SANTA ANNA, COLEMAN COUNTY, TEXAS, MAY 13, 1965

NUMBER 19

we carried in this em about our Nora
and her battle with
and radio (which is CB, like another dis-reulosis, is known as

family in Coleman CB bug recently (it
to be quite infectious,
ere is no known vaccine
his family is in the farm ent business, yet so they get in trouble with the al Communications Com-
on (known as FCC, another se), we will give them an med name in this column.
e common, everyday name,
Smith of Jones of Johnson.
s, Johnson should do as well
any other name. We don't ant to give away any secrets ere.

Anyway, Mrs. — er — Johnson (assumed name, you understand) happened to be talking recently on the family's brand new Citizens Band transmitter. She was talking to Nora Robinson's son, Joe, as a matter of fact, telling him all about their new radio
rig. Joe was very interested.

"What are your call numbers?"
he asked.

"Call numbers?" asked Mrs.
(assumed name) Johnson, "What call numbers?"

"The numbers on your license,"
offered Joe, helpfully.

"License? What license?" was the reply.

Joe was beginning to get a little confused, but he was still trying to find out the Johnson's call numbers. "Well, what if someone wanted to call you,
what would they do?" he asked logically.

There was a pause.

"I guess they'd pick up this microphone thing and say, 'Hello, there, Johnsons,'" came the answer.

Of course, they quickly got straightened out on the minor technicalities, such as the fact that the government frowns on people doing radio transmitting without a license. They have their ticket now, and are operating all legal and nice. With call numbers, too.

And if the FCC man comes by
and tries to make us tell them the real name of this family, we will refuse. Journalistic ethics and all that.

Well, our beagles have arrived.
They have reached the summit.
There is no honor or acclaim
that they can win that can top
what they have just achieved.

Elsewhere in this issue of the paper, you will find a photo of a fantastic cake baked by Bettie Bryan for the Democrats' art show at the Connally Ranch,
near Fredricksburg last week.
On the 240 pound cake are depicted all the outstanding features of Texas, geographic and otherwise. And our beagles are included!

Let other hounds win the championships and the shows and the field trials. We have appeared on a Bettie Bryan cake.
No other beagle can make that statement.

Not long after Morey Mast,
our production supervisor, and his wife, Judy, were married, they received a letter from Morey's grandfather, a gentleman in his 80's who still shoots golf in the 80's. He wrote that he was playing golf often, but that as could be expected at his age, his scores were continuing to rise.

Judy, no golfer, wrote back that she was happy to hear that his golf scores were continuing to rise, and hoped that they would get higher and higher!

This is not the best way to make a good impression on new in-laws, as Morey explained later when she told him about the letter.

—0—

The recent sprinkles we have been having remind us of the story about the cowhand out in West Texas. That part of the state was undergoing its usual
dry sort of weather one summer, when a little cloud blew up and sprinkled just a little bit. One raindrop struck the cowhand
on the head, and it shocked him so much he fainted, and the only way they could bring him around was to throw a bucket of sand in his face.

Project Headstart To Provide Preschool Training With Federal Funds Here

Program Headstart, a plan to provide a four week period of orientation for six year olds who will be beginning school next fall, is being set up for the Santa Anna Independent School District.

The program, which will operate under the Office of Economic Opportunity of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will concentrate on orienting children to school life and to teach them how to use learning tools, thus preparing them for the start of first grade activities.

Funds are being requested, under the Federal program, to provide corrective measures where individual health or physical problems may be present, to provide testing facilities to check the child's readiness for school work, for transportation, for counselling for parent by school nurses and counsellors, for meals on days the program extends into the afternoon, and for salaries for teachers.

Final plans depend upon official approval of the plans submitted to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Tentative approval has been given. It is hoped that final details will be ready in time to announce them at the annual roundup of new first graders, scheduled for Monday, May 17, according to Superintendent Cullen Perry. (See story elsewhere in this issue of The News for additional information about the first grade orientation session.)

Many Local Students At Tarleton This Term

Twenty five students from Coleman County attended during the 1965 spring semester at Tarleton State College.

The figure is an increase over that of a year ago, as is the overall enrollment at Tarleton State. The college scored a record spring enrollment with 1,457 students registered—a 16.1 percent increase over the 1964 spring total.

As a regional college, Tarleton receives the majority of its students from Central Texas.

Women workers may draw social security payments at 65 just as men do—or payments, at a reduced rate, at 62.

School Tax Board Named Recently; Starts Work

Six residents of the Santa Anna Independent School District have been appointed to the new board of equalization for the District, and the group has begun work on the job of adjusting and equalizing assessed tax values on real property within the District.

Chairman of the new board of equalization is A. L. King, J. L. Boggus is vice chairman, with C. R. Lowe as secretary. Other board members include R. W. Cupps, O. E. Shelton, and W. L. Vaughn.

Members of the equalization group were appointed by the Board of Trustees of the Santa Anna Independent School District.

Organization of the board of equalization was necessitated by the recent decision by the Board of Trustees to establish independent taxing facilities for the local school district. According to a spokesman for the Board of Trustees, this step was taken to provide adequate financing for the local school system. Previously, the Santa Anna Independent School District has handled its tax valuations and collections through the County tax office, basing the tax on county-state evaluations. These evaluations have not been revised in more than 20 years, and are both unequal and inadequate to provide revenue needed for operation of the schools.

The local school district faced three choices, the spokesman said. It could accept a much limited educational program in Santa Anna schools, providing inadequate preparation both for students that planned to attend college and for those who planned to go directly into employment following school; it could merge with the Coleman school district, which has its own tax structure for some time and which would immediately raise local school taxes more than they will be increased under the program now underway; or the Santa Anna Independent School District could reorganize its tax setup in such a way as to provide fair taxation with the revenue needed to properly operate the schools at the desired educational level.

Following the evaluation process, all taxpayers of record will be able to discuss property taxations with members of the board of equalization, the spokesman said.

It is anticipated that it will require quite some time for the board of equalization to complete its initial task.

Following the evaluation procedure, the tax rate will be set to provide revenues necessary to meet the increased costs of education, the spokesman pointed out.

School District Transfers In May

Students in Texas schools who live in one school district but attend school in another must be officially transferred through the county school board during the month of May, according to information released this week by the Santa Anna Independent School District.

The school districts involved have the privilege of protesting the transfer, but final decision on all such cases is made by the county board.

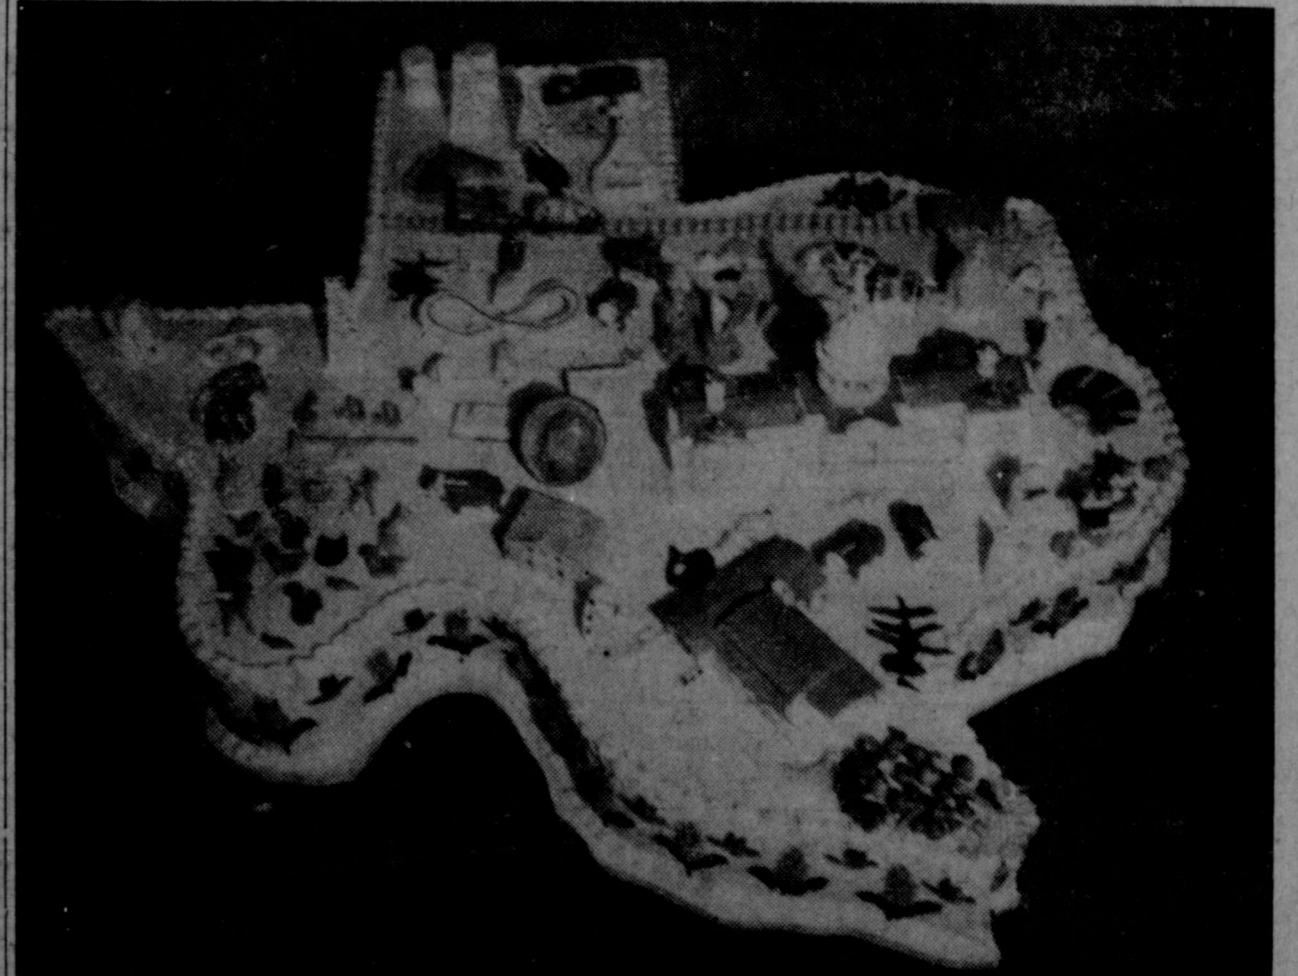

School districts cannot obtain state funds for students attending in that district who reside outside the district, unless proper transfer of the student has been made.

During the present school year, eight students living outside the Santa Anna Independent School District have transferred into the District, and seven students living inside the District now attend classes in other districts.

Superintendent Cullen Perry requests that any families who have questions involving transfer of students contact the Santa Anna school office for information. He pointed out that students residing in the Santa Anna Independent School District who have been transferred in earlier years to attend Humphrey School, in Coleman, need not take any action, since they have automatically been listed on the census lists of the Santa Anna Independent School District.

BIG CAKE—This is a cake baked by Mrs. Bettie Bryan, of Rockwood, for the Democratic Art Show, held last weekend at the Fredricksburg ranch of Governor John Connally. The 240 pound cake took more than 175 hours to prepare, including the frosting decorations, which are designed to depict the advantages of Texas, ranging from cattle to oil to high fashion to fishing. The entire cake is edible, with nothing being used for reinforcement. The cake required more than 60 pounds of flour, 18 pounds of shortening, and one pound of salt. The frosting and decorations used up more than 24 pounds of sugar.

Santa Anna Rich Area For Newest Sport—Hunting Indian Artifacts

BY Van Sanford

One of the fastest growing and most unusual outdoor pastimes in Texas today is Indian artifact hunting. It's better known simply as arrowhead hunting.

Since Indian tribes roamed all over Texas at one time or another, there are many likely places to search for relics.

Most of the choice places near populous areas have been picked over by meticulous searchers. But each eroding rain or a farmer's plough turns up new tidbits.

Best known artifact is the articulate flint arrowhead. But a search may turn up other historic relics like spear points, tomahawk heads or flint knives.

There are two distinct types of Indian relic seekers . . . the surface hunter and the digger. The former is the most basic. His is a pastime anyone can indulge in, whether he's a dyed-in-the-wool archeological bug or not. The latter is more painstaking and requires advance knowledge and knowhow.

Surface hunting won't turn up as many artifacts as digging. However, its great appeal is that no equipment is needed. Just patience and tenacity. Too, it's a recreational pastime for the entire family.

Only requisite for surface hunting is knowing where to look. Most logical places are where the ground has been broken or eroded. That brings the relics to the surface. A ploughed field, for example, would be more apt to have artifacts scattered about than would a sodded turf.

Cultivated fields probably are the most accessible spots common to all parts of Texas. Other possibilities are stream beds, bulldozed road right-of-ways, eroded hillsides, broken places in the land, gullies and washes.

A surface hunter can ascertain whether or not a spot is likely hunting ground almost immediately. There will be some evidence of Indian life, even if it is only tiny broken chips of flint, a telltale clue that it has been worked.

Surface hunting is the sport in its most basic form. When a hunter begins exploring beneath the earth it gets somewhat more complicated.

Dr. E. Mott Davis, an archeologist at the University of Texas, does most of his exploring underground, salvaging the artifacts by excavating a particular site. Many of the hobby archeologists also have started to dig and search, and this causes Dr. Davis and other professionals much dismay.

"Many times a person just digs aimlessly, looking for the more choice artifacts," Dr. Davis explained. "In the process he destroys much valuable property which is vitally needed in our work, information that can not be obtained in any other way."

But Dr. Davis doesn't try to discourage the hobbyist who digs in his quest for coveted relics. Rather, he stresses that the person should know what he is doing and understand what he is looking for. Serious hobbyists, he points out, contribute a valuable role in cataloging the archeological history of any specific area.

He encourages the amateur artifact hunter to keep a written record of his discoveries. In this way he actually is conducting an archeological survey, one that the professionals can put to good use when seeking additional information.

There has been such a phenomenal upsurge in Indian relic hunting during the past few years that organizations of persons interested in the pastime have been formed. There are many in different towns across Texas, as well as a statewide group.

Hunting Indian artifacts can be a family pastime both educational and entertaining. By systematically working a site, taking specimens in logical order and keeping accurate records, the hobby collector can build a visual picture of how the Indians lived and something about their habits and personality.

And as Dr. Davis explained, he also can contribute a vital part of the state's archeological study.

Local Semipro Team Practices, Sets Practice Game

The new Santa Anna semi-professional baseball team held its first workout Saturday, May 3, with about 10 players on hand.

According to manager Bob Parker, another practice will be held Friday evening, May 14, beginning about 5:30 p.m. Parker urged that all local ballplayers interested in playing for the local semipro team attend the Friday practice.

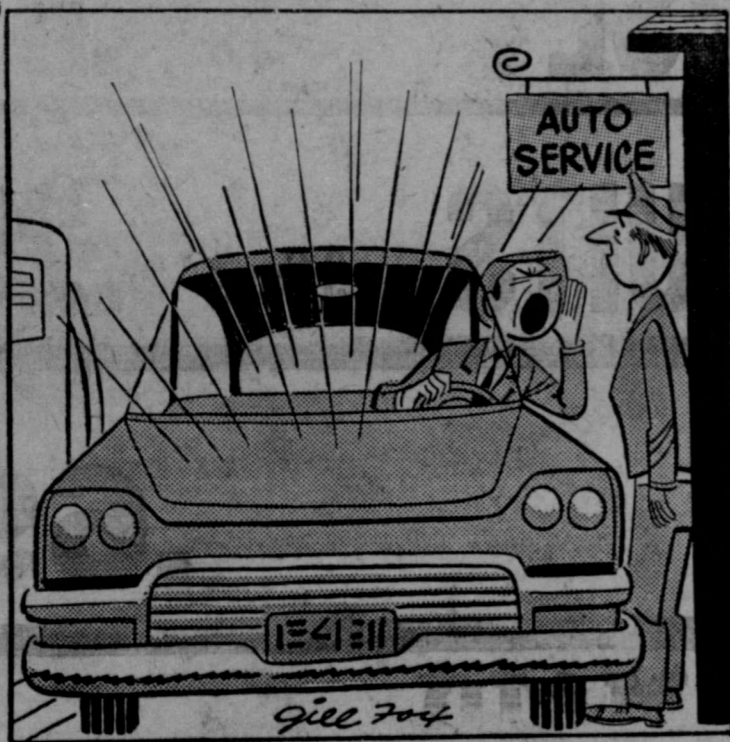

Parker said that efforts are being made to get the local team into a semipro league in the area. He said that a practice game is being scheduled for Sunday on the Santa Anna field, beginning at 2:30 p.m.

THE BIG INCH

The ruled box above is a one-inch ad. It measures one column wide by one inch deep. It costs advertisers 45 cents.

It looks kind of lonesome by itself.

But look at it this way:

What you get when you buy a one inch ad in The Santa Anna News is not just a single space in the paper, but one inch multiplied by more than 1,000 copies each week. And by more than 4,000 readers each week.

So you are really buying 1,000 inches, which (at 120 column inches per page) would be some eight and one-third pages of printed newsprint.

That is a mighty big chunk of space to cost 45 cents. Just imagine trying to reach all those Santa Anna News readers by postcard. It would amount to more than $160 just for the postage. But The News does it for just 45 cents.

So you can see that a little one inch ad is a big inch when it is advertising space in The Santa Anna News. And two inches will tell your story twice as well as one, and four will get your message across four times as well, and so on. It is the most effective and economical way possible to let people in this area know that you have wares and services they could use.

Call FI8-3545 and let our advertising representative show you how our big inches of advertising space can be a big salesman for you.
