Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

To describe West Texas weather as "unusual" is to be redundant, to say the least. It could be that our weather would be unusual to other parts of the country, but here—well, it's usual.

This seems to be the pattern throughout the country for this year, to read and hear the reports. (Perhaps our West Texas weather has slopped over into other sections.) There seem to be more destructive storms, tornados, hailstorms, etc., all over the country this year than ever before. And it doesn't appear that fast communication makes it seem we are having more bad weather than usual, but that it is actually happening.

C. T. Parker, Jr., County Extension Agent, is a member of the county Civic Defense Unit, and in that capacity has had occasion to hear from those bureaus and departments which make weather predictions and forecasts. He said the weather observer boys had passed down the word that this year would be an unusual one all over, weatherwise. Something about the upper air currents getting all mixed up and changing direction and flow for some reason, causing the lower currents to act or react accordingly, dictating the kind of weather we have in all parts of the country.

Don't understand too much about upper and lower air currents and jet streams—in meteorology class we were probably looking out the window at the clouds. But last Saturday night, when those storm clouds rolled in over this section of West Central Texas, we happened to be in a spot in the wide open where we had an unobstructed view of the sky. Saw about three or four layers of clouds, and each layer was sailing in a different direction, with the bad ones coming in low, accompanied by lightning streaks and sheet lightning and thunder the likes of which we've never seen or heard before—and we grew up under some bad ones. The flashes of electricity outlined the awesome swirling, boiling bottoms of the clouds, angry and green and black, with wisps whipping out underneath, and then returning to the main body. Not at all unlike the pictures we have seen of the gases and fires letting and spewing out from the sun. The thought occurred at the time that here was power unimagined by humankind; that if this terrific power could in some manner be harnessed by man, there never again would be need to dig into the bowels of the earth for coal or send miles of pipe down in a never-ending search for energy fuel. Although the sights and sounds of a storm can cause a nervousness like no other happening, at times, such experiences can help mean an understanding that man and his wonders are only unobtrusive dots in the universe.

*Most of the day Tuesday, from the office window, we watched some of the finest examples of high jumping, long jumping, and near-swoonings ever displayed in public.

Some time Monday night or early Tuesday morning, a big bullsnake crawled out onto heavily-traveled West Dale Street, where he hadn't oughta—and a car apparently ended his crawling. The snake lay out and fun and healthful. If the gasoline shortage becomes acute, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Blackmon still have means of transportation, at least for short trips around town. In addition, they have a "togetherness" like no other, as they are swept along in the current family cycling fun. Blackmon manufactured this "quadricycle," using two 26-inch girls' bicycles. A bar is welded to the bicycle frame in front, and another bar is bolted to the rear. The regular bicycle seats were removed, and Blackmon built a wooden seat, re-forced with steel and covered with padding, to connect the two cycles. A third person could conceivably ride in the center between the two "power" riders. For steering, a connecting rod is hooked to each set of handlebars, and the vehicle can be steered by either rider. The cycle is double-powered, so one rider can "deadbeat," if he can get away with it. There are "His" and "Hers" rearview mirrors, lights, and horns. Blackmon says this cycle is even better than the traditional bicycle-built-for-two in that each rider is on an equal front.

Twister Hits Home In Wingate Area

Less than two weeks after a twister hit and demolished a home in the Wilmet Community of North Runnels—May 22—and did considerable damage to other homes and outbuildings, another twister hit the ground and damaged a home north of Wingate Sunday evening—June 3—and destroyed a barn on a nearby farm.

The home of Billy Joe Walker, Rt. 2, Wingate, was extensively damaged by the twister which swirled to the ground a little after 7 p. m. Sunday. The roof was raised from the walls, and some walls were torn loose, Walker said. In addition, an equipment shed on the place was hit and almost completely destroyed, he said. Debris was scattered over a half-mile area, Walker said.

A barn on the Bert Helms place, near the Walker farm, was blown down. Heavy rains and hail accompanied the storm damaging crops.

The Walker family was at an ice cream supper at a Wincate church Sunday evening when the twister hit their home, they said, and they stood in the churchyard and watched it. However, they did not believe at the time it had hit their home, Walker said. They also saw several other twisters in the clouds which did not touch the ground. The Helms family had gone to the storm cellar at the approach of the storm clouds, it was reported.

Other area residents reported sighting tornados between Wingate and Sweetwater Sunday afternoon, some of which hit the ground and some barely off the ground.

Heavy rains were reported in some parts of North Runnels Saturday night, and again Sunday, accompanied by some hail. Winters proper received 1.91

"Bright Scholarship" At Tarleton Available To Runnels Co. Students

Runnels County students interested in farming or ranching may apply for a Tarleton State University scholarship, provided by a $10,000 scholarship endowment fund which has been given Tarleton by Miss Frances Marion Allen and Miss Shelia Emory Allen, of Fort Worth, as a memorial to their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Bright, pioneers of the Content community near Winters.

The scholarship will be awarded annually and will amount to approximately $500. The gift stipulates that recipients must be from Runnels County, may be either graduating high school students or college students interested in farming or ranching, and must be in need of financial help to further their education.

James W. Bright moved from Oregon to Runnels County with his parents in 1882. He and his brothers operated a general merchandise store in Content, and in 1921 he married the former Annie Belle Emery of Dallas. The Brights made their home in Content until his death in 1948. Mrs. Bright then moved to Fort Worth where she lived with a sister, Dr. D. Emery Allen, and two nieces, Frances and Shelia, until her death in 1964.

The endowment fund was established by the two nieces from the Bright estate.

Schools Won In George Davis Suit

Judge Halbert O. Woodward of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas, San Angelo Division, has handed down a judgment in favor of the Winters Independent School District as a result of the May 17-18 trial of George Davis vs. Winters Independent School District, et al.

Judge Woodward's judgment was filed June 4. Plaintiff has 30 days in which to file notice of appeal, according to information received from attorneys.

Davis filed suit against the Winters ISD in December, 1972, for non-renewal of his teaching contract in March, 1971, for the 1971-72 school year. He charged the school district with violation of his Constitutional rights guaranteed under the First and Fourteenth Amendments. He asserted there was a de facto tenure system in existence in the Winters School District at such time; that his non-renewal came about because of his activities in the local Classroom Teachers' Association; that the defendants acted arbitrarily and capriciously in not renewing his contract because of such activities and because he had at one time meted out punishment to the son of the superintendent and on another occasion to a niece of one of the school board members.

Davis sought reinstatement, lost salary and benefits, attorney fees and court costs from the school district. He further sought declaratory relief and compensatory damages in the amount of $40,000, and punitive damages in the amount of $60,000 from individual school board members and the superintendent of schools.

A summary of the 14-page decision shows that Judge Woodward mainly focused on the fact that Davis was not rehired due to the declining enrollment of the Winters ISD, and for no other reasons associated with his involvement in the Classroom Teachers' Association, the disciplining of the superintendent's son, or of his disciplining of a board member's niece as was charged.

In addition, the court found that the plaintiff was hired on a year-to-year contract basis, that he did not have tenure with the Winters ISD, and that he had no de facto tenure. The court found that the plaintiff experienced no loss or denial of liberty or property in the non-renewal of his contract and that he was given a hearing, after advance notice concerning the reasons for the expected non-renewal of his contract, that met with all the due process requirements of the Constitution.

According to church officials, the Rev. Mr. Roberts will be in the church office most mornings during his stay in Winters, and will be on call at all times. He will take over all pastoral duties while here.

If every American motorist used a gallon less a week there would be no gasoline shortage, according to fuel experts who are concerned about reduced supplies and the problem of increased consumption.

Gasoline rationing this year is not likely, but it is not ruled out. The fuel consumption rate is up 6 percent. Some price increases are being reported. But we are told that if all motorists would take it on themselves to find ways to cut down on gas purchases, the problem would be solved.

Secretary of Interior Rogers Morton recently urged car users to ride bicycles, take trains, use less air conditioning, use car pools, keep cars in "top shape," and drive slower. If your speed is reduced from 70 to 60 MPH, for example, your gasoline consumption is reduced by 11 percent.

Therefore, every auto owner would be well advised to follow these suggestions. Surely each of us can save a gallon a week.

The name TEXAS is to be assigned to a nuclear-powered guided missile frigate, now under construction at Newport News.

This will be the fourth naval ship to be named in honor of the Lone Star State. The first was an iron-clad ram of the Civil War, the second was the first commissioned battleship of the U. S. Navy which prowled the seas during 1895 to 1911.

The third TEXAS performed brilliantly during two world wars before she became a Texas Memorial Ship on April 21, 1948.

The new TEXAS, when commissioned, will be one of the most powerful surface ships of the U. S. Navy. A fleet-air defense ship, she will combine nuclear propulsion with the latest anti-air and antisubmarine systems.

Grain Dribbles In,
Combines Waiting
For Dry Fields

Only a few patches of oats have been cut from this year's crop, and a few sample cuttings of wheat have come in to Winters thus far.

Most of the early-crop oats have been reported heavy, with good yield—40 to 60 bushels. Not enough wheat has been cut to make an estimate on yield.

Grainmen expect wheat yield to be pretty good, even though most everyone has received hail damage at one time or another this season.

Grain market has been good, and is holding.

Much of the wheat in this area is ready to combine, and farmers are waiting only for dry fields before pulling in the combines.

there on the street all day. Every time someone pulled up to the curb and parked, and went around either the front or back of their car, there was that snake. Harmless, while alive, it caused more than its share of excitement after death. One little boy came sailing across the street, eyes on coming traffic. Upon seeing the snake, he cleared about 20 feet from the middle of the street to the curb, flatfooted! Right over the snake. One gentleman, who appeared to have grown up in snake country, so startled at seeing a snake where one shouldn't be, lifted one foot and skipped for about 15 feet on the other. One lady came around the back of a car, head high and smiling only to put a hand over her mouth—perhaps to stifle a scream—and almost crumbled to the asphalt. Another lady walked past the snake, looked down, sniffed, and never changed stride. One man straddled the snake, boots about three and a half feet apart, hands outstretched in a balancing act, as he scooped past. One little boy wanted to touch it, but mama wouldn't let him, and dragged him off down the street.

Provided some enlightenment to what might have been a bleak day otherwise.

4-H Roundup
This Week At Texas A. & M.

Texas 4-H Roundup, one of the oldest annual statewide 4-H events in the nation, was held June 5-6 at Texas A. & M. University. More than 1800 boys and girls from throughout the state participated in more than 30 contests and demonstrations, ranging from livestock judging to public speaking.

Participants from Rannels County were Jack Earnshaw, Howard Frerich, Jan Feist, Charles Frerich, Sharon Book and Donna Rankin.

The County Extension Agent, Mrs. Juanita O'Connor, and assistant agriculture agent Warren Mitchell accompanied the group to A&M. Adult leaders also attending were Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Frerich, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Feist and Mrs. Lonnie Rankin.

4-Hers attending Roundup had already been named county and district winners in various demonstrations and contests. Only first and second place winners in district competition at the senior level—15 years of age or over—are eligible to compete in the state event. There are 13 districts of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the parent organization of 4-H.

This year's Roundup was held in G. Rollie White Coliseum on the A&M campus. Special awards were presented to 10 individuals, business and media representatives who have made outstanding contributions to 4-H.

Outstanding 4-H adult leaders were recognized at a luncheon on June 6. Mrs. Bill Helwig of Miles and Ray Spieler of San Angelo were cited as outstanding 4-H adult leaders by the Texas 4-H Youth Development Foundation.

Mrs. Helwig, a homemaker, has been a leader in management, method demonstrations, foods and nutrition and clothing projects for the past nine years. She received a plaque in 1969 as Rannels County Outstanding Woman 4-H Leader, and a certificate in 1970 at the district 4-H adult leaders' recognition banquet.

Since Mrs. Helwig has been a leader, the Miles Joint 4-H Club has increased its membership more than 50 percent. Last year, the state Santa Fe Award winner and the Gold Star boy and girl were from her club. Four method demonstration teams from her club also went to State 4-H Roundup in 1972, with the Civil Defense demonstration winning first place.

LEON SPRINGER Real Estate Salesman Winters, Ph. 754-5009

By BILL BOYKIN

Austin, Texas.—The 63rd Legislature's failure to agree on even a stopgap aid to education revision set off repeated demands from House members for a special session.

Snicker Price Daniel Jr. joined in the chorus, calling on the "prepare, polish and refine" a school finance bill "for legislative action no later than September 15."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who holds the key to whether or not there is going to be a special session on anything, made clear—twice in writing—that he doesn't plan to call one.

Daniel said his instructions to the Education Committee were offered just in case Briscoe reconsiders his position.

The committee will begin a series of hearings on school finance here June 18. More than 700 of the 1,149 school districts are in financial trouble, according to committee chairman Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale.

Briscoe set in motion new studies to develop information for specific legislative proposals in 1975 to equalize educational finances and opportunities. A special session at this time would be "premature," said the Governor, since necessary data cannot be assembled for another two years.

Daniel and others claim the problem of financial inequities among the school districts already has been "studied to death," and that the House had the answer in H. B. 946 last month.

But Briscoe feels proposals before the Legislature this year would "have only added to the present system of programs and budget with no review of current spending or effectiveness." He said he hopes the new study can produce an "educational approach that we can afford (without new taxes), as well as one that will meet the needs of the future."

Legislation passed in closing hours of the 63rd Legislature's regular session.

While none of the bills were as strict as the original House version, all were viewed by advocates as an improvement over present laws.

All filings and financial disclosure under all three bills will be with the secretary of state.

The new public access to information act is viewed as the best law of its kind in the country. Governor Briscoe earlier signed H. B. 3 to strengthen the open meetings law.

LEGISLATIVE OUTPUT DOWN

Legislative output was down considerably this year over 1971, although some contended the 63rd Legislature came to grips with more monumental problems than the last.

A total of 688 bills was passed by the 63rd, compared with 1,067 by the 62nd in their 140-day regular session.

A total of 2,746 bills was introduced, together with 97 proposed constitutional amendments.

Three hundred Senate bills were passed, as were two proposed amendments to the constitution introduced in the House and seven introduced in the Senate.

While he was lauded for his public service, speakers encouraged his neighbor at Uvalde, Gov. Dolph Briscoe, to make a place for him in Texas public service—and a "balloon went up" for Petry as Director of Transportation for the United States.

Petry said "thousands of people had better jobs and better incomes in Texas as a result of the state's efforts to build an adequate highway system to attract new industries and encourage expansion of industries."

Several presentations were made by present and former highway commissioners, Highway Department officials and employees. Good Roads Association and the man who appointed him to his first term on the Commission, Gov. Allan Shivers. A film strip was presented on his career, including sections about his worldwide career as the youngest president of Lions International 1951.

FINAL REFORM MEASURES PASSED Lobby control, code of ethics and campaign finance disclosures.

Consumers Spent Much For Clothes During Last Year

COLLEGE STATION — Consumers spent more for clothing and its upkeep in 1972 than ever before—but the increase in 1972 was less than in any year since 1965.

Mrs. Becky Culp, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, reported findings of a recent U. S. Department of Agriculture study.

"Total U. S. expenditure for clothing in 1972 was $61.9 billion," she said quoting the study.

"Each person spent an average of $296 on clothing and shoes during 1972 as compared to $275 in 1971 and $254 in 1970."

"Footwear costs increased the most, followed by women's and girls' clothing. Men's and boys' clothing costs increased least."

"At first glance these rising costs appear alarming — however, when viewed as a percentage of change on the consumer price index, clothing and upkeep costs increased less in 1972 than in any year since 1965," the specialist explained.

"In the last three years, clothing cost increases remained below those of food, housing, transportation, health and recreation."

"Percentage of total income spent for clothing and its upkeep also has declined for the average consumer—from 13 percent in 1945 to 8.6 percent in 1972," Mrs. Culp added.

She predicted further price increases, however, for 1973, citing the U. S. Supreme Court.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded: "Non-protein sources of nitrogen may be included in the total percentage of crude protein in the guaranteed analysis of feeds required by Commercial Feed Control Act of 1957."

"An attempt by the legislature to appropriate funds for a longer term than two years is inoperative."

APPOINTMENTS R. J. (Dick) Lindley Jr. of Houston was named to the board of directors of Texas Turnpike Authority, succeeding Cyril J. Smith of Houston.

Consumers Spent Much For Clothes During Last Year

COLLEGE STATION — Consumers spent more for clothing and its upkeep in 1972 than ever before—but the increase in 1972 was less than in any year since 1965.

Mrs. Becky Culp, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, reported findings of a recent U. S. Department of Agriculture study.

"Total U. S. expenditure for clothing in 1972 was $61.9 billion," she said quoting the study.

"Each person spent an average of $296 on clothing and shoes during 1972 as compared to $275 in 1971 and $254 in 1970."

Wellesley Hills, Mass. — As a result of the post-World-War II building boom, cement shipments increased at a rapid rate between 1947 and the mid-1950s. Cement manufacturers operated at or near capacity level with confidence bolstered by what appeared to be a favorable industry outlook, a long-delayed expansion of facilities was undertaken. This led to the addition of about 22 million tons of capacity between 1955 and 1960. Unfortunately, projections of demand for cement were overoptimistic. As new capacity was added, construction activity began to slacken. Capacity utilization in the industry fell to 70 percent, causing a fiercely competitive battle among the cement producers to maintain their market share.

Prices were reduced, rising costs were absorbed by producers, and severe shrinkage of profit margins ensued. These chaotic conditions prevailed throughout most of the 1960s. The industry's return on investment, which had averaged close to 14 percent for several years in the 1950s, dropped to 4.7 percent in 1969. As a consequence of this exceedingly low return, capital for new production facilities became scarce and the gap between capacity and output began to narrow. Sharply rising construction costs also served to put a crimp in new building plans.

PROBLEM OF ECOLOGY
With the coming of the 1970s, a new factor — ecology — further aggravated the supply situation. More stringent pollution-control regulations made it uneconomical to modernize dust-control equipment and many marginal plants were closed. It has been estimated that the cost of adding sufficient control equipment for the average cement company could amount to $5.50 per ton of capacity. Faced with this prospect, cement producers have found it impractical to put additional funds into a marginal or substantially unprofitable plant.

For this reason, Lehigh Portland Cement has shut down four of its ten cement plants, and Alpha Portland Industries has closed two of its eight plants. An industry study indicates that 23 more plants (representing 9 million tons of capacity) would be potential candidates for closing before 1976. It seems likely, therefore, that total industry capacity may decline somewhat at a time when the demand for cement is expected to show significant growth.

DEMAND ON THE RISE
The total value of new construction put in place in 1971 exceeded $100 billion for the first time — in fact, it totaled $109.4 billion, as compared with a disappointing $91.3 billion the previous year. Construction spending for 1972, liberally aided by the continuing boom in residential housing, climbed another 13 percent to $123.4 billion. Although a fall-off in residential activity is expected this year, total construction outlays should show a moderate increase stemming from gains in non-residential segments of the industry.

Cement producers are well situated to benefit from improvement in the non-residential sector, since approximately 75 percent of cement shipments are directed to non-residential construction markets. As a matter of fact, increased demand is foreseen for cement throughout most of the 1970s. Latest industry projections suggest cement production of 583 million barrels by 1980, 140 million barrels more than the theoretical capacity of producers in 1971.

CEMENT STOCKS OFFER GOOD VALUE

The improved outlook for the cement industry has yet to be generally reflected in the price action of cement stocks. The Research Department of Babson Reports feels however, that many issues offer good value at current prices. Among the cement stocks we think well worth holding are Alpha Portland Industries, General Portland Ideal Basic Industries, Kaiser Cement & Gypsum, Lehigh Portland Cement, Lone Star Industries, Medusa, Penn-Dixie Industries, Puerto Rican Cement, Vulcan Materials, and Giant Portland Cement.

COUNTY AGENT'S WEEKLY NOTES

Rains Clouding Screwworm Outlook

Screwworms like lots of moisture, so recent widespread rains over the state are clouding the outlook that has been generally bright up to now. Parker points out that the next few weeks will be critical as the weather gets warmer. Warmer temperatures and a surplus moisture situation are a dangerous combination for screwworm development.

A case confined April 1 in DeWitt County indicates that screwworm flies are beginning to move northward from overwintering areas.

Officials with the Screwworm Eradication Project at Mission have pointed out that up to now cold winter and spring weather has delayed northern screwworm fly migrations from overwintering sites in Mexico. But an influx of warmer weather could change the situation quickly.

In order to stay abreast of the situation and to initiate sterile fly drops where they are needed, screwworm program officials must depend on reports from individual farmers and ranchers. That is why it's so important to check animals regularly and to submit any worm samples to the Screwworm Lab for identification. Prompt reporting is essential for sterile fly drops to be effective.

The county extension office has kits for mailing worm samples found in livestock and they should be sent to Box 969, Mission, Texas 78752.

Through mid-April a total of 68 screwworm cases have been confirmed in Texas. This number is down drastically from last year's level when the epidemic was already in full swing in April.

Sterile fly production at the Mission lab continues at a high rate, points out Parker. Almost a billion flies were released during March—70 percent to Mexico and the remainder to Texas. All locations with confirmed cases are "hot spotted" with 200,000 flies a week for six weeks. In addition, regular grid patterns of fly releases are made weekly in southern Texas areas and overwintering areas in Mexico.

Aphids come with Spring

Fruit and vegetable growers and home gardeners should be especially watchful now for aphids, says Parker. The small sucking insects enjoy warm days, cool nights and juicy new plant growth. Sometimes called plant lice, aphids come in a variety of colors and attack almost every kind of plant. Aphids often go undetected until they have started causing extensive damage. They are difficult to see because they are small, don't move around unless disturbed, and are often the same color as the plant part they are feeding on.

Their presence can be detected by honeydew, a sweet, sticky substance they secrete. The honeydew attracts fungi, molds and insects and also makes the mowing and baling of aphid-infested alfalfa difficult.

Numerous black and orange lady beetle larvae also indicate the presence of aphids, points out the county extension agent. Aphids usually feed on the undersides of leaves or in unfolding shoots. Their feeding may cause the leaves to curl around them. Aphids can be effectively controlled by several insecticides. These include Cygon, Meta-Systox-R, malathion, diazinon, and phosphamidon as sprays and di-syston and phosphate applied to the soil.

63 Rural Traffic Accidents In May In 4-County Area

In the month of May 1973 the Texas Highway Patrol investigated 63 rural traffic accidents in the four county area consisting of Brown, Coleman, Concho and Runnels counties.

The patrol listed 38 injured and 1 killed in the 63 accidents reported. In Runnels County the Highway Patrol investigated 6 accidents in which 2 persons were injured and none were killed.

During the 5 month period through May 31, 1973, the patrol investigated 245 accidents in the above four county area. In those accidents 130 persons were injured and 7 killed.

General Telephone Installed Millionth Phone Recently

College Station — General Telephone Company of the Southwest Wednesday (May 30) celebrated the installation of its one millionth telephone in ceremonies at Texas A&M University, site of the milestone installation.

L. Gray Beck, president of General Telephone of the Southwest with headquarters in San Angelo, marked the milestone with the presentation of a black leather Chestphone to Dr. Jack K. Williams, president of Texas A&M University.

Following the installation, Beck and Williams placed a call to Congressman Olin E. Teague. The one millionth phone was installed on the first floor of the University Center Conference Tower. A plaque mounted on top of the telephone denotes it as the one millionth.

"We are extremely proud that this telephone, which marks such a significant milestone in the growth of our company, will become a part of the vast and complex communications system provided by General Telephone at Texas A&M," Beck said.

The new University Center on the A&M campus consists of three buildings linked by a two-level passageway. The Theater Arts Center houses the auditorium, theater, forum and related public and work areas. The Conference Tower where the telephone installation occurred houses the conference areas in a multi-storied building. The third facility in the complex is the Memorial Student Center which houses numerous student life and visitor activities.

During the ceremony, Beck reviewed the growth of General of the Southwest since its beginning in 1926.

"In 47 years we have witnessed tremendous internal growth, which when combined with several acquisitions, has made it possible for us to reach this important milestone in our history," he said.

General grew from 7,000 telephones in 1926 to over 100,000 by 1950, an increase of 93,000 in 24 years. The large growth began in the 1950s during which General tripled the 100,000 telephones in service at the beginning of the decade. The company installed its 300,000th telephone at the ALCOA Plant at Point Comfort in 1960.

Five years later, on January 12, 1965, General installed the 400,000th telephone in ceremonies in the Garland (Texas) Memorial Hospital.

The next landmark in the continuing growth period for General occurred within three years when the company registered a gain of 350,000 telephones, or an 88 per cent increase to 750,000. This installation was made in the office of Tom Sullivan, executive director of the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport in December 1968. The accelerated growth was due to internal growth and the merger with Southwestern States Telephone Company.

Today, Beck said, five years later, the company has added another 250,000 telephones into service to reach the one-million mark. He explained the one

Soil Map of Texas On Sale By SCS

A multi-colored general soil map of Texas has now been published and is available for sale to the public.

Harvey Kahlden, district conservationist for the U. S. Soil Conservation Service in Runnels County, said the 36 by 45 inch map can be seen in his office. It shows soil information compiled from years of detailed soil survey work by the Soil Conservation Service in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

The map lists basic soil information which should be useful to teachers, planners, conservationists, contractors, engineers, developers, realtors, farmers, ranchers, researchers and others. The map gives color delineations of the 73 major soil associations (containing 161 separate soil series) in the state and their extent. It also lists special limitations of the soils that affect their use.

Inset maps show rainfall, temperature, and length of growing season across the state. Current and potential urban and rural uses by soil associations are also listed.

Published cooperatively by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Soil Conservation Service, the map is available in two sheets or printed front and back.

For mounting on a wall, Kahlden recommended the two-sheet style. For folding and filing, he said the map printed on both sides might be the best.

The map may be purchased from the Department of Agricultural Communications, Texas A & M University, College Station, Texas. Order blanks can be obtained at the SCS office or from the Runnels County Extension Agent's office.

millionth ceremony was delayed slightly by the sale in March 1972 of all properties in Louisiana consisting of 35,800 telephones.

Beck pointed further to the company's growth by citing recent statistics which show General gaining 28,700 telephones from January 1 to April 30.

"This means we have averaged over 7,000 telephones a month thus far in the year. Needless to say, this growth indicates the challenges with which we are faced in keeping pace with the communications needs of our customers in the four states where we have service," Beck said.
