McAdams finished second in the 100 with a 13.5 and also came in second in the 200 with 28.8 Sainz, a freshman, placed second back of a senior in the 800 and 1500 meter runs in the fast high school division. His performances were 2:15.8 in the 800 and 4:52.2 in the 1500.

Summer Reading Program Underway

Summer readers continue to sign up at Yoakum County Library in Plains for the summer reading program. New this year is a program for pre-school children, offering certificates and coupons for Dairy Queen treats to those pre-school boys and girls who sign up and have someone read 10 books to them during the summer program.

All boys and girls who participate in the summer reading program and complete the required 10 books will also receive a certificate and coupon.

Of special interest to all is an Apache Indian Collection being exhibited in the library at this time, by Bob Barker. Barker has an excellent collection of Apache items which will be displayed for a short period of time. A story will be featured next week in The Plains Pride.

Farm Fatalities Continue High

Despite the fact that farm fatalities have declined some in recent years, the total number remains high, said Kirk Lewis, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Farm fatalities declined 20 percent from 1986 to 1987. A total of 70 fatalities occurred in the state in 1987, 11 of these being children under the age of 6. In addition, there were an estimated 700 disabling injuries on Texas farms and ranches in 1987, Lewis said.

Farm and ranch accidents the past 10 years have claimed the lives of 1,091 Texans. Major causes of these fatalities have been tractors, 246; drownings, 144; firearms, 143; fires (burns), 100; machinery, 97; electric current, 72; and animals, 67.

While farm and ranch fatalities have declined steadily over the past 10 years (there were 152 in 1978), safety should remain a priority in farming and ranching operations, Lewis said.

The busy season is at hand as farming activities are concerned, so tractor and machinery operations should be especially careful, said Lewis. Also, paying particular attention to the "no rider" rule regarding tractors and other farm machinery can cut down on the number of accidents, particularly those involving small children.

Because drownings are a leading cause of farm fatalities, landowners should give special attention to making ponds and lakes safe for swimming. And those precautions should be taken immediately since warm weather is at hand, Lewis said.

Plains High School cheerleaders returned home last week with new ideas from Texas Tech University's Cheerleading Camp. Nominated for the Award of Excellence, the PHS squad includes Jennifer Taylor, Michelle Lowe, Jo Lena Powell, Ashlee Winn, Darce Pierce and their sponsor, Brenda Canada.

The girls learned new cheers and chants to be used in the new school year coming soon. Evaluations were held each night with the squad receiving three superior and one excellent ribbons.

Junior League Ends Season

Plains Junior League All-Stars defeated Brownfield 43-17 in their final scrimmage before Nationals June 1. Robin Squyres scored 12 points, Kiley Bearden, 9 and Bridget Bernal, 8.

Nine of the ten players were in the books with points. In addition to a good offensive effort, the defensive starred by holding Brownfield scoreless in the first half. Score at the half was 30-0.

The girls express their thanks to everyone who helped make the season a big success with special appreciation to their families for their support and encouragement.

MAKING FAMILY LIFE MORE FUN

A Firelog For All Seasons

Here's a hot idea. The next time your family goes in for some outdoor fun: camping, fishing, canoeing, hunting, skiing or the like, take some firelogs along.

It may seem strange at first—bringing artificial firelogs into the woods—but not when you consider the advantages they offer:

- They're lightweight.
  - They're convenient to use (if real wood becomes wet, or as kindling).
  - They offer a controlled three hour burn time.
  - They're environmentally safer, cleaner than real wood, leaving less ash, making less smoke and putting fewer pollutants into the air.
  - They require no kindling.
- More and more Americans are finding wax and sawdust logs such as those from Pine Mountain—which have a patented split-log design for a fuller, brighter flame; more radiant heat; and greater safety than others—are better than natural wood for keeping campfires as well as home fires burning.

Increasingly, family fun around the campfire includes the use of artificial firelogs.

Improve Cholesterol Count By Exercise & Dieting

If you want to improve your cholesterol status and lower your weight at the same time, step up activity and cut back on calories, states Mary D. Williams, Yoakum County Extension Agent.

If everyone engaged in regular exercise, we'd have very few fat people...and much healthier cholesterol levels.

In a recent study, 155 overweight men were randomly assigned to one of three groups. Group A was put on a weight reducing diet for a year, without changing their exercise habits. Group B did the reverse---they were put on an exercise program, but didn't change their diets. Group C was control. Not surprisingly, the control group didn't change their cholesterol status or their weight. But both the dieters and the exercisers lost weight and lowered their plasma triglycerides and raised their "good" HDL cholesterol.

And you don't have to be overweight to realize these health dividends. Studies have shown that regular exercise helps raise HDL levels in most people, regardless of weight. HDL levels are substantially higher in exercisers than in the general population.

Theoretically, there's no limit to the benefits of exercise. In one experiment, good athletes boosted their regular workouts considerably. The result: Their already high HDL cholesterol increased even more. It's very difficult to say what the optimal amount of exercise is, but we know that a lot is good. There's a direct relationship between the strenuousness of exercise and its effect on HDL levels. Any aerobic exercise is going to be effective, provided it's done regularly, at least half an hour, three times a week. Most authorities are recommending more exercise as part of a healthy lifestyle.

Most experts agree that people diagnosed with a cholesterol problem should give dietary modification a good trial before they resort to medication. But perhaps more emphasis should be placed on weight loss, where indicated, and those people with low HSL levels should begin a regular exercise program. Diet and exercise are an excellent combination. No one is healthier than a person who exercises a lot, is slim and pays attention to diet. If everyone did that, half of the medical problems in this country would be solved.

Former Plains Coach Retires After Thirty-Seven Year Career

Editor's Note: The following news article, (printed in its entirety), was featured in the San Angelo Standard-Times, Sunday, June 4 issue, Sports Section, written by Mike Lee, Sports Editor. "Rip" Sewell was a former coach in the Plains I.S.D.

An era in West Texas sports officially ended Wednesday when L.T. "Rip" Sewell retired from Ozona High School.

Sewell retired from coaching last spring, but stayed on this past school year to teach driver's education for the 36th year of a versatile 37-year coaching and teaching career that produced 363 victories in football and basketball and 19 district championships in four spots.

Sewell, 61, now will seek a part-time job in sales for the next few years. However, most of his time will be devoted playing golf, fishing, travelling with his wife Ellen, and spending more time with his family. Oh, yes. Sewell says his grass will need cutting about twice a week, too.

Absent from Ozona High School and its coaching staff will be a man with remarkable charisma.

"I played for college coaches, and they were good," Jim Williams, an all-state basketball player for Sewell at Plains High School in 1958-59, said in a 1986 interview. "But, Rip has the charisma to get your attention where some of the others cannot. He had a way of getting over things that will help you in life."

Sewell was one of those people you felt you had known all your life - only five minutes after meeting him. He always, it seemed, wore a smile and offered a sincere handshake.

In the sports arena, Sewell was a scrapper. He insisted his athletes play clean but hard until the final whistle.

He never was blessed with good-sized players, but they possessed the scrappy personality of their coach. That's what made his successful but undersized teams so much fun to watch.

Sewell also possesses a sharp memory. It doesn't matter if its the name of one of his players, an opposing player or coach, his beginning teaching salary of $2,402 in 1952, or the score of a key playoff game 20 years ago. Sewell can rattle off names and scores with blazing accuracy.

Versatility was the distinguishing characteristic in Sewell's 37 year coaching career that was spent at only three high schools - Wellman and Plains in the Panhandle and Ozona.

Other coaches had more victories in football and basketball, but few

-if any - rivaled Sewell's success in all sports.

He posted a 109-75 record in 17 years as a football coach, including three district titles and two championships.

In basketball, Sewell finished with a 254-148 record in 14 seasons, including six district championships and back-to-back trips to the state tournament at Plains in 1958-59.

However, it was in track, Sewell's favorite sport, where he excelled the most. In 13 years at Ozona, he won seven district titles and one co-championship. His Ozona teams won every regular-season meet they attended during a four-year stretch in the late 1970's and early 80's.

Upon retiring as Ozona's track coach in 1983, Sewell took over the golf team for the next five years and logged two district titles and one appearance at the state tournament.

In 1986, prior to Sewell's induction to the Texas High School Coaches Association Hall of Honor, longtime Iraan High School girls' basketball and track coach John Godfrey talked about Sewell's versatility.

"There's just never been any reason to doubt anything he's said, whether it's about football, basketball, track, golf or even sports medicine," Godfrey said.

"Whether you ask him how to set up a basketball tournament or how to run off a track meet, he's done it through the years, and he hasn't been too proud to ask anyone else about it and work long hours to prove it."

That versatility can be traced back to Sewell's days as an athlete at Electra High School and the University of Tulsa. At Electra, a small town located near Wichita Falls, Sewell was an all-state basketball player and participated in football and track in the early '40s.

At Tulsa, Sewell earned 10 letters in basketball, track and baseball.

Some who know Sewell well may not know it, but he twice led the Missouri Valley Conference in stolen bases. Once, he stole seven bases in one game.

Sewell's versatility doesn't stop at coaching, either. During his career, he taught history, geography, economics, math, biology and chemistry.

"I guess I've taught everything except English," Sewell said. "I'd teach whatever they needed me to teach until Housebill 72 came along (in 1984) and said you had to teach within your chosen field."

"...He could have done anything and been successful at it," Williams said. "I think he had a tough time growing up, and he had coaches who touched his life. He wanted to try and help somebody in that way."

From The Superintendent's Desk

Dean Andrews

This week I would like to discuss curriculum and how we decide what subjects should be taught in our schools.

The Texas Education Agency has the authority to approve or disapprove any course taught in Texas schools, and failure to teach required courses will result in loss of accreditation for the local school district.

All schools work to attain accreditation in order that their students might be accepted by Texas colleges and universities. To be accredited, all minimum requirements for a balanced curriculum as set by the Texas Education Agency, must be met.

A well balanced curriculum in the elementary and junior high school shall consist of English language arts, mathematics, fine arts, health, science, social studies, physical education, and computer literacy.

On the high school level the curriculum must include English, mathematics, science, social studies, economics, physical education, other languages, speech, and computer science. In the secondary teaching fields, two or three courses will usually be taught in each subject area. We offer honors courses in science, English, and mathematics, with approval from T.E.A.

I think you can see that the Texas Education Agency will pretty much determine the courses offered by all Texas schools. At Plains I.S.D. we continue to comply with rules and regulations set by the Texas Education Agency and feel that we offer our students a quality education.

As you would expect, Sewell has witnessed and endured many changes in high school sports in the past 37 years. A lot of that change has come from athletes.

"When I was a kid, so many of the athletes had to work during the summer and on weekends because their families needed the income," Sewell said. "Kids had more responsibility and more things to keep them busy."

"Now, with most families having two incomes, it seems kids don't have as much responsibility. It's made for a different type of student as far as desire and drive are concerned."

"I was hungry, I wanted that dollar," Sewell continued. "Kids today have too many free dollars in their pockets. There's really nothing you can do about it. It's just the way society is today."

Sewell also says kids today seem to enjoy individualism more than being part of a team.

"They lack the desire to be really liked by everyone, to fit into society," Sewell said. "They all want to be individuals, to be different. Kids used to love to be part of a group. Now, it's gone to a personal thing rather than an 'us' thing."

That move toward individualism, Sewell believes, is partly to blame for the trend of high school athletes specializing in one sport instead of competing in two or three.

"They're doing things for their own good, rather than for the school's good," Sewell said. "They do not want to compete year-round. And, at a little school like Ozona, that doesn't work."

Despite his comments, Sewell doesn't think the attitudes of athletes are a lost cause.

"Kids will still do whatever you ask of them, they're still responsive," he said. "But, I'm afraid they're a little less prepared for life. They always want to do something tomorrow instead of today. It's more of a day-to-day lifestyle."

"It all goes back to responsibility."

Sewell said in 1986, that if given a second chance, he would do it all again, but he would do it differently.

By differently, he meant, "I would try to find a place that had bigger, taller and better athletes. It seemed like every school I coached at always had the smaller athletes. They were good athletes and hard players, they were just small."

"But, I wouldn't trade anything for my time at Wellman, Plains or Ozona. I'd look for that place with bigger athletes, but there's no such place on Earth."

Which means Sewell wouldn't have done anything differently.

Coaches retire every year, but few will be as missed as "Rip" Sewell, who will be remembered as a champion for the little man in West Texas high school sports.

Ag Census Data Aired

Early data from the 1987 Census of Agriculture show that Texas had 188,788 farms based on $1,000 or more in sales of agricultural products.

Of the total number of farms, 68,792 had annual product sales of $10,000 or more, said Kirk Lewis, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Census data also showed that land in farms in Texas totaled 130,502,792 acres. Eighty-five percent of this land was on farms with $10,000 or more in sales.

The 1987 census showed that Texas farmers and ranchers sold $10.54 billion in agricultural products and that farms with $10,000 or more in sales averaged $147,748 per farm.

Data also showed that $2.96 billion or 28 percent of total agricultural sales were for crops while $7.58 billion or 72 percent came from the sale of livestock and poultry and their products, Lewis said.

Census information comes from all identified farm and ranch operations in the United States. The Census Bureau defines a farm as any place where $1,000 or more of agricultural products were produced and sold or normally would have been sold during the census year. Sampling is used to collect data for selected items and to account for nonresponding farm operations, said Lewis.

Reports for individual counties may be obtained by writing the Information Office, Ag. Division, Bureau of the Census, Washington, DC 20233, or by calling (301) 763-1113. Printed reports also are available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402. Data on computer tapes and diskettes are available from the Census Bureau at (301) 763-4100.

Q: I consider myself to be a typical high school student...I make pretty good grades, my teachers like me and I'm happy most of the time. Recently, one of my very best friends attempted suicide. I was shocked...I always thought that he was happy with his life. Could I have done something to prevent the suicide attempt? What are the warning signs of suicide?

A philosophical preoccupation with death.

These signs are often confused with the normal changes in adolescent behavior, and so it can be difficult to tell what an adolescent means by his or her actions. Most professionals agree that if you have any doubts or suspicions of suicide, intervene. If you recognize warning signs, get the person to a psychiatrist, psychologist or other mental health professional. If you don't know where to turn, call the crisis line or mental health center in your community. Your county health department can tell you what mental health facilities are available.

Learning how to prevent suicidal attempts is really learning how to listen and communicate with the teenager. Adolescents contemplating suicide will often respond to people when they feel that others care about them...for teens, having someone who will take the time to listen can make the difference between life and death.

A: Suicide is the third most common cause of death nationwide in 15 to 24-year-olds; only accidents and homicides rank higher. Some common warning signs of suicide include:

- Suicidal talk or threats
- Withdrawal from family and friends
- Giving away personal possessions
- Sudden changes in mood
- Loss of self-worth
- Disregard for appearance
- Failure in school
- Increases drug and alcohol abuse
- Hypochondria
