Poisoning Bill By Seba's Passes House At Austin

A bill making it a crime to willfully scatter, throw, put or deposit poison on the lands owned or in the possession of another with intent to injure the owner thereof or to injure any person or domestic animal has been passed by the Texas House under sponsorship of Rep. T. M. Collins of Eastland.

The bill makes such an act a misdemeanor, punishable by not less than $250; more than $1000 fine, or imprisonment of not less than 30 days or more than a year. The act also provides penalties for willful killing of horses, asses, mules, cattle, sheep, goats or swine owned by another.

The poisoning section of the bill was inspired by numerous dog poisoning epidemics in Eastland County, particularly Eastland.

Whether the bill finally is passed depends on the mood of the Senate, especially since the Legislature is fast reaching the time for adjournment.

Guy Morris was in Rock Springs last week end and his sister, Miss Opal Morris, who has been teaching in the school there, returned home with him.

Dogs On Force

One white mongrel and one tan pooch have become unofficial traffic officers on the Taylor, Williamson county, force. The dogs stand guard at the Taylor School street corner and force automobiles to slow down for children. Police say they are more effective than the warning signs. The dogs work a five-day week. They don't show up on Saturdays and Sundays when they aren't needed.

Mrs. Boles was born in Alabama in 1867 and came to Texas at an early age and was married to J. H. Boles who passed away in 1922 in Carbon where the family made their home for many years. Prior to moving to Carbon the family lived at Sipe Springs for several years.

Mrs. Boles joined the Methodist Church at an early age.

She is survived by seven children: Mrs. Y. O. Wyatt of Vicksburg, S. A., Mrs. A. M. Roberts of San Diego, Calif., Mrs. J. B. Reese of Carbon, E. S. Boles of Lubbock, R. S. Boles of Tulsa, Okla., C. H. Boles of Sandoz and Smith Boles of Wichita Falls. A number of grandchildren and great grandchildren and a host of other relatives and friends also survive.

Methodist Church

Next Sunday will be the closing Sunday of the Methodist church here. Also it will close its membership book and close its books. We plan to retire and live at Mineral Wells. Every member of the church is invited to be present. The public is cordially invited.
Seba Kirkpatrick.

Mrs. Frank Hall is ill in the Blackwell Sanitarium at this writing.

Mrs. Wyatt and son, Dick Wyatt, of Sipe Springs attended the funeral of her sister, Mrs. Boles held here Tuesday.

California Parks Embrace Masterpieces of Nature

WNU Features.

Nature created her greatest masterpieces in California and many of them are incorporated into the national park system. Unsurpassed mountain scenery, embracing rugged peaks, imposing waterfalls and untouched wilderness areas, and the famous "big trees" are among the major attractions in national parks of the High Sierras.

In 1890, three national parks were formed, all in the Sierra Nevada of California. They were the first parks created since establishment of the original national park, Yellowstone, in 1872. The three additions were Yosemite, already famous for a single magnificent valley; General Grant, a little area of only four square miles containing the General Grant grove of big trees, and Sequoia, dedicated chiefly to preserving much more extensive stands of these forest giants, but possessing also mountain scenery of superb quality. In 1940, Kings Canyon, a great untouched wilderness of deep canyons, rushing streams and more sequoias, directly adjoining Sequoia National park, was established, and little General Grant was absorbed in it.

The "big trees," found at their best in all of these parks, often are called redwoods. Actually they are closely related, yet distinct species. The Sequoia sempervirens, usually called redwood, grows only near the coast of California, with a few in southern Oregon. The Sequoia gigantes grows only in a narrow belt from 5,000 to 8,000 feet in altitude.

Another grows to greater heights than 300 feet tall, and has a trunk which averaged 30 feet in circumference. It is the largest tree in the world.

above the valley nearly a mile, and El Capitan, nearly 4,000 feet of perpendicular granite, are the waterfalls of this magnificent park. Upper Yosemite fall has an unbroken drop of 1,430 feet; Ribbon fall is even higher, with a 1,612-foot drop. Numerous others range from 300 to more than 600 feet in height. Unfortunately, for the late summer visitor, many of these waterfalls go dry by mid-August when there has been little rain or snow in the high country.

According to geologists, the deep valleys of the west slopes of the Sierra were carved by the rushing waters of the great ice sheets which now flow down them. Originally V-shaped and narrow, the Yosemite and others were invaded by glaciers during the ice age and these, moving forward with inexorable force and power, ground away the sides of the valleys to give the present-day canyons their U-shape.

Yosemite valley is probably one of the most heavily used areas in the entire park system. On some days as many as 20,000 persons have been in the valley at one time; as many as 12,000 persons have occupied its campgrounds in a single night. These, of course, are week-end and holiday crowds; consequently, the visitor who wants to avoid them will plan his visit at other times.

IN ALL THREE of the High Sierra parks there is good fishing, for which a state license is required. Each also contains a great variety of wild animal and bird life. As in a number of the other parks, too great familiarity with the larger species, particularly black bear and deer, and the feeding of these animals by visitors are discouraged by National Park Service.

The sharp hooves, which can do serious injuries to incautious visitors. The bears also should be viewed at a distance, for their apparent tameness is deceptive. Feeding these animals is no kindness to them; foods prepared for human consumption cause them serious digestive troubles as well as getting them out of the habit of seeking their normal and natural food.

Both Sequoia and Yosemite have a wide variety of public accommodations, ranging from simple house-keeping cabins on up. Both offer accommodations throughout the year and are very popular in winter since they offer excellent snow and ice sports. Accommodations for visitors to Kings Canyon are found only in what was formerly General Grant National park, although many use facilities at Giant Forest in Sequoia, 30 miles farther away.

The Perfumed Circus

We have made our inspection of the 1947 circus and here is our verdict: It is colossal, stupendous and spine-tingling, but it smells too good.

The trend has been on for a decade now and the greatest show on earth, while more death-defying, breath-taking and sensational than ever, has been so beautified, prettified, embellished and glamorized, air conditioned and perfumed that the smell "so dear to the heart of my childhood" has been removed. And it's too bad.

A circus should smell like a circus. We have been a circus addict from the age of six up. In our childhood you could smell a circus as it pulled over the hills into town. There was no smell so distinct, so overpowering, yet so pleasant. And it smelled in all departments, not just in the camel, seal and elephant areas.

In case you couldn't get to the circus you could get out on the porch, take a deep breath and feel that you were present. But now all is changed, this season more than ever. They finally have got the circus where it smells sweet and looks clean. We are glad it didn't happen sooner.

The circus to be correctly catalogued now falls somewhere between such things as a Rodgers and Hammerstein musical, a superman broadcast, a beauty parade and a child's dream of a wild night in the Roman coliseum, with Nero permitting Hans Christian Andersen to come on the program as a guest artist.

But we saw it at Madison Square Garden, N. Y. On the road it may get its odor back and its costumes dirtied up. The trip to a circus in New York is a journey by cut rate drugstores, ham and eggeries, parking lots and a road. The circus on the road is a journey across green pastures and over stone fences, with the scent of apple blossoms, home-cooked chicken pies and the fresh-turned earth. That's sumpin'.

Super Sirloin

"Sirloin steak . . . $4." That's what the menu appeared to say. We put on our glasses. It still seemed $4. We called the head-waiter. "What is this figure here, beside the steak item?" we asked. "Four dollars," he replied. "It is not a typographical error?" we asked.

"No, the head-waiter replied. "We had a typographical error here once and are very careful now. It resulted in something being listed at $2.75."

"Now this steak," we pressed. "There's nothing imported about it? It didn't come from a mine or an estate or anything."

"I think not, sir. Maybe you would prefer lamb chops."

"Back to the $4 steak," we shouted. "It wouldn't be from the cow that jumped over the moon, would it?" "I am willing to admit our $4 steak is from a relatively minor jumper," said the waiter weakly. "Would you be interested in some fried eggs?" "Be man," we urged, "and tell me why any restaurant should charge $4 for a steak?" "Don't you know there's a PEACE ON!" was the reply.

Well, Herb Hoover has got his name on that dam again. Mr. Leckes took it off in the early New Deal days. He renamed it Boulder dam after first making sure there was no Republican of prominence named Boulder. Now justice has been done and it is Hoover dam again. We think the ex-president must feel pretty good. It is hard to get anything back these days, and to get a great dam back is quite a trick.

The army air colonel who was convicted of stealing the Hesse crown jewels has been sentenced to 15 years in prison. On the "rock" pile in other words.

We have always contended that a colonel may have taken too literally the wartime appeal to leave no stone unturned in the destruction of Germany.

People who never change their opinions usually have none worth changing. Charity is a thing that usually begins at home, and stays there. One mark of wisdom in a woman is knowing how to take what is becoming to you. Never laugh at a happening to someone else that, if it happened to you, would be tragedy. There were fewer accidents in the days of the horse and buggy. That's where the horse sense came in.

FACING NATIONAL PERILS

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 19:17, 23-37; 20:1-19. MEMORY SELECTION—For thus said the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel, turning and rest shall be saved in quietness and in confidence shall be thy strength.—Isaiah 30:15.

Perilous times had come upon the southern part of the divided kingdom known as Judah. There had been a period of outward prosperity under King Uzziah, but the inward decay of the people made it an empty thing.

Judah, like Israel, was on the downward path which was to lead to ultimate captivity and judgment. The occasional reign of good kings seemed to stem the tide a bit; in fact, the great king of whom we study today, Hezekiah, gave Judah a "fresh lease on life and enabled her to outlive her sister kingdom by nearly a century and a half."

Judah experienced a real revival of faith in God under Hezekiah (II Kings 18:4-6; II Chron. 29:31). The temple was cleansed, the priesthood reformed and reeducated, and the great feast of the Passover kept once more. This undoubtedly helped the new life which came to Judah in an hour when the nation seemed about to disintegrate.

I. The Enemy's Threat (19:1-5, 6). For the background here one must read the previous chapter. Hezekiah, having tried to throw off the yoke of Assyria, had sent Sennacherib and his armies sweep over the nation, but blasphemously denied the power of God. Such was the awful situation Hezekiah faced as he went to the temple, and sent trusted servants to inquire of Isaiah what he ought to do.

The response was prompt and definite. We may learn from the incident that in an hour of confusion and danger it is well to take time to find out what the Lord has to say for us. Hezekiah wanted to do it. II. The Lord's Answer (19:7, 32-37).

God, his only to blow on the mighty, blaspheming monarchs of this world and they come to their end, definitely and conclusively. The "blast" of the Lord (v. 7) is enough to care for that! And remember, he is still ready to act on behalf of his people!

On the plains of Philistia the mighty host of Assyria met the angel of the Lord, and they never awoke from their sleep. The loss of 185,000 men sent Sennacherib home to Nineveh broken and fearful, and there he met his own violent death. Hezekiah knew the sweetness of victory as he trusted in the Lord. If we could only rest the rest there. But the weakness of the flesh comes to the fore as we see

III. The King's Folly (20:1-17). Babylon, one of the great Gentile enemies of Assyria, wanted to cultivate the friendship of Hezekiah, so an embassy was sent to express joy at his recovery from a serious illness.

It was the Lord who had healed him (see 20:1-11) in a miraculous way, but now Hezekiah did the foolish thing of trying to cultivate the help of men. To impress these possible allies from Babylon, he showed them all his wealth. He evidently wanted them to return to their ruler with a story of the might and glory of Judah.

Poor Hezekiah! He only made a fool of himself, prepared the way for the ultimate taking of his possessions and his people by the Babylonians.

The lesson to be learned here is not only that boasting is folly (although that is always true), but also that it is the height of folly to put one's trust in the arm of flesh. No matter how mighty the forces of this world may be, or how wonderful it might seem to have their favor toward the cause of the church, let us be clear that it is in God that we have our strength—and in him alone.

The church and individual Christians too has lost its testimony and its power in the community whenever and wherever it has turned to the world for help or support. Remember the folly of Hezekiah.

'Wish You Wouldn't's' Apply to Parents, Too

SINCE turn about is fair play, any list of "Wish you Wouldn't's" for teen agers should be accompanied by a few "Don'ts" for parents, too. Holly Miller points out in nationally-circulated Capper's Farmer. Discussing the teen agers' viewpoint, she writes: "Seems as if 'I wish you wouldn't' is the preface to a good many statements by the older generation. "The way you dress, eat, walk, talk—gadooks— nothing seems to please them. "But before you get too huffy and cast their admonitions to the breeze, go into a huddle with yourself. Down deep you may find the grace to admit that a lot of so-called characteristic adolescent behaviorisms are not calculated to make the populace love you. And that just because simply everybody acts a certain way is not sufficient reason for anybody as special as you to follow suit." Among the "Don'ts" which Miss Miller says teen-agers might suggest to parents are: "Don't laugh at us. We're self-conscious enough. The our plans may seem a little fantastic and some of our actions silly, it's probably part of being young. Don't you remember? "Don't treat us like kids. You can help us grow up by treating us like grown-ups. Trust us a little more. "Never, never say, 'I told you so.' It's too curling. And we have to learn the hard way to make it stick."
