From The Superintendent's Desk

DEAN ANDREWS

At one time our students competed with their classmates for grades and pretty much was the end of the story. Today, our students not only compete with classmates for grades but with all other students across the state.

Grades 3, 5, 7, 9 and 11 take a standardized test known as T.E.A.M.S. (Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills). Starting with the class of 1992, high school seniors will have to write an acceptable essay for graduation, under a new rule approved by the State Board of Education.

Keith Cruse, director of student assessment for the Texas Education Agency, said the essay requirement would make the graduation test more difficult than called for in the state's 1984 school reform law. "This is a step taken by the State Board of Education in keeping with its long range plan to increase the rigor of the TEAMS test, to increase the standards that we have for our youngsters in the academic achievement areas," Cruse said.

Cruse said the new section of the graduation test would require students to write one essay on a topic specified in the exam. The composition would be in addition to the 72 math and 72 English questions that make up the current test.

More than 18,000 students across Texas did not receive diplomas last Spring because they failed the TEAMS exam.

In other action the State Board adopted a formula to cut high school funding by an estimated $26 million this year. The cut is needed because the Texas Legislature reduced state agency funding across the board before approving the budget for this two-year fiscal cycle. The board will consider the formula again after enrollment figures are updated in January. The cut is expected to mean an average loss of about $9.00 per student statewide.

In other reports, several Dallas teachers say they were told to teach the items covered by the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills even if it meant neglecting other material.

"The learner standards no longer exist; the curriculum is the TEAMS and the TEAMS is the curriculum. That's what we were told," said a teacher at Samuell High School who asked not to be named. The teachers made the statements after a meeting of secondary school principals this month.

Acting Superintendent Otto Fridia denied the charge. He said teachers should not be teaching only the items covered by the TEAMS test. "The TEAMS test is important, but not so important that we want to change everything to focus on that," Fridia said.

Chad Woolery, assistant superintendent for secondary instruction in the Dallas I.S.D. also said principals were told teachers should incorporate the TEAMS objectives into their regular curriculum, but not teach only test items.

"NO USE"

James Whitcomb Riley wrote these words:

"It is no use to grumble and complain;
It's just as cheap and easy to rejoice,
When God sorts out the weather and sends the rain—
Why rain's my choice."

Numbers 11:1 reads "And when the people complained, it displeased the Lord."

God hath not promised Sun without rain; Joy without sorrow, Peace without pain. But God hath promised Strength for the day, Rest for the labor and Light for the way; Grace for the trials, Help from above, unfailing Sympathy and undying Love.

Dear Editor:

Dear Editor:

I recently had the opportunity to attend a special occasion in Plains. I attended the dinner theatre presented by the members and sponsors of the Junior High One-Act-Play. I also enjoyed a delicious spaghetti dinner, followed by an outstanding presentation of the play, "The Miracle Worker" (the story of Helen Keller). I appreciated the effort made to provide a new and unique event for the people of Plains. To those of you who missed it - you missed seeing some very special and talented young people.
