USDA Issues Conservation Reserve Program Rental Payments, Direct Payments and ACRE Payments

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22, 2013 — Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack announced that USDA has begun distributing Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) annual rental payments to participants across the country. USDA also will distribute 2013 direct payments and 2012 Average Crop Revenue Election (ACRE) program payments beginning Oct. 24. Payments originally were scheduled to be issued earlier in the month, but were delayed by several weeks due to the lapse in Federal funding.

"Farmers, ranchers and rural landowners across the country count on USDA programs and the payment delays due to the shutdown were an unnecessary burden," Vilsack said. "USDA has prioritized making these scheduled payments without any further delay and Farm Service Agency staff have worked hard to get this assistance out the door as quickly as possible."

Producers will receive payments on almost 700,000 CRP contracts on 390,000 farms covering 26.8 million acres. In exchange for a yearly rental payment provided by USDA on contracts ranging from 10 to 15 years, farmers and ranchers enrolled in CRP agree to remove environmentally sensitive land from agricultural production and plant grasses or trees that will improve water quality and improve waterfowl and wildlife habitat. CRP reduced runoff and leaching of nitrogen and phosphorus into waterways by an estimated 605 million pounds and 121 million pounds, respectively, in 2012, and soil erosion reductions totaling 308 million tons in 2012.

Direct payments for 2013 for the DCP and ACRE programs are being made to the more than 1.7 million farms enrolled in the Farm Service Agency's programs. Producers with base acres of certain commodities are eligible for DCP payments. ACRE payments for 2012-crop barley, corn, grain sorghum, lentils, oats, peanuts, dry peas, soybeans, and wheat are scheduled to be released beginning Oct. 24 and contingent upon national average market prices and yields in each state. ACRE payments for large chickpeas, small chickpeas, canola, crambe, flaxseed, mustard seed, rapeseed, safflower, sesame, and sunflowers are scheduled to be made in early December and for long grain rice and medium and short grain rice in early February 2014 when the final 2012/13 market year average price data becomes available.

The 2008 Farm Bill, extended by the American Tax Payer Relief Act of 2012, provides authority to enroll land in DCP, ACRE and CRP through Sept. 30, 2013, however, no legislation has been enacted to reauthorize or extend this authority. Effective Oct. 1, 2013, FSA does not have legislative authority to approve or process applications for these programs.

For more information on CRP, DCP and ACRE, producers should contact their local FSA office or visit FSA's website at www.fsa.usda.gov.

Intimidation

Intimidation causes you to behave differently than you would normally. You don't respect people who intimidate you. You resent them. You are afraid of the consequences should you defy their wishes. Intimidation is only effective when you capitulate to it.

When intimidated, you are never happy. You become angry and frustrated. Intimidation may be either intentionally used or a function of your own perception.

Someone applies intimidation when deliberately using their power to threaten you. Threats can be either overt or implied. Someone has power over you when they are in a position to inflict negative consequences.

Sometimes you feel intimidated although there is no attempt by the other person to cause it. In this situation, it's your perception causing the intimidation rather than the other person's intention.

A situation where you are an employee can be potentially intimidating. Your employer has the power to fire you or make your job miserable. A good employer creates a comfortable work environment where you are encouraged to do your best. An intimidating employer constantly makes it clear your job is on the line.

Their management style is to use the threat of job loss as "motivation."

Perhaps you are an employer or supervisor attempting to manage a misbehaving employee. In spite of repeatedly asking them to improve, there is no change. You are hesitant to take corrective action because of a concern about how they may react. Even though they haven't done anything threatening, you feel intimidated.

A coworker can be intimidating. If they don't perform their job properly, a larger burden may be placed on you. You worry that if you say something, they will make disparaging remarks behind your back.

A noisy neighbor can be intimidating. You may be afraid to ask them to quiet down because you don't know what their reaction will be, even though you have no evidence they will react poorly. Perhaps you have approached them only to be told to mind your own business.

You may be intimidated by your adolescent children. The fear is that your kids won't like you if you assert yourself by insisting on appropriate behavior. You worry that if you are strict, they won't want to spend

Borden JV Gives Valley Tough Test

By Coach Benavidez

The Borden County JV travelled to Jayton, the halfway point between Gail and Valley, Texas to take on the Valley JV Patriots. The numbers for Borden were a little more bolstered as this was the off week for the varsity squad thereby allowing Michael Deax, which had been playing varsity, to suit up with the JV since he had not played a full schedule as of yet. Also, the JV welcomed back a healthy Robert Jordan who had been sidelined with an ankle injury.

The first quarter was all defense as neither team was able to get into the end zone. Borden County drew first blood with 4:58 left in the second quarter as Mason Coor found Kace Lott on a 7 yard pass into the end zone. Robert Jordan kicked the PAT through making the score 8-0. Valley had the momentum shift their way for the rest of the second quarter as they were able to move the ball down the field methodically and finally punch it in from 1 yard out. The Coyotes were able to block the kick. On the very next kick the Patriots managed to recover an onside kick to regain the ball once again. This time, the Patriots scored on a 5 yard run but again had the kick blocked by the Coyotes, making the score 8-12. This would be how the 1st half of football would end.

The second half started out just as fortunate for the Patriots as the 1st half ended. The Patriots once again marched down the field and scored on a run from 16 yards out but failed the PAT. The score was now 8-18 in favor of Valley. On the ensuing kickoff from the Patriots to the Coyotes, Mason Coor took the pigskin from the Coyotes' own 5 yard line and raced back 75 yards to pay dirt. The PAT failed. Valley refused to give up the momentum as they answered back with a 47 yard run to score as well. This time the kick for the Patriots went through on the PAT making the score 14-26.

The Borden County offense was unable to take advantage of the next possession and went 4 and out on downs. Valley took advantage and moved the ball down the field until they connected with each other on a 6 yard pass into the end zone. The PAT failed. Valley again capitalized on a Borden County mistake in the form of a fumble. The Patriots scored on a 5 yard run with the PAT failing. Finally, with 4:04 left in the 4th quarter, the Coyotes connected on a 4 yard pass from Coor to Michael Deax. Robert Jordan, once again, kicked the PAT good making the final score 22-38. Valley had a very good JV squad that has been able to be successful. The Coyotes did a fantastic job of fighting hard all night long.

Stats for the night are as follows; Nathan Souder led all rushers with 119 yards on 20 carries on the ground. Robert Jordan turned in 3 carries for 15 yards and also had 10 receiving yards. Kace Lott had 1 carry for 3 yards and 4 catches for 73 yards and 1 touchdown. Michael Deax caught 1 pass for 4 yards and a touchdown. Throwing those TD passes was Mason Coor who ended the night with 87 yards on 11 attempts and two touchdowns. Leading all tacklers was Mason Coor with 11 tackles, 8 asst. 3 solo, Robert Jordan 9 tackles, 9 asst. 1 pass break-up, Kace Lott 8 tackles, 5 asst. 3 solo, Diego Bernal 7 tackles, 4 asst. 3 solo, Nathan Souder 6 tackles, 5 asst. 1 solo, Dylan Murphy 5 tackles, 5 asst., Braxton Coor 4 tackles, 3 asst. 1 solo, 1 pass break-up, Jaden Huse 3 tackles 3 asst., and Michael Deax with 2 tackles, 2 asst.

McMeans/McMeans Win Midland Lee CX Tournament

For the second time this month, the Borden High School CX team has run the table to win first place in an invitational TFA speech tournament.

Senior siblings Mollie McMeans and Zach McMeans are relying on their experience to continue their preparation for district debate to be held second semester.

The morning preliminary rounds—beginning at 7:30 a.m.—proved victorious against debaters from Abilene High, North Crowley, and Snyder. Advancing to the quarterfinals, Mollie and Zach defeated San Angelo Central. Snyder High School lost to BHS in the semi-finals, setting up a showdown with Andrews. On a 2-1 panel vote, Mollie and Zach won the championship.

This year's resolution deals with U.S. foreign policy as it relates to Mexico, Cuba, and Venezuela.

In Lincoln-Douglas debate, sophomore Nathan Souder continued his winning ways with a 2-1 record in the prelims. However, six other students had 3-0 records, so Nathan narrowly missed making the finals. His topic for this month has been the issue of compulsory voting.

Next up is the Big Spring High School Tournament. Mollie will be playing basketball, so Zach and Nathan will try the UIL's new event, Student Congress, in prepping for their first district contest in that event. It is scheduled for November 12 in Lubbock against Region XVII 1-A schools from across the service center area.

Protect Home, Family Against Unseen Danger: Carbon Monoxide

The year has flown by and the Fall has made a quick return – which means the cooler weather is about to be here to stay. That means turning off the air conditioner at home and turning on the heater. That also means making sure the home's heat-producing appliances run the way they are supposed to. Having the heating system checked before winter starts could prevent a tragedy – carbon monoxide poisoning.

Carbon monoxide is an odorless, colorless gas that interferes with the delivery of oxygen in the blood to the rest of the body. Even though carbon monoxide will not explode, it can be dangerous – even deadly – to you and your family.

Symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning include headache, nausea and disorientation. This dangerous gas can be produced inside a home if carbon-containing fuels are incompletely burned. The gas must be exhausted to the outside. These fuels include natural gas, coal, wood, fuel oil and charcoal – the sources used most often in home heating. The culprits include oil or gas furnaces and cooking appliances, water heaters, fireplaces and wood stoves that aren't working or vented properly.

Two common sources of carbon monoxide in homes in Texas are the gas furnace heat exchanger and the gas hot water heater. As homes have been built to be more energy-efficient, they have fewer places where fresh air can leak into the home. In order for fuel-burning equipment to operate correctly and safely, it must have a source of fresh air for complete combustion. The ventilation system should provide the fresh air. A negative pressure could be created inside the house, causing these gases to be pulled back inside in a process called back-drafting.

Other sources of carbon monoxide are unvented kerosene and gas space heaters, fireplaces, gas or wood stoves, automobile exhaust from attached garages and tobacco smoke. To protect home and family from the dangers of carbon monoxide this winter, you should follow these steps:

- Have the home furnace checked by a professional who will make sure the burners and vent systems are working correctly and the heat exchanger isn't cracked.

- Look at the area around the furnace to make sure enough fresh air can flow in. A home's furnace should not be in a tightly enclosed space.

- Make sure the water heater and the furnace flue have no internal obstructions or leaks near the joints.

- To test a gas water heater while the burner is on, hold a lighted match under the draft hood. The flame should burn upward. If the match flickers downward or goes out, the exhaust may have a back flow and is releasing carbon monoxide into the house.

- Open the damper of a fireplace or wood stove so combustion gases will flow outside.

- Never use a gas range to heat the house.

- Don't leave cars or lawn mowers running in an attached garage. Carbon monoxide given off by these vehicles can drift into the house.

- Make sure all combustion equipment and appliances in a home are installed correctly, are properly maintained and have adequate ventilation.

- Don't use all of the home's exhaust vents and the clothes dryer at the same time. This could create negative pressure in the house, pulling carbon monoxide back inside.

When I was a little fellow, I caught some "lightning bugs" and sealed them in a jar. It was fun watching their tiny bright lights glow in the dark by my bed.

I woke up early the next morning to see their lights but the glow was gone. The lightning bugs had died.

It is like that with human beings. Some think that happiness and pleasure are synonymous. But it is not a commodity that can be bought. It is a condition.

Others think that happiness and plenty are synonymous. But happiness is not derived from possessions, nor destroyed by poverty. Remember the story of the king who asked for the shirt of the happiest man in his kingdom? They found the man – but he did not have a shirt.

Happiness is not what happens to us, but what happens in us. It is the by-product of a life that is adjusted to the will of God and regulated by the Word of God. Seek God through Christ and let Him have His way, and you will be happy.

Visit us at: SowerMinistries.org

If you have the fireplace burning and turn on the kitchen exhaust vent, you will likely smell smoke. This means the fireplace is not drawing the carbon dioxide out, but is back-drafting. If you use only one of the exhaust fans – bathroom, kitchen or dryer – the back-drafting will not likely occur.

- Use carbon monoxide detectors near sleeping areas and fuel-burning appliances. Choose detectors that have Consumer Product Safety Commission and Underwriters Laboratories seals of approval.

- If a carbon monoxide detector goes off, call the fire department immediately and get everyone out of the house. Anyone with symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning should be taken to an emergency room.

Dare to Live...

time with you.

Some people have intimidating personalities. They are usually unaware of the effect they have on others. Their character is strong and forceful which tends to have an overpowering impact. With this type of person, your reaction is based on your perception rather than any deliberate behavior.

The basis of intimidation is fear. It holds you hostage. Your behavior is affected by what you feel others may do or think. Although intimidation is a difficult situation, living in fear won't alleviate it.

It doesn't matter whether intimidation is intentional or is your perception. When you get caught up in it, there are a number of deleterious effects. You invite more intimidation. You lose respect. You advertise what buttons can be pushed to control you. You get taken advantage of. You get upset. There are people who erroneously believe there is no choice but to live with intimidation. When you remain intimidated, the situation will become worse.

On the other hand, when you refuse to be intimidated, there is a good chance the intimidation will stop. The schoolyard bully is a good example. He preys on those who are easily intimidated. The bully passes by those who stand firm.

If you are used to feeling intimidated, changing takes time and effort. It won't happen overnight. Start with one situation. As you build up confidence, expand your "I will not be intimidated attitude." Try it — it works.

Another Honor for Quail

Quail Dobbs grew up in his daddy's boot making shop in Albany. When the family moved to Colorado City, Quail played second string halfback for he high school football team. "Really I was a live dummy," says Quail. He was born Marvin Dene Dobbs but a classmate gave him the nickname Quail. "Maybe it was because I had a top knot and ran like a bird. Anyway, I was flighty, but game." When he sold some land and went to a lawyer to get the legal work done, all the papers were in the name of Quail Dobbs. He told the lawyer that Quail was a nickname. The lawyer said it would be a lot easier to change his name than to change all the paper work. So they went to the courthouse and his name became Quail Marvin Dobbs. He lost the Dene.

Quail was the class clown in school. He wanted to be a rodeo cowboy and tried his hand at riding bulls and broncs. "Every time I got on a horse or bull it looked like some sort of a clown act." When he was in Buffalo, Minnesota at the age of 19, a clown didn't show up for a rodeo. Quail asked if he could fill in for him. He did such a good job one of the contestants told him he was a natural, that he ought to buy a barrel and a mule and go down the road. Quail did just that. The second year he was clowning a rodeo contractor told him he wanted Quail to work all his rodeos the next year at $125 per performance. Quail took the job.

A lot of those rodeos were in small towns. "Once in Ironwood, Michigan we only had 13 people putting on the rodeo. That's contestants, announcers, clowns, chute help, contractor, everybody. And the cowboys weren't all that good. So the contractor told me he wanted some kind of act in the arena to have something going on so the crowd wouldn't leave. I had to come up with a lot of stuff. I did several tricks with my mule."

At Palestine, Illinois, Quail saw a boy with a funny-looking dog. Quail offered to buy it, but the boy and his parents said no. The next year, when Quail was in the Cheyenne, Wyoming Rodeo parade, some people called him over and said they were the people from Illinois who had the dog he wanted and they gave it to Quail. That's how he acquired Phyllis, a big part of his clowning routines. In one of his acts he had a chicken pulling a small cart. "You ought a see the drumsticks on that thing."

Quail was best known for his exploding car, which he bought for $800 from another rodeo clown. His car act never changed. People in the stands were so familiar with it they could quote the lines right along with Quail. Once the announcer forgot a line and the audience yelled out to him what he was supposed to say. Quail worked rodeos in El Paso and Cheyenne 29 consecutive years, Houston 25 years. He was perhaps the most popular man in professional rodeo. When he retired from rodeo he became a justice of the peace and called his office "The Law East of Stink Creek." He was recently inducted into the prestigious Rodeo Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City. He was twice voted PRCA Rodeo Clown of the Year and is one of only three clowns to work both as a bull-fighter and barrel man at the National Finals Rodeo.
