COTTON NEWS

by Shawn Wade

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

Understanding the rules regarding cotton contracts and "beneficial interest" was the goal of a meeting in Lubbock Wednesday, August 5. Approximately 120 cotton producers, ginners and merchants met with USDA personnel and National Cotton Council staff members to learn about the new regulations.

According to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers the meeting provided some much needed insight into the way things will have to be done in 1992 and beyond.

Mike McCann, deputy director of the cotton price support division of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), stresses that the new rules will be implemented in 1992 and that producers need to understand them since eligibility for the Commodity Credit Corp. (CCC) Loan Program and the receipt of any applicable Loan Deficiency Payment depends on the producer retaining "beneficial interest" in the cotton.

Beneficial interest is determined to remain with the producer if the producer retains control of the cotton, risk of loss, and title to the cotton. McCann pointed out that there are numerous ways a producer can lose beneficial interest because of the way a contract is worded.

To help alleviate as many of these problems as possible ASCS officials have agreed to review industry contracts in 1992 to make sure beneficial interest stays with the producer. McCann added that over 100 contracts have already been reviewed and will be used as a guide for State and County ASCS offices making determinations on contracts.

Bill Gillon, NCC head counsel, noted that producers who have already signed contracts for their 1992 cotton will be allowed to consult with other parties to the contract and have it revised to eliminate potentially troublesome language prior to ginning. Any changes to contracts made after the cotton is ginned, he explains, will not be recognized by ASCS.

McCann and Gillon stressed heavily the fact that in practically every case an advance payment to a producer constitutes a loss of beneficial interest.

Gillon recommends that producers and merchants look for the following items in contracts:

-Is the producer's ability to place cotton in CCC Loan or request an LDP restricted by a specific clause in the contract?

-Does the contract specify when title to the cotton passes to the buyer?

-When is that time?

-Does the contract provide for an advance payment? If so, is the contract an option to purchase contract?

-If the cotton is damaged or destroyed, who is the ultimate beneficiary of any insurance coverage (be it insurance covering the producer, a gin, or a warehouse)?

One new procedure for 1992 is that producers can now present a gin-tag list from the gin to request LDP's for cotton. Producers will also be able to apply for LDP's on cotton the day it is sold as long as the producer met the requirements for eligibility prior to the sale. Producers will be ineligible for the payment if they wait until the next day to make the LDP request.

The message sent to producers and merchants who attended the Lubbock meeting is that contracting parties need to be aware of contract provisions that will affect loan and LDP eligibility and evaluate the transaction based on that knowledge. Producers are encouraged to have local ASCS offices review any proposed sales contract prior to its execution if they have questions about how it will affect program eligibility.

Price Trends Mixed in May, Hogs and Soybeans Up, Cattle and Grains Down

The index of prices received by producers in May was unchanged from a month earlier but the overall balance concealed some sharp changes for individual commodities.

A $4.50 per cwt. improvement in hog prices, a moderate rally in milk prices and a 23¢ gain in soybean values were the most impressive improvements, but were offset by a $1.00 dip in cattle prices and declines in most grain values.

Compared with a year earlier, all farm prices were down 6.6%, meats were down 8.2%, cotton down almost 30% and all crops were down 10%, but there were some gains.

Dairy prices are 13% above a year ago, wheat up 32%, soybeans up 3%.

Notice of Public Hearing on Tax Increase

The City of Plains will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 1992 by 44 percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on Monday, August 31, 1992 at 5:00 p.m.

FOR the proposal: Larry Cole, Rick Ramos, Owen Schneider, Hershel Smith, Kent Welch

AGAINST the proposal: None

PRESENT and not voting: None

ABSENT: None

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the rollback tax rate that the unit published on August 19, 1992. The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	Last Year	This Year
Average home value	$ 30,420.25	$ 30,420.25
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	$ 0.00	$ 0.00
Average taxable value	$ 30,420.25	$ 30,420.25 (proposed)
Tax rate	.449340 /$100	.44 /$100 (proposed)
Tax	$ 136.62	$ 133.85

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would decrease by $ 2.77 or two (2) percent compared with last year's taxes. Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would decrease by $ 2.77 per $100 of taxable value or two (2) percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

Enjoying the produce of summer gardens? Isn't it a great time of year? Canned and frozen vegetables are good but never as tasty as those fresh from the garden!

A vine ripened tomato is delicious almost beyond compare. I can recall going to my grandmother's garden as a little girl and plucking a big, red tomato and savoring every bit right there in the garden.

We thought you might like these vegetable recipes. If you haven't a garden, maybe you've been blessed with the fruits of a neighbor's harvest.

Putting Variety Into Packed Lunches

School has begun and both parents and students may soon find that preparing packed lunches can be challenging. According to Joan Chandler, Yoakum County Extension Agent-HE, a national survey has shown that children who buy a hot lunch at school generally have a more nutritious lunch than children who take their lunch. What steps can you take to ensure that the lunch that is going to school with your youngster is nutritious, safe to eat, and isn't the same old thing day after day?

Here are some guidelines to consider:

1) Use a variety of foods from the major food groups. Include foods from the fruit, vegetable, bread, milk and meat groups. Fresh fruit and raw vegetables are easy to pack. Vegetables can satisfy the desire for crunchy foods and fruits can satisfy the sweet tooth. Choose whole-grain breads and crackers for added fiber. For those who choose not to drink milk, include cubes of low-fat cheese. Swiss cheese is also lower in sodium. Cook lean meat and poultry and slice it thinly for sandwiches. Cooking your own will save money as well as contain less salt.

2) Go easy on fats, sugars and salty foods. Most sandwich spreads such as mayonnaise and butter add fat and calories but few vitamins and minerals. Use them sparingly. Substitute plain popcorn for chips. Pack lower-fat cookies and crackers such as melba toast, unsalted pretzels, graham crackers or ginger snaps. Instead of buying sweets, make your own with less sugar and fat. Use whole-grain flours and oatmeal, and add shredded vegetables or chopped dried fruits for a nutrient and fiber bonus. Individually freeze homemade baked products so you have a packed lunch supply when needed.

3) Create interest by having your child assist in food shopping and preparing lunches. Encourage your child to read nutrient labels in order to make choices that are low in fat, sugar and sodium.

4) Select and prepare foods that are appropriate for your child's age. For example, slices of fresh apple or pear are ideal for the younger child, while whole fruit is fine for older children.

5) Take special care to pack a lunch that will be safe to eat. Keep everything clean when preparing and packing lunches. Be sure utensils, hands and work areas are clean. Perishable foods like meat, poultry, seafood, eggs and milk products should be kept cold. Lunch boxes, especially insulated ones, generally keep foods cold much better than paper bags. A commercial freezing gel, a container filled with ice or a frozen drink helps keep lunch contents chilled. Bacteria that cause foodborne illness grow best at room temperature. In fact, enough bacteria can grow after two hours to cause illness. Sandwiches can be made and frozen several days in advance. Frozen sandwiches packed in the morning will be thawed by lunchtime. Simple sandwiches freeze best.

The Who, What, Where, How and Why of Label Reading

As the back-to-school and holiday shopping seasons approach, be sure to pay special attention to the labels on the garments. Sometimes overlooked and usually under-appreciated, a garment's label contains the most important information you need to know about the item you are about to purchase. What's in a label? The who, what, where, how and why of the garment.

Who: The brand or designer often identifies quality. Manufacturers and designers have worked hard to ensure that their names are synonymous with superior workmanship.

What: By disclosing the fiber content, this portion of the label reveals the type of care the garment will require and how well it will wear. Each fiber has its own attributes. For example, wool is known for its warmth, and acrylic for superior shape retention and color fastness.

Where: The country of origin may also reflect the quality of the garment since quality controls vary from country to country. Garments manufactured in the U.S. adhere to accurate sizing and quality control. Garments often carry additional hangtags indicating endorsements from a specific promotional group

(for example "Crafted with Pride in the USA").

How: Care instructions appear on all garments, usually on the reverse side of the label. By knowing how to care for a particular item, one can assess hidden costs. A "Dry Cleaning Only" tag indicates that the garment will end up being a lot more expensive than the initial price. Unlike natural fibers, man-made fibers such as acrylic require no dry cleaning and are easier to care for.

Why: Why should you read the label? So you can be assured that what you buy not only is fashionable, but also high quality. Label information enables you to choose stylish garments made from fibers, such as acrylic, that offer added performance value.
