FOOTBALL

Lorenzo ~ Plains

The Cowboys played host to a swarm of hornets Friday, Oct. 22. Lorenzo invaded Cowboy stadium, and at least for the first half of the game, made themselves a real nuisance.

Both teams had a couple of possessions before Plains got it in gear and mounted a complete drive. A 38 yard pass from Victor Bernal to Brad McMinn put the Cowboys in position for Shannon Ward's 45 yard catch for a TD. Bernal's kick was good.

Early in the second quarter, the Cowboys moved in for another score. McMinn grabbed a six yard pass, Jerry Dominguez pulled in one for 30 yards, and Ward snatched a 15 yard pass for the touchdown. The kick was wide to the left.

The Hornets came back and put six on the scoreboard when David Guzman caught a ten yard pass. The two point conversion play was stopped by McMinn.

Lorenzo scored again the second quarter, when they intercepted a Cowboy pass. Guzman pulled in another pass from Dustin Klafka for the TD. Ward knocked away the two point conversion pass. The Hornets had brought the score to Plains 13, Lorenzo 12.

Brian Wilson returned the kick to the Cowboy 45. Ace Williams carried for a 14 yard gain and on his third score, Ward again pulled in a pass from Bernal. The two point conversion try was no good. Halftime score Plains 19, Lorenzo 12.

With about four minutes gone in the third quarter Lorenzo is forced to punt from their own ten yard line. The Cowboys take over at the Lorenzo 43. David Bitolas and Williams move the ball to the 22 yard line. Bernal kicked a field goal from there.

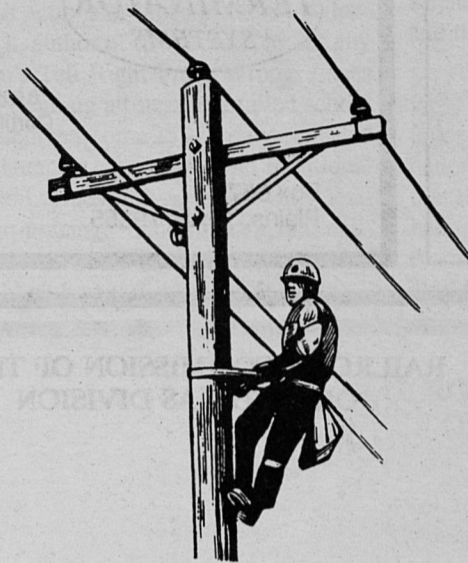

After forcing Lorenzo to punt, Ward gave the team good field position on his return to the Cowboy 45. A pass from Bernal to McMinn moved Plains to the 15. A penalty added half the distance to the goal. Dominguez hauls in a pass for the TD. The kick was not good.

Williams scored for the Cowboys on a 35 yard run. Bernal's kick was good. On the Cowboys' last scoring drive Bernal connected with McMinn on a play that covered 55 yards and put the team on the Lorenzo 26, where he was finally brought down. Bitolas does a good job of pulling in a high pitch and makes 17 yards. Bernal kept the ball for four more yards, then Bitolas carried it in for the score. The kick was good. Final score Plains 42, Lorenzo 12.

Bernal was 12 out of 17 passes for 301 yards. McMinn had five catches for 152 yards, Ward had five catches for 107 yards, Dominguez had two catches for 42 yards. Williams rushed for 141 yards.

On defense Stoney Garland was leading tackle followed by Ward and McMinn.

'Why Our Children Fail in Reading.'

The U.S. Department of Education is catching on. A new report card says more than two-thirds of our school kids fail in classroom reading and that—Surprise! Surprise!—it's because too many watch too much TV.

The latest bad news followed earlier reports that few U.S. students can solve math problems requiring more than an educated guess, and that nearly half of all adult Americans can barely read or write. Now, we are told, two of every five fourth-graders, nearly a third of eighth-graders and fully one quarter of all high school seniors read too poorly to understand what they're assigned to read.

"If I have one message to parents today," said Education Secretary Richard Riley, "it is this: Slow down the pace of your lives to help your children grow." If parents will turn off their television sets, he added, "we will transform this nation." Now he's talking! As the Education Department's nationwide reading-comprehension test of nearly 150,000 public school students revealed, those who scored the lowest watched up to six hours or more of TV every day. The children who scored the best watched three hours or less of TV daily. But the younger the kids, the more they sit glued to the "tube."

Some 20% of 4th graders said they watched TV six hours or more a day, as did 14% of 8th graders and 6% of 12th graders. Which may go a long way toward explaining why so many youngsters carry guns or knives to school and why there's so much teenage violence.

Studies have shown that by the time the average child graduates from elementary school, he or she will have seen more than 100,000 acts of violence on TV, including at least 8,000 murders. And a typical teenager watching TV sees nearly 14,000 sexual encounters each year. Likewise, graphic scenes of violence saturate the movies, the lyrics of top-of-the-chart rap music and even today's video games. There's no longer any doubt that all this exposure to violence is showing up in the nation's ever-rising crime rate. In his so-called Index of Leading Cultural Indicators, former Education Secretary William J. Bennett found that since 1960, violent crime has increased by 560%, illegitimate births by 419%, divorce rates by 400%, and that the rate of teenage suicide has gone up by some 200%.

Such shocking statistics explain why America is such a troubled society, and why attempts at reform are so painfully difficult. In Cambridge, Massachusetts, not long ago, a 15-year-old was charged with murdering a college student during a mugging. After his arraignment in court, a reporter asked two of the teenager's classmates what they thought the punishment should be. One suggested "counseling." The other classmate, a girl, replied, "What's the big deal? People die all the time. So what?"

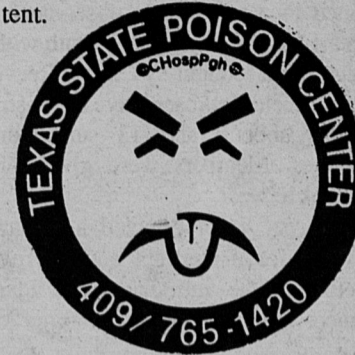

Such reactions are all too common. Among today's young people, says Boston College professor of education,

William Kilpatrick, many have difficulty seeing any moral dimension to their actions or those of others. Kilpatrick, author of the book, Why Johnny Can't Tell Right From Wrong, traces this chilling attitude to a failed school system that some 25 years ago replaced "character education" and traditional moral values with what's called "decision-making." This, he adds, tells children to decide for themselves what is right and what is wrong. "It is time," says Kilpatrick, "to consign the fads of 'decision-making' and 'non-judgmentalism' to the ash heap of failed policies and return to the proved method of character education... Teaching right from wrong has as much bearing on a culture's survival as teaching, writing and science. Teachers do have the right - and the duty - to teach basic morality."

Worthy goals, indeed, but agonizingly difficult to reach in today's violence-drenched environment. The Education Department's report card found that students who did better on the tests had teachers who emphasized actually reading literature over doing standard workbook exercises. Students also had higher reading scores if they had at least weekly discussions with friends and family. Sound practices, to be sure. But for too many of today's public school youngsters, especially in the inner city neighborhoods, family life is non-existent.

Librarians attend genealogy workshop

Ron Bremer of Salt Lake City, Utah led a Genealogical Seminar in the Bill McKibben Senior Center in Lovington, NM Oct. 21.

County Librarians Ann Greer and Latrell McDonnell attended the lecture and purchased the book "The Compendium of Historical Sources".

Patrons are welcome to come into the libraries and check the book for helpful information and ideas for speed in research and places to research.

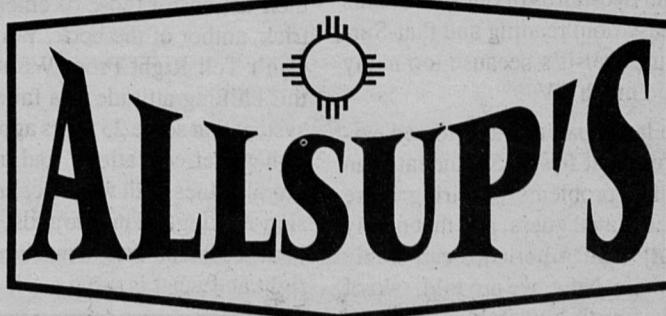

Looking for a little privacy? Consider moving to Bouvet Island. This uninhabited spot in the South Atlantic is the world's most remote island. It's about 1,050 miles from the nearest land, the likewise uninhabited Queen Maud Land coast of Antarctica.
