78th Annual Field Day Planned At Research Facility

Research which can help Yoakum County farmers reduce fertilizer costs and make more effective use through application methods, as well as the latest scientific information on crop production and the control of weeds will be featured during the 78th Annual Field Day of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock/Halfway on Sept. 8, County Extension Agent David Kight reports.

The TAES/High Plains Research Facility at Halfway, 14 miles west of Plainview on U.S. Highway 70, is host this year, Kight said. The annual program alternates between the Lubbock center and its Halfway site, he explained. Tours will begin at 1 p.m. and conclude at 5 p.m.

Five major displays are planned on the motorized tours of the research plots and facilities. Doug Nesmith, research associate in soil fertility and field day chairman, said these will feature reports and demonstrations on types of cotton developed for new farming systems, effects of climate and soil types on grapes, effects of conservation tillage cropping systems on crop yields and weed control, adaption of chemigation to center pivots, and the amounts and methods of fertilizer application for maximum benefits.

The Texas Forest Service will present red oak trees to 250 landowners who take the field tours.

Other features of the field day include displays of equipment, farm supplies and information booths.

The field day is a cooperative presentation of TAES, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

From The Superintendent's Desk

DEAN ANDREWS

Our school year has officially begun with the first day of classes completed. We have actually been involved with students for the past two or three weeks.

Those students enrolling in kindergarten this year will be seniors in the year 2000. As the American population changes to reflect a growing number of older citizens, the percentage of people with school age children will continue to diminish.

It is crucial that we emphasize the importance of public education for all children when many of today's students struggle to stay in school and more adults have no direct interest in schools. Increasing numbers of children face the threat of AIDS, problems of teenage pregnancy, fractured homes, teen suicide and juvenile crime.

All of us need to be working right now in 1987 to insure that all our graduates and especially the Class of 2000, are equipped to be participating and contributing members of society.
