JOHNNIE & MELBA FITZGERALD

Kitchen Korner

"I do not like to cook and have never liked to cook," says Melba (Mrs. Johnnie) Fitzgerald. "I could write a book on how to get out of cooking. My family learned very early to eat everything I served them, because they knew I was not going to fix anything else. There is a good side to this. I had no picky eaters!"

A resident of Plains since her marriage to Johnnie, Melba says she immediately fell in love with the people of Plains and loves living here. She and Johnnie are parents of four grown daughters, all graduates of Plains High School.

Dianne lives in Lubbock, Lynne (Winn) lives only a couple of blocks down the street, Gwen (Helms) is at home in Rotan and Johna (DeBusk) resides in Idalou.

"The girls have blessed us with four grandsons and five granddaughters who are our pride and joy," says Melba. "This size family should have made me a good cook. It did not!"

Melba loves to sew and soon figured how she could indulge in that pastime and get out of the kitchen. "When they reached an age capable of cooking, probably about two and a half or three years old, I would bribe them by telling them I would make them something if they would cook. It worked! Today they all know how to cook and some really enjoy it . . . I don't understand that!"

Melba says her kitchen boasts a rather large collection of cookbooks, "most never used by me".

"A lot of those books and recipes were given to me by well meaning friends and family and some I have been forced to use. They are good, so I share them," says Melba.

The Fitzgeralds are actively engaged in ranching and farming. "Him more than me," Melba adds. They and their children attend Methodist churches in their respective communities. Traveling is a pleasure that Johnnie and Melba look forward to enjoying more often.

Melba adds, "If I had a philosophy of life, it would be 'Don't take yourself or your life too seriously.'"

"HOT CORN"

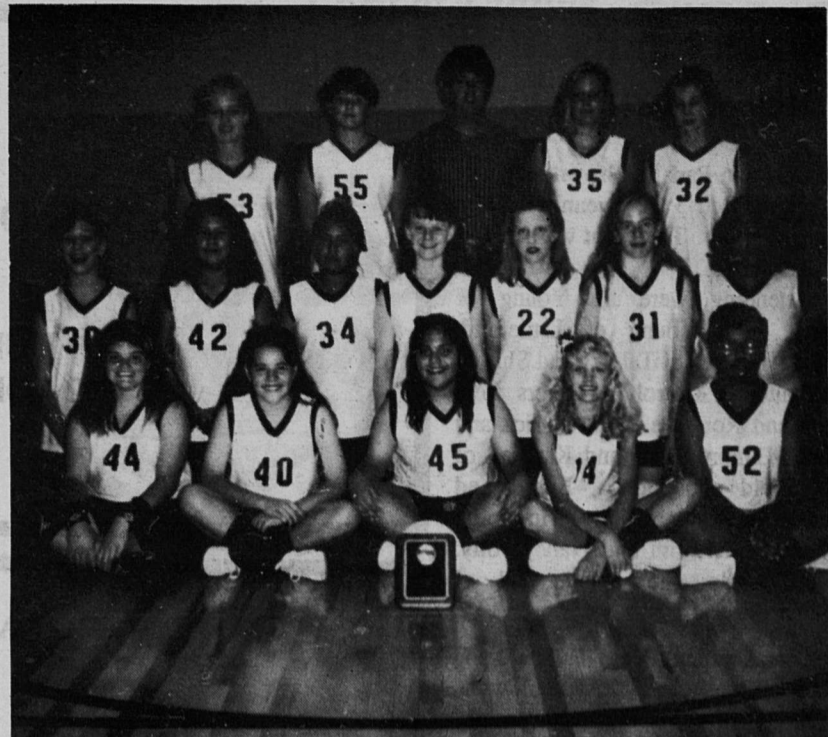

Grip can-opener firmly and begin opening as described by owner's manual. Open only one end of can. Corn will be yellow. With single motion, empty product into pan and place on stove. Light burner to begin heating procedure. Continue until corn is hot. Consult friends and/or relatives on proper temperature. If complications arise, call numbers at top of label. In the event of fire call 911. (taken from the Washington Post)

"Here is one a little more complicated but, people tell me it's one of their favorites. However, it must be pretty simple because I don't remember making a failure with it. It was taken from the Better Homes and Garden magazine and I've had it a long time," says Melba.

Teens at First Baptist Church make a commitment to abstinence

Several teenagers at First Baptist Church have made a commitment to wait until marriage for sex.

"It's the Biblical thing to do," affirms First Baptist Minister of Youth, Robert Canon.

"Our teens have decided to participate in the national "True Love Waits" campaign sponsored by the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board in Nashville," Canon said.

"True Love Waits is an excellent opportunity for teenagers to express in a public way a decision they have already made in private. Their public decision can be a motivation to others who have yet to make this important decision of abstinence." Chris Liebrum, youth consultant, Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Abstinence until marriage is the message of the campaign, according to Richard Ross, youth minister consultant for the Sunday School Board.

Chamber posts date for tree lighting event

Plains Chamber of Commerce directors met Tuesday morning in Johnnie's Restaurant. Plans for the annual Christmas tree lighting ceremonies in Pioneer Plaza were finalized. The event is scheduled for Wednesday, Dec. 1.

Tracy Bearden, PHS senior, met with the group and presented a speech he will deliver at the District Free Enterprise Speaking Contest in Lubbock under the sponsorship of Texas Farm Bureau.

Attending were Jim Warren, Mary Jo St.Romain, T.J. Miller, Dolores Davis, Toni Jones, David Bunch, Billie Blundell, Harry Richardson, David Brunson and Carolyn and Vaughn Culwell.

In this day and age, "we must challenge teens and young unmarried adults to say that abstinence is okay," said Ross, who noted that part of the Sunday School Board's commitment to addressing the issue is the release of a new Christian Sex Education series for use by parents in the home with all ages of children.

The purpose of the campaign is to inspire, inform, and call youth to adhere to the Biblical mandate from God and commit to refraining from sex before marriage, Ross said.

Canon urges those who would like to participate in this campaign, "or have questions about it, please feel free to contact me at the First Baptist Church, 456-3661."

Used tire collection to take place

Local residents will have an opportunity to dispose of used or scrap tires within a couple of weeks. The Yoakum County Extension Home Economics Committee has made arrangements for a used tire collection. This will take place Friday, Oct. 22, through Sunday, Oct. 24.

According to Joan Chandler, Yoakum County Extension Agent-HE, a disposal site has been selected in each town. In Denver City, residents may take used tires to a trailer which will be located on the northeast corner of 4th and Main streets.

The location in Plains will be the northwest corner of highways 214 and 380. Both of these sites are the locations of the recycling bins. Both sites will take tires during the following hours of the Oct. 22-24 weekend: Friday and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Sunday, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Several organizations will be helping with this effort. They include Plains Lions Club, Denver City Rotary Club, Denver City High School Student Council, and both the Plains and Denver City 4-H Clubs.

If your organization would like to assist or if there are questions concerning this collection, please call the Yoakum County Extension Office at 456-2263.

Save hot water cost without switching to cold showers

A water heater fueled by propane could save the average Texas family nearly $200 a year compared to the cost of heating water electrically, while at the same time benefiting the environment and creating jobs in Texas.

That's the message of the Railroad Commission's new newspaper and radio advertising campaign that kicks off statewide this week. The campaign is part of the Commission's legislative mandate to educate Texans about propane's benefits as an environmentally beneficial alternative fuel.

Commission studies show the initial expense of installing a propane-fueled water heater is no higher than other types, but the return on investment is much faster. According to Chairman James E. (Jim) Nugent, fuel-cost savings recoup the initial purchase price in about two years. "That's about a 50 percent annual return on investment," Nugent said, "which is considerably more than you get at the bank." Assuming typical delivered costs of 82 cents per gallon for propane, savings over the ten-year life of the water heater could total more than $2,000, Nugent said.

A major reason for propane's economy is its efficiency compared to other methods of energy production. More than two-thirds of the energy generated by oil- or coal-burning electric utility companies literally goes up in smoke, and is therefore lost at the source. Propane, a clean-burning primary fuel, is nearly two and one-half times as efficient, delivering 87 percent of its energy directly to the burner tip.

Propane is widely distributed and readily available throughout Texas. "More than a third of the nation's propane comes from Texas," noted Commissioner Mary Scott Nabers. "Texas has a state-wide propane production and distribution network in place, and the more people take advantage of propane as a domestic and commercial heating fuel, the more jobs that network creates." Nabers added that a new market worth $65 million a year to the Texas economy would arise if the 60 to 70 percent of all propane-heated Texas households that heat water electrically switched over to propane.

Propane technology has also become more efficient in recent years. Today's propane water heater uses one third less fuel than heaters manufactured as recently as five years ago, which contributes to the fuel's economy. Advanced burner design, energy-saving temperature controls and better insulation make the most of every gallon of fuel.

Texas' environment also benefits from using propane to heat water, according to Commissioner Barry Williamson. "Air pollution concerns all Texans, in both urban and rural areas," Williamson said. "Gallon for gallon," Williamson added, "it takes nearly three times as much fuel, generating nearly three times as much ozone-depleting greenhouse gas, to heat water electrically as it does to heat it directly with propane."

Quick recovery is a primary benefit of propane water heaters. Anyone who has ever run out of hot water in the middle of a shower, especially in cold weather, will appreciate the prospect of having plenty of hot water on tap. In a comparison of the first-hour recovery rates of typical 40-gallon water heaters, the propane model provided nearly twice as much hot water over the same period of time as a comparable electric model.

As part of the Commission's latest educational consumer campaign, look for newspaper ads touting "Pay less per fill up" in 386 weekly newspapers across the state and statewide radio commercials illustrating the economic and environmental benefits of propane water heating. For more information, call the Texas Railroad Commission's Alternative Fuels Division at 1-800-64-CLEAR.

KEEP WINTER OUTSIDE WHERE IT BELONGS.

Your home is your castle, as the saying goes. So you don't need uninvited guests, such as cold drafts and chilly breezes.

What can you do to keep your castle cozy?

- Check windows and doors for air tightness. They may need caulking or weatherstripping.
- Look for air leaks through walls or ceilings. Seal cracks and holes; fill gaps in insulation; close damper when fireplace is not in use.
- Install storm windows. Combination screen and storm windows are the most energy efficient and convenient because they can be opened easily if there's no need to operate heating or cooling equipment.

Call us for more tips on protecting your home from drafts and cold. We'll help you keep the outside where it belongs.
