Apology from Gen. Sheridan

A.C. GREENE
TEXAS SKETCHES

One of the most famous remarks ever made about Texas came from Union Army General Philip Sheridan, military governor of Texas and Louisiana for a period during the Reconstruction era following the Civil War, who bitterly compared Texas and Hell as places of residence. The remark has achieved such legendary status that some historians, in and out of Texas, have questioned whether it was actually made by Sheridan or was only words put in his mouth by later writers.

But in 1980, on a visit to Galveston accompanying former President U.S. Grant, Little Phil, as he was called, admitted making the quip, but attempted to explain it away. Sam Acheson's book, 35,000 Days in Texas describes how it happened. Speaking at a public dinner at the Tremont Hotel honoring him and President Grant, Sheridan's talk was filled with sentiments flattering enough for any Texan, and in conclusion he told his (mostly) ex-Confederate hosts, "Speaking so kindly of Texas — and I speak from my heart — probably I ought to explain a remark I once made about it. It was in 1866, and I had just returned to San Antonio from a hard trip to Chihuahua on some Mexican business when I received an order to proceed at once to New Orleans. I hired relays and coaches so that I had only to hitch on the wagon and go speedily to get the boat from Galveston. I traveled night and day. It was in August and, need I say, very warm. I arrived here covered with dust, my eyes and ears and throat filled with it. I went to a little hotel in that condition and had just gone up to the register when one of these newspaper men rushed up to me and said, 'General, how do you like Texas?'

The Dallas Morning News: Paul Kolsti

"I was mad and I said, 'If I owned Texas and all Hell, I would rent out Texas and live in Hell.' Needless to say, that did not represent my true opinion of this magnificent State." Sheridan was given a standing ovation.

Study Club Members Portray Selected Texas Character

Members of Tsa Mo Ga Club are pronouncing their April 14 meeting "outstanding". Billie Blundell directed the program with an emphasis on Texans living or dead. Members were asked to dress as the Texas character of their choice and to share a biographic sketch of that person. Roll call was answered with "My favorite event in Texas history".

Guest entertainers were Inetta Teaff as Charlie Daniels; Betty Jo Estep, Ernest Tuffs; Jean Patton, Willie Nelson and Barbara Thrash, Lefty Frizzell. Barbara Brown controlled the stereo as the women pantomined four Texas songs, "Waltz Across Texas With You," "Pecos Bill", "Yellow Rose of Texas" and "Dream On Texas Ladies".

Bluebonnets and a yellow rose graced the registry table. A Texas theme was carried out in decorations. Barbecue brisket, salad, potatoes and cherry pie were served by hostesses Florine Hayes and Edna Chambliss. They presented each member with a 100-year-old recipe for chess pie.

Sit Jones impersonated Allan Shivers, former governor who restored the ten mile tidelands limit to Texas which has since benefitted the state by $1,611,062,000.32. Sarah Jane Field was a Comanche maiden whose tribe roamed all over early Texas. Mattie Field came as Mattie Kemper, character from James Michener's "Texas".

Eleanor Simpson assumed the character of Rachel Parker Plummer, resident of Ft. Parker who was captured by Indians and held two years. Portraying Lady Bird Johnson, Mary Jo StRomain gave each member a bag of bluebonnet in recognition of the former First Lady's beautification project. Faye Nelms was Mother Long, a pioneer lady. Peggy Squyres portrayed Plains' own Sue Stevens. Toni Jones was Ann Richards, treasurer of Texas. Connie McWhirter played Yoakum County historian Sit Jones. Leona Crenshaw came as the wife of an early day Methodist preacher, the Rev. Porter. Clara Driscoll was the character chosen by both Rita Nance and Zareta Winn. Ms. Driscoll is credited with saving the Alamo for posterity, and is also part responsible for TFWC's Headquarter's building erected in Austin.

Elouise StRomain portrayed Cynthia Ann Parker, mother of Chief Quanah Parker. Louise Goehry delighted fellow members as Pecos Bill. Ann McGinty chose to be Miss Annie Armstrong, an early Irish immigrant to Yoakum County. Billie Blundell came as Ma Ferguson, Texas' only woman governor.

Connie McWhirter won the prize for Best Characterization. Best Costume prize went to Louise Goehry; Eleanor Simpson won Best Biography. Honorable mention went to Mary Jo StRomain, Ann McGinty and Peggy Squyres.

Other members attending were Ottie Morehouse, Virginia Sanders, Martha Palmer, Latrell McDonnell and a guest, Janice McGill.

Board Members Attend Meeting

Jenny Coston, chairman; Peggy Squyres, vice chairman; and Candy Seaton, case worker; of Yoakum County Welfare Board, attended a regional council meeting recently in Lubbock.

Representatives from each county reported on individual programs during April.

DEAN ANDREWS

There are six weeks of school remaining in the 1985-86 school year. We encourage each parent to continue working with students to obtain the highest level of education possible this year.

Last Saturday our school hosted a Texas Tech University educational computer class with twenty-seven teachers from around the South Plains attending. All participants were impressed with the facilities and programs offered to our students. I congratulate Brenda Canada and Kim Andrews for their leadership in this area.

Plains I.S.D. will not offer a summer school for four year olds due to the lack of interest. We needed to have ten students with limited English speaking abilities to be able to offer the program. We have not had that number to pre-register. Plains I.S.D. will offer a four year old program beginning in September. Details of the program and pre-registration information will be released in early May.

Homestead PROTECTED

Texas is the only state with homestead laws that protect rural homesteads from foreclosure by general creditors. But the protection is limited by the type of debt owed and to a specific quantity of land.

A rural homestead of no more than 200 acres (or 100 acres for a single adult not part of a family) is protected from foreclosure from debts other than those for the actual purchase of the property, taxes and permanent improvements, says David Kight, county agent with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service.

The homestead provisions of Texas law will not protect the home from attachment, execution and forced sale for the payment of debts arising from all or part of the purchase money for the homestead, property taxes, or mechanic's liens for work and material used in constructing improvements on the homestead.

The occupant-owner of the homestead cannot increase the "burden" or amount of the outstanding loan on the homestead, notes Kight. The owner may refinance the homestead property when interest rates become more favorable, but the outstanding balance of the note can be increased only if the extra money covers the cost of improvements, property taxes or refinancing costs.

Money borrowed for work and material used in home improvement construction is subject to a mechanic's lien. A valid mechanic's lien can be created on a homestead only if the contracts for labor and materials are in writing and signed by both spouses before any labor or material is furnished.

To be effective, mechanic's lien also must contain a proper legal description of the property, the price to be paid for labor and materials, time of payment and a general description of improvements. It must be recorded in the county where the property is located.

The protection extends throughout the lives of both spouses (or the single adult) and to the minor children and unmarried children remaining with the family of the deceased while they continue to use and occupy the property. Single adults living together, however, cannot claim homestead rights.

These rights also insure that one spouse cannot sell the homestead without the other's consent, adds Kight. Therefore, both spouses must sign a deed to convey the homestead regardless of whether it is separate or community property.

As a general rule, once a homestead is established it continues until another is acquired. To switch a homestead requires a physical change of residence accompanied by an intent for the new residence to become the new homestead.

During the farm crisis, homesteads will be protected from general creditors under Texas laws. However, the protection is not available from the creditor loaning the money to purchase the homestead property. More information on this subject can be secured from your local attorney.

Funds Being Accepted In Behalf Of Benefit Telethon

The annual Children's Miracle Network telethon is scheduled for May 31-June 1 on Lubbock's Channel 11 television. Proceeds of the telethon will benefit the children's unit at Lubbock General Hospital. All funds will remain in Lubbock.

Some suffering serious conditions, the children have highly benefitted from the knowledge, skill and equipment available there. Telethon funds help make such services possible.

Donations may be left at Dairy Queen, Plains Appliance Center and Yoakum County Library.

A number of small children in the Yoakum County area have been patients at Lubbock General Hospital.

NO SAFE TOBACCO

Monsanto furnished the evening meal for those attending.

Origin Of State Song

Ask most Texans what the Texas state song is and they will almost invariably reply, The Eyes of Texas. But as anyone who has gone through the Texas school system knows, such is not the case. The official state song of Texas is Texas, Our Texas.

The Eyes of Texas is the official song of the University of Texas at Austin, the words written in 1903 to the tune of the old folk song, I've Been Working on the Railroad, by a student for a campus minstrel show, poking good-natured fun at U.T. President William Prather who constantly exhorted the students: "Remember, the eyes of Texas are upon you!" When Prather died in 1905, the song was sung as tribute by students at his funeral, thus beginning its recognition as the school song.

Interestingly enough, Texas, Our Texas was written by an Englishman, William John Marsh. Marsh was born in Liverpool in 1880 and came to Texas in 1904 after training as a composer and organist. He was made professor of organ, composition and music theory at Texas Christian University. In 1917 he became a naturalized citizen of the United States.

Texas, Our Texas came about in 1918 after a friend suggested to Gladys Yoakum Wright, a Greenville native then living in Fort Worth, that she show some of her lyrics to Marsh, who, she was told, "writes beautiful music." Marsh composed the music and together with Mrs. Wright produced the words.

In 1923, Gov. Pat Neff offered a $1,000 prize for a state song and 286 compositions were submitted. Texas, Our Texas won the prize and was adopted by the 41st Legislature in 1929 and made the official state song in a formal ceremony March 11, 1930.

Since then, three generations of Texas school children have learned to pipe the Lone Star anthem... "Texas, Our Texas, all hail the mighty state!"

Girls Little Dribblers

Excitement marked Tuesday evening's play in the little girls basketball action. The Ricochets pulled ahead of the Shooting Stars by two points in the final 10 seconds of play. Andreas Salas made an outstanding defensive steal for the Shooting Stars in the final seconds, but efforts to tie the score failed. Final score was 21-19.

Leading scorer for the Ricochets was Rene McElroy with 11. Brandi Lester's 13 was high for the Shooting Stars.

The Fillies took a 52-10 victory over the Cowgirls in the first game. Rhonda Cowart scored 26 points for the Fillies with Jennifer Day close back with 20. Amy Crutcher led the Cowgirls with 6.

Thursday's play found the Sure Shots winning a thriller, 21-18 over the Cowgirls. Heather Bowlin scored 9 for the Sure Shots; Amy Crutcher, 14 for the Cowgirls.

Janice Herrera scored 11 for the Shooting Stars as they won 27-13 over the Aces. High scorer for the Aces was Ashlee Winn with 9 points.

Referees Kyle Andrews and Micheal Davis have been officiating the girls Little Dribblers games, and according to a spokesperson "they have done a very outstanding job."

Persons are invited to attend the games and support the girls association. Games are played Tuesdays and Thursdays beginning at 5:30 p.m.

SURE SHOTS & FILLIES anxiously watch the ball go up for two points in Tuesday's competition of Girls Little Dribblers.

RICOCHETS gain momentum on the Aces early in the second game of Little Dribbler action Tuesday night.
