Social Security?"

If you have a Social Security question, Tom Margenau has the answer. Contact him at thomas.margenau@comcast.net.

'The Drop' explores pasts of New York bar owners

By LINDSEY TOMASCHIK
LKTomashchik@thepampanews.com

"The Drop" came to Pampa's Cinema 4 on Friday. The movie follows Bob Saginowski, played by Tom Hardy, who is a local bartender seemingly trying to make an honest living.

The plot

The movie begins with money being transferred throughout different locations referred to in the film as drop locations. Viewers see Hardy's character, Saginowski, playing some part in this process as well, and from the beginning this hints to the fact that there may be more to his character than there initially appears to be.

Very early into the film, the bar that Saginowski runs with his cousin, Marv, played by James Gandolfini, is robbed by two masked men. The police become in-involved, and detective Torres, played by John Ortiz recognizes Saginowski from the Catholic church both men attend. Saginowski confides in Torres more than he should, which is displeasing to Marv.

Another vital part of the film begins when Saginowski is walking home and hears the whimpers of a dog coming from a trash can. This is where he meets Nadia, played by Noomi Rapace, and the two of them begin to care for the injured pit bull puppy together. Saginowski then begins to be bothered by known psycho Eric Deeds, played by Matthias Schoenaerts, and problems continue to escalate throughout the duration of the film as audience members learn more about the backgrounds of each character.

Fun Facts

Imdb.com had these fun facts about the movie:

- This is the last film appearance for James Gandolfini, who died after suffering a heart attack in June 2013.

- Three dogs were used for the role of Rocco, in order to keep them a consistent size during filming.

- The film is set in Brooklyn, New York and with American characters, but 3 of the 4 main actors are Europeans. Tom Hardy is British, Noomi Rapace is Swedish and Matthias Schoenaerts is Belgian. James Gandolfini is the only American among them.

Parents' guide

This film is rated R, which I deem it worthy of being. There is some profane language and a good amount of violence.

What do I think?

This generally isn't my type of movie. I love Tom Hardy, so I went into it excited, though I hadn't seen any previews or anything to the film prior to viewing it. I was immensely disappointed, though, because there wasn't much action at all and even the movie's climax, quite frankly, was dull. IMDB members rated "The Drop" 7.9 out of 10.

Oliver adds journalism to his comedy

NEW YORK (AP) — In poking fun at the Miss America pageant on the most recent episode of HBO's "Last Week Tonight," John Oliver reached for the comedic equivalent of low-hanging fruit. Then he veered into something wholly unexpected — investigative journalism.

His subsequent report questioning the pageant's scholarship program was the latest example of how Oliver has quickly moved beyond his roots at "The Daily Show" to produce something distinctive, and usually hilarious.

Oliver, who subbed for Jon Stewart as host of "The Daily Show" last summer and began his own HBO weekly show in April, often devotes about half of his 30 minutes to a single topic below the headlines. He's discussed gender pay inequality, anti-gay laws in Uganda, net neutrality and the politics of the World Cup.

Remember, this is a comedy show.

His 15-minute Miss America segment began with jokes about how dated a beauty pageant seems, and his incredulity at some of the questions contestants are asked. He took some shots at Donald Trump, who owns a competing pageant. Then he zeroed in on the Miss America organization's claim of making $45 million in scholarship money available to young women each year.

"Forty-five million," Oliver said. "That is an unbelievable amount of money. As in, I literally did not believe that."

His staff researched documents, finding a federal disclosure form that said the pageant spent $482,000 in scholarships in 2012. They researched tax forms on statewide pageants, finding several scholarship offers that couldn't possibly be awarded at the same time were added together to help reach the final figure. In other words, people shouldn't confuse money that may be available with money spent.

That's journalism, minus any apparent attempt to let pageant officials offer their side. The organization subsequently issued a statement not specifically addressing Oliver's charge that Miss America was being misleading, but said that "as with any scholarship, the full amount awarded may not always be used as recipients plans change or evolve."

Oliver has journalists who worked at the New York Times Magazine and ProPublica on his writing staff.

Robert Thompson, director of Syracuse University's Bleier Center for Television and Popular Culture, calls Oliver's work "investigative comedy." Thompson has played the net neutrality segment for his students.

Research indicates that young people are much more likely than their elders to take a deeper dive into news stories that interest them, searching for more information online, said Tom Rosenstiel, executive director of the American Press Institute. What Oliver is doing responds to that desire, he said.

"There is a natural link between committing journalism and committing comedy," Rosenstiel said. "They're both in the uncovering and unmasking business, but with different approaches."

Oliver, who wasn't made available by HBO for an interview, has made no secret of his debt to "The Daily Show," and viewers of "Last Week Tonight" will find many similar elements. This week he paired a little-noticed development — President Obama acting to continue the economic embargo against Cuba for another year — with a video clip of pre-president Obama saying in 2004 that the embargo had outlived its usefulness.

But in a weekly show, Oliver needs to go beyond daily developments. He hasn't hesitated to get into issues that others might consider eye-glazing. He even makes that part of the comedy.

In describing the concept of net neutrality, Oliver said, "the only two words that promise more boredom in the English language are 'featuring Sting.'" The segment, besides a look at the arcany of federal communications regulation, included a break-dancing Abraham Lincoln impersonator.

Before the World Cup, he took an exhaustive look at corruption charges against the tournament's operating body. Oliver had a cheap and pointed laugh line, showing video of FIFA board president Sepp Blatter falling during a public appearance. "That's one time you can say, 'I'm glad that old man fell off the stage,'" he said.

With Oliver's adept mixture of comedy and tangents in his longer segments, Thompson said, "you never feel like you're watching something 13 minutes long. It's always moving."

Oliver's mentor Stewart broke ground, and filled a journalism-like role, with his show's research and use of video archives, Rosenstiel said. Oliver's long-form pieces may be where he makes his mark.

"It is really an interesting convergence," he said.

Mexico army holds 8 soldiers in June killing of 22

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An army officer and seven soldiers face disciplinary action for their participation in the killing of 22 people in rural southern Mexico, but the army remained mum on Friday on what roles they played. The Mexican Defense Department said that the eight were involved in the June 30 incident in San Pedro Limon, an encounter that the military initially reported as a shootout but that a witness has described as a massacre. The National Human Rights Commission has requested a report on the arrests, investigator Marat Paredes said Friday. The army's statement did not reveal the names of those detained nor their battalion. They were being held at a prison in Mexico City on charges of crimes against military discipline, disobedience and dereliction of duty. The statement issued Thursday night said the military charges are being pursued "independently of the investigations that civil authorities are carrying out under their jurisdiction," leaving open the possibility of charges in civilian courts. President Enrique Pena Nieto said this week that the federal Attorney General's Office is also probing the incident. Shortly after the confrontation, the army reported that 22 suspected criminals had been killed in a fire-fight with troops. Only one soldier was wounded. The official version came into question when The Associated Press visited the scene days later and found no sign of a prolonged battle. At least five spots inside the warehouse where the bloodshed occurred showed the same pattern: One or two closely placed bullet pocks, surrounded by a mass of spattered blood, giving the appearance that some of those killed had been standing against a wall and shot at about chest level. Last week, a woman who says she witnessed the events told the AP that only one person died in the initial confrontation and the rest were shot after surrendering. The witness said the dead included her 15-year-old daughter, who had been wounded in the leg and was lying on the ground when she was killed. The witness couldn't immediately be reached for comment on the army detention. The national newspaper La Jornada on Friday published photos showing bloody bodies, purportedly in the immediate aftermath of the shooting, with investigators and military personnel still at the scene. While the AP has not independently verified the images, the bloodstains on the cinderblock wall, evidence markers and debris match those AP journalists photographed. Among the dead is a girl lying on her back in the manner that the witness described. Many of the dead are sprawled beside the wall of the warehouse. All pictured are holding or lying near assault rifles, which in some cases appear propped against the bodies. A plain yellow envelope containing the photos on a USB memory stick was sent anonymously on Wednesday to MVT, a local news agency in Mexico state, said the agency's director, Mario Vazquez. He checked the photos with those his agency took the day of the shooting and concluded it was the same scene. Until recently, officials have stood by the initial account of a fierce firefight. In July, the state of Mexico prosecutors' office released a statement saying there was "no evidence at all of possible executions." The office said it found ballistic evidence of "crossfire with a proportionate interchange of gunshots." The state government refused to release autopsy reports that the AP requested under Mexico's freedom of information law, declaring them state secrets to be guarded for nine years. The federal Attorney General's Office last week said that so far it had not found evidence corroborating the witness' account. But this week, President Enrique Pena Nieto said in New York that the Attorney General's Office was diving into the investigation and would answer all questions. Gen. Salvador Cienfuegos, the secretary of defense, said in a public speech on Thursday — the same day of the eight detentions — that soldiers must respect human rights despite whatever risks they may face in the line of duty. "Any behavior that departs from that rule will be taken to the proper authorities," he said. The U.S. State Department and international rights groups have called for thorough investigations. Human Rights Watch said the incident could prove to be one of the "most serious massacres in Mexico." "One by one, they're dismantling the official version that sought ... to cover and protect once again those responsible for crimes committed on the part of military forces," said Jose Miguel Vivanco, the organization's director for the Americas.

Hawaii gas stations, stores sold to Texas company

HONOLULU (AP) — Hawaii's largest independent gasoline operator is being sold to a Texas company for $240 million. Houston-based Sussler Petroleum MLP said Thursday it will buy Aloha Petroleum Ltd. Aloha has nearly 100 gas stations and is one of the largest convenience store operators in Hawaii with 44 stores. The deal is expected to close by the end of the year. Sussler plans to keep all of Aloha's 500 employees, its current management and brand names. Sussler is owned by Energy Transfer Partners LP and distributes about 1.7 billion gallons of motor fuel annually in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas and Louisiana. Aloha gas stations' history in Hawaii dates back to the early 1900s. "The depth of industry expertise and financial strength that Sussler brings to the company will allow to better serve our retails, wholesale and fuel terminal customers," said Richard Parry, Aloha's CEO and president. The acquisition reflects a shift in Hawaii's oil industry ownership, the Honolulu Star-Advertiser reported Friday. Chevron Corp., owner of Hawaii's second-largest refinery, is looking to sell it. Houston-based Par Petroleum Corp. bought Tesoro's Hawaii refinery and 31 Tesoro retail stations last year. "It was earlier this year that Aloha engaged what their different strategic alternatives would be, a joint partnership or sale of a portion or all of the company's stock," said Aloha spokeswoman Caroline Witherspoon. "The opportunity to combine with Sussler was the most attractive to them."

Palestinian leader in new UN bid to end occupation

NEW YORK (AP) — Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas accused Israel on Friday of conducting a "war of genocide" and a "series of absolute war crimes" during the 50-day summer conflict in Gaza, but stopped short of saying he will pursue war crime charges against the Jewish state at the International Criminal Court. In his speech at the U.N. General Assembly, Abbas also said he will seek a U.N. resolution to set a deadline for Israel to pull out of Palestinian lands captured in the 1967 war but did not include a three-year deadline as his aides had said he would. "This last war against Gaza was a series of absolute war crimes carried out before the eyes and ears of the entire world, moment by moment," Abbas said. The devastation unleashed, he said, "is unmatched in modern times." An official in the Israeli Prime Minister's office described Abbas' statements as "a speech of incitement that is filled with lies. This is not how someone who wants peace speaks," said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity in line with protocol. Israel launched thousands of airstrikes against what it said were Hamas-linked targets in Gaza, while Gaza militants fired several thousand rockets at Israel. More than 2,100 Palestinians were killed, a large majority civilians, and some 18,000 homes were destroyed, according to U.N. figures. Sixty-six soldiers and six civilians were killed on the Israeli side. The devastating war has weakened Abbas domestically, with his Hamas rivals enjoying a surge of popularity among Palestinians for fighting Israel. He is under pressure at home to come up with a new political strategy after his repeated but failed attempts to establish a Palestinian state through U.S.-mediated negotiations with Israel. His aides had said he would launch a new bid for a U.N. Security Council resolution to set a three-year timetable for Israel to pull out of Palestinian lands captured in the 1967 war. They added that a U.N. rejection of the Palestinian request would prompt Abbas to seek membership in international agencies, including the ICC. That would open the door to war crimes charges against Israel for its military actions in Gaza and Jewish settlement construction on West Bank land the Palestinians want for a future state.

The brown recluse is 1/4 to 1/2 an inch long, and is yellowish-tan to dark brown in color. Their legs are dark grayish brown and covered with short dark hairs. It has a distinctive violin or fiddle shape on its back, and may thus be referred to as a fiddle-back. The brown recluse is a nocturnal insect. It is also non aggressive and will only bite when bothered either in its secluded area or while it is hunting. When the recluse does bite it can be very dangerous to humans, causing sickness, skin lesions, and permanent scars. They are found mostly in wood piles, sheds, and dark corners within people's homes.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Sept. 29, 2014:
This year you are likely to have a different outlook on life. As a result, you will want to make a lot of adjustments and changes. Let go of what no longer works. In the next few years, many opportunities will head your way. Your circle of friends and acquaintances will grow. Your influences will be felt in areas that are significant for you. If you are single, and you would like to change your status, you are very likely to encounter Mr. or Ms. Right. If you are attached, the two of you achieve a mutual goal, which adds to the level of contentment that exists between you. SAGITTARIUS encourages you to open up more.
The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You'll draw inspiration from others' ideas. You might not agree with someone, nor might he or she with you, so detach in order to keep the peace. Try to consider what this person really means to you. Tonight: Accept a caring gesture for exactly what it is.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Relate directly to an individual who has a way of affecting you deeply. You two are very different, and the results of you avoiding certain matters will be unpleasant. Leave nothing to serendipity. Tonight: Buy a favorite dessert on the way home.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Others seem to make a big splash wherever they are. You could feel somewhat intimidated by them. Step back and note the good ideas being presented. Know that you still will be able to proceed in your chosen direction. Tonight: A friend could be full of surprises!
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ Remain at the helm of the ship, even if you feel distracted. An older person might be more unpredictable than you have ever noticed before. Refuse to stand on ceremony; simply smile and move on. Eye a purchase for your home carefully. Tonight: As you like it.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ You might want to add more zest to your day. Others probably will thank you for your smile. You'll hear some news or see a situation that could shock you. Given some time, you will understand the dynamics better. Tonight: Ever playful.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ You could be more in your own head than you realize. As a result, others might find it difficult to communicate with you. Take some time to realize who you are angry with or what is upsetting you. Try to get that situation settled first. Tonight: Happy at home.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You might need to screen calls and readjust your schedule. On the other hand, you could decide to stay on course. If you do, expect a snag or two along the way. Someone else will understand where you are coming from only after you explain your response. Tonight: Out late.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Be aware of the costs of proceeding as you have been. You could be very tired and withdrawn. Know when to say "enough," as it will help you to avoid a hassle. If you can prevent it now, you will be much happier as a result. Tonight: Balance your checkbook first.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ What seems clear to you might be obscure to someone else. You are direct and forceful, and it would not be surprising if you were to lose your temper. A friend will come to the rescue, but you might find it difficult to take back words already spoken. Tonight: All smiles.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ You might want to step back and consider your options. Even if you have a busy schedule, you'll need some thinking time. Someone you have to answer to could be very caring yet usually difficult. Interact with those you can count on. Tonight: Make it a personal night.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ A friend will demonstrate an enormous amount of caring. A discussion will point you in a new direction. Others seem to be more than willing to do whatever you want. You always appreciate your friends, but make the extra effort to show it now. Tonight: Where the gang is.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Honor a change of pace. You will want to follow through on a project and get it done. You will not allow distraction to go on for too long; however, you could have a lot of requests from people who would like some extra time with you. Tonight: A must appearance.

Thompson, Pampa take sting out of Tulia Hornets

By JOHN LEE
jlee@thepampanews.com

TULIA — The Pampa Harvesters (2-3) traveled to Tulia for their second road game of the season to take on the Tulia Hornets (3-2). Junior Colton Thompson and Hooper took turns running the ball to the 11-yard line of the Hornets.

On fourth and goal from the 4-yard line, Hooper found Woelfle for a 4-yard touchdown, making it 7-0 following a point after kick from junior Trevor Turner. After a series of three-and-outs by both teams, Tulia punched it into the end zone after a long run, tying the game at 7-7.

The Harvesters had a drive stall out, and then forced another three-and-out from Tulia. The Harvesters got the ball at the Pampa 38-yard line.

Hooper hit Thompson for a one-yard gain, followed by a seven-yard pass to Woelfle. Senior Brycen McClendon caught a couple of passes from Hooper for six yards. After an offside penalty set the Harvesters up on first down, Hooper found Woelfle for a 28-yard touchdown, making it 14-0 after the Turner extra point. This set up the Harvesters with a 14-7 lead at halftime. "I was really proud of them (the whole team)," Poynor said. "They (Tulia) have been able to run it on everybody. And we really got after them in the running game. I thought our front seven or six did a great job stopping the run. I was really proud of our o-line, who dominated their d-line."

The Harvesters started the second half with a three-and-out and Tulia attempted to keep it close. But after a blocked punt on the ensuing Hornet drive the Harvesters took the ball at the Hornets' 26-yard-line. Three plays and a facemask penalty later, and Thompson punched it in for the Harvesters. This gave the Harvesters the 21-7 lead after the Turner extra point.

After Tulia's drive, the Harvesters had a five-play drive stall out and Tulia got the ball back. Tulia attempted to continue driving down the field until deep into Harvester territory, Thompson picked off a pass from Tulia and took it to the 16-yard line of Pampa.

"They (the interceptions) were crazy, one of them I didn't think I had it," Thompson said. "I just believed in myself and the team believed in me so I was able to come down with it."

The Tulia defense forced another Pampa three-and-out and Tulia seemed to have the ball in good position again. That was until Thompson picked off another pass setting up Pampa near their own goal line. Hooper connected with Thomas from their own two-yard line, who took it 38 yards to their own 40-yard line. A six-yard pass to Parker and the Harvesters were near mid-field. McClendon broke for runs of 12, 12 and nine yards and after a pair of penalties the Harvesters were at the Hornet's five-yard line. This set Hooper up for a five-yard touchdown run, which gave the Harvesters the 28-7 lead after the Turner extra point.

The teams would trade three-and-outs until Thompson got his third interception of the night on Tulia's next-to-last drive. Thompson wasn't the only one giving Tulia fits as senior Ashjen Payne had two sacks throughout the night and senior Jonathan Doyle also had a sack.

The Harvesters' final points came off of a long drive that started with a flea-flicker that went from Hooper to junior Alec McClendon took the Harvesters all the way to the 31-yard line of Tulia. A few plays later and junior Erik Samora kicked a 37-yard field goal to give the final score of 31-7.

Ty Hooper went 25/42 228 yards and two touchdowns. Brycen McClendon had 44 yards on six carries, Hooper had 56 yards on nine carries and a touchdown and Colton Thompson had 10 yards on seven carries and a touchdown. Receiving, Jayson Thomas had 49 yards on three receptions, Brendon Woelfle had 68 yards and two touchdowns on seven carries. Defensively Colton Thompson had three interceptions, Ashjen Payne had two sacks and Jonathan Doyle had a sack.

Texas Tech falls 45-35 to (24) Oklahoma State

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Texas Tech might have lost much more than a game on Thursday night.

Davis Webb passed for 374 yards and four touchdowns for the Red Raiders before leaving in the fourth quarter of a 45-35 loss to No. 24 Oklahoma State with a left shoulder injury. His availability for Tech's Oct. 4 game at Kansas State is unclear.

"I'm not sure," Texas Tech coach Kliff Kingsbury said after the game. "I just know that they didn't feel like he could come back in tonight."

The injury to Webb's non-throwing shoulder forced him from the game with his team trailing 38-28. He went to the locker room, but later returned to the sideline.

Freshman Pat Mahomes stepped in for Webb and completed two of five passes for 20 yards, a touchdown and an interception.

"He was up and down, I thought," Kingsbury said. "He's a competitor, so he came in and fought, but your first playing time is a little rough."

Brad Marquez had eight catches for 106 yards for the Red Raiders (2-2, 0-1 Big 12). Jakeem Grant had a career-high 12 receptions for 100 yards and a touchdown, and Reginald Davis caught two touchdown passes.

Daxx Garman threw for 370 yards and four touchdowns for Oklahoma State (3-1, 1-0). He completed 17 of 31 passes and ran for a score in his second start since stepping in for the injured J.W. Walsh.

James Washington had three catches for 87 yards and two touchdowns for the Cowboys, and Desmond Roland ran for 86 yards and a score. Marcell Ateman set career highs with six catches for 130 yards.

Oklahoma State has won six straight against the Red Raiders and has averaged 55.5 points in the past four wins. The Red Raiders haven't won in Stillwater since 2001.

Mike Smith took over as Texas Tech's interim defensive coordinator after Matt Wallerstedt resigned from their shared position as co-coordinators. The Red Raiders surrendered 528 yards.

It was a typical shootout in the series. The teams combined for 1,034 yards. They also combined for 287 yards in penalties.

Texas Tech marched down the field on its opening drive, and Webb found Davis down the middle for a 21-yard touchdown. Webb was 7 of 9 on the drive.

Oklahoma State tied it late in the first quarter when Washington made an in-air adjustment in the end zone to snag a 33-yard pass from Garman.

Webb completed 18 of 26 passes for 175 yards in the first quarter.

Ramon Richards, playing because Ashton Lampkin was injured in the first quarter, intercepted Webb's first pass of the second quarter. Texas Tech's defense held, and then Webb found Marquez for an 18-yard touchdown pass that gave the Red Raiders a 14-7 lead.

Jeremy Seaton's leaping 28-yard catch between three defenders set up a 1-yard touchdown run by Roland that tied it with 7 minutes left in the second quarter.

Kevin Peterson intercepted Webb's pass, and then Garman took advantage on the next play with a 39-yard touchdown pass to Washington that gave Oklahoma State a 21-14 lead.

Texas Tech gained 340 yards in the first half, but only scored 14 points.

Garman struck again early in the third quarter with a 47-yard touchdown pass to tight end Blake Jarwin.

Tech hung tough. Justin Stockton caught a 17-yard scoring pass from Webb to make it 28-21, but Garman came right back and hit Tyreek Hill deep for a 50-yard touchdown pass that put the Cowboys up by 14 again.

The ball appeared to be overthrown, but Hill, a track sprinter, shifted into another gear and caught it in stride near the goal line.

Later, Seth Jacobs intercepted Mahomes' pass, and Garman kept the ball on a read play to put the Cowboys up by 17.

Jeter wins it for Yanks in home farewell

NEW YORK (AP) — The end of an era.

The perfect script. Derek Jeter capped his Yankee Stadium farewell with a game-winning single in the bottom of the ninth inning, the latest — and perhaps last — storybook moment of his charmed and illustrious career, to give New York a 6-5 victory Thursday night over the Baltimore Orioles.

Serenaded with adoring chants that echoed through the Bronx night, Jeter tipped his cap several times and drove in three runs. He launched an early RBI double off the left-center wall and saved the best for last, a sharp, opposite-field single to right that knocked in the winner.

"It was above and beyond anything that I've ever dreamt of," Jeter said. "This was a lot of fun."

After the raucous celebration that followed,

Jeter said he's played his final game at shortstop. He said he'll be the designated hitter at some point this weekend in Boston, "out of respect for the Red Sox, their fans and the rivalry."

"I want to take something special from Yankee Stadium and the view from shortstop here tonight is what I want to take home," he said. "I've only played shortstop throughout my entire career and the last time I want to play was tonight."

It appeared Jeter's tie-breaking grounder in the seventh would be the swing that sent the Yankees to a win when they built a 5-2 cushion against the AL East champions.

CULBERSON STOWERS

From the Press Box

■ The Broncos' loss was not a moral victory.

Last Sunday, the day I had circled on my calendar, my beloved Denver Broncos fell to the Seattle Seahawks in a rematch of February's disaster.

While it was a loss, there was very little the Broncos could take away as a positive, despite what the pundits say.

The Broncos showed they could play physically with the Seattle Seahawks.

In the Super Bowl, the Broncos were beat at the line. They were dominated. This time around, the defensive front of the Broncos were able to penetrate the Seahawks offensive line and give Russell Wilson fits.

Linebacker Von Miller had a sack and defensive end DeMarcus Ware led a group on a safety late in the game that definitely shifted momentum.

The Seahawks did only get to Peyton Manning one time, but the offense was stagnant through most of the game. The Broncos scored 17 points in the fourth quarter, nine of them off turnovers/safety.

While it is easy to blame the run game on the loss, teams can not run against the Seahawks.

Manning and the Broncos offense is a finesse offense, and that proved problematic again Sunday.

If a team gets physical with them, especially Demaryius Thomas, you can throw them off their game.

For someone who threw the ball 49 times, completing 31 of them, you would expect more yards after the catch than a mere 9.7 yards a completion.

I was simply not impressed with how the Broncos took it to the defending champs.

Oddly enough, in a total flip from last year, the Broncos offense should be grateful for the defense keeping them in the game. The Seahawks had several drives either stall out or held to a field goal.

The Broncos are on a bye this week, but the offense is going to have to get clicking and quickly. They get the Arizona Cardinals after the bye and it's in Phoenix. The Cardinals have one of the more impressive secondaries in the league and also play very physical football.

For fans it's even worse, we have to live with the taste of losing to the Seahawks in our mouths for two weeks. If we did for six months, we can for eight more days.

The Broncos, as I have said before, are not the same team as they are last year, they may be a more complete team this year.

Only time will tell, but the offense needs to click badly.

Pampa JV/freshmen thump Tulia 62-0

By JOHN LEE
jlee@thepampanews.com

The Pampa junior varsity and freshmen took on Tulia's junior varsity team and won with an impressive 62-0 victory.

The Harvesters freshmen offense took the field first, and drove down the field in two plays. One pass-and-catch from Fernando Anguiano to Brendan Grant, who took the ball down to the goal line, then punctuated it on the very next play to give the Harvesters the 7-0 lead. Brenden Baker kicked the extra points for the Harvesters' freshmen team.

On the ensuing Tulia drive, facing the combined defense of the freshmen and JV, Tulia's drive was stalled after a sack by freshmen Jacobe Mills and the JV offense took over for Pampa.

The drive was not a long one at all as Jordan Baker took a run from about 30 yards out and ran it in for a touchdown. Following the extra point by Derek Norris, who kicked extra points for the JV team, the Harvesters led 14-0.

The Harvesters defense continued to give Tulia fits as Angel Saldierna got a sack on the following Tulia drive. After the freshmen offense and Tulia offense traded possessions, it was the JV's turn to play.

They drove down the field and scored a touchdown on a 15-yard scamper by Cody Scarlett.

The next time a Pampa offense had the ball it was the freshmen's turn in the waning moments of the first half. A long touchdown pass to Darrell Fields gave the Harvesters 28-0.

In the third quarter, Jordan Baker took a punt return back for a touchdown to take the 35-0 lead.

The freshmen offense took over after a three and out by Tulia. It wouldn't take long for them to find the end zone as Anguiano connected with Kade Parker on a long touchdown pass.

The next offensive possession for Pampa was the JV's turn and they got a little creative with their play-calling.

Scarlett tossed the ball over to Corbin Hair, who threw it deep to Ryan Roden who took it to the house for a touchdown. The Harvesters went on to finish the shutout in the fourth quarter and won 62-0.

Longhorns, Jayhawks have plenty in common

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — If Texas coach Charlie Strong needs anybody to commiserate with these days, he needs look no further than the sleepy college town of Lawrence and the guy coaching Kansas.

When Charlie Weis took over the Jayhawks a couple of years ago, a veritable purge ensued. Just about every day, it seemed, another player was suspended or dismissed from the program. Weis wanted to establish a certain culture, and those who didn't buy in had an alternative: leave.

In short, it's exactly what Strong has been doing in his first year at Texas.

When the former Louisville coach sent offensive tackle Kennedy Estelle packing on Tuesday for a violation of team rules, it brought to nine the number of players he'd dismissed. Two other players, offensive tackle Desmond Harrison and running back Daje Johnson, were still suspended as Texas (1-2) prepared to visit the Jayhawks (2-1) in the Big 12 opener for both teams Saturday.

"The difference is it's always tough to follow a legend," Weis said. "When you go to Texas, following Mack Brown, what are you going to do? Come in here and say all the things Mack Brown was doing were wrong? It's tough to do that."

"I think Charlie's doing things his way," Weis said. "He feels comfortable doing it his way, and he believes it's the only way to get it done the way he wants."

Weis made similar comments about himself when he took over for Turner Gill. But in letting go a number of players at the onset, including several starters, Weis sacrificed potential early success for what he hoped would be long-term gains.

The Jayhawks only won once that first season, but won three times last year — including their first Big 12 win under his watch — and have started to show signs of turning the corner.

Meanwhile, the Longhorns have dropped consecutive games to UCLA and BYU.

In other words, expectations are much different at Texas than Kansas.

"It's all coming together," Strong said this week. "I told the seniors, it's their leadership, and what you like, your senior year, you'd like to see them go play their best football, because some of our seniors are not playing their best football right now. And it's not going to change until we start developing pride and we have pride within ourselves and pride within our team."

As the Longhorns prepare to visit Kansas, here are a few things to keep in mind:

ASH STEPS AWAY: This will be the first game since Texas quarterback David Ash announced last week that he was done playing football because of concussions. Tyrone Swoopes will make his third straight start on Saturday. "I just feel the same way as I always have," he said. "Just have to go out there and be ready. Got to prepare and be ready to play, play for the team."

SPEAKING OF MACK: Weis and Brown have been close friends for years, but Weis said he won't pick up the phone for a few helpful tips this week. "Now, I gladly would take his call," Weis said, "but I wouldn't make that call because that's putting somebody on the spot."

CONNECTIONS: Of the 95 players on the Jayhawks' roster, 25 of them are from Texas. Perhaps not surprisingly, no players on the Longhorns' roster are from Kansas.

COMING OFF BYE: The Longhorns had a week off to digest their situation, and cornerback Quandre Diggs said they took advantage of it.

"It gave us more time to refocus," he said. "Coming off a tough loss like (UCLA), where we had the opportunity to win the game, it's always good to have some time off." Diggs said he was able to get home, see family "and eat some good cooking."

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My birthday is in 26 days and my dad just told me he is not going to get me a birthday present. And I really want an iPod Touch for school. I'm in the fifth grade and everyone in my class has an iPod Touch, iPad or iPhone. EXCEPT ME!

My mom said she would get me a present, but it will be something small. And unless I can keep my room clean, I won't have a birthday! I'm turning double digits (10)! Please help! — DESPERATE GIRL IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR DESPERATE: I'll try, but it may not be the help you're hoping for.

Talk to your parents and ask why they are against you having an iPod Touch. Not all kids your age have parents who can afford them, and that might be the reason. Show them you are mature by keeping your room clean and doing whatever other chores are assigned to you. If you get an allowance, start saving up and ask them if they would "partner" with you in getting an iPod Touch in the future, after you have saved a certain amount. It's worth a try, and it just might work.

DEAR ABBY: My 20-year-old son is in recovery from substance abuse. He has also dealt with depression over the years. He has informed his therapist, his father and me that his older sisters had sex with him when he was a young child. It was one of the explanations he gave for his depression and substance abuse. I have wanted to talk to his counselor about the situation so that as a family we can talk to his sisters. We could perhaps find out whether what he's referring to is normal experimentation or something more. We would also be able to ask his sisters if they were abused and acting out as a result of it. It seems incredible that as parents we were oblivious because we thought we were aware of and vigilant about threats to our children.

Now our son does not want to discuss this and refuses to see his counselor. We're afraid pushing him will trigger a relapse on his part, but we are also concerned about whether there might be an issue with his sisters that should be addressed. Should we tell him we're going to raise it with his sisters? Or should we wait until he's ready? — WANTS TO DO WHAT'S BEST

DEAR WANTS: This news has to have been shocking to you and your husband as parents, but it isn't time yet for a family discussion because your son may be too fragile. Also, I think professional ethics prevent your son's therapist from discussing this with you. Issues like this can be complicated, and the facts may never be known.

What is most important now is for you to show your son that you love him and care about his emotional health, and while you respect his privacy, it is vital that he help himself move forward. The past cannot be changed, but it is important for his future that he find a professional with whom he CAN talk, if the therapist he has been seeing isn't helping him. Table any family discussion about this until your son is stronger.
