UNUSUAL PAINTINGS BELIEVED TO BE IN GAIL AREA

PANCHO VILLA RESCUED SON OF ARTIST FROM DUNGEON

The strange and exciting story of an artist who sold her works all over the Southwest at the turn of the century to help free her doctor son from a Mexican prison, may very well have a Gail connection, because some of the paintings are believed to be privately owned here.

Her beautiful pastoral oil-on-tapestry paintings have brightened homes and churches and brought joy to their owners throughout the Southwest since the turn of the century.

Very few know of the despair that accompanied every painstaking stroke of her brush. Certainly every painting had its message, but the strange, remarkable, untold story of the artist and the calamity in her life that motivated her for years is a much greater picture. She painted with a purpose.

And before her story was finally played out over international borders, she would have become involved in the sphere of diplomatic relations, political lobbying and even into the areas of helping finance a foreign revolution.

Texas and American national officials up to and even including the President got to know her well, and foreign revolutionaries felt her influence. She was a mother praying, fighting and laboring for one of her children who she believed had been wronged.

Mexican legend Pancho Villa would prove to be the pivotal key in re-uniting the fragile artist and her physician son who had been a long-time prisoner in a Mexican dungeon.

Putting all the pieces of the strange puzzle together began with a modern woman's determination to identify the artist of a large painting she had bought during the disposal of furnishings from a large nearby home.

The trail took many turns, including the National Archives, crumbling newspaper files, fading memories, interview, letter writing and days of library and cemetery research. None of the informants knew the whole story. A piece was added here; a new name turned up there; many other paintings came to light and, little by little, the story of Anna Laurie Harle unfolded.

Truly, it was a classic example of international intrigue that was so much a part of the Southwestern History in the early 1900's. The thoroughly documented account reads today like pure fiction, but its principals actually lived it.

There are believed to be hundreds of the paintings by Mrs. Harle throughout the Southwestern States, many hung in major churches, and were proud, prized possessions of those who had decorated stately homes. Since then, they have been passed from generation to generation. Now with the publication of this material, their value will be enhanced by knowledge of the story behind the paintings.

She was a Southwestern pioneer artist; her son, a pioneer doctor who first practiced in Mexico, where their troubles began; their combined story is the kind of pioneer experience that helped forge this great area. In the later stages of this epic, Dr. Harle rode with Villa as his personal physician.

Historians, art-lovers, those who find strength and enjoyment from knowing real people solving real problems, will find the pages of this book intriguing.

The curious initial search for the artist of the old, unsigned tapestry

SAFETY BELTS ESSENTIAL FOR SUMMER FUN

When you're getting ready for a vacation, there's one little thing you can't afford to leave undone. It's the safety belt in your car.

Reminding Texans to keep that belt buckled as summer fun begins, the Texas Coalition for Safety Belts is sponsoring Texas Buckle Up Week May 22-29. George R. Gustafson, president of Texas Safety Association and a spokesperson for the coalition, said the message is more important this year than ever.

"Texas traffic deaths increased 4% in 1988, according to figures from the Department of Public Safety. It was our first increase in four years," said Gustafson.

"Surveys show that almost 40% of our drivers still don't wear their safety belts. If Texas is going to help achieve the national goal of 70% belt use by 1990, we have a long way to go."

By observing this special week, Texas again joins national groups in promoting Buckle Up America! week. The theme for this year's week is "The Winning Combination." National and local programs are promoting the advantages of the buckle-up habit when combined with new technology, such as air bags and automatic safety belts.

Dear Parent:

RE: ASBESTOS NOTIFICATION

Each Building Owner is required to notify all employees, maintenance personnel and other personnel that work in their building of the existence of any asbestos materials in the building.

Many buildings in the State of Texas have asbestos of some type in their building. Asbestos has been used in many products. The most common usage is the type that has been blown on the ceilings for acoustic purposes. The second most common is used in thermal insulating that is applied to pipes in boiler rooms and associated equipment. These two types are what everyone is most concerned about.

Your organization has just completed an inspection of their facilities. The independent inspector(s) have located and identified the asbestos in your building. They have also made recommendations for proper response if problems exist. Their inspection has been validated by a second person who has the title of Management Planner. This person completes a document that says what the owner will do as a result of the recommendations of the inspector, and completes an Operation & Maintenance Program that will minimize disturbances of asbestos material until a removal program can be scheduled.

Asbestos materials do exist in Borden County School.

As required by law, a copy of the management plan is on file with the Building Manager. If you wish to examine this document, you may do so upon request.

If you need additional information, you may call your asbestos coordinator who is Charles Thorn at telephone number (915) 691-0189. His address is 154 Caddo, Abilene, Texas 79605.

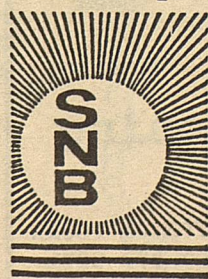

Thank you.

Although the fate of the 1989 cotton crop on the High Plains is yet to be determined, the threat of a crop disaster for many producers is "too obvious to be ignored."

So says a statement prepared by Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, and presented in Amarillo May 19 to a hearing before the House Subcommittee on Wheat, Soybeans and Feed Grains. On hand to give an oral summary of the statement and answer committee questions was PCG Vice President Larry Nelson, Hale and Swisher County farmer and ginner of Tulia.

The hearing was called by Subcommittee Chairman Dan Glickman (D-KS) as an outgrowth of the severe drought that devastated winter wheat crops in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas. Congress in 1988 passed legislation giving federal assistance to last year's drought-plagued corn and sorghum producers. But the Administration advised the National Association of Wheat Growers that any extension of that bill's benefits to winter wheat producers would have to come from Congress.

In response, both Chairman Glickman and subcommittee member Bill Sarpalius (D-TX) have introduced legislation. The Chairman's bill would give aid only to drought-affected wheat producers who planted in 1988 for 1989 harvest. The Sarpalius' measure would extend the 1988 disaster relief program to all 1989-planted crops and add freeze damage to the list of covered losses.

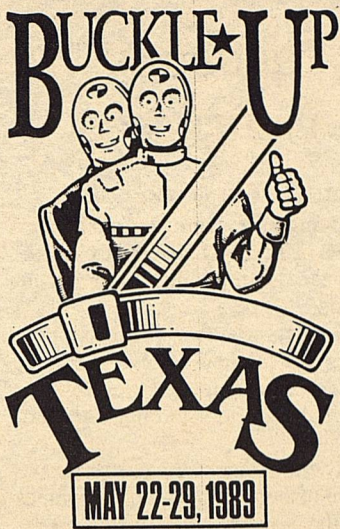

The PCG statement said "All indicators point to a subnormal if not disastrous year," citing a severe shortage of subsoil moisture all over the High Plains, the general absence of rainfall for seed germination on dryland farms, and the ever-present threat of wind and hail losses.

And if the threat of widespread losses becomes reality, PCG continued, "producers who lose a cotton crop will suffer just as much and will need and deserve help just as much as those who lose a corn or wheat crop."

Asked about the extent to which rains in the week preceding the hearing might have alleviated cotton's problems, PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson said the overall moisture deficit for most of the High Plains has barely been touched.

"Hardly any of our area has had enough rain to even begin to replenish the deep moisture we normally depend on for normal production," he explains, "and I'd guess there's still well over a million acres on dryland farms where getting a stand without more rain is either out of the question or very iffy."

PCG earlier had projected 1989 cotton acreage in its 25 counties at about three million, 1.8 million of which is without irrigation.

AT&T MultiQuestSM Service

AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc., (AT&T) announces its intent to introduce within Texas on July 14, 1989, AT&T MultiQuest Service, a new interactive 900-type telephone service. Since February 19, 1989, this innovative service has been available to Texas businesses only on an interstate basis. With AT&T MultiQuest Service, Texas business customers (otherwise known as sponsors) may offer value-added information services to callers originating long distance calls from Texas or elsewhere in the United States over AT&T's public switched network. A Texas caller, accessing the service by dialing the sponsor's 1-900 plus seven-digit number, can obtain recorded and/or live information by communicating with attendants, voice messaging equipment and computer data bases. Flat-rate, time sensitive usage charges will be billed to the caller for the sponsor's service.

AT&T is offering AT&T MultiQuest Service within Texas in response to requests by its business customers for a service that offers intrastate as well as nationwide interactive voice & data transport capability. Potential sponsors include entrepreneurial companies entering into new ventures that are information intensive, local mass announcement sponsors who want statewide as well as national coverage coupled with interactive capability and other information service providers.

The Texas intrastate AT&T MultiQuest Service will be tariffed as an "add-on" offering to a sponsor's existing interstate AT&T MultiQuest Service. The intrastate AT&T MultiQuest Service costs will be recovered from sponsor usage charges set forth in AT&T's intrastate tariffs. The usage charges billed to the caller are determined by the sponsor as appropriate to the service being offered and are not tariffed charges.
