Western Texas College Receives Grant

WESTERN TEXAS COLLEGE — A grant from the United States Department of Justice totaling $3750 has been awarded to the Law Enforcement Education Program at Western Texas College, according to Ray Robbins, instructor in law enforcement at the college.

The grant is from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration branch of the Justice Dept. and is scheduled to go into a Law Enforcement Education Program (LEEP) account for the purpose of making interest bearing loans, and for the purpose of making grants for regular, tuition and fees to officers of publicly-funded Federal, county, municipal and State law enforcement agencies.

Loans may be made from the LEEP account only to students who are enrolled or accepted for enrollment on a full-time basis in undergraduate or graduate programs approved by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration in courses directly related to law enforcement and who are preparing for employment in law enforcement.

On the other hand, Grants may be made only to students who are officers of publicly-funded law enforcement agencies of Federal, county municipal and State government enrolled in or accepted for enrollment on a full-time or part-time basis in an undergraduate program in an area related to or suitable for law enforcement personnel and who agree to remain in the service of the law enforcement agency employing them for a period of two years following the completion of study supported by such grants.

Robbins stated that any loan or grant made from the LEEP account will be done so only upon the execution of a promissory note, supplied by the Administration and witnessed by the college Financial Aids Officer. He urged all interested persons to contact him at the college.

Minimum Or Mulch Tillage

As fashions change in clothing, Agriculture is constantly changing. Manageability is more important to the tiller of the land today than ever before.

How can operating costs be reduced? "One answer to this question for Dawson County farmers is minimum or mulch tillage," reports Rodney Hyatt, soil conservationist at Lamesa. This simply means planting a crop in the residue of a preceding crop, to protect the young plants from sand blasting.

Will minimum tillage be beneficial? "Let's look at the good points," Hyatt said, "Mulch tillage will reduce soil compaction, cut labor expenses and lower production costs by lessening the number of trips over the land. Bonus benefits of conserving moisture and reducing erosion can increase yields. Cover on the soil will also be inviting to dove and quail."

Lowered soil temperatures and possible pest problems are disadvantages of minimum tillage. Seed germination and seedling growth are slower due to cooler soils. But the conserved moisture should offset this later in the growing season.

Managing residues on the soil surface may require some changes of weed control. Two methods of mulch tillage weed-control are: (1) relying entirely on chemicals, or (2) both chemicals and mechanical cultivation. But remember, cultivation buries residues and causes a moisture loss.

In a nutshell, minimum tillage points toward increased income through soil protection, moisture, conservation and increased organic matter. Organic matter is the storehouse of plant nutrients in the soil. One might say it is the "fat of the land." For further information contact your local soil conservation Service office.

ATTORNEY RESIGNS

Lealand W. "Pete" Green, District Attorney and Borden County Attorney resigned his County Attorney position due to conflict of interest. In order for him to continue a private practice H. B. 1089 prohibits the private practice of law.

Pete's duty as County Attorney put him in this situation so the Commissioners Court accepted his resignation as of August 31st, 1971.

Editorial

President Nixon has declared September 13th through 17th, as Constitution Week. The Constitution of the United States has been the supreme law of the Federal Government since its adoption in 1789. This will be a perfect time for flying your flag, showing the world that we are proud of our independent type of Democracy re-organizing our thoughts about our country. Take a long look at this old country we live in and see the progress it has made in the 182 years since the adoption of the Constitution. Schools should be on the alert during this week to instill in the minds of all the students the wonderful privileges we have just being a small part of this United States of America. Read the Constitution of the United States of America this week.

Sands Mustang Football

Coach Bob Davis and the Sands Mustangs opened their 1971 campaign Friday night in Ackerly. The action came in the form of a scrimmage against Wilson.

The controlled practice started with each offensive unit taking the ball for twenty plays. As the night progressed, it developed into a game-type situation minus punts and kickoffs.

The Ponies have 17 players on this year's unit, all of whom saw action during the night.

Coach Davis praised several players for their effort during the scrimmage. Among those were fullback Reggie Hambrick, guard Dale Froman, and halfbacks Tony Gillespie and Randy Clemens.

The season's opener for the Mustangs is Sept. 10 against Grandfalls, away from home. The first home tilt is Sept. 17 when the ponies tackle Meadow.

Food For Thought

"A distorted truth is far more deadly than the blackest lie!"

I heard a Borden County farmer say the other day that he thought he'd take a careless weed from out of his field and carry it to the Lubbock fair this year. He bet odds that he'd win the prize for having the biggest weed in the whole area.

After a general assembly in the auditorium, teachers divided into various groups and enjoyed a very worthwhile and informative morning. The Parents Club is once again commended for their fine job of serving lunch to approximately 140 TSSA members. As always the meal was delicious and thoroughly enjoyed by one and all. At 1:00, everyone returned to the auditorium to hear Ben Oldag of Rosenberg speak on the value of a sense of humor to climax a successful workshop by Borden County Schools.

NOTICE TO ALL OPERATORS OF HEAVY EQUIPMENT ON COUNTY ROADS

The Commissioners' Court of Borden County is becoming increasingly alarmed at the abuse some Heavy Equipment Operators are doing to our County roads. Farm tractors have in the past few years gained in weight that the Court feels we can no longer tolerate the turning of farm tractors upon our County roads, paved or otherwise.

The Commissioners delight in building and maintaining excellent roads in Borden County for all of the taxpayers to travel on. It is an added expense to repair the damage done by farm tractors turning upon the road bed and the movement of oil field equipment, heavy equipment, etc., on and over our bridges.

Under the Texas Penal Code No.827a Section No.2 the Commissioners' Court in their discretion, may require a bond to be executed by an applicant in such amount as will guarantee the payment of any damages which any road or bridge may sustain in consequence of the above mentioned acts.

Marketing Tips

COLLEGE STATION — Your family's health depends largely upon what you feed them. To make the most of food values that offer both nutrition and economy, follow these marketing tips, suggests Gwendolyn Clyatt, Extension consumer marketing specialist.

Most markets are well-stocked with various cuts of mature and baby beef. Featured cuts vary from market to market, so check ads for family preferences before shopping, the specialist says. In general, beef values include chuck roasts and steaks, round steaks, ground beef, beef and calf liver.

ATTENDS GOVERNORS WORKSHOP

The Borden County Commissioners plan to attend the Sixth Annual work shop on Intergovernmental Relations and Regional Planning September 15-18, 1971 in San Antonio, Texas.

Time has been set aside by the Governor for a personal meeting with the court on county problems, etc.

WTC Offering Welding

WESTERN TEXAS COLLEGE—The expanding vocational and technological job market in the United States is made up of many fields. The occupational and technical programs at Western Texas College are geared to produce graduates qualified to fill openings in many of those fields. According to Gene Robertson, director of occupational and technical education, the welding program at WTC has the latest equipment, and that the instructor is up on the latest method. Sam Walker, instructor in welding, has just returned from a workshop in Waco where he learned new techniques that will make the welding informative, interesting and challenging.

By earning a two year degree in welding, the student becomes qualified fro employment with industrial firms as eigher a welder, a cutter, a layout man, a technician, an engineering aid, or as a technical representative for a manufacturer.

The salary potential, reports Robinson, in this field is good. Students graduating under this program should be able to earn from $10,000 to $12,000 per year within three years of their graduation. Robertson invites those who are interested to come by the college offices at 3610 Avenue S, and get the facts or to enroll on Aug. 26 or 27, in WTC first Welding Program.

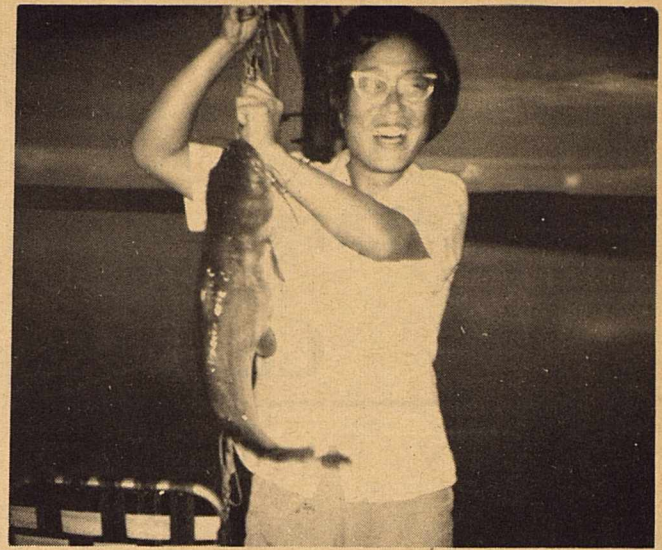

Pork prices are about the same as the past few weeks. Look for best values on shoulder roasts and steaks, hams, picnics and end-cut loin roasts and chops.

Fryer chickens are a good choice in most markets so take advantage of their versatility and serve them often to cut family food costs.

And, according to the specialist, egg supplies are plentiful with prices somewhat lower than at this time last year. Buy Grade A large eggs for the most quality and economy for your egg money.

At the dairy counter, check for good buys on cottage cheese, American cheese and yogurt. Be sure to include milk products in your daily menus.

The vegetable counter is still well-stocked with fresh items, Mrs. Clyatt reports. Look for carrots, cabbage, mustard, celery, collard greens, corn, head lettuce, potatoes and yellow onions.

NICE CATCH — Tommie Vaughan of Snyder caught this handsome 7½-pound channel catfish at the Kent Holmes tank 14 miles east of Gail. Stock tank fishing and fishing at Lake J. B. Thomas has "picked up" after the recent rains.

"More Than One Way To Skin A Rattler-Er-I Mean Cat"

When it comes to rattlesnakes, the people in these here parts sure know how to handle themselves. They're so plentiful around the John Ragan farm that Marie just calmly takes the trusty old shot gun and lamblasts them to kingdom come. "I'd think them varmints would finally get the hint that they're not welcomed around here," she says.

Now Wilma Currie has an entirely different approach to the matter. While driving toward home the other day, she spies one of the biggest rattlers she allows she's ever laid eyes on. With every intention of not letting it get away, she jumps out of the car and searches frantically for a tire tool to use as a weapon.

As usual, when a body's in dire need of a thing, it's no where to be found. Dirt clots were better than nothing, so she began chunking away, only to infuriate the rattler even more. Its deadly rattling was something to get on a person's nerves alright but not to be out done, Wilma reaches for a can of hair spray laying on the front seat. She starts spraying this on the rattler and keeps up the vigil until Frank shows up to do away with it in the proper way. "The hair spray wouldn't have done my hair any good anyway," she laughed, when it was all over.

Now there's still yet another way this thing can be handled, as was illustrated by Berl Moore of Draw. Hunkering down to drag weeds from the plows one day last week, he very generously scoops a rattler out into his lap, a big one with at least eleven rattlers. Now this was just too much to ask a fellow to put up with, what with all the worry the farmers have already been through. So he lets out a yell and scrambles to his feet. He lights out across that cotton patch like nobody's business. No need hanging around there!

First Day Of School

By: Doris Rudd

This morning fall is in the air, school busses are going by, children are excited, mothers are in a tizzy; ITS THE FIRST DAY OF SCHOOL!

As I sit down to relax and have a second cup of coffee—I feel so sad and lonely—'cause I miss being involved in all that hustle and bustle. Suddenly I sit up strait and ask myself—“Now who am I feeling sorry for? Myself or those poor mothers who have twelve long years of that constant rush and tizzy, who didn't get the second cup of coffee (probably not even the first one).” As I sat here the past school years began to rush before me and I heard the school bus blowing the horn and before I could remember that I was ‘day dreaming’, I was frantically gathering up all the books, pins, pencils in the house and screaming “HURRY, HURRY, kids, you're gonna miss the bus”—and before I knew it the bus was stopped in front of the house again to let the kids off, the first day of school was over in they rushed, in a state of excitement—talking so fast and loud, one couldn't make much sense out of what they were saying, by the time I understood what they were talking about, I knew that I had to ‘jump on my horse and ride off in all directions’ to get school supplies, athletic equipment, material for a pep squad suit that they just had to have by 8 A. M. next morning. By a little excess speed, we had the last item on the list, just as the key was turned in the lock of the last store to close.

Then it was 8 A. M. again, the pep squad suit was finished, I had over slept and the buss was honkin' at the front door again—and away we went again with “Where's my speller, get my books and HURRY, HURRY, KIDS YOU'RE GONNA MISS THE BUS” when suddenly Pat Porter appeared at the door, took the books, pep squad suit and hurded the kids to the bus—(which he did every school day until he finished). You know I actually cried when Pat graduated and had all kinds of selfish thoughts—like—Why couldn't he have been a ‘dumb kid’ and took just one more year to finish—cause we would never make it without him—But we did and thats been a number of years ago—and I am exhausted just remembering—guess I'll go back to bed.

Well, it looks as though the ladies are at it again! With bonnets on heads and buckets in hands, they're off to the fields and gardens to gather beans, peas, corn and other fine vegetables to can or freeze. Their backs are aching and the days have been long and hard but when they finish with the last bean and ear of corn, they can set back and breath a sigh of relief.

With feet propped up and a cup of coffee in hand, they survey their handiwork and know that it was all worthwhile. They'll have their reward when hungry families set down at the dinner tables in months to come to enjoy fresh vegetables even though the winter winds blow cold and snow is on the ground. So God bless you ladies and keep up the good work!

This Our Restless Land

BY: MARIE RAGAN

This West Texas of ours would indeed seem to be a wayward land. There is no accounting for the wild, erratic behavior of the black thunder storms that pitch and roll across its skies nor for the dangerous twisters that slither like living things upon the Prairies. And the fields that are now sporting lush cotton crops, were a short time ago, only barren wasted lands, its shifting soil pounded by the relentless winds wailing over them day and night!

Farmers and Ranchers carried the burden of drought on their work-worn shoulders and they scanned the skies for a glimpse of clouds that might bring new hope. For more months than they cared to think about, it had been bone dry. The wind blew almost constantly, the dust stifling them and causing added misery all its own.

“Would it never rain again?” they asked each other, their eyes reflecting a hopelessly they tried to hide. Stock tanks went dry and grazing was almost nil. Cattle began to show signs of hunger and finally, ranchers began selling off their herds and farmers began to shake their heads and say, “Too late! It's going to be too late!”

And when, indeed it did seem too late, rain came but only barely enough to plant the seeds and hope for the best. For some, the best was not good enough, for the stands of cotton were skimpy, others fared better. They breathed a sigh of relief and thanked God that at least they had a crop at last. But hopes began to falter once more as weeks slid by without the much needed moisture and the worry and strain began to show on sun burned faces again. They watched the young cotton stunt and saw it began to suffer and die. And then, like the unpredictable land it is, the rains came, drenching the fields and soaking the thirsty cotton plants, breathing new life into every living thing. “Thank God!” They breathed again, “Thank God!”

And so again our wayward West Texas has given us hope. Fields are rank with thick, lush cotton and all looks bright for a good productive year. Let us pray that our restless land will not double cross us now!

Cooperation

By Sibyl Gilmore

No doubt you have all heard this word many times and have been ready and willing to cooperate in any and everything for the benefit of your community and county. Again I think it is time for all Borden County citizens to cooperate, WITH OUR COUNTY OFFICIALS, I am not one of them but have been closely associated and worked with them for the past few years. They have had some difficult problems to work out these past few weeks and they might not work them out to please you and me. In fact they may hurt you a little and they may hurt me a little, but they are looking further into the future and trying to make Gail and Borden County a better place to live in and bring our children up in. Even if you don't agree with them, your cooperation is greatly needed and they are always ready and willing to listen to your complaints and suggestions and work something out for the benefit of all. So lets show these county officials we are also trying to help by letting them know we are behind them. Lets show Cooperation.

A fellow-ship supper was held Sunday night at the Methodist Church in O'Donnell. This ended a wonderful week-long revival, which everyone enjoyed so very much. Rev. Odom is the local pastor and Evangelist Bruce Parks was the out of town speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Currie celebrated the birthday of her mother, Mrs. Jack Kay with a family dinner last Sunday.

Visiting in the Dan Turner home this week end were their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Zane Curry, Denton, Texas. Also their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Turner, Bric and Kim Sue.

Visiting in the Blaine Turner home Sunday night was Mr. and Mrs. Zane Curry and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Polk and Bill of Lamesa, Texas.

Gail

Rex Cox of Gail had serious complications while undergoing a tonsillectomy Thursday, September 2 at the Cogdell Hospital at Snyder. He was in surgery two hours and remained in recovery for four more.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Ira L. Hagins, Jim, Leslie and Randy were visited over the Labor Day week-end by Pat and Steve Cole of Irving; Danny and Judy Hagins, with two boys, Scott and Keith of Midland; and also Freddy and Jackie Hagins with son Chris of Snyder.

The entire family attended the "Hagins" reunion in Spur, Texas on Sunday. Pat Cole (Hagins) will spend the week with parents before returning to Irving.

Billy, Gene and Andy Sealy of Odessa visited with Gay Sealy on Saturday, where young Andy enjoyed a short horseback ride. On Sunday Gay's guest was her other son Joe from Andrews.

Wayne "Rusty" Sealy of Odessa is now attending Trinity University in San Antonio, Texas.

Pauline and Vivian Clark were in Snyder on business last Saturday.

David Walker, who is attending College at Canyon, was home for the Labor day weekend. His parents Joyce and Dick Cantrell were in Ruidosa so David rested and visited around the neighborhood.

Mr. & Mrs. Rich Anderson enjoyed the weekend visit of their daughter Sally who is attending Oklahoma State University in Stillwater.

Gay Sealy of Gail and her grandson Wayne "Rusty" Sealy of Odessa have just returned from a trip to Hawaii, where they visited in the home of a nephew and niece of Mrs. Sealy, who were magnificent hosts, taking them on a tour of Pearl Harbor where they witnessed the memorial ceremonies of the ships that were destroyed during the war. They also rode in a glass bottom boat and saw first hand the many different colored fish, plants and corals that grow in the ocean. Their 150 mile trip around the mainland took them over mountains, through mountains via tunnels and into valleys, always in view of the ocean. They toured the Polynesian Culture Center, walking and riding a cart to see the natives working at different arts and Hula girls dancing on ships in the ocean. Mrs. Sealy reports their trip there and back with Continental Air Lines was wonderful, but the thing that made it most interesting for her, was the fact that both her sons Billy of Odessa and Joe of Andrews were over there during the war and she visited many of the places they had mentioned. She thinks everyone should plan a trip to Hawaii.

Her Son

BY: MARIE RAGAN

There's prison bars around her son, there's weeping in her heart.
There's a high grey wall and a cell that's cold,
and a shadow on her soul!
There's a memory still of his sullen face,
So young and tender yet.
Her son is only seventeen and this she can't forget!
She tried to teach him right from wrong and train his footsteps straight.
But his his stubborn heart refused to hear,
And her soul cries out "Too late!"
It seemed that he was bound to go, his own determined way.
To travel down that lonely road of ruin and quick decay!
She sees him now across the years, her son, her pride and joy.
With tousled hair and twinkling eyes, her laughing baby boy.
She feels his chubby little hand, clutched tightly in her own.

For he knew she'd lead him safely passed, the many danger zones!
But like the years that slid away and vanished from her touch,
She lost the clinging little hand, she lost his faith and trust.
SO outside she hears the wailing of the wild, West Texas wind,
But it can't compare with the bitter cry of the lonely soul within.
For she knows that she has failed her son.
She should have found a way, to touch his stubborn, willful heart,
When he began to stray.
But alas, she cannot turn one page of this book of life she's lived.
Not one false step she can retrace, not one lost day He'll give.
Now there's prison bars around her son, There's weeping in her heart.
There's a high grey wall and a cell that's cold,
And a shadow on her soul!

Some contend that there is a generation gap in our day. Let us take a long look at the privilege of having youth with us and what youth means to the future.

Youth means happiness, laughter, play, fun, and comfort to the hearts of the older. Youth means vision of such that has put great ships upon the sea, great and mighty planes afloat in the air that shorten the time of travel to mere minutes, great scientific developments that make the unbelievably become a reality, great mechanical devices that act as though it possessed a brain itself, great schools of knowledge that expands the mind beyond normal comprehension great physical strength that extends the life span by years, great adventures that reach into outer space, great statesmen to guide our nation to growth and prosperity. The growth and prosperity. These and many other things may be said as result of youths vision; but there are still greater things!

Our spiritual out look and up reach for tomorrow depends upon our youth. Because of their vision and conviction there will be great preachers, missionaries, and leaders in our churches. We are receiving reports of soul saving revivals among our youth.
