Stubblefield Reunion

The family of Mrs. Lena Stubblefield and the late Wm. T. Stubblefield spent Saturday and Sunday in an enjoyable get-together. The out of town relatives began to arrive Friday and visited in the homes of the Carbon relatives until 6 p. m. Saturday when they all met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Gilbert with whom Mother Stubblefield makes her home

After an hour of greetings they were ushered to the terrace where long tables with benches to seat 53 were placed. Everything one could wish for in the line of delicious eats was served. Earlier in the evening the men had barbecued the beef while the women prepared the vegetables and salads. All this plus pickles, olives, condiments, ice cream and cakes were served the family and a few close friends.

Late in the evening the grandchildren went to the various homes to sleep while the older ones remained for a jolly good time, playing games, laughing, talking and reminiscing. By 3 o'clock curfew sounded and lights out! Everyone pretended to sleep. Sunday by sunrise the chefs (men) were on KF duty, some serving "coffee in bed" while others prepared scrambled eggs, bacon, buttered toast and coffee on the out door grill.

The grandchildren returned for breakfast. Seated around the tables shaded by large trees, the family began another session of fun and foolishness ~~and~~ lasted until mid-morning when all returned to their respective homes.

Mrs. Stubblefield is, and Mr. Stubblefield, who died in 1920, was pioneer Eastland Countians having come here from Miss. and Ken. respectively at very early ages. Ten children were born to this union. Mrs. Stubblefield maintained her home in Carbon until January of this year and since that time she has made her home with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gilbert.

All children were present. They are Dr. M. L. Stubblefield, Baird; Mrs. W. F. Gilbert, Spur; Claud and Frank Stubblefield, and Mimes, Hubbard and Howard Gilbert, Carbon; Mrs. Guy Dunnam, Houston; Conner Stubblefield, Goldthwaite; Mrs. H. B. Boswell, Temple and Mrs. C.B. Braden, Houston. Two sons-in-law and several grandchildren were absent. Grandchildren present were Mr.

In Memory of C. N. McDaniel

Editors Note—Below is a letter written by C. E. Sims to Mrs. Carl McDaniel after the passing of her husband which we have been asked to publish:

Mrs. Carl McDaniel,
Carbon, Texas

Dear Mrs. McDaniel:

It is with sad regret that I have just read of the death of your husband, Carl. It is useless for me to say that I was shocked and am sorely grieved at the news of his passing. I want you and yours to know that you have my sincere and heart-felt sympathy.

Carl was the father of a fine family of boys which any man should justly be proud, and he lived a life before them which was absolutely above reproach.

He was always an honest and upright citizen and a real gentleman in every walk of life. He was not only a good man, but a useful man, and one which any town or community can ill afford to lose.

That the comforting and consoling influence of an all-wise God, your relatives and many friends surround and keep you during this trying ordeal is the sincere wish of a

Sympathetic Friend,
C. E. Sims.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones and Bob Bourland of Birmingham, Ala. visited Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bourland this week.

Callopie Passes From River Boats to Circus

The callopie, the musical instrument consisting of steam whistles played by means of a keyboard, was developed in Massachusetts in 1855 as an added attraction on river boats, says Collier's.

The popularity of these "floating music boxes" lasted 20 years and then, as the steamboats started to discard them, the callopie passed from the river to the land and has since been associated with the circus, fair and carnival.

HOBBY PAYS OFF . . . Two Atlanta school children examine a new school design, built in miniature by R. F. Snyder, Atlanta businessman. Snyder's model-building avocation resulted in this revolutionary school design which has been converted to full-scale construction of rural schools in the South.

NO MORE 'HOOKEY'

Inventive Salesman Perfects Revolutionary School Design

ATLANTA, GA.—An inventive salesman who is neither parent nor educator paradoxically has devised a rural school for which even the most recalcitrant children may be less loathe to play "hookey" in future.

He is R. F. Snyder, Atlanta businessman, who teamed up with his business with a hobby to produce a school design in miniature that has since been translated into full-scale construction. The feature calculated to hold the interest of pupils is that classrooms are almost as "outdoors" as the play-yard.

Several months ago Snyder attended the southeastern school conference in the interests of Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company and came home with an idea buzzing in his head.

"Most kids don't like to stay indoors," he reasoned, "especially when the weather is nice outdoors. So why not bring the outdoors in to them?"

He sat up nights for two months, he says, building in his workshop a two-room school model.

"I opened up the walls to all outdoors with the biggest windows possible. And I found that twice as much daylight could be supplied to some of the desks than in traditional school design. Daylight has an important bearing on children's eyesight."

"The sun, you know, also can be used to help heat the school during cold months. And the large windows dispel that cooped-up feeling and give spaciousness to rooms."

Snyder set up his completed model in the company's display rooms and invited Atlanta architects and educational officials to inspect it. Enthused with his idea, he began addressing architects' meetings throughout the state and explaining his plans to parents' organizations and child welfare groups.

His school model featured a whole wall of glass to the south, with the roof extended to shield the big window against the sun in the extremely hot school months. Opposite, without sacrificing blackboard space, he placed a clerestory window high up under the roof to admit north light.

In the north room, he reversed the window arrangement and glazed the south clerestory window with heat-absorbing and glare-reducing glass to assure balanced lighting.

Today, rural schools patterned after Snyder's design to "entice" the greatest possible amount of daylight into classrooms are actually under construction in the South.

Snyder has a quotation, too, from one of the world's authorities on lighting to bolster his theory.

"If from the age of five years," it says, "children did their reading and performed their other tasks of near vision in the abundant light of a window in daytime, there would be fewer wearing or needing eyeglasses when they finished school."

He figures he may have a hand in putting a good many of the nation's children in that "abundant" light in the years to come.

"Off We Go" AVIATION NOTES

Airport Chatter
 Establishment of an "air-age" class in Kent, Wash., high school is planned from proceeds of the city's first Sky Fair, staged at the Kent airport under auspices of the Lions club. Highlights of the program included formation flying by 30 navy planes, stunt flying, an air style show for women, exhibitions of aircraft and military equipment, parachute jumps and a helicopter demonstration. . . . Colorado communities seeking airport improvements will be aided by a new state program calling for state contributions to help the local communities match federal funds allocated under the 1947 airport program. Despite budget cuts, Colorado still is eligible for about $250,000 of federal grants. Communities seeking airport improvements are Trinidad, Gunnison, Rifle, Monte Vista and Greeley. . . . A tour of the U. S. dryland field station at Akron, Colo., was arranged for Colorado flying farmers. The farmers and ranchers, most of whom piloted their own planes, were guests at a flight breakfast after their arrival in Akron.

A lawsuit on file in Santa Monica, Calif., court accuses helicopter pilots of using their machines to prep at women sunbathers "attired either scantily or not at all" at a swank beach club. The suit, seeking an injunction against the flying "peeping Tom," named as defendant the Los Angeles Airways, Inc., whose helicopter mail route passes near the club.

Military aviation appropriations after World War I made possible the first air mail service, the start of aerial forest patrol, crop dusting and aerial mapping.

Personality Course Offered in School
 NEW YORK, N. Y.—Personality courses, designed to teach students how to acquire a "pleasant manner," are being offered in 27 vocational high schools here.

The program was started on recommendation of employers who said that "a far greater percentage of persons lose their jobs because of personality difficulties than because of inefficiency." George F. Pigott Jr., assistant superintendent, explained.

ANOTHER FIRST . . . Miss Ann Kirk Shaw, 23, of Southport, Conn., is shown at the controls in the cockpit of a helicopter ranks as the first woman to solo a "flying windmill."

1. Was "Casey" of "Casey at the Bat" a real person?
2. Which drew more spectators last year, horse racing or big league baseball?
3. Is there any water in Death Valley?
4. What would a cubic foot of gold be worth?
5. What was the treasury department's "conscience fund" started?

Phillies in 1938; he inspired Ernest Thayer to write the poem.

2. Racing drew 26,000,000, while baseball drew 19,000,000.

3. Yes. Water veins have been found in numerous sections, containing desert minnows, relics of the days when Death Valley was the bottom of a great inland sea.

4. Well over half a million dollars.

5. In 1811, when $250 was received from a man who explained that he came by the funds illegally. To date, Americans have sent in more than $1,000,000.

Prepare for Your Life Work—Booklet Explains How and Where to Get Jobs

Ask These Questions When Choosing A Job

ENEY-meeny-miney-mo is an amusing child's game, but it's hardly the way to choose your life work.

Deciding what field to enter, what job to go after, deserves careful consideration. A list of all the things you like to do, those you dislike. What's your weakness? What do you do best? That's how to narrow the field down to a few choices.

Household Hints

Junior's new puppy won't produce lonesome wails at night if an alarm clock is put to bed with him. The tick-tock sound will be a lullaby for the lonely pup and keep him quiet.

When placing articles in the refrigerator remove them from the paper bags and place in refrigerator bowls. This increases cold air circulation and looks neater.

Season vegetables such as green beans, corn, or spinach with bacon or sausage drippings to give them unusual flavor.

When melting paraffin for canning do not allow the paraffin to become steaming or smoking hot. Just reduce it to a liquid.

For quick drying of sheets, bed spreads and tablecloths, hang evenly and not quite double on the line.

When crystal vases and bottles need cleaning, break several egg shells into the bottle or vase, add a little water, and shake until all film and dust disappears from the glass.

If you have a bottle of perfume that you hesitate to use because of its heavy odor, try adding a few drops to your bath water. You will find it pleasant.

Be sure to save your cancelled checks and receipts after a bill is paid. If a dispute arises over the payment of a bill, you then have the evidence.

Dozens of fields are analyzed in our booklet No. 201, including salaries, chances for success, etc. Send 25 cents for "Guide to Jobs: How and Where to Get Them" to Weekly Newspaper Service, 242 West 11th St., New York 11, N. Y. Print name, address with name, booklet title and No. 201.

Modern Gas and Electric Ranges Stress Convenience

WHETHER you buy a gas or electric range, you'll find that each has special advantages, Joan Miller tells rural homemakers in nationally circulated Copper's Farmer.
"Which ever type you select," she writes in the farm magazine read by 1,250,000 rural families, "you will find that generally the new ranges are convenient for quick metal preparation. They are good looking pieces of equipment which are easily kept clean.

A deep-well cooker plus large unit and two of average size give ample space for meal preparation on top of electric range shown above. Automatic timer may be set to snap oven heat on and off. Staggered automatic-lighting burners, including an extra-large one, are a feature on range for either gas or liquefied gas shown at left. Broiler has metal tray which may be used for serving.

Purchasing a range made by an established, reliable company is your insurance of a good quality product, she continues. But it pays to notice or ask about these construction points:

Top-of-range burners or heating unit should be spaced far enough apart so they'll accommodate large pans or kettles.
The oven should be placed where most convenient to reach and use.
The broiler also should be conveniently located for placement of food.
For ease in cleaning, look for porcelain enamel, inside and out.

Toe space is important at bottom front edge of range for greater comfort when standing in front of it.
In gas ranges look for Certified Performance models which are automatic.
In liquefied gas ranges, check on whether the specified fuel has been odorized. This makes for easy detection of leaks.
