On Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 14, the '38 Study Club observed the annual Christmas affair in the home of Mrs. W. J. Greer.

The gifts were distributed by Mrs. Greer, accompanied by much bluebon blooming.

Delicious refreshments of hot coffee and Christmas cakes was served to members present. These favors were plastic "beats" or but shades filled with candies.

On Friday night of this week the W. J. Greer will open a new department in the building.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Healthy Love Creates Health

By Lawrence Gould

Can love be a cause of illness?

Answer: In happiness, No. For love is a source of health, or pleasure and these create health, not illness. But love for a person who is unattainable, or of whose return you are uncertain, may arouse anxiety and "nervous tension" that will be both mentally and physically harmful. The less you are of your own worthiness to be loved, the more anxious you'll be, and while you will probably attribute your "love-sickness" to the loved one's being "rich" or "capricious" (as may be true) it will be your self-doubt that makes you so vulnerable.

was noted that three male college students responded more readily to a woman's voice than to a man's of equal volume. If this is the way that most men react, it might be because of the strange male presence of a woman is a challenge to his self-protective instincts.

Are single women easier than broken hearts?

Answer: I think of no way to prove it, but I am inclined to think so. And there are some realistic reasons for it. For instance, a single woman is less dependent than an attached one on most parties, and there are all many places where she can retreat without an escort. But this is not true of every man, and it could be happier in a woman's case.

Among the many uses for sugar bags are aprons, children's sunsuits, luncheon sets, quilt linings and garment cases.

If you want to remove a soiled line on collars, cuffs, etc., use an abrasive hand soap. It's easier on the fabric than scrubbing with a brush and removes the soil more quickly.

To make cottage cheese, pour two quarts of hot, but not boiling, water into two quarts of thick, sour milk. Let stand five minutes and drain overnight.

Chopped olives, parsley, peanuts or almonds added to melted butter that is served on vegetables gives variety.

Blend creamed cottage cheese with mayonnaise or creamy type salad dressing and serve over wedges of lettuce. Sprinkle with finely-cut pimiento stuffed olives.

What Is a Psychoneurotic?

By Dr. James W. Barton

IN QUEBEC, CANADA ALONE THERE ARE MORE THAN 600 TOWNS AND CITIES NAMED IN HONOR OF CATHOLIC SAINTS.

IN THESE DAYS when all of us are more or less upset for various reasons, we can understand why the nervous, emotional, anxious individual is greatly upset. This mental and emotional disturbance affects the various organs and processes of the body, so that this type of individual is constantly consulting his physician or many physicians in an effort to be free of these various symptoms. We call this individual a neurotic.

A good definition of a neurotic is given by Dr. Joseph L. Poterman, Cleveland, in the Merck report:

"The psychoneurotic is one who has failed to make an adjustment to life, who is troubled by inner conflicts of a greater degree than the average, and whose conflicts lead to a tendency to unpopularity, poor adjustment to others and to a great variety of physical complaints for which there is no organic basis or cause."

Sometimes the symptoms are limited to one region, but they are more likely to be in a number of regions—heart, stomach, intestines, head, joints—and change often from one region or organ to another. Some of the symptoms pass away quickly; others seem to remain in the one region or organ. While some neurotics have a well-begone expression others assume the attitude of being indifferent to their suffering.

Unfortunately for the physician, many neurotics are above the average in intelligence, yet fall to understand how their inner mechanisms convert disappointments and frustrations into disturbing physical derangements.

Most physicians blame neurosis on parents who allowed the youngster to complain of illness when he was forbidden to do something he wanted or hidon to do something he did not want to do. Thus when the child grows up, he develops symptoms only "when" over-whelmed by major trials and rejections of life.

The treatment of the neurotic is a thorough physical examination in case some physical ailment is really present. If present, it is treated. Then follows an estimation by the physician as to the extent of his emotional disturbances are to blame for his symptoms.
