

This Is National Hospital Week

Hospitals throughout the United States this week are marking National Hospital Week, an annual effort to develop greater public understanding of hospitals and their activities.

The need for this understanding is obvious. The well-being of the hospital and community are inseparable. The hospital could not maintain or continue to improve its health services without community support. And without a hospital, a community would suffer serious handicaps in health care.

The popular public concept of a hospital is of an institution where a person goes for surgery or treatment and care for an illness or injury. One out of eight persons this year will receive care of such a nature in a hospital. Approximately 1 1/2 million persons on any given day are patients in hospitals in America.

But hospitals do more than provide patient care. Many have become the health centers of their communities, providing not only the inpatient care that is their major function, but outpatient services as well. These other services in which hospitals aim for total patient and health care include:

Education and training — All doctors and nurses receive some of their training in hospitals as do many other paramedical personnel. Hospitals also conduct informal education programs for personnel who work behind-the-scenes to keep hospital services functioning well.

Research — Medical research in hospitals probe illnesses and diseases. Most of the discoveries that have provided new techniques of patient care were made in hospitals or were perfected by hospital research.

Hospitals also conduct administrative research to find more effective methods of operation. Because health care costs are rising, hospitals are constantly looking for ways where economies can be applied without lowering the quality of care.

And hospitals serve as preventive medicine centers, teaching principles of health and hygiene. They are also sources of help in the event of a disaster or epidemic. The community's investment in the hospital can best be realized when hospitals and public health authorities work together with the medical profession as partners in the teaching and practice of preventive medicine and public health.

LIKE A ROAD BLOCK, stalled by an accident up front, the Congress is dragging its feet as the Summer months arrive. The House started out in a blaze of speed. Six of the annual appropriation bills were promptly approved and others are moving ahead of schedule. The tax bill sailed through, and the House also okayed the so-called civil rights measure.

Early this year the leadership talked of an early recess, probably by mid-July. But this is election year, and the answer to the dreams of the top politicians has in recent years been those Negro bloc votes, come November. Hence the civil rights bill, the "accident" ahead which has caused the road block.

Indeed the politicians are so anxious to capture those colored votes that they have virtually shut down the entire machinery of government, so far as the Congress is concerned, in a bid for kind words from such prominent agitators as Martin Luther King, Roy Wilkins, CORE leaders, the Urban League, and others. By putting the civil rights bill first, to the exclusion of all other legislation, the Senate leaders invited the filibuster which may continue for weeks.

By a one-vote margin the Senate last week refused to allow defendants the right of trial by jury in criminal contempt cases arising out of racial issues. It was the Senate's first attempt to modify the civil rights measure.

The Senate has not considered a single appropriation bill, and very little of anything this year except the tax bill — so intent is the leadership, both Democratic and Republican — on corraling those Negro votes in November.

Negroes now represent 10.5% of the total population. That makes them the biggest single minority bloc. One astute politician observed: "Every one knows the civil rights bill is bad legislation, but the political party that dominates in the future simply must be able to count on those bloc votes when the going is rough. It is like finding a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow."

Clover Lures Deer To Roads

Tyler — East Texas highways are bordered with a small red bloom that adds color to the landscape. It can also add a minor hazard to driving, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The bloom, crimson clover, is abundant this time of year and many deer leave timbered areas, especially at night, to graze on the plant along the roadways. Headlights of an automobile blind the animals and they are likely to jump into the pathway of an approaching automobile.

The Parks and Wildlife Department cautions motorists to drive carefully in areas where deer are known to be present.

19% Of Savings Bonds Goal Reached In March

Savings Bond sales for the first three months of 1964 in Coleman County totaled $72,592. Of this amount $40,242 were purchased in March according to a report released by Mr. Robert I. Bowen Jr., Chairman of the Coleman County Savings Bonds Committee.

Sales in Texas for the first quarter of 1964 amounted to $16,181,153, which represents 26.6% of the state goal of $150,000,000.

"On May 1 the new $75 Series E Savings Bond, bearing the portrait of the late President John F. Kennedy, went on sale. Beneath the portrait of Mr. Kennedy appears the words from his inaugural address, 'Ask not what your country can do for you, but ask what you can do for your country.'"

"This new bond will fill a gap in the lower denomination range of Savings Bonds. The issue date of May 1 is also the twenty-third anniversary of the issuance of the first Series E Bond," Chairman Bowen reported.

Property Damage Reduced With Aid Of Flood Control Dams

During the heavy rains, many fences, roads and cultivated fields were protected from flood water by the Upstream Flood Control Structures located on local creeks and watersheds. With the intensity of the rain storms a considerable amount of water was lost to run-off.

On creeks where flood control structures are planned, but not constructed, much damage is evident with the re-building of water gaps and maintenance on roads. Also, erosion on cultivated land is distinctly shown with washes and gullies. Many tons of top-soil left our land for the last time which will be deposited in some lake or river.

Some of the flood control structures receiving the greatest amount of flood water and providing the greatest protection were sites located on Rob O'Hair, H. F. Fenton Jr., Miller Ranch, Mrs. W. C. Ray, Mrs. Willie Stobaugh, Taylor Motor Company, Fred Turner, J. T. and James Thompson, Allen Turner, Ida Turner, J. R. Stacy, Sealy-Smith Land, Fred Haynes, Bond Featherston, Bill Brown, Tom Kingsbery, H. O. Norris, Mrs. Hardy Blue and Mrs. C. A. Crump.

Fifty-eight flood control structures have been completed and twelve more are under construction in the Central Colorado Soil Conservation District. All of these, except six structures, are located in Coleman County according to Thomas G. Rothenbaugh, Work Unit Conservationist, of the local Soil Conservation Service.

Spring Quail Like Insects

San Angelo — Research biologists on the Matador Wildlife Management Area near Paducah, after examining crop contents of bobwhite quail, confirmed that insects are a vital part of the bird's diet, reports J. Weldon Watson, executive director of the Parks and Wildlife Department.

Insects found in nine quail crops collected in April included 24 ants, 10 grasshoppers, 68 beetles, 20 squash bugs, 1 tarantula, 1 spider, 1 millipede and 1 insect pupa. Plant material made up the remainder of their diet with Texas croton seeds occurring 4.277 times.

Technicians said widespread insect control during spring months on Texas quail ranges will no doubt reduce the number of insects available to quail as well as other wildlife.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Austin — One of the first persons an expectant mother should tell her good news to should be her physician.

Every woman who suspects that she may be pregnant should visit a doctor promptly obtain the benefits of modern medical guidance.

The need for medical care throughout pregnancy and following birth cannot be over-emphasized for healthy babies, and mothers health and peace of mind.

In what ways does a doctor help the expectant mother during pregnancy? The doctor gives an expectant mother a careful physical examination to determine her general condition. He answers question she may have about pregnancy and birth.

The mother-to-be is given instructions on diet, exercise, rest, bathing and clothing. Usually, there need be little-if-any-change at this time in her customary daily activities. Any fears she may have can be talked over and explained.

During the first six months she visits the doctor about once a month. This enables him to keep check on her general condition, blood pressure, pulse and weight, as well as to make appropriate laboratory tests.

The doctor also treats possible discomforts such as constipation or morning sickness. He tells her what to watch for and answers any questions that may be puzzling her. The doctor is trained and willing to talk over any emotional problems or worries that may arise.

About halfway through pregnancy, the doctor is able to hear the unborn baby's heart-beat and follow his growth and progress. In the final month the doctor will see the expectant mother about once a week.

He tells her how to prepare for the baby's birth and her stay at the hospital. A preview visit to the hospital is a good idea so that when the time comes she will know where to go and what to do to be admitted. The doctor makes the hospital arrangements so that everything will be ready when she arrives.

With early and continuous medical care and advice, the big day should be as rewarding as anticipated for mother, father and baby.

(A weekly feature from the Division of Public Health Education, Texas State Department of Health.)

Students Should Locate SS Card For Summer Job

"Every student who is getting a summer job or graduating from school this year should get his social security card now," said R. R. Tuley, Jr., social security district manager in Abilene.

Many employers will not hire a student unless he already has a social security card. Students who do get jobs should show the card to the employer so that the name and number may be copied correctly. This is important because social security tax money must be credited to the correct record.

Duplicate cards will be issued to students who have had cards but have lost them.

Cards may be obtained at the local social security office, 203 Fannin Street, Abilene. Students living in a town without a social security office can get application blanks at their local post office.
