Paul Thompson Graduates At UT Medical Branch

Paul Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Smith of Memphis, is one of four finalists chosen for a new award designed to recognize a graduating three year medical student who best exemplifies those attributes of a physician related to patient care at the University of Texas Medical Branch.

According to Dr. David C. Eiland, Association Dean for Student Affairs, "The student selected to receive the Outstanding Three Year Graduate Award will have earned the respect of his peers in his dealings with patients, as well as with members of his profession. His qualities will include compassion, understanding, concern for the patient as a total person, and the willingness to make that extra effort in the patient's behalf."

The Outstanding Three Year Graduate Award will become an annual tradition along with the coveted Gold Headed Cane Award, which has been given at this school since 1960 to the fourth year graduating student who epitomized the qualities of a physician.

Paulbearers were grandsons and included: Frankie Ellis, Steve Ellis, James Ellis, Mike Stone, Dennis Stone and Mark Riley.

Lewis Foxhall Graduates From Baylor Medical

Lewis E. Foxhall is one of 176 Baylor College of Medicine students to receive his doctor of medicine degree from Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, Baylor president, at graduation ceremonies on May 28, 1976.

Foxhall, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Foxhall of Memphis, plans to take his residency in family medicine at Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi.

"Sixty percent of this year's graduates have chosen to take their first year pediatrics, obstetrics - gynecology or family medicine," Dr. Edward C. Lynch, Baylor's dean of student affairs, said.

Dr. Lynch described today's students as keenly attuned to health care delivery needs. "The need for primary care physicians in Texas remains critical and students are deciding on practices which will meet the needs of the health care system," Dr. Lynch continued.

Foxhall completed his undergraduate work with highest honors in 1973 at the University of Texas in Austin, earning a bachelor of science degree in biomedical engineering.

Memphis Country Club is all geared up to host the Annual Memphis Invitational Golf tournament to run three days over the Memorial Day weekend.

The tournament is jammed packed with entries from all over Texas and Oklahoma, with one golfer from as far away as Australia.

Another strong field of championship flight golfers, 29 strong, will be vying in that flight. Although the defending champion, Tom Jones, who blistered the course last year, is not in the field this year, several other college golfers will be making championship flight veterans shoot their best to capture a high finish in the field.

Back will be former champions like Max Mickey, Dick Weston and Ken Bailey. Steve Long of Texas Tech will be among several Tech players in the tournament. He is from Melbourne, Australia.

This year's field makes it extremely difficult to pick a favorite.

First flight will also have a strong field, including 24 golfers. The Championship and first flights play 54 holes medal play during the tournament.

Play begins Saturday morning with lower flights teeing off at 8:30 p.m. and upper flights at 1:30 p.m. Total entry in the tournament has exceeded 110. Sponsors of the tournament are hoping for good weather conditions. The rains this week have made the course wet, and hampered mowing operations.

Due to the numerous social activities which are held jointly with the tournament, many of the golfers bring their wives to the Memphis tournament each year. The wife of one golfer commented when she was asked if her husband was going to enter again this year, "I'm planning to be there so you'd better put my husband's name on the list."

The tournament was filled to capacity two weeks before entry deadline, and only days after tournament window cards were mailed out to neighboring golf clubs. Since then a waiting list has had to be drawn up.

The local tournament attracts such a large field of out-of-town golfers that less than 20 members of the local club enter the tournament each year.

Play continues Sunday morning and afternoon, and Monday morning and afternoon. Lower flights play 18-hole medal on Monday to determine winners of Irons, Woods and golf bags.

Storms Bring Hail, Rain, One Tornado

A week of stormy weather has brought wind damage, one damaging tornado, hail damage, and a lot of rain to this area.

The stormy weather began last Saturday, when hail and high winds, and about an inch of rain hit the Memphis area shortly before 7 p.m. This storm dumped moisture from one - fourth of an inch up to two inches on west - east path.

Then, early Monday morning, a line of thunderstorms brought more rains, hail and extremely high winds across the county leaving from one to two inches of rains.

A barn at the Floyd McElreath farm northwest of Memphis, was blown away and as the storm moved in toward Memphis, the irrigation system on the Frank B. Foxhall farm was damaged. The fence at the Lloyd Elliott home in northwest Memphis was blown down.

Tuesday night, another big storm marched across the county from west to east and one funnel cloud caused considerable damage to an area west of Estelline between Parnell and Estelline.

Barns of Jerrel Rapp, Major (Mutt) Morrow, Cecil (Buke) Adams and Bob Collins were blown down, sheds, trees and one irrigation system were reported destroyed.

The R.E.A. crews worked early into the morning hours trying to restore power lines to several homes which received some damage from the storm. Home damage was confined to storm windows, roofs, etc., it was reported.

The funnel cloud lifted before it hit Estelline. Hail and a flood of rain water accompanied this system.

The entire Estelline area had already received good rains before the storm hit.

Insurance men in Memphis report hail damage has been reported from all points in the county, so few areas have been spared violent weather this week.

Other areas in the county have received wind damage this week, but the area west of Estelline was the hardest hit.

Some farmers have been happy with the moisture, especially in the northwestern portion of the county where it has been relatively dry all spring.

Little League To Begin Play Tonight

The Memphis Little League program got underway Monday for the Farm teams, with three teams organized this year, but Tuesday night's opener for the four Little League teams was rained out.

Hopes are that the field will be dry enough tonight to begin the season, although games scheduled for Tuesday, May 25, will have to be made up at a later date.

Thursday evening, at 6 p.m., the Yankees are scheduled to play the Indians, while the second game will begin after the first game.

Little League officials announced that this year, the first games will begin at 6 p.m. Each coach will have 10 minutes extra time to get all players for the game. If after the 10 minute period is up, and a coach does not have enough players he will declare a forfeit game.

No inning can begin after one hour and 30 minutes during the first game. No inning can begin after 9:30 for the second game. It takes four innings to make an official Little League game.

The League is in need of Volunteer umpires and base coaches. Any parent (male) present at games may be called upon to coach or umpire, and Little League officials ask cooperation from the parents to cooperate in these matters.

Next Tuesday night, the Yankees are scheduled to play the Tigers and the Indians will play the Giants in the second game.

EDITORIAL

The Nation's Greatest Success Story!

The U. S. News and World Report, May 31 issue, published an article entitled "The Nation's Greatest Success Story" with an introductory sub-heading which states, "He keeps the dollar strong, helps pay the bill for foreign oil, feeds the U. S. and millions around the world—the man who tills the soil."

The American farmers in 1976 will: 1. Provide food to American families for about 17 per cent of their take-home pay—the smallest by this measure of any country in the world; 2. Export more than any other U. S. industry (22 billion in sales or 20 percent of total exports last year); 3. Top others in growth of productivity (Output per man-hour 1965-75—On Farms Up 65.2 percent, In Factories Up 14.6 percent); 4. Take in more money than any other business (99.2 billion in 1975); 5. Spend more money than any other business ($75.5 billion in 1975); 6. Earn a net income comparable to 1975 level of $23.7 billion; 7. And each farmer will feed himself and 48 other Americans.

Total sales of agricultural products abroad this year will bring in an estimated 22 billion dollars—far and away the largest single source of U. S. sales abroad. Without this 22 billion dollars from export farm sales, Washington would be hard put to pay for the foreign oil that must be had to keep the U. S. economy humming. The oil-import bill in 1975 was 25 billion and will approach 30 billion in 1976.

Farmers have got off the taxpayers' backs, according to the article. Such payments climbed steadily from 2.5 billion dollars a year in 1965 to a peak of 4 billion in 1972, and dropped to a current, less than a half billion last year, and these were in disaster-relief payments to those hit by drought, floods and other catastrophes.

But the, otherwise, rosey article, has a dark cloud right in the middle of it, when discussion net income in 1975.

In 1975, U. S. farmers had a gross income of 99.2 billion dollars, of which they spent 75.5 billion on production expenses, winding up with net realized income of $23.7 billion. That was considerably under their best year ever, 1973, when net income hit 30 billion dollars.

Average net income per farm in 1975 was $8,444.00, down from $10,549 in 1973. Such averages are far exceeded by many of the family farms in mid-America. The article gave an example of a farmer, Vernon Johnson, near Boone, Ia., who owns 226 acres and rent another 300 acres. Last year he had a net income of $16,192 which was about five percent of his total investment.

"The stakes in this business are getting too high for comfort. It used to be when spring came around I was content if I had a couple of thousand dollars in the bank. But today, with the high cost of chemicals, fuel and fertilizer, I can't plant my farm unless I have at least $15,000 on hand. As a matter of fact, I just spent $1,500 today so I'll be able to sleep better this summer—I bought hail insurance."

Mr. Johnson, like most farmers, is angry over what he sees as undue influence by Government, big grain dealers and meat-packers on the prices he gets. His attitude helps explain why President Ford appears to be in trouble across the farm belt.

Farmers are still bitter over the President's moratorium on grain sales to Russia last autumn. At that time prices plunged and have not yet recovered to earlier levels. "It was a sellout to labor, who thought it would mean lower food prices," says Mr. Johnson, "and I probably won't vote for Ford, even if he is nominated."

The article quotes some authorities who feel that corporate farming will be slow coming to the U. S., especially in areas where market prices fluctuate. "The family farm has great resilience. In hard times, the family farmer can tighten his belt, work for nothing. He will hold onto his land for a return of as little as 3 to 4 percent—less if need be."

"The corporation farm can't do that. Its workers punch a time clock. They won't stay up all night to plant a corn crop or tend a sow through farrowing a litter of pigs. If they don't get paid, they quit," says Don Paarlberg, No. 1 economist in the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

More young people are entering or staying in agriculture. Not long ago, the average age of farm operators was 52 years. Now that is dropping. Almost 20 percent of farm operators now are under 35 years of age, compared with 15 percent in 1970.

The article also quotes such figures by USDA as saying technology will bring about increased yields by 1985 of 50 percent for wheat and feed grains, and soybeans by one third and beef output by 40 percent. These figures must be based upon "ideal" weather conditions however, for the nation's farms are now on 100 percent production.

However, the same magazine, on the next page, quotes a gloomy, almost catastrophic view of world weather trends and their impact on food production just released by Central Intelligence Agency. The report comes out of highly controversial studies on whether or not a global cooling trend has begun or whether or not the cooling trend which has been detected in the last 10 years is just a returning to normal, less stable conditions. All agree, the world is emerging from a period of remarkably stable weather—favorable to farming—that lasted some 40 to 50 years.

Here in Hall County, we all know that "dry land" farming has been better the past 18 or 19 years (with the exception of 1970) than it was in say the mid-1950s and especially the drought years of the 1930s.

The area has received several good rains this week. Area crops always do better when it rains.

What Other Editors Say

A TWO-PARTY PARTY?
A great deal of publicity has been given in the national press to the "Reagan sweep" in Texas' first Presidential primary, but that "sweep" is not very impressive when it is viewed in the light of the number of voters who created it.

Reagan received only 3.3 per cent of the potential vote in the Texas primaries. Ford received only 1.7 per cent. Democrat candidate Jimmy Carter, who got all the Democratic delegates and might, himself, claim a "sweep" of the Texas primary, did it with less than 9 per cent of the potential Texas vote.

Plain fact of the matter is that a minority of Texas voters bothered to cast ballots at all in the primaries; and the percentage voting in the Republican primary was minuscule.

That doesn't mean that Reagan might not carry the state in the general election in November if he is the Republican standard-bearer. After all, Nixon did it.

It simply means that precious few Texas Republicans ever bother to vote in their own primary elections — not that they don't exist.

Texas has been a two-party state where national politics is concerned for many years;

Inflation, simply stated, means it takes more to buy less, and while the experience may be new to some, anyone over 60, or even 45, has been through it before. The one thing the over 45 generation knows is that nothing lasts forever. That holds true for inflation, recession and unemployment.

Since the turn of the century, we have had two major price inflation periods, not counting the present one, 1914-20 and 1939-48, during and after two World Wars. Prices doubled, but so did our money supply. The nation also has experienced one fairly long continued peacetime rise in prices, 1897-1914, when everything went up 40-50%.

The economist-historians say we also have had four periods of economic stability, 1882-92, 1903-1913, 1923-29 and 1948-1960, and since economic growth depends upon stable money, this nation experienced unprecedented industrial growth during each period.

As a nation, we have overcome and taken advantage of our setbacks, and we will continue to do so. One strength of our economy is its banking system, which is among the strongest in the world. Your bank provides the loans that build the businesses that generate the income that pays the salaries that pay the bills that keep industry moving.

"The more you know about our business, the more we can help you!"

and Texas Republicans, who have never bothered to create a real in-state organization of their own, have made a two-party party of the Democratic organization in Texas by traditionally voting in Democratic primaries.

SUNSET BILL
U. S. News and World Report, in a recent issue interviewed people all across the nation to ask what's bothering them the most nowadays.

The magazine found that people are worried about inflation, our deteriorating defense position, the energy shortage and a number of other things.

But one of the biggest worries is our federal government itself. People in this country are afraid that the federal bureaucracy has gotten completely out of hand.

Bureaucrats have become quite powerful. The Department of Health, Education and welfare, for example, has thousands of people on its number who are able to issue payroll, including a great sue rulings and decisions which affect the ordinary American as much if not more than court decisions or legislative bills.

Bureaucrats, especially those in high places, tend to become overbearing and arrogant because they know that it is beyond the ordinary citizen's ability to get them moved or their orders changed.

Bureaucrats tend to have good salaries and are protected by a lot of regulations which give them automatic cost-of-living raises, a generous retirement system, short hours and lots of vacation time.

And once a bureau or agency is set up, it lives on forever. Thus we applaud the legislation now in Congress called "sunset bills" which would make federal agencies regularly justify their existence or else come to an end.

The Senate is studying one proposal that would require all federal agencies to be re-approved at least every four years. It would change the way these agencies are funded, too. Instead of allocating a certain sum, Congress would start with zero and let the agency justify what it asked.

People are complaining that there are so many federal programs, accompanied by duplication, inefficiencies and conflicting purposes that we are getting government so out of touch with the people that it can't perform the job set up to do.

There needs to be some curb on the agencies. The Occupational, Safety and Health Act has bogged down into nitpicking and unreasonable regulations when all Congress had in mind was a law to protect the worker by safeguarding his equipment and surroundings.

Sounds like a pretty attractive piece of property. Just the kind of place you'd like to set down roots. Raise a family. Start a country.

Only trouble was, England ruled this country. And so those early Americans engaged in a struggle for freedom. A struggle that took seven long years, and over $27 million that was raised from the brand-new citizens of a brand-new country.

People really took stock in America back then. And just as importantly, they still do. By buying U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan at work.

After all, Savings Bonds are still the safe, dependable way to save, set down roots, raise a family.

In fact you could look at Bonds as a really smart investment in land. Your land.

New U.S. Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. Who would? Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Bentsen Seeks Tighter Bail Laws: Would Jail Those Found Dangerous

Washington, D. C. — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Tuesday wants to change Federal bail laws "that put us back on the street."

He is considering how high bail should be in a criminal case, to consider only whether the accused will show up for trial," Bentsen said in remarks prepared for the Senate.

"This is a serious mistake. And victims of crime in cities throughout this nation pay for it daily."

"I want to change the law. I want our Federal judges to take into account whether a defendant would be a danger to the community when he is deciding how high bail should be set," the Senator said.

Senator Bentsen cited the example of a young woman shot in the back in Washington recently by four robbers.

"She's been operated on, but she still needs a cane to walk. And she is undergoing psychiatric treatment. And the fact that she might need further surgery caused her to lose her job," Bentsen said.

"On top of this all of her would-be killers were released from jail without bail pending trial. They have disappeared. And, since she is a witness as well as the victim of their crime she lives in constant fear that they will come back gunning for her."

"This amounts to criminal negligence on the part of our criminal justice system," Bentsen said.

Senator Bentsen said he is preparing amendments to Federal bail laws that he plans to introduce in the Senate in the near future.

Is Time Control Casebearer

Time for application of nut casebearer control is rapidly approaching. The dates in Hall County on the emergence of the slow normal temperatures delay egg laying activities delaying the need for control measures.

The best time to apply an insecticide for control of this pest can be determined by inspecting for the and the first nutlet in the pecan nut casebearer will be deposited on the tip of the nutlets. As the date for insecticide application approaches, nutlets should be checked daily.

A female moth will deposit from 50 to 150 eggs, which are barely visible to the naked eye, are white when deposited but just before hatch assume a reddish appearance.

The larvae will hatch from eggs in 4 to 5 days after deposited. Eggs from larvae have emerged from the translucent to white. The larvae first migrate to buds below the nutlets to After 2 to 3 days they begin to enter the nutlets. Bits of dark brown frass webbing will be present at the point of nutlet entry. Insecticides are often applied too early for effective control of the larvae. By timing for eggs and the nutlet entry the best time to apply an insecticide can be determined. In large orchards where several days are required to complete the spraying operation, it would be wise to wait for the nutlet entry before beginning the spray program. In larger orchards insecticide application should be timed when the eggs begin to hatch. When moth emergence and egg laying activity extends over an extended period of time a second application should be applied several days following the first application.

Additional information on pecan nut casebearer, other pests and insecticides for control of these is available from your county Extension agent's office.

Dallas Benefit Given Recently For Doug Gordon

Doug Gordon, who is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Goffinett, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Gordon of Dallas, was recently the recipient of a benefit sponsored by the Bryan Adams Chapter of FHA Home at the Elk's Club in Dallas.

Doug, who was a 1974 graduate of Bryan Adams High School in Dallas, was injured a year ago Memorial weekend while diving in Lake Ray Hubbard. Doug sustained a broken neck and since that time has been paralyzed from the neck down. He has undergone seven operations during the past months and has had metronomical medical expenses as a result.

Although Doug is now at home, he is still paralyzed with limited use of the upper part of his body. It is still necessary that the family supply expensive equipment and therapy.

Friends and citizens of Dallas have helped Doug and his family with the benefit and also opened an account at the East Dallas Bank & Trust, Casa View Shopping Center, 2325 Gus Thomason, Dallas, 75228, in his name.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon lives at 2115 Healey Dr., in Dallas. Mrs. Gordon is the former Athlee Goffinett.

B. B. Shots

By BYRON BALDWIN

A letter was received the past week from the Estelline School which was as follows: "We want to thank you and Mr. Dennis for opening up Heritage Hall for the third and fourth, fifth and sixth grades of Estelline School. The teachers and the children enjoyed the Heritage Hall very much and made us have greater appreciation and love for our country and proud to be Hall Countians. We appreciate Mr. Dennis giving us his time and showing us through the Hall. Sincerely, C. M. Wooten, Mrs. C. M. Wooten, Mike Hughes, Susie Rodriguez, Faye Baldwin, Scott Long, Edna Gorman, Kevin Huddleston, Jessie Rankin, Todd Schuler, Walter Baldwin, Jerry Morrison, Wanda Brown, David Morris, Mitch Contreras, Guadalupe Hernandez, Sheri Easley, Dinah Jouett, Tracy Tippett, Sonja Wyatt, Dorothy Brown, Lonnell Baldwin, Arturo Alforo, James Brown, Evelyn Pierson, Alvin Flores, Dale Marchman, James Baldwin, Kristie Huddleston, Tom Cope, Larry Easley, Mae Jean Rankins, Juanna Pepper, Dana Davidson, Dianna Hernandez, Ester Alforo, Leck Jouett, Wayne Robinson, Vanessa Hall, Carla Contreras and Dianna Alforo."

Mr. and Mrs. Wooten have been teaching in the Estelline Schools for over 20 years and shaping children's lives. My thinking is that the greatest days of a teacher's life are when their former pupils return and tell them that they love them for what they did for them in school. And when the teacher gets a message like that, they can sing "Love Lifted Me" and that makes their day.

In the Sunday, May 16, edition of the Dallas News in the "Trends" section we found the heading of "Horse Lovers Hoof It Up for Bicentennial." This article was written by our own hometown girl, Nene Foxhall, who has been working for the Dallas News the past few years. Nene had interviews with different ones who raised and showed horses at the Bicentennial Horse Show in Big D. May 20, through May 23. Above the heading of this article was a copy of the "Declaration of Independence" with all the signatures.

Some of the quotes she had from some of the horse lovers who were there were no hoof prints alongside the signatures on the Declaration of Independence, but they may as well have been. The American Revolution could not have come off without horses. They not only carried their masters to Independence Hall, but they carried the soldiers into battle, carried medical supplies to the wounded, food to the angry and messages to the leaders. And don't forget Paul Revere's ride. The horse was the best means of transportation. It fought in battles, pulled covered wagons, pulled fire wagons. It carried the pioneers across the wilderness to settle the West, and the horse pulled the farm machinery and carried the mail. Increasing mechanization and the advent of the horseless carriage, put an end to most practical uses of the animal. However, some light artillery was horse-drawn through World War I and II. The last tragic act in the drama of the horse cavalry was the charge of the Polish lancers on horseback against German tanks and dive bombers at the beginning of World War II. Today many policemen in big cities ride horseback in downtown traffic. The main use of the horse today is in the show ring, on the rodeo circuit or as a hobby for pleasure riders and on race tracks.

The horse show is put on each year at Fair Park in Dallas and horse lovers from all over our state attend. The show benefits the Society of Abandoned and Neglected Children, Inc. This corporation has been operating since 1967. The proceeds of this show are used for the children who are the wards of Dallas County welfare.

The other article that Nene covered in the same publication was headed "Inept Parents Polluting Children, Doctor Says". A few of the statements Nene gave that Doctor Fitzhugh J. Dodson gave in his talk to the Texas State Conference on Education and Parenthood recently at Arlington were "The effects of child pollution are far more devastating than dirty air or rancid streams. Babies are born happy & unpolluted. Yet 1 to 10 ends up in a mental institution, 1 in 15 becomes an alcoholic. One out of every 9 males gets into trouble with the law before he is 18; one out of 3 ends up in divorce." Other quotes were "Politicians rant and rave about crime and delinquency, but they don't go to the source of the problems. We would have a far better America today if the money spent to put a man on the moon had been spent on parent education."

A few weeks ago mother and daughter, Mrs. Louis Foxhall and Nene, had an article in the issue of the Dallas Morning News. I appreciated the visit Nene paid me while I was a patient in Baylor Hospital. Also, I appreciated the box of English toffee she presented me which was real good.

Another card received from Elsie Hoover dated May 12, she had just returned from a visit to Holland where she saw some of the largest and most beautiful flower beds in the world. I guess Holland is still the world's capital of tulips. Elsie had spent three days in Amsterdam, visited a diamond factory, also, a large cheese processing plant and many other things. I am looking forward to another card as she says she will keep me posted.

We overheard some conversation a few days ago about a young fellow in our area who would celebrate his 90th birthday May 30. This young man, O. D. Phillips, was born May 30, 1886, at Lanson, Kentucky. He came to Hall County in 1911 and worked on the O. B. Burnett farm. On Dec. 14, 1913, he married Mattie T. Adams in Floydada and they moved to the Ogden Ranch. Then on January 16, 1917, they moved to the Harrell Chapel community where they reared 11 children to be grown. There were 6 sons and 5 daughters. All of these children are now living with the exception of Vernon who passed away in 1956. All of the boys now live in and near Memphis — Cecil, Orval, E. B., Ray and Troy. All of the girls are now living — Mrs. Roy Widener of near Memphis, Mrs. J. N. Helm of the Gilpin Community, Mrs. Fay Ellsberry of Farmers Branch, Mrs. B. P. Henderson of Community Center and Mrs. W. O. Clark of Lakeview, O. D. and his wife lived at Harrell Chapel from 1917 until 1958 when they bought their home in Memphis at 603 S. 9th Street O. D. believed in the scripture, "If you eat, you must work" and I think he told his boys that too much rest would make them rust. They don't like the word rust and are hard workers. O. D. changed some of the population figures when he moved to Hall County as the Smiths and Joneses had been running way ahead, but they are having a hard time now keeping up with the Phillips families. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips had 11 children, 25 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren, making a total of 54 offspring from this family. We are glad O. D. left Kentucky and moved to Texas. My guess would have been if he had stayed in Kentucky, he would have been a jockey on the Churchill Downs race track and he only has the one son, Orville, that could have followed his profession as a jockey and the other boys would have been "clean up" hands. These boys should be thankful that their dad made good cotton farmers out of them and moved to Hall County where they have the name "Phillips" on a lot of trailers parked on the gin yards. Our best wishes to this family and especially O. D. on his 90th birthday. If he had made a race horse jockey, they would have probably wanted to retire him at the age of 86 and he does not like the word "Retire."

WELLINGTON WINNERS—Pictured above are little Miss Kimberlee Marie Henard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henard III, and Douglas Daniels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Daniels, all of Wellington, who were winners in the one-year old group of the Tiny Tot Revue held Tuesday, April 20, at the Wellington High School. Seventy-five tiny boys and girls took part and winners were named in five age groups. Sharon Anne Henard, Kimberlee's older sister, performed by singing with the "Threeze, Fourzy Singers." The Hennard sisters are the granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Yarbrough of Memphis.

It's something to squeal about because Istadenur Wladzin Konopka has just been presented with the "Polish Ham of the Year" award in Los Angeles, Calif. Konopka is a Polish American, better known as Ted Knight who plays in the Mary Tyler Moore Show on television. He was given a gold plated replica of a Polish ham by a delegation from Warsaw representing the Polish ham industry, which each year honors a prominent Polish American. Last year's award went to singer Bobby Vinton. I would like to know how you pronounce his real name. I will still call him "Ted".

Deaver, Okla., has been celebrating the Bi-centennial for the buffalo and cows the past few years by having a special day for cow and buffalo chip throwing. The cows and buffaloes saved a fuel shortage for pioneer settlers.

"Keep the Faith," said Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago when asked for advice on how to live to be 74, as he was 74 May 15. He was also asked about retirement plans. His reply was, "Retire, that word should not be in the dictionary." I noticed in the daily news about Lucy Powers Brannan with her sunbonnet, pursues a job of picking strawberries in Big Cave, Alabama. This is another job besides her quilting and sewing. She is now 90 years old and her kitchen chair in the middle of the patch of strawberries. She lives with her 70 year old son.

Copied from "Our Heritage" — "This country was not founded to distribute the wealth equally among citizens; it was founded so that each citizen would have an opportunity to strive for the highest goal he felt capable of achieving. ## Researchers In Tall Cotton In Pursuit Of Drought Tolerance

LUBBOCK—Ten-foot tall, wild cotton plants from Old Mexico may become the parents of a new line of cotton varieties for the High and Rolling Plains.

The wild seedlings, which grow into large trees eventually, have characteristics of special importance to High and Rolling Plains cotton producers. That is, they are tolerant to drought for long periods of moisture stress.

A team of USDA - Agricultural Research Service scientists based at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock believe the germplasm found in the wild cotton plants can be bred into lines suitable for cotton production on the Texas plains. But they won't be 10 or 20 feet tall. They will look like the other short, storm-proof, varieties currently grown in the area.

Dr. J. E. Quisenberry, cotton breeder, and Dr. Bruce Roark, plant physiologist, say the material will take several years to develop. But if their goals are reached, area cotton producers may not have to start irrigating as soon when they enter a prolonged dry period during the growing season.

"Of course, all plants must have water," Quisenberry says. "What we hope to come up with are new lines that can hold up longer under moisture stress than those currently being grown." Quisenberry says most of the varieties produced on the Texas High Plains were derived from varieties primarily bred for humid areas of the Southeast. Characteristic is that were useful for drought tolerance were probably lost, he says, during this development period because of the high rainfall associated with that region.

The reason these wild cottons can withstand moisture stress, Roark adds, is the ability of their enzyme systems to efficiently adapt to conditions so that all phases of the plants' growth are carried on without interruption.

Most of the data he and Quisenberry have collected reveal several morphological, anatomical and physiological characteristics useful in the development of drought-tolerant cottons. These characteristics will be selectively bred into plants that can be grown in this area.

The research is of special significance to dryland cotton growing areas where producers are totally dependent on rainfall and winter moisture. Prolonged dry periods during the growing season in these areas essentially wipe out cotton production if there is not enough deep moisture available to get the plants through critical stages. Losses running into the millions of dollars are suffered during these periods.

"As irrigation water continues to decline in irrigated cotton areas," Quisenberry adds, "drought-tolerant crops could take on much more importance for those producers, as well. We're looking at drought-tolerant varieties for all the High and Rolling Plains areas, whether or not those areas are presently irrigated or dryland."

Quisenberry and Roark have found unexpected characteristics in these wild cottons that could have equal importance to High and Rolling Plains cotton growers, they believe. These include resistance to Verticillium wilt, nematodes and perhaps even the boll weevil. Although it will take several years to develop new lines with these characteristics, they believe the potential for new sources of resistance is there. The USDA - ARS scientists say the wild cottons are descendants of ancient progenitors that were discovered by European explorers in Central and South America. These tree plants are thought to have originated from species found in India and northeastern Africa.

Over the centuries, they have been hybridized and developed into domestic varieties of several hundred types which today are only two to four feet tall and densely fruited. The wild species of several types are still common today in semiarid areas of the world.

Grand Jury Returns Five Indictments

The Hall County Grand Jury met in session Monday in Hall County Courthouse, and returned five indictments including a murder indictment against Antonio Garza, Jr.

Garza was indicted for murder for the April 28 shooting death of Arora Garza. He is being held without bond awaiting trial.

The Grand Jury also indicted Johnny Paul Hamner for the burglary of habitation on March 12, 1976, when a building belonging to Harold Ham was entered and certain items taken. Two other indictments were signed by the Grand Jury. These are on Lewis Edward Thomas and Dale Edward Thomas and Dale Edward Steptoe, both indicted for delivery of Marijuana. Steptoe has been released on $10,000 bond, but Thomas has not made bond, according to Sheriff Elmer Neel.

Dear Harry,

You will no doubt recall our visit in the office last week concerning the REPLANT PROVISION of our STAR STEPLADDER POLICY. It is unfortunate that you have to replant already, but we are happy to send this check in payment of the REPLANT PROVISION. As you know the REPLANT PROVISION calls for a payment equal to 5% of your insurance on a 10% deductible policy.

With any luck at all you will start replanting by Monday and have a stand within a few days. As you know your cotton policy permits you to transfer the REMAINING 95% of INSURANCE to your new crop, so it will be insured the day it comes up. It will start stepping out on June 16, and be 100% in force on the morning of June 30.

Remember, if you decide to increase your insurance before July 1st, we are using INTEREST FREE NOTES again this year, so it cost no more to insure today than it will next week. On July 1st, we can double your insurance for half price. You know, it is like you said last week, our INTEREST FREE NOTE is a sure thing and it is like being paid a dividend in advance.

If you have another loss or need additional insurance just give Debra or I a call at the office or call me at night at 259-2839.

Best regards,

THEY GAVE THEIR LIVES TO PRESERVE YOUR FREEDOM

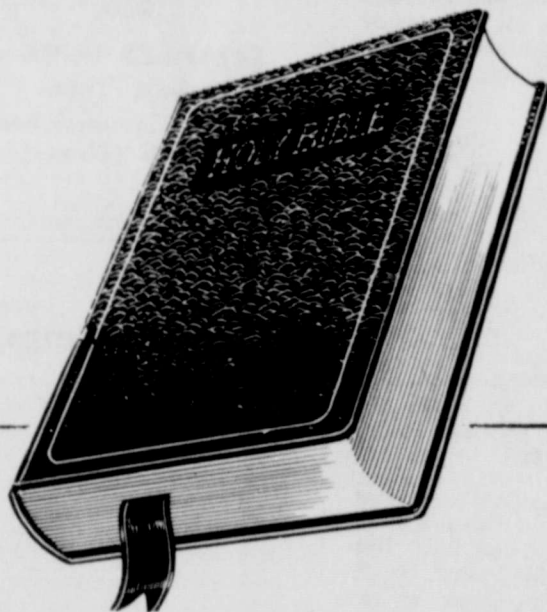

We are inclined to take for granted the many forms of freedom which we enjoy in this country, perhaps because we have never been forced to live without them; and yet we must remind ourselves of the sacrifices that have been made in order to preserve them for us, by those who were called upon to give their lives in battle. Not only on Memorial Day but throughout the year we should honor those brave heroes, and give our thanks to God for this wonderful free nation we have because of them. And since the list of our freedoms includes the right to worship God as we choose, the Church of your choice is the best place to express your gratitude.
