Cyndy Koncaba To Coordinate Annual Bike-A-Thon In Plains

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital announced today that Cyndy Koncaba will coordinate the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital "Wheels For Life" Bike-A-Thon in Plains on Oct. 6 at Stanford Park from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Founded by Danny Thomas in 1962, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is the largest childhood cancer research-treatment-education center in America. Although located in Memphis, Tenn., the hospital has a local impact because area doctors and hospitals can use, at no cost, treatments and procedures developed at St. Jude.

St. Jude Hospital is non-sectarian, interracial and provides medical care for over 3,200 active patients. Currently, over $183,000 is needed each day to keep the doors open. These funds come primarily from public contributions.

This year's Bike-A-Thon is dedicated to Brooke Simon. Five-year-old Brooke, from Delcambre, Louisiana, developed Wilms Tumor in November, 1988. Following the removal of her left kidney, she has undergone radiation and chemotherapy. Though her prognosis is good, her fight still continues.

We are grateful for the concern that Mrs. Koncaba has for our work and we hope the citizens of Plains will support the Bike-A-Thon to help provide the funds that are needed to preserve the world's greatest asset... "Our Children".

New Yoakum County Offices Observe Open House Recently

Approximately 100 people came and visited the new facility. The agencies have been serving the people of Yoakum County for over 40 years. FmHA has changed locations several times, but this is the first time SCS has changed the location of its office since 1952.

The new location centralizes all Federal USDA agencies for the convenience of the people of Yoakum County. Everyone is welcome to come by and see the new offices.

All programs of the Soil Conservation Service and Farmers Home Administration are available to anyone without regard to race, creed, color, sex, age, handicap, or national origin.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Editor:

Our state and national needs for literacy demand our attention. We face the sobering fact that 26 million Americans are functionally illiterate.

A vibrant Texas economy requires a well trained workforce. As Texas strives to develop a diverse economic base, we must be prepared for the demands of a changing workplace. A well educated, adaptable labor pool is vital to our continued advancement in business and industry.

The Texas Literacy Council, an advisory body to the Texas Department of Commerce, develops strategies to address literacy in our state. Its' state leadership encourages and supports local and statewide literacy efforts that provide a well skilled, flexible, internationally competitive workforce.

In conjunction with these efforts, a statewide network of community volunteer literacy programs is waging the battle to overcome illiteracy. The invaluable contributions of these volunteers include recruiting, training and matching tutors with individuals in need of basic skills.

Through the generous, tireless efforts of these gifted volunteers we are combatting illiteracy in Texas. These citizens, who see a problem and take the initiative to solve it, carry on a tradition which has distinguished our great state.

Therefore, I, William P. Clements Jr., Governor of Texas, do hereby find it fitting and proper to designate the month of September, 1990 as: Literacy Volunteer Month.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 5th day of Sept., 1990.

Governor of Texas

Youth And Senior Citizens To Mend Generation Gap

A plan to build bridges across the generation gap in 20 South Plains counties and improve the quality of life for both youths and rural senior citizens has come off the drawing board and gone into construction here.

The project is Youth Exchange with Seniors (Y.E.S.). Its goal is to promote positive intergenerational relationships between youth and seniors by providing assisted-living services that enhance independent lifestyles of the elderly in rural communities.

Y.E.S. is a cooperative effort of the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, the Texas Tech College of Home Economics and the South Plains District of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, an agency of Texas A&M University System.

It will link members of 4-H Clubs and Future Homemakers of America with senior citizens in Bailey, Borden, Briscoe, Castro, Cochran, Crosby, Dawson, Floyd, Gaines, Garza, Hale, Hockley, Lamb, Lynn, Lubbock, Parmer, Scurry, Swisher, Terry and Yoakum counties.

It is a model program, funded principally with a $254,000 grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, the nation's largest health care philanthropy. It is intended as a pilot effort which can be duplicated across the nation.

Co-directors of the project are Dr. Sheryl Boyd, assistant chairman for development in the Department of Internal Medicine and associate professor of health organization management, TTU HSC; Dr. Betty Stout, assistant professor of home economics education in Texas Tech University's College of Home Economics, and Dr. Kathy Volanty, South Plains District director for home economics with the Extension Service.

The program was initiated July 18-20 with a summer institute at the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center which provided two-and-a-half days of training for adults and a day-and-a-half for teens. More than 100 high school home economics teachers, county extension agents for home economics and senior citizens and some 20 youthful 4-H and FHA members from the 20 counties took part.

"This institute is not just about the Y.E.S. Project, it's about aging," Volanty told the participants. It included such topics as understanding the aging processes, myths about aging, the project structure, existing services, involving youth and seniors, strategies for community involvement and support, fostering business skills of participants, county planning and program implementation.

"The two best resources we have in our rural communities are our youth and our elders. This is matching them up," Boyd said.

Institute trainees will form the nucleus of county resource teams which will coordinate efforts in each county. Teams will include an Extension Service home economist, a high school home economics teacher and a health care professional or senior citizen.

These teams will enlist a variety of community volunteers from business, health care and civic organizations to teach the youth service providers and match them with seniors requesting services. Seniors will also work with youths to carry out a joint activity that will benefit the community or county.

The projects and services selected in each county will begin in January and continue throughout 1991. Possible services might include routine housekeeping assistance, lawn care, personal services and minor home or auto care.

From The Superintendent's Desk

Dean Andrews

I began writing these weekly articles on April 23, 1985. I have attempted to inform you of the various accomplishments of our students and district during these past four years. The accomplishments and awards our students have earned has made these articles a pleasure to write.

It is my hope that you might have a broader view of the happenings at school because of these comments, and that your appreciation of the work by our staff and students might be highlighted. It is my desire that Plains I.S.D. will be recognized for even greater achievements in the future.

During the next few weeks, our other administrators will be writing the articles for this column.

I want to thank you for your suggestions concerning the various articles and for your support during the time I have served as your superintendent.

Parents Essential In Children Learning

Oral language skills are important predecessors to reading and writing. How parents talk to their children about the experiences the child has influences the amount and kind of knowledge the child will gain from the experience. When children begin to read, they draw upon the experiences they have had and the knowledge they gained from those experiences, says Mary D. Williams, Yoakum County Extension Agent, Home Economics.

Parents can aid their children in acquiring literacy skills in a number of ways:

- * Talk about things in which children are interested.
- * Patiently answer their questions in ways they can understand.

- * Encourage children to develop their interests and talk about them.

- * Do things together and talk about your activities: going to the store; visiting the museum or the zoo; attending a movie, a concert, or church together; watching television and talking about what is happening; checking out books at the library and discussing how many different books there are; participating in or watching sporting events; and engaging in hobbies together.

- * Allow children to direct the conversation; don't tell them they are stupid or what they're saying is wrong.

- * Listen to children so you can learn about them, show that you care and are interested in what they have to say.

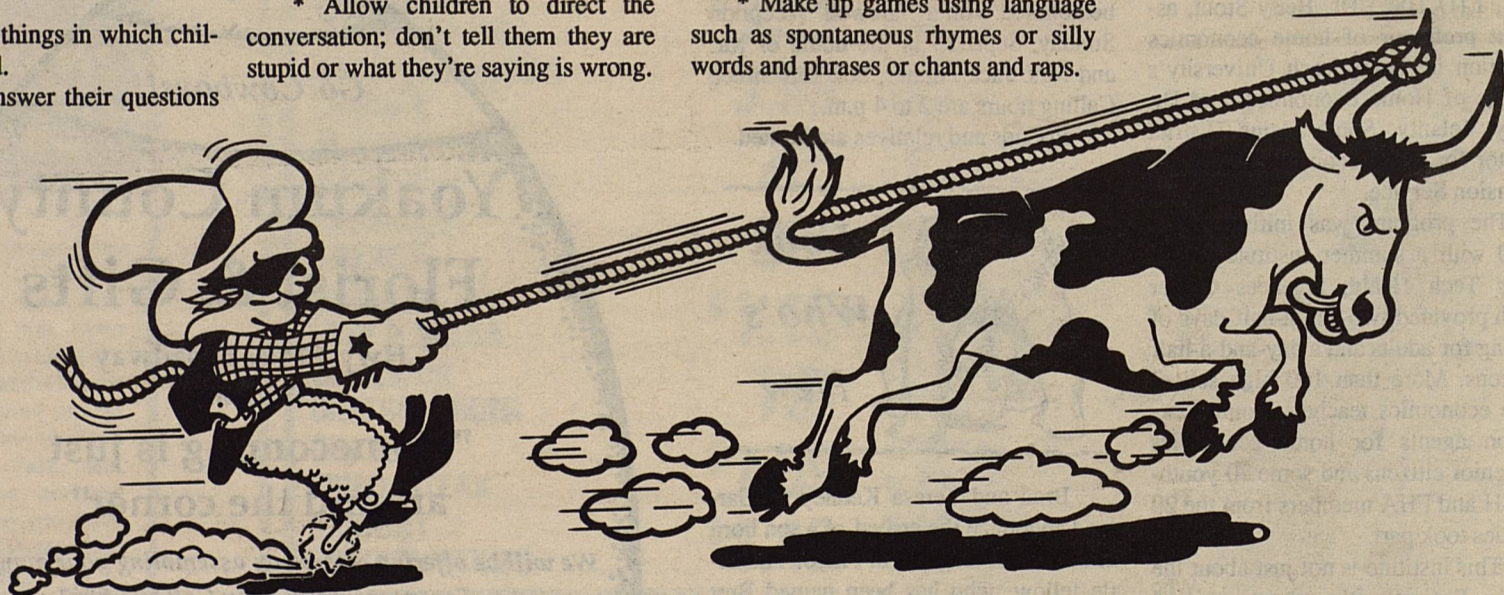

- * Provide young children with a play telephone and let them talk to friends and relatives on the phone.

- * Encourage children to describe the objects or things they see.

- * Look at a picture together and talk about the objects in the picture. Then hide the picture and see how many objects the child can recall.

- * Sing to and with children.

- * Make up games using language such as spontaneous rhymes or silly words and phrases or chants and raps.

Steers Pull Away With Victory

Plains Cowboys opened their 1990 season Friday night against the Farwell Steers.

Winning the toss and receiving the opening kick-off, the Cowboys lost the ball on a fumble at the 21 yard line on the first play of the game. Three plays later Farwell scored their first touchdown. Kick after attempt failed.

With 1:45 left in the first quarter, the Steers found the end zone after a seven yard run. The run came as a result of a Cowboy punt that was blocked at the 20 yard line. Extra point attempt again was no good.

Farwell scored the final points of the first half with 57 seconds left on the clock, the touchdown coming on a seven yard run. Extra point snap was muffed, and turned into two points as the ball was run across the goal line. Halftime score was Plains 0; Farwell 20.

The Cowboys came out the second half and Dwane Talley promptly stripped the ball from Farwell's quarterback. He then recovered the fumble on the Farwell 23 yard line. The Cowboys moved the ball quickly and in just five plays had scored with Mario Medina crossing the goal line on a three yard run. The two point conversion failed.

Farwell scored later in the quarter on a four yard run after again blocking a Plains punt. The two point conversion attempt was good. Score was Plains 6; Farwell 28.

Farwell's final score came on a four yard run with 7:46 left in the game. Point after was no good.

Cowboys scored their final touchdown after recovering a fumble on the 30 yard line. Dain Guetersloh scored on a 30 yard pass from Monte Pierce. Extra point kick by D'Shan Seaton was good. Final score was Plains 13; Farwell 34.

Medina rushed for 81 yards on 15 carries; Pierce, 32 yards on nine carries; Dusty Rafferty, 12 yards on four carries; and Jason Smith, 12 yards on two carries.

Smith caught four passes for 72 yards; Shane Lowrey, four for 34 yards; and Guetersloh, two for 40 yards.

Pierce threw 31 times with 10 completions for 146 yards with one touchdown and one interception.

The Cowboys had a total of 283 yards offense.

PROTECT THE MEN WHO KEEP YOUR POWER ON

Power poles look like the ideal place to hang yard sale signs and campaign posters. But if you're tempted... don't. They may be ideal for you, but they could be deadly for a lineman who must climb that pole.

Anything that is tacked, nailed, or stapled to a power pole can cause serious injury or even death to a lineman, working on the pole. Nails, screws and staples snag and tear protective equipment, used for "hot" line work. Punctured rubber gloves are useless for high-voltage protection. When men are climbing poles and their climbing hooks hit a nail head or staple the hook can cut out of the pole and cause falls that injure and sometimes kill linemen.

Remember, what seems perfectly harmless to you could cost someone his life. Let's protect the men who keep your power on.
